Christine McAuliffe,
as Special Administrator of the Estate
of David Cains CLAIMANT

V. Claim No. 220374

THE ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES (BOONEVILLE HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CENTER) RESPONDENT

COMPLAINT

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, as Special Administrator of the Estate of David Cains, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her causes of action against the above-named Respondent, states the following:

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

1. This claim is brought pursuant to the Arkansas Claims Commission's jurisdiction over claims for monetary damages brought against an agency of the State of Arkansas, pursuant to A.C.A. § 19-10-204.

2. Venue is proper pursuant to A.C.A. § 19-10-201, et seq. The incident complained of herein occurred in Arkansas, in Logan County.

PARTIES AND SERVICE

3. Claimant hereby incorporates by reference all previous paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

4. Claimant Christine McAuliffe (hereafter "Claimant"), Special Administrator of the estate of her brother, David Cains, brings this cause of action for survival on behalf of the Estate of David Cains; and for the wrongful death of David Cains, on behalf of the following statutory beneficiaries: Charlene Robinson, mother of the deceased; and herself, as sister of the deceased. Claimant's Letters of Administration and the Order of Appointment are attached hereto, respectively, as Exhibit 5 and Exhibit 6.

5. At all times relevant to this cause of action, and at the time of the incident described further herein, Respondent, the Department of Human Services (hereafter "DHS"), was at all relevant times an Arkansas state agency. DHS, through its Division of Developmental Disability Services (hereafter "DDS"), operated five Human Development Centers throughout the state, including the Booneville Human Development Center (hereafter "BHDC"), which is where David Cains lived for 13 years and where he died. All tortious acts alleged herein occurred at the BHDC. David Cains' Death Certificate, as well as his health insurance identification cards, are attached hereto, respectively, as Exhibit 7 and Exhibit 8.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

6. Claimant hereby incorporates by reference all previous paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

7. The Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) is a state facility established to provide care for people with developmental disabilities. It is located on the grounds of the former Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium, which originally opened in 1910. The Sanatorium closed for tuberculosis patients in 1973. The BHDC can house up to approximately 150 people with disabilities, and the residents have access to limited recreation, and a cafeteria for meals.

8. The BHDC has a checkered past, and a serious history of abuse against some of the most vulnerable in our community. The facility has demonstrated indifference to improving the training of staff to provide safe services for those with disabilities. The United States Department of Justice has twice sued the State of Arkansas regarding the failure to provide adequate services and care at its Human Development Centers; however, those cases were dismissed based on procedural grounds.

9. In 2010, a resident choked to death because staff were not providing adequate supervision to ensure the safety of a young man with known disabilities related to his ability to eat. In February of 2015, a young woman died after being regularly and improperly restrained without regard to her known seizure issues, which led to her choking to death.

10. Disability Rights Arkansas (hereafter "DRA") issued a scathing report recommending the closure of the BHDC in January of 2015, which is attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The title of this report was "A New Approach to Care in Arkansas: Why the Time Has Come to Close the Booneville Human Development Center." Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA) is the designated federal Protection and Advocacy System for individuals with disabilities in Arkansas. One of DRA's core functions is to investigate the deaths of persons with developmental disabilities in facilities that provide services to them. DRA has authority under federal law to thoroughly investigate deaths occurring in any public or private entity that provides care, services, treatment, or habilitation to individuals with disabilities.

11. One year later, the DRA issued another report criticizing the lack of improvement at the BHDC titled "The Excessive Use of Restraint at Booneville Human Development Center," attached hereto as Exhibit 2. DRA concluded that the restraint practices at the Booneville HDC are contrary to recognized best practices and put residents and staff at risk of physical and emotional harm. The DRA report notes that restraints should only be used on individuals who repetitively engage in dangerously aggressive behavior, and less restrictive methods of addressing the person's behavior should first be tried and documented. Restraints should be a method of last resort. The BHDC uses a significantly higher rate of restraints on residents than the other Human Development Centers in Arkansas. Additionally, according to the DRA report, the BHDC uses restraints often as a first option to handle a "problem" resident, instead of using less restrictive methods. Restraints are used on residents for not complying with requests even when there is no danger of imminent violent behavior from the resident.

12. The Booneville HDC has not improved since the 2016 investigation and report by the DRA. Improper and abusive restraining techniques were used in 2019, which caused a disabled resident to suffer a broken arm. And, just last year the improper restraint of David Cains led to his death from choking on his own vomit. As further stated herein, the employees at BHDC did not disclose that Cains had been restrained to emergency medical services, the coroner, or any other government officials. The cover-up of the use of restraints on David Cains is troubling; it further demonstrates the lack of professionalism and proper care at the Booneville HDC.

13. David Cains, born [redacted] was admitted as a fulltime resident to BHDC on May 1, 2007. He lived there for 13 years, until his death on June 13, 2020. He liked watching the Dukes of Hazard, loved the band the Monkees, and he didn't like to be alone. Most of all, he loved being with friends and family. His mother and sister (Claimant) were very active in David's life, regularly visiting him and taking him on outings. David always spent the major holidays at home with his family.

14. David suffered from [redacted] He was 42 when he died, but testing indicated [redacted]

[redacted]

Claimant believed her brother functioned at approximately the level of a six-year-old.

15. Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA) performed an investigation into David's death and issued a written report on October 22, 2020, attached hereto as Exhibit 3. DRA concluded, as further stated herein, that policy failures at BHDC – and the conduct of BHDC staff resulting from those policy failures, including the use of an excessive restraint, failure to follow David's [redacted] and failure to call 911 when David stopped breathing – caused David Cains' death, "either directly or indirectly."

16. Based on the written statements of BHDC staff, interviews conducted by DRA with BHDC staff, EMS and medical records, and various reports issued by DHS personnel, the following facts are currently known about David Cains' death:

17. David had an egg salad sandwich for lunch on the day he died. He had his lunch at the cafeteria in the BHDC Commons Building, sometime before 11:30am. After lunch David was accompanied to a nearby restroom by staff member Tyler Mattson. According to Mattson, David became irritated after exiting the restroom, began screaming, ripping paper off the wall, and attempting to hit Mattson. Mattson immediately applied physical restraints, referred to by BHDC as "personal restraints," beginning at approximately 11:30am, according to Mattson. Mattson states he grabbed David's arms, causing David to fall over and land on his face. Mattson then rolled David onto his left side where he continued to physically restrain David, who Mattson says was still resisting. Another BHDC staff member, Amy "Mandy" Jones, arrived on the scene and joined in restraining David by holding his head in place. A third BHDC staff member, Ryann Campos, then arrived and participated in the physical restraint by holding David's ankles. According to Campos, she noticed shortly after arriving that David had defecated. At some point they saw food coming out of David's mouth, that his face was purple, and that he was not breathing. Though their participation in the physical restraint began at different times, both Mattson and Jones claim the physical restraint on the ground lasted one minute, stopping only when they realized he was no longer breathing. These conflicting statements have not been resolved or explained by Respondent.

18. None of the three staff members called 911, even though they knew David had stopped breathing. BHDC Policy IV-B-10 specifically prohibits all non-medical staff from calling 911 in response to a medical emergency. Instead, Ryann Campos called staff LPN Deborah Noah, who was present on campus at the Judge Hill Building, informing her of what was happening and that David Cains was not breathing. According to Deborah Noah, it was approximately 11:33am when Ryann Campos called her. Rather than dialing 911 right then, Noah instead relayed Ryann's message to staff LPNs Amanda Schmidt and Kelly King. Rather than dialing 911 right then, Schmidt and King instead drove by car from the Judge Hill Building to the Commons Building across campus. LPNs Schmidt and King then entered the Commons Building, located the scene, observed David, and only then did they instruct another staff member to dial 911.

19. It is of concern that all BHDC staff members, including the LPNs, claim in their written statements that Ryan Campos called medical staff at 11:33am and that 911 was called at 11:34am. In order for this to be true, it would mean LPN Noah received the call from Ryann Campos, then relayed that message to LPNs Schmidt and King, who then walked (or ran) to a parked car, drove the car across campus to the Commons Building, walked (or ran) inside, located the scene, observed David on the floor not breathing, then instructed a staff member to call 911, which that staff member then did, all in the span of 60 seconds. That is simply not possible.

20. Furthermore, Logan County EMS records reflect the 911 call was placed, not at 11:34am, but at 11:37am, which means that a minimum of four precious minutes elapsed between the time staff realized David had stopped breathing and the time 911 was called. The Logan County Coroner's report also identifies 11:37am as the time 911 was called. At least 4 minutes, and quite possibly more, given there were no visible clocks in the area where the restraint occurred, elapsed from the time staff noticed David was not breathing to the time 911 was called.

21. All efforts by BHDC staff to resuscitate David failed. By the time Logan County EMS arrived on scene at 11:50am, it was too late; their efforts to save David were unsuccessful. David was transported to Mercy Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 12:21pm.

22. David Cains had [redacted] BHDC staff were aware of the [redacted] BHDC staff – including Mattson, Jones, and Campos – ignored these known [redacted] when they took David to the ground minutes after his lunch and pinned him there while he aspirated and choked to death – the very risk for which the [redacted] had been put in place. Subjecting an individual [redacted] to a physical restraint shortly after a meal increases the risk of death from asphyxia due to a higher probably of vomiting. They held him pinned to the ground – one held his arms, one his ankles, and the other his head – while he vomited and choked to death, only stopping when he defecated, turned purple, and stopped breathing – all of this done in response to a temper tantrum shortly after lunch.

23. At the time of David's death, BHDC was the only Human Development Center in Arkansas that did not have cameras in place to monitor the facility.

24. BHDC staff misled EMS responders as to how David died. BHDC told Logan County EMS that David simply began choking on his lunch, aspirated, and stopped breathing, intentionally omitting all mention of the physical restraint. This misinformation was then relied upon by Mercy Hospital and ultimately the Logan County Deputy Coroner, who, after later learning the true circumstances of David's death, stated that an autopsy likely should have been performed.

25. The true circumstances of David's death were also kept from his family. BHDC told David's mother only that he had choked on his lunch and that they would need to contact Mercy Hospital if they wanted additional information. It was not until nine days after David's death, the Monday after his funeral, that his mother learned of the physical restraint. His mother and sister (Claimant) had requested additional details from BHDC, and on this Monday after David's funeral they received in the mail a letter from BHDC containing a "Final Synopsis" of the incident, attached hereto as Exhibit 4. This final synopsis, signed by Jeff Gonyea, the Superintendent of BHDC, not only contained the first mention of the physical restraint David's family had heard, but stated there was insufficient evidence to corroborate maltreatment and that, in fact, "[a]ll staff conducted themselves in an appropriate manner." Prior to this letter nine days after David's death, his family was not even aware a maltreatment incident was being investigated. At this point, David had been buried three days and it was too late to request an autopsy.

26. The BHDC conducted an internal maltreatment investigation into David's death. That investigation, upon information and belief, was led by Sandy Evans, a DHS Residential Services Director and Adult Maltreatment Investigator who, upon information and belief, was herself employed by the BHDC. Upon information and belief, she worked alongside the very people she was supposed to be investigating. This BHDC investigation, which, according to DRA, suppressed or omitted crucial facts, concluded that no individual involved in the incident did anything wrong. It was endorsed by Jeff Gonyea, who, as Superintendent of BHDC, was ultimately responsible for the actions of the employees being investigated.

27. The Division of Provider Services and Quality Assurance (DPSQA) also investigated the circumstances surrounding David's death. According to DRA, very little could be gleaned from this investigative report. This investigation basically concurred with the BHDC investigation, while providing no independent reasoning, no description of the events, and no statements from witnesses.

28. BHDC's policy failures, given its extensive history of problems with excessive use of physical restraints, can fairly be described as willful. BHDC was fully aware that the overuse of physical restraints greatly increased the risk of physical harm and death to its disabled patients yet did nothing to change policy or practice. As previously stated, one patient was killed during a physical restraint in 2015, another suffered a broken arm in 2019, and the problem was so bad that DRA was calling for the facility to be permanently closed. Despite all this foreknowledge, BHDC did nothing, and this failure by omission directly caused David Cains' death.

29. BHDC explicitly acknowledges, in writing, the extreme risk to disabled patients caused by physical restraints. The BHDC's "Restraint Incident Debriefing Form," which was provided to staff and used to document physical restraints prior to Cains' death, states the following in bold lettering: "The Booneville Human Development Center is dedicated to the reduction of restraint use at the facility. The use of restraints is proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients, with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used. All efforts must be made to deescalate behavioral situations so that they do not result in restraint. All restraint at the facility is to be for emergency use only (even when part of a behavior treatment program), when a very real risk of personal injury or severe property damage is imminent."

30. Despite knowing, and even memorializing in its internal documents, that physical restraints "dramatically" increased the risk of injury to disabled patients, BHDC did nothing to enforce a policy reflective of this dramatic risk. In fact, according to BHDC records, staff used physical restraints on David Cains at least 16 times in the one year preceding his death. One of these was a mechanical restraint, whereby David was bound to a chair or bed with straps on each wrist and three straps across his body. Despite knowing of safe and effective alternatives, BHDC did nothing to enforce the use of these safer alternatives. In this case, there is no evidence Mattson or any other staff member ever attempted to use any form of non-physical intervention on David Cains before taking him to the ground.

31. According to the most recent DRA report, BHDC, in April of 2012, participated in a training survey with H & W Independent Solutions to evaluate and improve the quality of care to the residents. During the evaluation, H & W found that significant improvement was needed due to, in part, the BHDC staff's reliance on emergency restraint. This is further evidence of the foreseeability of David's death on the part of BHDC.

32. Despite the fact that BHDC claims to certify its staff in the use of NCI/CPI crisis intervention (which are non-violent), BHDC also trains and allows its staff to restrain residents using methods that require no certification and are not evidence-based, such as the physical restraint used on David Cains. The most recent DRA report states that it "is concerning that BHDC staff are then left to choose between non-violent crisis intervention and physically/emotionally traumatizing physical restraint," which in this case led to David's death.

COUNT ONE: NEGLIGENCE

33. Claimant hereby incorporates by reference all previous paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

34. The Respondent Arkansas state agency, DHS, at all times relevant to this action controlled and operated BHDC. Respondent, at all times relevant to this action, owed David Cains a duty of ordinary care. In agreeing to accept the custody, care, and control of David, Respondent expressly assumed a duty of care for David Cains. The relationship between Respondent and Cains imposed a duty in this case. Duty can be assumed or created through actions, and "where a person undertakes to act, they must do so carefully or they will be liable for negligence." Yanmar Co., Ltd. v. Slater, 2012 Ark. 36, 16, 386 S.W.3d 439, 449 (2012). The moment Respondent agreed to take care, custody, and control of David, a duty was created.

35. Respondent breached its duty and proximately caused Claimant's damages in at least the following ways:

(a) By failing to set policies reflective of its knowledge that physical restraints are unreasonably dangerous to patients;

(b) By failing to train and require BHDC staff to use non-violent methods of deescalation, despite knowing the unreasonable risks of physical restraints;

(c) By using an excessive and unreasonable physical restraint on David Cains;

(d) By using this physical restraint without first even attempting to deescalate in a non-violent way;

(e) By regularly physically restraining clients in unreasonably dangerous and violent ways, such as by pinning them to the floor, which is what happened here;

(f) By allowing staff to take clients to the floor during physical restraints and engage in other means of physical restraints not based on any specific training or guidelines, but rather just the judgment of its poorly trained staff;

(g) By failing to adhere to Cains' [redacted]

(h) By ignoring known [redacted] necessary for Cains' safety;

(i) By failing to set policy allowing non-medical staff to call 911 in emergency medical situations;

Executive Summary:

In 1999, the Supreme Court ruled in Olmstead v L.C. that public entities are required to provide community-based services to individuals with disabilities when: a) such services are appropriate; (b) the affected persons do not oppose community-based treatment; and (c) community-based services can be reasonably accommodated, taking into account the resources available to the entity and the needs of others who are receiving disability services. Yet, in 2015, the State of Arkansas has not fully moved toward community-based services. This report highlights the physical state of the Booneville Human Development Center, the fiscal realities involved in operating the Center, and the use of restraint as a therapeutic and disciplinary tool at the Center.

From January through October of 2014, Disability Rights Arkansas conducted 22 monitoring visits to the Booneville Human Development Center (HDC) campus and we have met many wonderful residents and staff. Using the information gathered during these visits, Disability Rights Arkansas made a number of observations for areas of improvement and has formulated recommendations for the facility and the State of Arkansas.

Currently, the Arkansas Department of Human Services is in the process of seeking state funds in order to renovate and modernize the Booneville HDC. For fiscal year 2014, the Booneville HDC had an operating budget of $16,005,663. This is the second highest operating budget of all the HDCs, behind only the facility in Conway, which houses roughly four times the number of residents. Due to the age of the Booneville HDC, there are numerous physical plant issues that need to be addressed. In addition to the problems one would expect at an older facility, some of the buildings have entire floors dedicated to storage, or floors which are left vacant. Several buildings have been deemed unsafe and have been boarded up completely. These problems exist even though the State has spent $4,460,850 on capital improvements for the Booneville HDC since 2009.

In addition to the deterioration of the physical buildings and the amount of money poured into the facility for its upkeep, Disability Rights Arkansas reviewed the data provided by the Booneville HDC to the state on the number of restraints from June 2014 to September 2014. A comparison of the data on restraints reveals that the use of restraints at the Booneville HDC for disciplinary measure occurs much more often than at any of the other, similarly sized, Arkansas HDCs.

Based on the findings of this report, Disability Rights Arkansas recommends:

- The Booneville HDC should be gradually phased out over the next twelve to eighteen months.

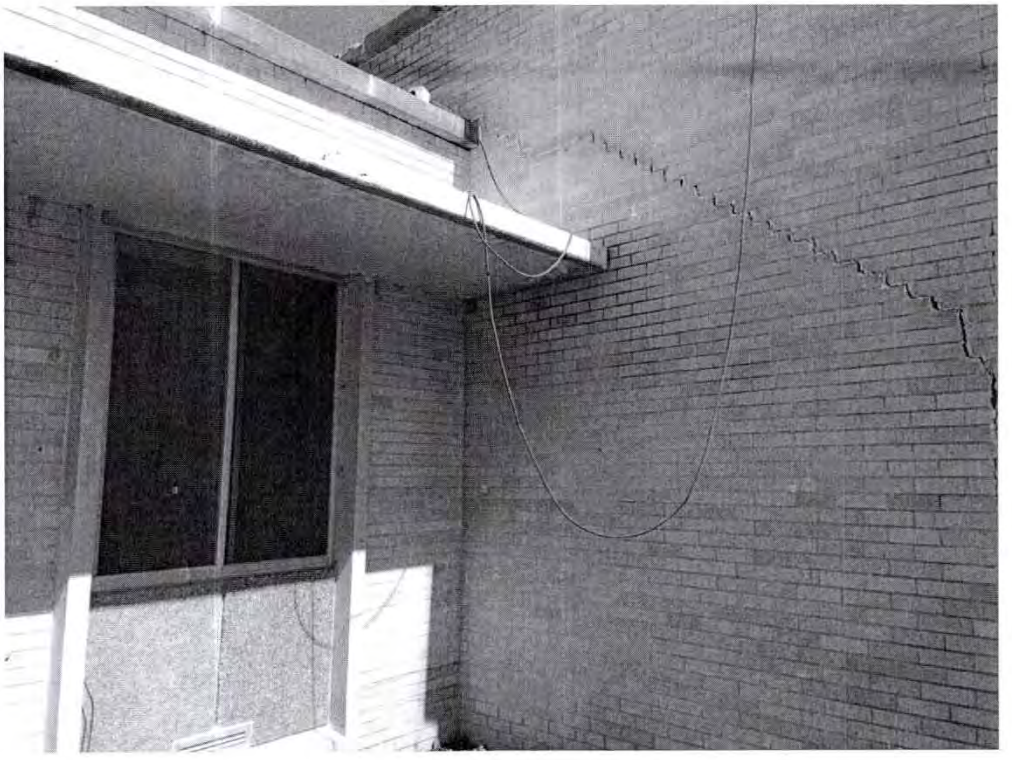
- Admissions to Booneville HDC should be halted immediately.
- The state should begin the process of moving the majority of the residents into supported living with the community, and, if necessary, all other residents should be absorbed by the four remaining HDCs.
- The money saved by the closure of the Booneville HDC should be used to strengthen Home and Community based care throughout the state.
- All unused buildings and portions of building at the Booneville HDC that remain used should be immediately sealed off to prevent residents from accessing them.
- All HDC staff statewide should be retrained in methods to avoid the use of restraints.
- The Department of Human Services should adopt a stricter policy for tracking and monitoring the use of restraints within the HDCs in order to better recognize troubling trends.

Introduction

The Booneville Human Development Center (Booneville HDC) is an Intermediate Care Facility for individuals with developmental disabilities located in Booneville, Arkansas. The Booneville HDC provides residential care consisting of full time custodial care for individuals with physical, mental, or emotional disorders.

The Booneville HDC is one of five Human Development Centers (HDCs) established to care for those with developmental disabilities in Arkansas. The other four HDCs are located in Conway, Arkadelphia, Warren and Jonesboro. There are approximately 925 individuals with developmental disabilities living in these HDCs. The Conway HDC is the largest of the HDCs with approximately 481 residents. The other HDCs have far lower populations, ranging from approximately 90 to 120 residents at each HDC.

The Booneville HDC is located on the grounds of the former Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium. The Sanatorium was originally opened in 1910 and served as a relocation center for tuberculosis patients until 1973.



The Booneville HDC has a licensed capacity of 159 residents. However, as of September 2014, there were only 129 individuals residing there. The residents range in age from 18-68 years old, with an average age of 45. The gender breakdown of the residents is 65 percent male and 35 percent female. In addition to developmental disabilities, 92 percent of the residents have also been diagnosed with some form of mental illness. The State Department of Human Services employs 311 staff members to work at the Booneville HDC.

The living areas for residents at the Booneville HDC consist of several dormitory buildings and the Curtis Circle Apartments. There are four buildings on the campus devoted to "pre-vocational training," where the residents make rugs and participate in recycling programs in exchange for a piece-rate wage. Some residents work in the kitchen of the cafeteria as well. The cafeteria building includes a recreation room, an auditorium, and a small exercise room. A chapel and several administrative and maintenance buildings are also located on the grounds.

Physical Plant Issues

When a person visits the Booneville HDC, they first notice the beautiful old buildings on the grounds. Upon closer inspection, however, it becomes apparent that many of those buildings are falling apart. In some cases, buildings have been condemned and left to slowly crumble due to the cost of proper demolition, including asbestos abatement. The majority of the buildings on campus were constructed in either the 1930s or 1950s, and they show their age. Several buildings on campus are in such poor condition that entire floors are unsafe and not in use. The facilities at the Booneville HDC are outdated at best and dangerous at worst.

One example is the Nyberg Building which was built in 1938. The Nyberg Building houses the main administrative office for the Booneville HDC. The Nyberg Building is a massive building with six floors. The Booneville HDC staff only uses part of the first floor of the building. The rest of the building is empty.

Another example is the Hamp Williams Building which was built in 1939. This building is used for prevocational training which consists mostly of shredding paper for recycling or separating fabric loops from bundles for use in producing rugs and place mats. There are three floors in the Hamp Williams Building. The first floor and half of the second floor are used for training. The other half of the second floor is used for storage, with one room piled full of trash bags. This half of the second floor is unlit and paint is peeling from the walls. There is no door separating the two halves of the floor.

Peeling Paint on the Second Floor of the Hamp Williams Building

The third floor of the Hamp Williams Building is in ruins. Walls are covered in peeling paint. There are holes in the walls, floors, and ceilings. A layer of dust covers every surface, and wires are left exposed and dangling from ceilings and walls. There are remnants of construction or demolition projects that were started and, at some point, abandoned, with fixtures removed from walls and left on the floor. In one area, a toilet has been left sitting in the middle of a room. This area contains several safety hazards and is consistently left open to any resident who might go up the stairs. Disability Rights Arkansas has repeatedly advised the Booneville HDC staff and administrators of the safety concerns related to the conditions of the third floor and requested that the door be locked to prevent access to the third floor. These concerns and requests have been ignored.

Missing Walls and More Debris on the Third Floor of the Hamp Williams Building

The dormitory buildings that are in use at the Booneville HDC are generally clean and well maintained. However, there are two dormitory buildings that have been boarded up and left to collapse. They have massive holes in their roofs. After a storm, debris that has blown off the roofs of those buildings litters the surrounding area. Disability Rights Arkansas has been told that these buildings were left standing due to the high cost of safely demolishing them, specifically with regard to asbestos abatement. These buildings, one of which can be seen on the cover of this report, have been left to slowly fall apart creating a dangerous environment to residents and staff.

There also are "cottages" on the Booneville HDC grounds that are there to provide a more independent living situation for residents by allowing individuals the chance to maintain their own independent homes and develop necessary skills for independent living, such as cooking, cleaning, and doing their own laundry. Unfortunately, the cottages were all built in 1937, and as a result, they are in various states of disrepair, with some boarded up and left empty. The ones that are still used as residences have many issues, including what looks like mold on the ceiling radiating out from ventilation ducts.

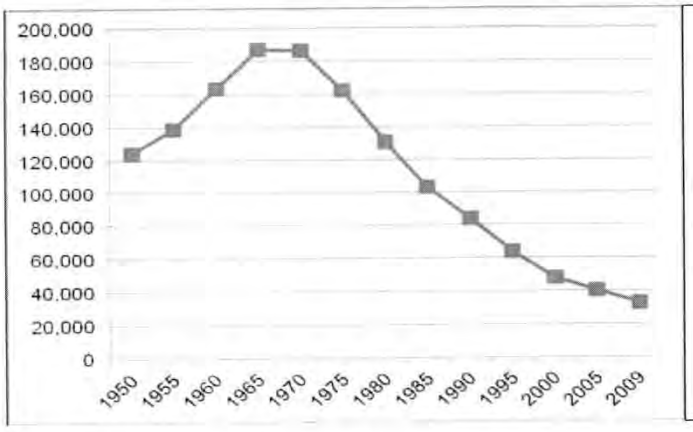
Filth from Cottage Ventilation Duct

There are numerous other physical plant issues and hazards at the Booneville HDC. One concern is a large swimming pool on the grounds that is full of stagnant water and surrounded by a chain link fence. This area is padlocked, but the fence would be easy to scale for some residents and presents a constant safety hazard.



Significantly, the Booneville HDC is largely inaccessible for individuals with mobility impairments due to the hazards created by the deteriorating or condemned structures and the fact that the facility was built on a hill. The facility does not meet minimum architectural requirements that would allow for access for individuals with mobility impairments. Thus, residents who require wheelchairs or walkers or who develop a need for the use of wheelchairs or walkers cannot live at the Booneville HDC.

Fiscal Responsibility and the Booneville HDC

The United States as a whole, over the last several decades, has moved away from the idea of state owned and operated institutions and toward home and community-based services and care for individuals with disabilities. Several states have done away with their institutions entirely in favor of community-based services and care. In their 1999 decision in Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581, the United States Supreme Court upheld the integration mandate of the Americans with Disabilities Act. The integration mandate requires that individuals with disabilities be provided services "in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of qualified individuals with disabilities." Since the Supreme Court's decision in Olmstead, several states have been defendants in costly litigation on behalf of residents of facilities like the Booneville HDC who seek services in appropriate integrated settings.

Arkansas operates 32.8 beds in Intermediate Care Facilities per 100,000 citizens; this is over three times the national average of 9.5 beds. Arkansas refuses to move with the times and instead continues to provide this outmoded form of care in the face of mounting evidence that it is not only less expensive for individuals with disabilities to be supported in the community, but also that the quality of life provided is better for them.

Arkansas has refused to move toward providing community based services and care despite the fact that demand for space in Intermediate Care Facilities has decreased as well, both nationally and in Arkansas. Since 1980, the population in state operated Intermediate Care Facilities has decreased 77% nationwide, and 38% in Arkansas. There are currently 48 individuals on the waiting list for a space at a Human Development Center in Arkansas. By contrast, there are almost 3,000 on the waiting list for community-based services. Half of the individuals requesting a spot at an HDC are also on the list for community-based services; only 24 individuals are exclusively interested in an institutional placement. It is clear that the majority of Arkansas families prefer community-based settings to institutions.

Average Daily Census of People with Developmental Disabilities in Large State Facilities, 1950–2009 Source: National Council on Disability

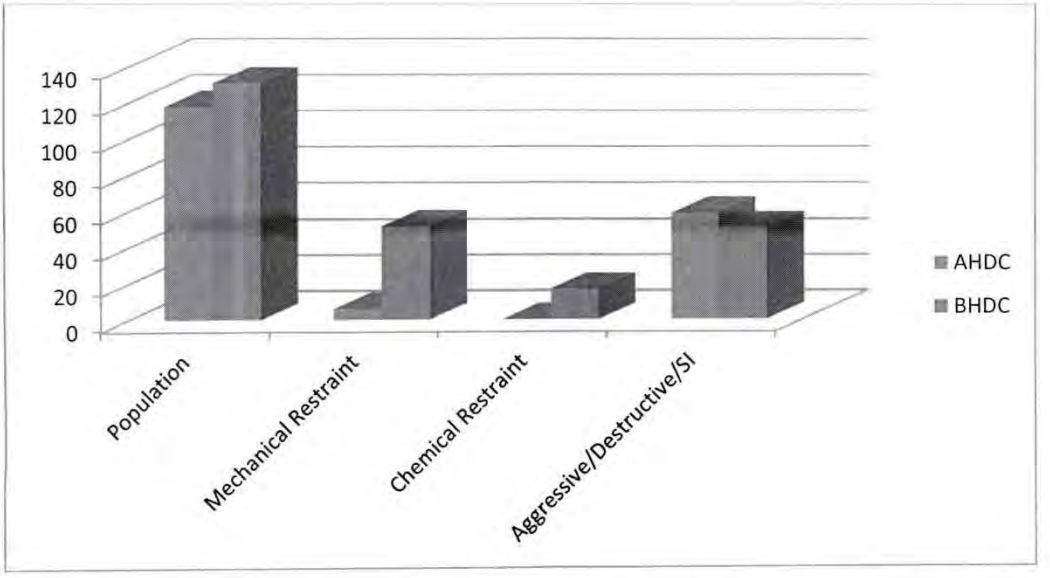
According to the Arkansas Department of Human Services, the average annual cost to the State to house one individual in a Human Development Center is $117,245. The average annual cost to the State for an individual to live in the community and receive community-based services is $59,126. Institutionalization of an individual costs the State almost twice as much as community-based services and care.

In addition to the over $16 million operating budget, during the next legislative session, the Arkansas Department of Human Services will be asking for 7.7 million dollars for capital improvements at the Booneville HDC. That seven million dollar figure is only the tip of the iceberg, as there are reportedly plans to request well over twenty million dollars throughout the next eight years. The Booneville HDC accounts for 10 percent of the State's HDC population. Yet the facility, has received 30 percent of the total HDC funding for improvement projects and maintenance over the last few years. With the disproportionate cost of maintaining and operating the Booneville HDC and declining enrollment it is not fiscally responsible for our State to put 20 million dollars - or even 7.7 million dollars - into modernizing the outdated and broken down facility.

As of September of this year, there were only 129 residents left at the Booneville HDC, with over 50 percent of them functioning in the mild and moderate categories of intellectual disabilities. These individuals could be moved into the community if they and their families chose to do so. Individuals with developmental disabilities can live and thrive in the community, having more access to their family, activities and opportunities for work. Given the strong interest in community-based services evidenced by the almost 3,000 individuals on the waiting list for those services, as well as the cost of institutional placement, the State Legislature should look into uses for the funding that the Booneville HDC is requesting that would allow individuals to stay in their communities and move Arkansas away from the outdated models of care and treatment that we have clung to for so long. Disability Rights Arkansas would like the legislature to consider shifting some of the money spent serving the relatively small population of individuals in institutional care toward more home and community-based services for the thousands of Arkansans waiting for those services.

Restraint Use

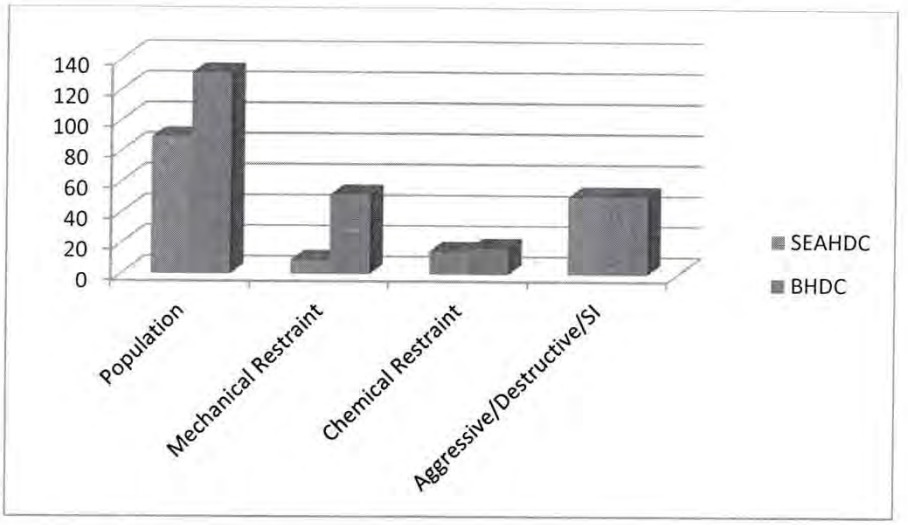
The frequent use of restraints, both mechanical and chemical, at the Booneville HDC is very concerning. A mechanical restraint is any type of device used to restrict movement. At the Booneville HDC mechanical restraints are used frequently, most commonly a restraint board. A restraint board is a device consisting of a board which an individual is laid on and secured by straps restraining the arms, chest, legs, and ankles.



Example of a Six Point Restraint Board

Chemical restraints are pharmaceutical substances used to restrict movement or to sedate. Each type of restraint carries its own inherent dangers. According to a 2011 report published by Equip for Equality, an estimated 50 to 150 fatalities occur nationwide each year due to complications caused by restraint use. Several professional organizations have advocated for the reduction or elimination of restraint use, including the American Psychiatric Association, the National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors, the National Disability Rights Network, and the National Alliance on Mental Illness.

A comparison of the data on restraints reveals that the use of restraints at the Booneville HDC for disciplinary measure occurs much more often than at any of the other, similarly sized, Arkansas HDCs. Those other HDCs are the Arkadelphia HDC, Jonesboro HDC, and the Southeast Arkansas HDC in Warren.



In June 2014, the Booneville HDC had 131 residents and a reported total of 51 Aggressive/Destructive/Self Injurious Behaviors. That month, mechanical restraints were used on residents 52 times and chemical restraints were used on residents 17 times.

By comparison in that same month, there were 118 residents at the Arkadelphia HDC (AHDC) and a reported total of 59 Aggressive/Destructive/Self Injurious behaviors. However, at the Arkadelphia HDC, mechanical restraint was used on residents only six times and chemical restraint was not used at all. There was less use of restraint at the Arkadelphia HDC than at the Booneville HDC in June 2014 even though there were a higher number of problem behaviors at the Arkadelphia HDC that month.

Comparison of Booneville HDC to Arkadelphia HDC Behavior and Restraint Data for June 2014

Similarly, in June 2014, there were 89 residents at the Southeast Arkansas HDC (SEAHDC) in Warren and a reported total of 51 Aggressive/Destructive/Self Injurious behaviors. At the Southeast Arkansas HDC, mechanical restraints were used on residents only 9 times and chemical restraints were used 15 times.

Comparison of Booneville HDC to Southeast Arkansas HDC Behavior and Restraint Data for June 2014

The number of restraint and behavior incidents for all HDCs stayed relatively consistent over the four month period between June and September 2014:

Over the four month period from June through September 2014, there were 18 restraint incidents at the Arkadelphia HDC, 55 at the Jonesboro HDC, 80 at the Southeast Arkansas HDC, and 338 at the Booneville HDC. Booneville's population averaged about 130 residents for those four months, with an average of 84.5 restraint incidents per month. The use of restraints is roughly 18 times higher than the average at the Arkadelphia HDC, six times higher than the average at the Jonesboro HDC, and four times higher than the average at Southeast Arkansas HDC.

In 2009, the Congressional Research Service issued a report on restraint in schools which stated, "[c]hemical and mechanical restraints should never be used in a school setting." If this is the case, then why are these same methods used in our state-run facilities for individuals with developmental disabilities? And why are these methods resorted to more frequently at the Booneville BHDC?

The frequency of restraint use at the Booneville HDC is too high. The Arkansas Department of Human Services, the state agency responsible for oversight of the HDCs, must take steps to determine the root causes of the excessive use of restraint at the Booneville HDC, rethink and improve the behavior plans of those residents who are frequently restrained and retrain staff on methods to avoid the use of restraint. Moreover, as part of this review, the Department of Human Services should investigate the purpose for the use of restraint. If the Department finds that restraint is being used in a punitive manner, then it should take steps to end the practice immediately.

Conclusion

The Booneville HDC has many wonderful residents and, for the most part, a dedicated and caring staff. However, there are several deeply rooted problems with no easy solution. As a result of these problems, Disability Rights Arkansas recommends the facility be gradually phased out. Admissions to the Booneville HDC should be halted as soon as possible and residents who can be moved into the community with supports from Medicaid waiver programs should be transitioned into the community. If necessary, the remainder of the residents should be absorbed by the other four Arkansas HDCs. While this may seem like a drastic step, it is the one that makes the most economic sense for Arkansas and the safety of the residents.

DRA Recommendations:

- The Booneville Human Development Center should be gradually phased out over the next 12 to 18 months and admissions to the Center should be halted immediately.
- The majority of the residents should be moved into supported living within the community and, if necessary, all other residents should be absorbed by the four remaining HDCs.
- The bulk of the money saved by the closure of the Booneville HDC should be used to strengthen home and community based care throughout the state.
- All unused buildings and portions of buildings at the Booneville HDC that remain unused should be immediately sealed off to prevent residents from accessing them.
- All HDC staff statewide should be retrained in methods to avoid the use of restraints.
- The Department of Human Services should adopt a stricter policy for tracking and monitoring the use of restraints within the HDCs in order to better recognize troubling trends.

It is our hope that the State of Arkansas will continue to strive to provide those individuals with developmental disabilities the best and most modern care possible. It is time for Arkansas to move away from the outmoded institutional model of care, as well as reduce the risk of a potentially costly Olmstead suit. Though a move toward community-based services would save the State a great deal of money, this is not just about the money. This is about providing Arkansans with developmental disabilities and their families both the freedom and the opportunity to live how they choose and to ensure that the State has the resources necessary to support and make available community-based living to all.

Introduction

The State of Arkansas operates five Human Development Centers (HDCs),[1] which are institutional facilities that provide 24-hour residential, medical, and habilitative services to individuals with developmental disabilities.[2] The five HDCs are located in Arkadelphia, Booneville, Conway, Jonesboro, and Warren. As of September 2015, 908 individuals with developmental disabilities reside in the State's HDCs.

Booneville HDC is the oldest property of the five HDCs. The facility is located in Logan County at the former site of the Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium; it is a large facility on 900 acres with many buildings that are almost 100 years old.[3] Booneville HDC has 138 licensed beds for residents and has approximately 300 employees. The facility's annual budget was $16 million for Fiscal Year 2014; however, millions of additional dollars are needed to address the aging physical plant conditions at the facility.[4]

In January 2015, Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA) released a report expressing concerns regarding both the physical plant conditions and the high number of restraints at the facility.[5] DRA recommended closure of Booneville HDC due to the conditions and the excessive use of restraint at the facility. These concerns are in addition to DRA's general concern that Arkansas continues to rely on restrictive institutional care for individuals with disabilities in violation of the integration mandate of the Americans with Disabilities Act as articulated by the United States Supreme Court in Olmstead v. L.C, 527 U.S. 581 (1999),[6] while thousands of Arkansans are unable to access services that would allow them to live in their communities.[7]

There is controversy within the State about the continued existence of Booneville HDC, and there has been no movement toward closing the facility. Nevertheless, if the State continues to rely upon Booneville HDC for the care of individuals with developmental disabilities, it must take steps to ensure that the individuals who reside in the facility are free from the unnecessary use of restraint and have access to treatment that eliminates the need for restraint.

Since publication of our January 2015 report, DRA has continued to monitor and review the use of restraints at Booneville HDC. In an effort to evaluate the extent of the restraint activity, DRA reviewed all restraint reports for a sixteen month period and HDC reports, which are submitted quarterly to the Developmental Disability Services Board.[8] DRA talked with facility staff and administrators to discern not only the extent and type of restraints used in the facility but also the efforts to provide programming to reduce restraint incidents. DRA also consulted with an expert in facility practices, including reducing the use of restraint in facilities.[9]

DRA has concluded that the restraint practices at Booneville HDC are both contrary to currently recognized best practices regarding restraints and puts residents and staff at risk of physical and emotional harm. Furthermore, DRA has concluded that the restraint practices at Booneville HDC will not be eliminated without serious scrutiny and comprehensive changes within the facility.[10]

Regulations and Policies Governing Use of Restraints

Intermediate care facilities for individuals with developmental disabilities, such as Booneville HDC, must meet certain federal standards in order to receive Medicaid reimbursement.[11] The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services regulations govern these types of facilities and provide requirements for compliance in order for those facilities to maintain their Medicaid funding. Within those regulations are specific criteria regarding the use of restraints at institutions such as Booneville HDC.

Facilities must "[e]nsure that clients are free from unnecessary drugs and physical restraints and are provided active treatment to reduce dependency on drugs and physical restraints."[12] Physical restraints are only allowed as part of an individualized program intended to result in less restrictive means of managing a specific behavior, on an emergency basis if required to protect the resident or others from injury, or as prescribed by a physician to be used during specific medical or surgical procedures, or while a medical condition exists.[13]

Written policies and procedures regarding the management of any inappropriate behaviors must be developed so that these types of interventions are done on a continuum; the least restrictive means of managing a behavior must be attempted first before resorting to more intrusive methods.[14] These policies and procedures are intended to ensure that a resident's human and civil rights are protected and that restraints are not used "for disciplinary purposes, for the convenience of staff, or as a substitute for an active treatment program."[15]

The Division of Developmental Disabilities Services (DDS) within the Arkansas Department of Human Services (DHS) has developed a policy related to behavior management that the HDCs are required to follow.[16] This policy notes that the agency's philosophy is to use positive approaches to behavior management before utilizing more restrictive approaches.[17] It also recognizes that "[e]fforts at positive programming prove to be successful with the majority of maladaptive behaviors."[18]

> "The goal is to eliminate the use of seclusion and restraint in behavioral health, as the use of seclusion and restraint creates potential physical and psychological dangers to the persons subject to the interventions, to the staff members who administer them, or those who witness the practice." [19]

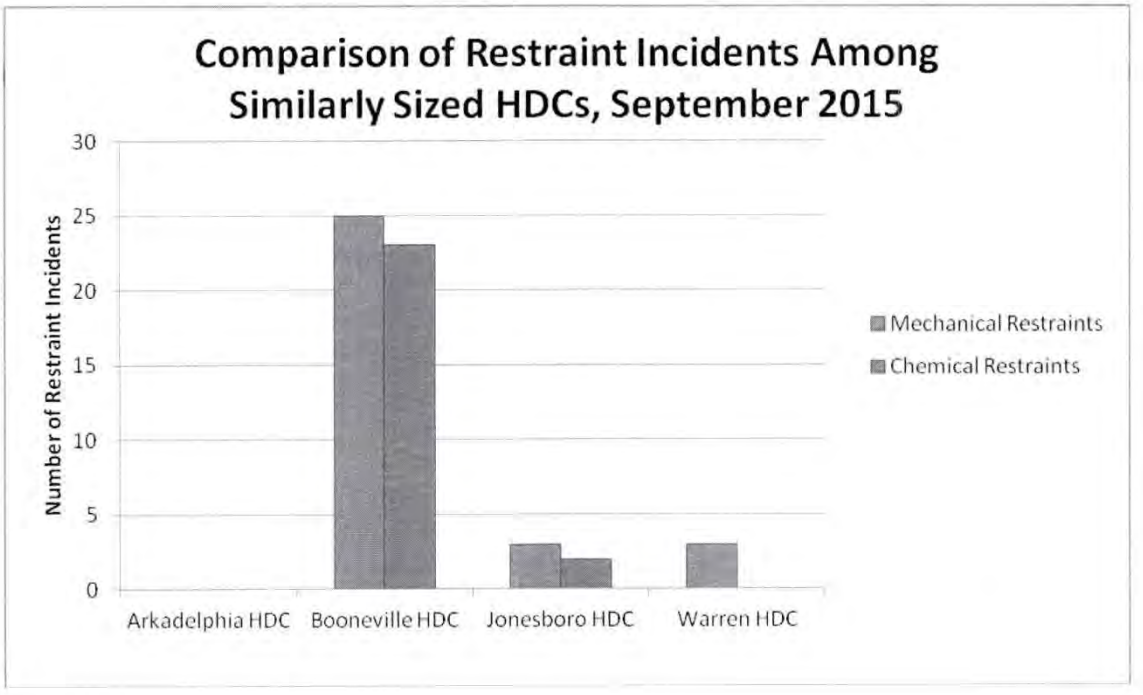
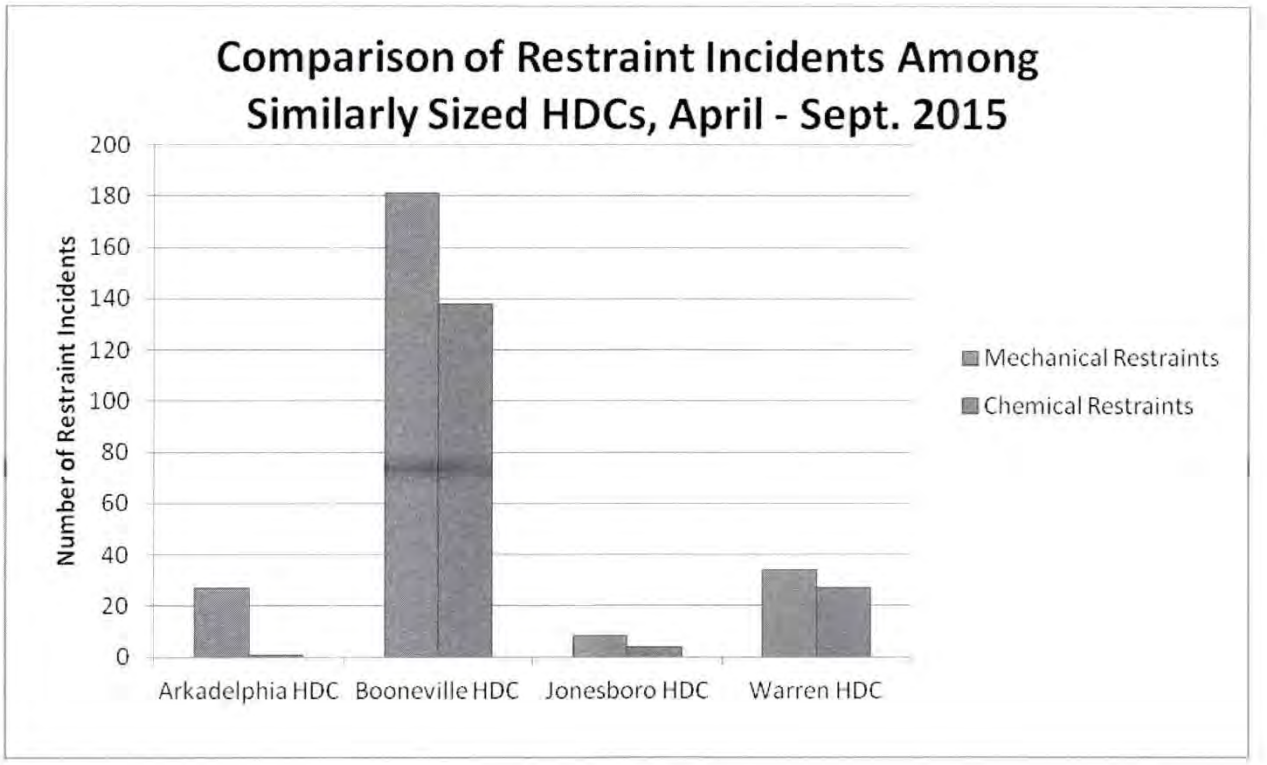
Restrictive methods, including restraints, which are used as part of an individual's behavior program, should be limited to those "individuals who repetitively engage in dangerously aggressive behavior and for whom other interventions have not been effective."[20]



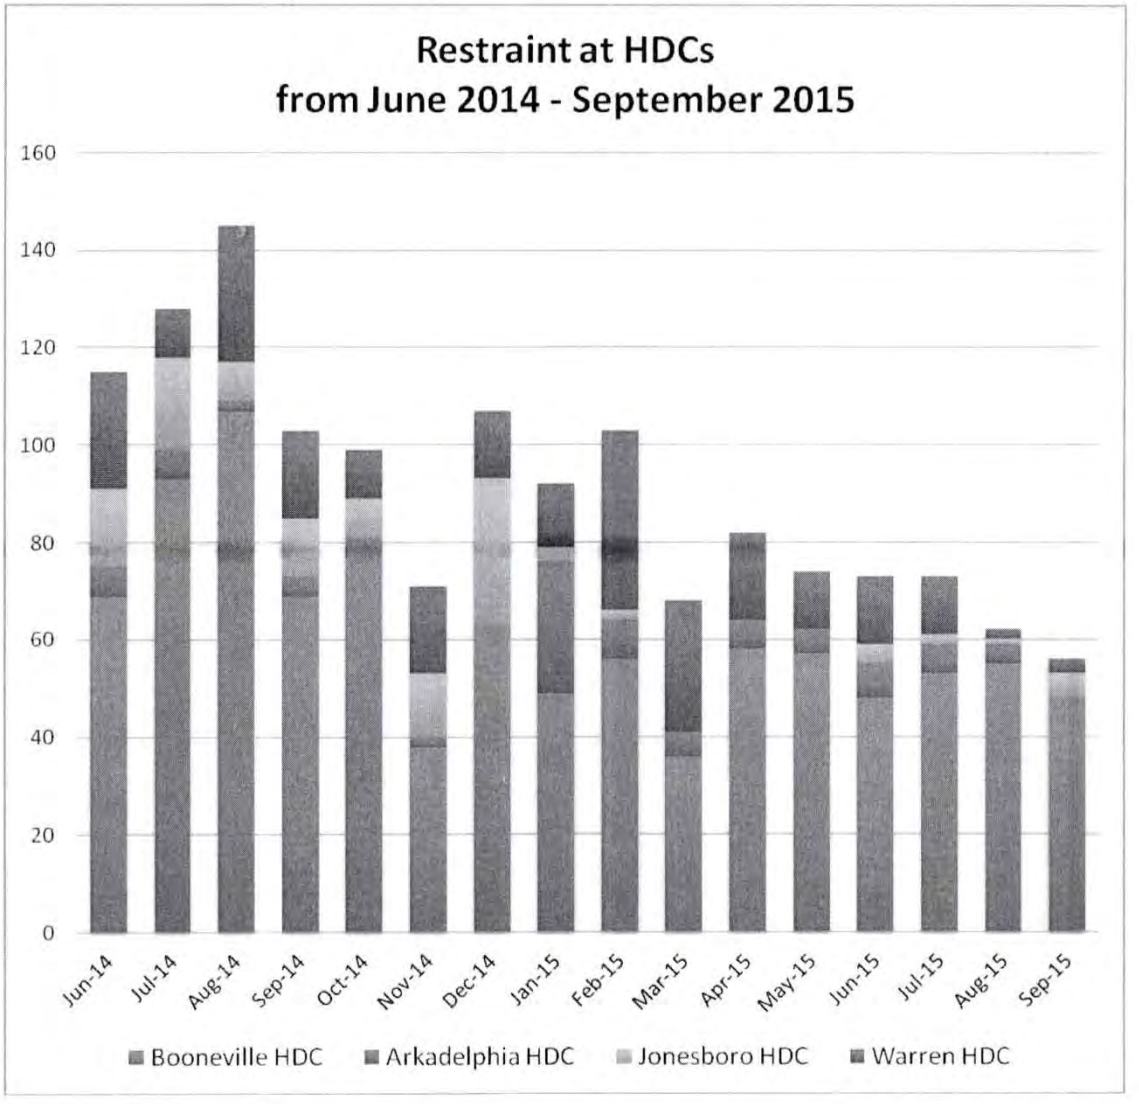
Restraints must also include documentation that other, less restrictive methods of addressing behavioral issues have previously been tried and failed. The program should be carefully reviewed and monitored by professionals and revised if the interventions are proving ineffective.[21] Regardless of how they are labeled, restraints, both personal and mechanical, should only be used to prevent personal injury or serious property damage.

Booneville HDC also has an internal policy and procedure for managing behaviors that recognizes that it is not effective to control behavior by coercion[22] and that personal or mechanical restraints for behaviors should only be used in emergency situations.[23] Emergency restraints are only to be used when a behavior is severely aggressive or destructive and never for punishment or convenience.[24] Emergency mechanical restraints are only to be used when all other means of behavior control have been exhausted and when the individual is "so aggressive that restraint is necessary to prevent imminent physical harm to themselves, others, or property."[25]



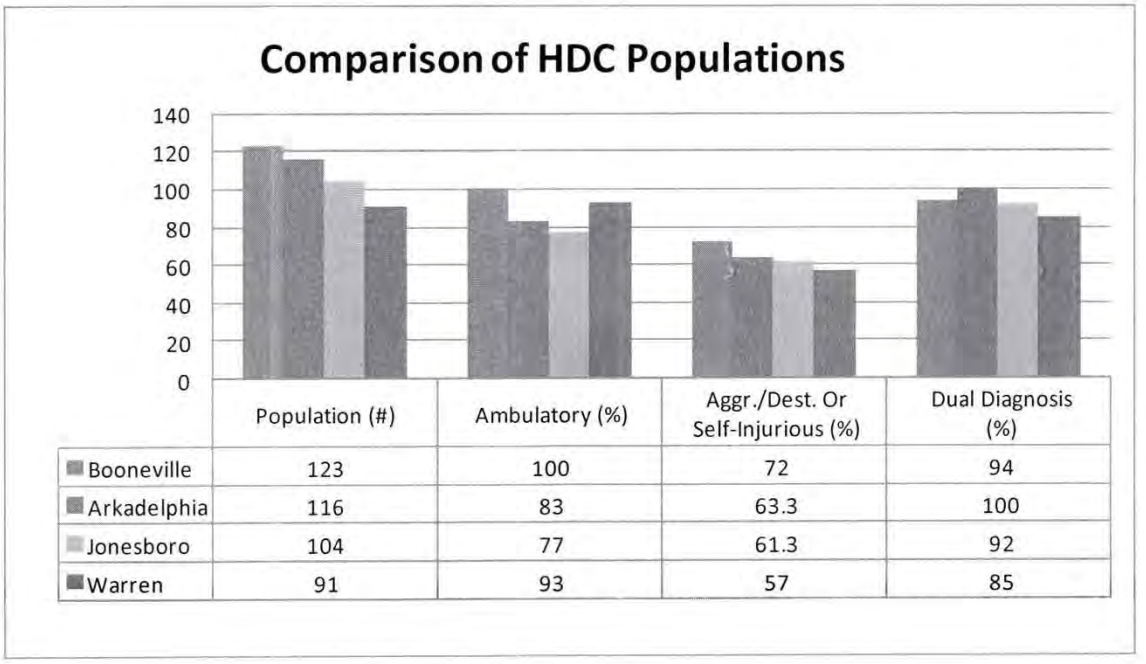
Booneville HDC Has A Significantly Higher Number of Restraints than Similar HDCs

As part of examining the use of restraint at Booneville HDC, DRA compared the frequency of restraint use at that facility with the three other similarly sized HDCs, which are in Arkadelphia, Jonesboro, and Warren.[26] Booneville HDC continues to have more restraints, in relation to population, than the other similar HDCs.[27]



In September 2015, Booneville HDC's population was 122 residents, and it reported 25 mechanical restraints and 23 chemical restraints.[28] By comparison, Arkadelphia HDC's population was 117 residents, and it reported no restraints. For further comparison, Jonesboro HDC's population was 104 residents, and it reported 3 mechanical restraints and 2 chemical restraints. Warren HDC's population was 92 residents, and it reported only 3 mechanical restraints and 0 chemical restraints.

The September 2015 results are not an anomaly. Restraint numbers reported for the preceding six months yielded the same result—Booneville HDC has consistently higher incidents of restraint when compared with other HDCs of similar size and character. From April through September 2015, Booneville HDC reported a total of 181 mechanical restraints and 138 chemical restraints. Arkadelphia HDC reported 27 mechanical restraints and 1 chemical restraint. Jonesboro HDC reported 8 mechanical restraints and 4 chemical restraints during that same reporting period. Warren reported 34 mechanical restraints and 27 chemical restraints during that same period.



Each month over a sixteen month period from June 2014 to September 2015, Booneville HDC consistently utilized more restraints than any of the other comparable HDCs combined.[29] While Booneville HDC has reduced the number of restraints occurring at the facility, the average number of restraints is still approximately twenty-five times higher than the average number of restraints at other HDCs.

Disability Rights Arkansas, Inc.
"Bound to the Past: The Excessive Use of Restraint at Booneville Human Development Center"
January 2016

As shown in the graph below, the remaining HDCs (Arkadelphia, Jonesboro, and Warren) are comparable in not just the raw number of residents but also in the percentage of residents who (1) have a dual diagnosis, (2) have been identified as exhibiting aggressive/destructive or self-injurious behavior, and (3) are ambulatory.[30]

	Population (#)	Ambulatory (%)	Aggr./Dest. Or Self-Injurious (%)	Dual Diagnosis (%)
Booneville	123	100	72	94
Arkadelphia	116	83	63.3	100
Jonesboro	104	77	61.3	92
Warren	91	93	57	85

These particular characteristics were chosen for comparison because the Department of Human Services has explained the higher number of restraints at Booneville HDC, stating: "the number of times restraints are used at Booneville tends to trend higher than other HDCs, and we believe that relates to the fact that Booneville specializes in serving only intellectually or developmental disabled, ambulatory individuals with severe behavioral challenges [. . .]"[31] Therefore, DRA compared the number of HDC residents reported to have a dual diagnosis, which means a resident has both a developmental disability and a mental health diagnosis. The HDCs have nearly even numbers of individuals with dual diagnoses.[32] In fact, according to recent reports from the HDCs, Arkadelphia HDC has the highest number of residents with a dual diagnosis among the HDCs compared.

DRA also compared the percentage of residents who have been identified as having "aggressive/destructive" or "self-injurious" behaviors according to reports from the HDCs. While Booneville HDC has a marginally higher percentage of residents who exhibit these identified behaviors, the other HDCs have a significant number of residents with these same types of behaviors.[33] This difference in the number of residents who have been identified as having "aggressive/destructive" or "self-injurious" behaviors does not justify the uncommonly high number of restraints at Booneville HDC.

Finally, DRA compared the percentage of ambulatory residents and found some difference.[34] All of the residents at Booneville HDC are ambulatory, which is necessary due to the inaccessibility of its campus for persons with mobility impairments. However, there are significant numbers of ambulatory residents at the other HDCs as well. The small disparity in the number of ambulatory residents at Booneville HDC does not explain the large discrepancy between the number of restraints at Booneville and at the other HDCs.

Restraint is Inherently Dangerous

Concern over the high number of restraints used at Booneville HDC comes from the inherent dangers associated with these types of interventions. Published studies and articles have discussed the risks associated with restraints, which can include physical injuries, significant trauma, and death.[35] Due to these recognized risks, numerous institutions across the country providing services to individuals with mental health or developmental disabilities, or training professionals to do so, have worked to eliminate the use of restraints. They have done so due to the potential for serious physical and psychological harm, both to the individual restrained and to the staff implementing the restraint.[36] Many organizations across the country have also agreed that restraint should be a last resort and used only in instances where serious injury is imminent.[37]

Booneville HDC's Restraint Incident Debriefing Form acknowledges the danger of restraints to both staff and residents, noting that the "use of restraints is proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients, with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used." However, restraints routinely occur at Booneville HDC where, based on documentation of the incident, the risk of serious injury was not imminent. As a result of restraint use, residents at Booneville HDC have sustained injuries ranging from scrapes and scratches to large, multiple bruises and even broken bones.

> "The use of physical restraints can cause harm including strangulation, loss of muscle tone, decreased bone density (with greater susceptibility for fractures), pressure ulcers, decreased mobility, depression, agitation, loss of dignity, incontinence, constipation, and in some cases, resident death." [38]

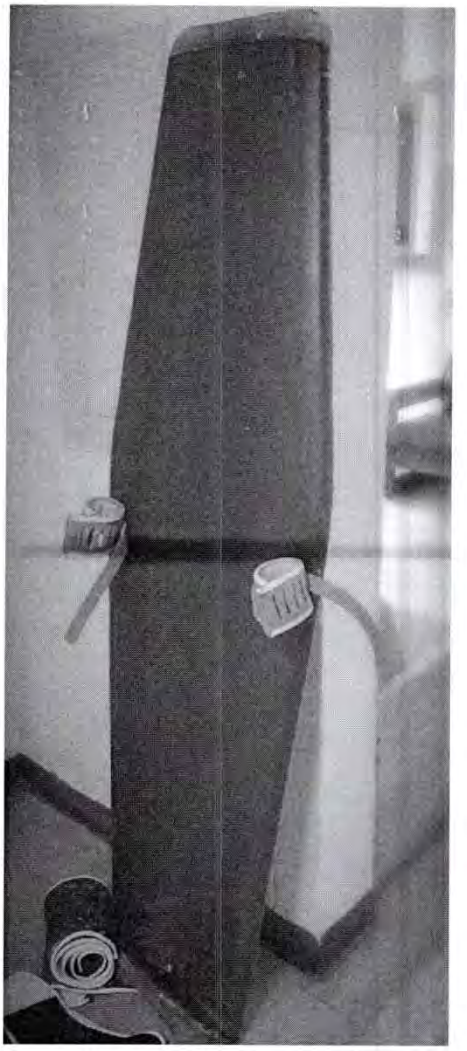
Types of Restraints at Booneville HDC



At Booneville HDC, there are five approved restraint procedures, techniques, and devices—

1. personal restraints;
2. chemical interventions;
3. protective helmets;
4. papoose board; and
5. wrist restraints.[39]

Based on our review of documents, the methods used most often are personal restraints, chemical interventions, and the papoose board. Personal restraints are procedures that limit movement by physically holding the hand or limb.[40] However, this procedure can range from a hand on the shoulder to forcing a resident to the ground and forcibly holding him or her there, sometimes with a knee in the resident's back and a forearm across the back of the resident's neck.

Chemical interventions/restraints involve the administration of a drug to restrict a resident's movement or to sedate him or her. The most commonly used chemical interventions at Booneville HDC are Ativan and Haldol.[41] Ativan is labeled as a medication to treat epileptic seizures and to sedate patients before surgery.[42] Side effects can include central nervous system depression, respiratory depression, dizziness, confusion, depression, sobbing, and delirium.[43] Meanwhile, Haldol is used to treat schizophrenia and Tourette's Disorder.[44] Its known adverse reactions or side effects include tachycardia, hypotension and hypertension, impaired liver function, anorexia, constipation, diarrhea, hypersalivation, nausea, vomiting, visual disturbances, insomnia, anxiety, agitation, depression, and "potentially irreversible, involuntary, dyskinetic movements."[45] Chemical restraints are often given in conjunction with a mechanical or personal restraint.[46]

The final method of restraint reviewed for this report is the papoose board. This "mechanical restraint" is a device that limits movement and range of motion.[47] It resembles a padded board with straps to hold a resident tightly to the board in a way that prohibits movement and completely controls a resident's body. Frequently, the term "graduated guidance" is used to describe the method of moving a resident to the papoose board and represents how a staff member must struggle with and force a resident, who does not want to be restrained, onto this restrictive device. The papoose board is used for longer periods of time than personal restraint. At least one resident has been strapped to the papoose board for six hours in a single day, while only being released for mandatory breaks every 55 minutes.

Use of Restraints at Booneville HDC

Booneville HDC's policies require that less restrictive measures be used before resorting to restraints. According to the documentation reviewed by DRA, restraints often occur when a lack of meaningful intervention by staff has led to an escalation in the resident's behavior.

Staff often use restraint when Booneville HDC's policy would dictate a less restrictive intervention. Staff document less restrictive interventions most often in the form of redirection, direction, or sanctions. Redirection routinely takes the form of simply telling an agitated or upset resident to "stop," "calm down," or "go back to work." Residents will also be told that they risk having a privilege taken away. None of these strategies actually address the needs of the resident, or the motives of the behavior, and frequently accomplish nothing but escalation of the resident's behavior.

This is concerning because some of the residents at Booneville HDC are in restraints for extended lengths of time.[48] In the fourteen month period between January 2014 and February 2015, the cumulative time residents were personally or mechanically restrained ranged anywhere from one minute to nearly four full days.[49] The average cumulative time a resident at Booneville HDC spent in either personal or mechanical restraints was over five hours for that period of time.[50]

A few examples from the period of January 2014 through February 2015 illustrate the lengths that residents have been restrained on a papoose board:

- Resident 1 was restrained every month and restrained a total of 59 hours and 17 minutes during this time frame.
- Resident 2, who also was restrained every month, was restrained a total of 64 hours and 51 minutes during this time frame.
- Resident 3 was restrained in all but one month and was restrained a total of 94 hours and 57 minutes during this time frame.
- Resident 4, who was also restrained in all but one month, was restrained a total of 84 hours and 22 minutes.

The restraint documentation also does not provide enough information regarding why a behavior escalated, or what occurred before the incident that led to the behavior. Instead, the focus is limited to the resident's actions that led to the restraint, without regard to the reason for the behavior. Resident behaviors and actions are consistently examined in a vacuum, divorced from any context or meaning, and viewed only as compliant or non-compliant. Staff involved in restraint incidents rarely document the reason for a behavior, or suggest any changes to the individual's program as a way to address the problematic behavior. This is true even in instances when a resident's behavior tends to occur in identifiable patterns, frequently taking place at the same time of day, with the same residents, or in the same location.

> "Seclusion and restraints have no therapeutic value, cause human suffering, and frequently result in severe emotional and physical harm, and even death." [51]

Disability Rights Arkansas, Inc.
January 2016

Example: Resident was upset that another resident was telling her what to do. Staff intervened in the situation, but they stated it was too late. Staff report that Resident was then engaging in self-injurious behavior and spitting at staff. Staff also report that Resident asked the staff to restrain her on the papoose board and give her a chemical restraint. Resident was strapped to the papoose board for 40 minutes. There was no insight regarding program changes or the motivation for the behavior other than agitation by a co-resident.

Identifying the function that a particular behavior serves is one of the most important aspects of modifying a challenging behavior. This important step is relatively nonexistent at Booneville HDC. Instead, the same residents are subjected to repeated restraints with no attempts at providing them with needed therapy and tools for them to use to adapt their behavior.

Most human behavior has meaning. Professional staff, with training to identify that meaning, should be carefully reviewing all restraint documentation and events leading up to a restraint in order to better provide direct care staff with an understanding of what the resident is seeking to communicate with a behavior. For this to occur, staff involved in the restraint must consistently document what happened prior to the escalation of the behavior so that a true understanding of the behavior can take place.

A related issue that is apparent from review of restraint documentation at Booneville HDC is that staff routinely relies on rule enforcement instead of resident engagement. When a resident does not "comply" with a rule, a restraint often follows. This is typically due to a resident's resistance to being directed to do some action that he or she does not want to do at the time. Instead of engaging with that resident to determine why there is resistance, or to find alternate avenues that allow for resident expression, staff often will try to force the resident to comply, which only escalates the situation.

Example: Resident did not want to go to his room for shift change. When staff attempted "graduated guidance" to get him to his room, he started threatening and swinging at staff. One of the staff members fell on Resident, breaking his collar bone. Resident was then strapped to the papoose board for 50 minutes. There was no indication that any staff member questioned Resident to see why he did not want to go to his room. When staff asked Resident for his input to prevent future restraints, he replied that he would like to go to either the Arkansas State Hospital or jail as opposed to staying at Booneville HDC.

In fact, non-compliance is frequently used throughout the restraint documentation as justification for why a restraint was used. Non-compliance places the blame and consequences for a behavior on the resident. The focus on non-compliance reflects an outdated philosophy that exists at Booneville HDC and likely contributes to the frequency of restraints. In many similar institutional settings across the country, non-adherence has replaced non-compliance as a best practice. Non-adherence acknowledges a resident's choice in treatment and gives information to the provider that the resident needs to be better engaged in the program.

Example: Resident was asked to take a shower due to having a bowel movement in his pants during a seizure. Resident became upset with staff after they told him several times to take a shower. He swung at a staff member and was promptly strapped to the papoose board for thirty minutes until he agreed to shower. There were no recommendations to help prevent a similar event from occurring again.

Another concern is the frequency with which Booneville HDC staff routinely restrain residents based on behaviors that they classify as "attention-seeking." Restraint documentation revealed that events leading up to a resident being restrained were often due to a resident attempting to gain the attention of staff members. When those attempts were unsuccessful, due to staff either ignoring the resident or trying to redirect their actions, the resident's behavior would escalate, and restraint would result. The use of restraints in these instances is inappropriate and would be unnecessary if staff were provided with training on best practices to enable them to better understand a resident's need for attention and how to appropriately respond to that need.

The record below is an excerpt from a Restraint Incident Debriefing Form.[52] This restraint began with the resident having displayed self-injurious behavior, leading to a personal restraint. She calmed herself enough to have breakfast and take her medications, at which point a nurse announced that she was still going to administer a chemical restraint in the form of a shot. This, according to staff, escalated the resident's behavior. Upon reflection, the staff member filling out the debriefing form recommended that the nurses be more discrete when administering chemical restraints. There is no documentation that explains why staff thought a chemical restraint was necessary after the resident was already calmed.

3. Interaction with Staff: (Was the interaction with this person and the client performed in such a way as to deescalate the situation or a factor in escalating the behavior? Was this person someone whom the client likes or not? Could a different staff person have interacted with the client and avoided the emergency restraint?) Please Describe:
We calmed [redacted] to the point of taking her meds and have breakfast. The nurse [redacted] stated I'm still gonna give her that shot and [redacted] threw her water and went to bite herself and fight staff.

6. Recommendations: (Are there any recommendations from the Client, the Intervention Team and/or the Restraint Leader that could help prevent a similar event from occurring again?) Please List:
Have staff not say things like the Nurse said in front of clients. Need to be descreet.

Another important issue is that documentation of a restraint requires the use of multiple forms, which, though intended to capture the entire event, often miss critical pieces required to truly understand what happened. As noted earlier, staff members tend to document the resident's behavior after it has already escalated. There is little attention given to events leading up to the escalated behavior, to effective interventions prior to the use of restraint, or to an analysis of how the restraint could have been avoided.

Furthermore, the Restraint Incident Debriefing Form is often completed or reviewed at a later date, which does not aid in identifying patterns or avenues for reducing the use of restraints for that resident. DRA's review of the restraint documentation revealed that many residents experience restraints repeatedly during the same day, week, or month. Without a prompt review and thorough discussion of the restraint, the resident is subjected to repeated instances of this dangerous, dehumanizing, and coercive intervention that could have been avoided had that review taken place.

> Example: According to a Behavior Report, Resident was restrained for threatening to kill staff and himself, and he relentlessly continued this behavior while restrained on a papoose board for one hour and thirty-five minutes; however, a Chemical Intervention Checklist for the same incident states that Resident "was calm until he heard staff talking about how he needed a shot." Yet another document, the Restraint Incident Debriefing Form, does not mention the interaction with staff that escalated Resident's behavior.

Residents in institutional settings rely on staff members for all of their basic needs. The majority of their days are spent on the same campus, in the same rooms, with the same individuals. As such, it is simply human nature to seek out attention in a variety of ways. Instead of ignoring or punishing that behavior, staff should be working with residents to better engage them in their treatment programs and in the world outside of the Booneville HDC campus.

> Example: Resident made a homemade badge and was pretending that he worked at Booneville HDC. He began telling clients what to do. When staff tried to redirect him, he punched a staff member. He was strapped to a papoose board for 35 minutes. When asked to reflect on programmatic issues that could be made to prevent the restraint, the staff member writes, "no changes could of [sic] helped this behavior." No effort was made to transfer Resident's imagined role as a staff member to a purposeful activity before resorting to restraints.

Lack of Meaningful Follow-up

Though restraints are routinely used at Booneville HDC, there is a lack of meaningful follow-up by the facility in order to identify alternative avenues of behavior management. While other institutions across the country seek to eliminate the use of restraints, Booneville HDC has shown marginal movement towards that goal. Review of documentation revealed that the same residents are repeatedly restrained without consideration of ways to avoid the use of restraint.

Booneville HDC uses a "Restraint Incident Debriefing Form" that is to be completed by staff following an emergency restraint.[53] When an incident occurs, a restraint incident leader is to conduct a debriefing session with other staff involved, as well as the resident, to pinpoint the behavior that led to restraint, environmental factors involved, antecedents to the behavior, staff actions that could have kept the situation from escalating, the resident's reaction, and any programmatic changes or resident options that could have prevented the restraint.[54]

While staff members appear to complete the debriefing forms with regularity following a restraint, the documentation frequently does not provide the information that the questions intend to target. Many times the answer is simply "none." The area designated for resident input often does not include information from the resident to better understand the resident's point of view. There is little documentation of ways the restraint could have been avoided.

In addition, staff routinely place the blame for the use of restraints on the resident's "bad behavior," without regard to how the staff's own actions may have contributed to the escalation. Though there is an area that allows staff to put recommendations as to how to avoid restraints in the future, staff members rarely have suggestions. A review of the debriefing forms reveals that direct care staff members involved in administering the restraints do not see any other options and just accept restraint activity as a necessity. This reflects a culture at Booneville HDC where overuse of restraint is the norm.

Lack of Meaningful Oversight

Booneville HDC does have a Human Rights Committee (Committee) that is intended to protect the rights of Booneville HDC residents. The Committee, which is required and established by both the Division of Developmental Disabilities Services and Booneville HDC policies, is tasked with a number of functions, one of which is to review the restraint activity at Booneville HDC.[55] However, the Committee rarely, if ever, questions the use of restraint. The meeting minutes reflect that the Committee routinely approves the use of restraints, even for those residents who are repeatedly restrained during a review period, with no discussion documented as to ways to prevent those restraints in the future. Though the same residents often are included in the review month after month, there appears to be no effort by the Committee to question the course of action or to reduce the use of restraints. Instead, there appears to be acceptance, facility-wide and by the Committee, that the use of restraints is the status quo.

Conclusion

According to the data collected and maintained by Booneville HDC and the State, residents at Booneville live in an environment in which restraint is used excessively, far more frequently than at the Arkadelphia, Jonesboro, or Warren HDCs. Booneville HDC fails to ensure that staff utilize effective tools to de-escalate situations, leading to the use of restraints when other interventions, if implemented sooner, could eliminate the need for restraint. The Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services has failed to provide the oversight and training to ensure that residents at Booneville HDC are not subjected to unnecessary and excessive restraints. Residents and staff have already been injured due to the current restraint practice at Booneville HDC.[56]

All HDC residents are entitled to live in an environment in which restraints are used as a last resort after other interventions have failed. The residents at Booneville HDC have a right to be treated with dignity and respect, to not be subjected to unnecessary and harmful restraint, and to receive active treatment based on evidence-based best practices. DRA urges the State to take immediate action to address the culture at Booneville HDC and to instruct Booneville HDC to stop this inherently dangerous practice. The individuals with disabilities residing at Booneville HDC deserve better.

Recommendations

DRA recommends that the State take the following steps to ensure that residents at Booneville HDC are protected from excessive and unnecessary restraint:

1. The Arkansas Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services should retain an independent expert with expertise in working with facilities to develop and implement current evidence-based best practices at Booneville HDC to significantly reduce and/or eliminate the use of restraint at the facility.

2. The Arkansas Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services should provide and require participation of Booneville HDC's senior administrative, clinical, and direct care staff in comprehensive training on person-centered and trauma-informed, recovery-oriented, evidence-based services and supports.

3. The Arkansas Department of Human Services, its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services, and Booneville HDC's senior administrative and clinical staff should be required to develop a strategic plan to transform this institution to one that adopts current, best practice philosophy, vision, and values. This plan should be updated monthly and reviewed quarterly by the state office or an external entity.

4. The Arkansas Department of Human Services, its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services, and Booneville HDC should ensure that all facility staff immediately receive extensive training and are intensively monitored to ensure that evidence-based best practices are used to avoid escalation of behaviors and the use of restraint. DRA recently learned that Booneville HDC has begun training some facility staff on Nonviolent Crisis Intervention Training. Nevertheless, the number of restraints a Booneville HDC are still much higher than at the other HDCs.

5. The Arkansas Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services should ensure that the use of restraint at Booneville HDC is regularly monitored, including careful evaluation and scrutiny of the reasons staff utilized restraint, alternatives to restraint, and follow-up actions in response to restraint. This includes requiring that clinical and senior administrative staff be more involved in the day-to-day activities of residents to ensure that individualized treatment or behavior plans are effective and that adequate active treatment is provided.

6. The Arkansas Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services should ensure that residents of Booneville HDC have access to active treatment, including the provision of mental health and other treatment that supports residents in addressing their challenging behaviors in ways that do not include coercion or punishment.

7. The Arkansas Department of Human Services and its Division of Developmental Disabilities Services should ban the use of the papoose board as a form of restraint at Booneville HDC and other HDCs.

Booneville Human Development Center
RESTRAINT INCIDENT DEBRIEFING FORM
To be completed and turned in with the Restraint Log

The Booneville Human Development Center is dedicated to the reduction of restraint use at the facility. The use of restraints is proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients, with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used. All efforts must be made to deescalate behavioral situations so that they do not result in restraint. All restraint at the facility is to be for emergency use only (even when part of a behavior treatment program), when a very real risk of personal injury or severe property damage is imminent.

3. Interaction with Staff: (Was the interaction with this person and the client performed in such a way as to deescalate the situation or a factor in escalating the behavior? Was this person someone whom the client likes or not? Could a different staff person have interacted with the client and avoided the emergency restraint?) Please Describe:

4. Programmatic Issues: (Were there any programming issues involved in the incident, such as requests to perform assigned tasks such a laundry, room maintenance, going to class, bathing, etc. involved in the incident? Could any programmatic changes be made to prevent similar incidents such as doing laundry at a different time or day, etc?) Please Describe:

Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA) is the designated federal Protection and Advocacy System ("P&A") for individuals with disabilities in Arkansas. One of DRA's core functions is to investigate the deaths of persons with developmental disabilities in facilities that provide services to people with developmental disabilities. DRA has authority under federal law to thoroughly investigate deaths occurring in any public or private entity that provides care, services, treatment, or habilitation to individuals with disabilities.

As you are aware, resident David Cains of Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) died on June 13, 2020. His death occurred while three BHDC staff restrained David on the floor outside of the cafeteria. David's family contacted DRA and requested we investigate his death and the circumstances surrounding it.

DRA completed an extensive investigation into David's death. Our investigation involved reviewing the Adult Maltreatment Investigation Report, all witness statements, the DPSQA Complaint Investigation Report, the EMS report, hospital records, and the Coroner's report. Our office interviewed BHDC staff, including , , and , the individuals who restrained David; , the Adult Maltreatment Investigator; , the Superintendent; and the NCI instructor. Our office also interviewed the Emergency Medical Services provider, , who provided emergency services that day, as well as , the Deputy Coroner who was assigned to David's case.

Summary

David Cains was 42 years old, and was diagnosed as having a [redacted]

According to the BHDC Staff written statements and interviews with DRA staff:

400 West Capitol Avenue, Suite 1200 | Little Rock, AR 72201 | 501.296.1775

On June 13, 2020, David ate his lunch in the cafeteria at the Commons Building. After finishing his meal, David put his tray away, asked to go to the restroom, and was accompanied to do so by According to , David seemed irritated, asked to sit in the lobby to calm down after exiting the restroom, and then began screaming, ripping paper off the wall, and attempting to hit stated that he, "applied personals[1] by grabbing [David's] arms and ended up falling over."[2] David landed on his face and then rolled him to his side.[3] believes that this restraint began at 11:30 a.m., although all times are estimates as there are not any visible clocks in the area where the restraint occurred, according to all staff interviewed. arrived shortly after David was brought to the ground and assisted in the restraint. According to all written witness statements, David was resisting the restraint at that time. arrived sometime later and began holding David's legs. Within seconds of arriving noticed that David had defecated on himself and she "then looked up and [saw] food coming out of David Cains mouth"[4] and went to call medical. According to both and they noticed food coming out of David's mouth/vomiting, his face turning purple, and that he was not breathing approximately one minute after initiating the restraint, although their involvement in the restraint began at different times. They ended the restraint, tried to sit David up, and "smack[ed] his back."[5] David could not sit up, so they laid him back down, started doing abdominal thrusts, and began the Heimlich maneuver. From EMS Report and BHDC Staff written statements:

At 11:37 a.m. one of the nurses instructed BHDC staff to call 911.[7] At 11:50 a.m. Logan County EMS arrived.[8] The EMS personnel were told that BHDC staff found David unconscious on the floor in the hallway.[9] EMS was unsuccessful at opening his airway, so they left the facility at 12:10 p.m. and arrived at Mercy Hospital in Booneville at 12:18 p.m. EMS communicated to the ER staff what they had been told by Booneville staff: "that patient choked on food he was eating, aspirated, and stopped breathing."[10] At 12:21 p.m., David was pronounced dead.

This entire event took place on the floor while three people were holding David by his legs, torso, and head. A fact that was omitted in reports to EMS, the hospital, the Coroner, and the family.

During our investigation, we noted several unresolved discrepancies between written statements, subsequent interviews, and investigative conclusions:

1) There is not a consensus between the employees involved regarding the positioning and actions of each employee, information pertinent to identifying not only potential wrongdoing, but also possible missteps to be avoided in the future.

a. written statement and subsequent interview by DRA staff were consistent with one another. She states that when she arrived David was on the ground on his left side, was on his knees facing David and holding his wrists, and David's hands were by his sides. "came to assist to position David's head so he wouldn't spit"[11] and then attempted to assist by holding David's ankles when he began to kick.

b. stated that when she arrived, "David was on his left side with his arms held up with his elbows bent slightly."[12] She states she assisted by holding David's hands so that he could not strike who was positioned behind David. denied ever holding David's head during the restraint.

c. According to written statement he was "squatted over him, not putting [his] weight on him during any of this, holding his shoulder and sides,"[13] assisted by "grabbing his hands," and held his legs down. During our interview, deviated from his written statement, stating "she was on his side behind him, holding his head on the side, keeping close to ground but not pushing on it"[14] because David was trying to bite. He also clarified his positioning as being behind David, who was laying on his left side and "spread out T-style"[15] with his left arm on the ground. was holding his right arm (not) and trying to get it to the ground. David's arms were never above his head.

d. Adult Maltreatment Investigation Report #5-2020, completed by , fails to resolve discrepancies regarding the placement of David's hands and whether a staff member was holding his head in place during the restraint.

e. Cameras at the facility would have been immeasurably helpful in resolving the discrepancies and ultimately understanding the circumstances surrounding David's death.

2) A timeline of events included in two separate documents we received completely omits any reference to a restraint having occurred.

a. The DHS Incident Report includes a timeline of events provided by RN/DON, who does not appear to have been at the scene of the incident at any time.

i. According to the timeline at "11:30 a.m. – Immediately after lunch, David Cains headed to common area kicking, yelling, and biting. and attempted to settle client. Suddenly started vomiting and turning cyanotic."

1. and written statements and interviews with DRA indicate that did not arrive until Mr. Cains was already on the ground and being restrained by , in conflict with the assertion here.
2. There is no evidence of either staff member attempting to "settle" David.

b. A similar statement is included in a "Timeline of Events" that appears to be a word document included in David's medical file. The statement is not attributed to anyone in this document.

When DRA interviewed Emergency Services Worker, , he stated BHDC staff never informed them that David had been in a personal restraint prior to or during this incident. stated that they were told that David was found in the hallway, unconscious, and staff attempted abdominal thrusts prior to CPR. They were told that he had choked on his lunch. EMS relayed the same information to the ER staff at Mercy Hospital in Booneville.

Mercy Hospital medical records indicate that the [redacted] The summary by Dr. , states, [redacted]

The same misinformation was passed on to the investigating coroner, Deputy Coroner leading him to list the cause of death as [redacted]. Mr. stated:

> "Logan County Coroners' office was notified by Mercy Hospital Booneville that they had a deceased male from Booneville Human Development Center and that they needed a coroner to the hospital. David Cains was eating lunch at the Booneville Human Development center where he lived, when some food became lodged in his throat. The Human Development Center tried to dislodge what was stuck but were unable. They called 911 at 11:37 A.M. when David collapsed and became unresponsive."[17]

When our office interviewed Mr. , he stated he had no knowledge that David was restrained prior to or during this incident. He confirmed that his office would have further investigated had they received that information and would likely have requested an autopsy.

When BHDC staff contacted David's mother, they told her that David choked on his lunch and that the family would need to contact the hospital for any additional information. When the family called Mercy Hospital, they were informed David was deceased. David's family did not find out about the personal restraint until June 22nd – nine days after David passed away and three days after David's funeral. By the time the family learned of the circumstances surrounding his death it was too late for them to request an autopsy.

This was a tragic event. Any time an individual passes away while in the custody and care of the state a meaningful, critical evaluation of the policies and practices that led to that incident should be required. In this case, that evaluation included: (1) an investigation by an individual who is employed by the BHDC, working alongside those who she is charged to investigate; (2) a review and endorsement of that investigation by the superintendent who hired or who is ultimately responsible for the actions of those employees investigated; (3) the suppression or omission of relevant, if not crucial facts from agencies who would further investigate the circumstances of this gentleman's death.

The BHDC review of this death, endorsed by Superintendent , concluded that no individual involved in this incident did anything wrong; therefore, nothing could have been done differently to prevent it and nothing can be learned from it. To date, we have not been informed whether BHDC has reviewed or revised their restraint policies or practices following this event.

At some time after the internal investigation concluded the Division of Provider Services and Quality Assurance (DPSQA) investigated David's death and the circumstances surrounding it. Very little information could be gleaned from the DPSQA Complaint Investigation Report reviewed by DRA. Despite the ability to attach narratives of staff interviews, none were found or made available upon our request. Ultimately, the DPSQA investigation concluded similarly to the internal investigation conducted by BHDC with no description of the events or statements from witnesses.

Practice of Restraints at BHDC

In 2012, DDS retained H&W Independent Solutions, who are self-described "skilled trainers and workshop facilitators on a wide range of topics pertinent to organizations supporting people with disabilities." In April of 2012, BHDC participated in a training survey with H&W to evaluate and improve the quality of care to the residents. During the evaluation of BHDC, H&W found that significant improvement was needed due to, in part, the BHDC staff's reliance on emergency restraint.

Nearly four years later, in January 2016, our office issued a report regarding the use of restraint at BHDC. We warned that risks associated with restraint include physical injuries, significant trauma, and death. We pointed out that the overuse of restraint could cause physical and emotional trauma to both the residents and the staff at BHDC. We recommended that BHDC retain an independent expert to implement evidence-based alternatives aimed to reduce or eliminate the use of restraint at BHDC.

NCI/CPI trains staff to respond to crisis by intervening in non-violent ways to prevent escalation and offers programs to certify staff in this skill. At the same time BHDC certifies its staff in the use of NCI/CPI, BHDC also trains its staff to restrain residents using methods that require no certification, are not evidence-based, and, when practiced, conflict with NCI/CPI training. It is concerning that BHDC staff are then left to choose between non-violent crisis intervention and physically/emotionally traumatizing physical restraint.

Findings

- David was diagnosed [redacted]
- Instead of releasing David when he was lying down on the floor, David was restrained on the hard floor by three BHDC staff after finishing his lunch.
- Prior to the restraint, Staff failed to use other less intrusive interventions such as NCI/CPI, for which they are trained.
- Staff failed to leave him on the floor, unrestrained, until he was calm.
- Subjecting an individual [redacted] to a physical restraint shortly after a meal increases the risk of death from asphyxia due to a higher probability of vomiting.
- This restraint likely either directly or indirectly led to David's death.
- The facility failed to properly communicate the circumstances of this incident to EMS.
- We found no evidence that the facility properly communicated the circumstances of this incident to the Arkansas State Police, the Logan County Sheriff's Office, or any other law enforcement agency.

- BHDC's investigation failed to resolve discrepancies in statements from witnesses.
- It is not the policy or practice of BHDC to permit direct care staff to call 911 in an emergency.
- NCI/CPI does not endorse or instruct any maneuver that involves physically restraining an individual on the floor.
- During interviews, BHDC direct care staff reported that they, "take people to the floor often."
- BHDC could not articulate what kind of "restraint technique" is being taught to staff.
- The conclusion from Superintendent failed to find that anyone violated any policy or procedure and inexplicably failed to find that any policy or procedure might need review or modification.
- No corrective actions were made or recommended by BHDC or DHS - Division of Provider Services and Quality Assurance.
- BHDC failed to adequately inform David's family of the circumstances surrounding his death.

Recommendations

1. Install video cameras on campus. Video cameras on campus would greatly assist investigators in determining whether maltreatment has occurred. Presently, we have differing statements from individuals regarding a restraint on the floor that led to an individual's death.
2. Retrain all staff in NCI/CPI. NCI/CPI does not endorse the use of restraint while an individual is lying down on the floor. The very fact that NCI/CPI is touted as the intervention strategy implemented by BHDC, and yet this individual was restrained on the floor long enough to aspirate and die means that NCI/CPI was either ignored or forgotten.
3. Reevaluate the use of restraint in all forms and employ evidence-based, nonviolent methods of crisis intervention. A greater problem that exists is the overall reliance on restraint at BHDC. It is a culture of compliance that we see often in prisons. When individuals are not compliant, they are made to comply. If DHS does not address restraint and physical, mechanical, and chemical intervention as a system-wide problem, the culture cannot be meaningfully changed. Further, the physical restraints BHDC employs are not based on any professional training or sanctioned method.
4. Clarify or Modify policy to permit staff to contact 911 in response to emergency medical situations. Staff must have permission to identify and respond in an emergency. BHDC is a large campus in a rural area of the state. While it is comforting that nursing staff is available to respond to medical issues, the current policy forces staff to ignore what many first aid/CPR certification programs insist is the first step in responding to a crisis – calling 911.
5. Engage qualified, independent investigators to complete thorough, meaningful investigations on ALL deaths.

a. Utilize investigators that are completely independent of the Human Development Centers they investigate. While it is important that BHDC review incidents internally for quality improvement and staff oversight, there must be a truly independent investigation by a disinterested third party. At one time, DDS employed an attorney whose role was to investigate deaths at any HDC. We are unaware whether or why such a position no longer exists. Anyone DDS authorizes to investigate serious incidents should have no connection to the Human Development Centers they investigate. Investigators should be informed regarding the requesting of an autopsy and empowered to make such a request when warranted.

b. Ensure all investigations are reflective of the gravity of the circumstances investigated. Death investigations must be both thorough and critical. Investigations that lack specificity in their investigative processes and findings, do not include interviews of all involved parties, and by design can only substantiate maltreatment or declare nothing could have been done differently undermine confidence in the process. When a family is left to gradually learn new information regarding the death of their loved one, including that the coroner was not accurately informed of the circumstances surrounding the death, what else are they to be left with other than suspicion and anger? Instead, the trauma surrounding the death is amplified and revisited with each new fact they learn. That is not closure; that is not justice.

He was escorted to the bathroom by facility staff.

Upon exiting the bathroom, Mr. Cains requested to sit in the lobby so he could calm down. Shortly after sitting down, Mr. Cains began screaming and cussing, ripping wallpaper off the wall to throw, and then jumped up after the staff member while spitting and attempting to hit the staff member. The staff member in question then attempted to hold Mr. Cain's arms and Mr. Cain ended up falling over. The staff member then proceeded to roll Mr. Cains onto his side and continued attempts to prevent Mr. Cains from striking him. Two additional staff members arrived on the scene and both stated that Mr. Cains was still hitting and spitting, both additional staff members proceeded to assist in holding Mr. Cains in order to control the behavioral outburst. 37. DHS admits that DHS is a state agency and controlled and operated BHDC. There are no remaining factual allegations contained in paragraph 34 of the complaint. The remaining legal conclusions do not require a response; to the extent a response is deemed necessary, DHS denies.

38. DHS denies the factual allegations and legal conclusions contained in paragraph 35 of the complaint. DHS did not breach any ordinary duty of care to Mr. Cains and was not the proximate cause of Mr. Cains' death.

a. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(a) of the complaint.

b. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(b) of the complaint.

c. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(c) of the complaint. All use of personal holds were reasonable in light of the risk posed by Mr. Cains not only to the staff, but also to himself.

d. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(d) of the complaint.

e. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(e) of the complaint. The hold was not unreasonable given the circumstances surrounding the incident.

f. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(f). DHS has specific policy in place to permit emergency holds in situations where the clients represent a risk of harm either to themselves or others, as in the case here. Mr. Cains was not "taken to the floor" as asserted, but instead fell.

g. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(g) of the complaint. The [redacted]

h. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(h) of the complaint. At no times did DHS ignore the [redacted] necessary for Mr. Cains' safety. Mr. Cain was at a [redacted] and there is no allegation that Mr. Cain [redacted] during this incident.

i. DHS denies the allegation contained in paragraph 35(i) of the complaint. There is no proximate cause or relation to the time that EMS arrived at the location and Mr. Cains' death. DHS affirmatively states that BHDC's trained medical personnel were on location within minutes and began [redacted]. A different result would not have occurred even had EMS arrived sooner.

j. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(j) of the complaint. There is no requirement to call 911 prior to an emergency occurring as asserted by Claimant. DHS restates that there is no proximate cause or relation to the time that EMS arrived at the location and Mr. Cains' death. DHS affirmatively states that BHDC's trained medical personnel were on location within minutes and [redacted]. A different result would not have occurred even had EMS arrived sooner.

k. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(k) of the complaint. There is no legal requirement to have cameras and the lack of cameras in any particular location does not constitute negligence.

l. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(l) of the complaint. Such allegations do not constitute neglect.

m. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(m) of the complaint. At all times DHS exercised ordinary care with respect to Mr. Cains.

n. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(n) of the complaint.

o. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(o) of the complaint.

p. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(m)[sic] of the complaint.

q. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 35(o)[sic] of the complaint.

39. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 36 of the complaint. DHS is not the direct or proximate cause of the injuries or damages allegedly suffered by Claimant.

40. DHS denies the allegations contained in paragraph 37 of the complaint. DHS, nor its agents or employees, were negligent in regard to Mr. Cains. DHS did not conduct itself in a tortious manner with respect to Mr. Cains.

41. DHS denies liability for damages in paragraphs 38-47 of the complaint.

42. Any and all factual allegations contained within the complaint not expressly admitted are denied.

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

1. DHS affirmatively asserts that it is not likely nor probable, and therefore not foreseeable, that in the course of a behavioral outburst and a subsequent emergency personal hold undertaken to protect the safety of the individual and others, an individual will vomit, choke, and then die. Arkansas law has recognized that there is no duty to guard against merely possible, as opposed to likely or probable, harm. Ethyl Corp. v. Johnson, 345 Ark. 476, 482, 49 S.W.3d 644, 648, 2001 Ark. LEXIS 432, *7. Harm that is merely possible is not necessarily reasonably foreseeable. Robinson v. Willis, 2018 Ark. App. 542, 8, 562 S.W.3d 265, 269, 2018 Ark. App. LEXIS 653, *10. The outcome of this incident was not reasonably foreseeable. Negligence cannot be based on the failure to anticipate an unforeseen event. Jackson v. Harps Food Stores, Inc., 2020 Ark. App. 475, 5, 610 S.W.3d 173, 176, 2020 Ark. App. LEXIS 529, *6.
2. DHS affirmatively asserts that there is no causal connection between the reasonable steps taken by its staff to preserve their safety and the safety of Mr. Cains and Mr. Cains' death. Proximate cause, for negligence purposes, is defined as that which in a natural and continuous sequence, unbroken by any efficient intervening cause, produces the injury, and without which the result would not have occurred. Gilbow v. Crawford, 2015 Ark. App. 194, 3-4, 458 S.W.3d 750, 753, 2015 Ark. App. LEXIS 246, *5.
3. Respondent asserts that any injuries were solely and proximately caused by the actions of Mr. Cains.
4. Respondent asserts the doctrines of intervening and superseding cause and denies any and all fault alleged.

5. Respondent asserts that no breach of duty occurred and that the actions of the responding staff members were proper under the circumstances. The BHDC medical team arrived within minutes and, among other interventions, began suctioning Mr. Cains airway.
6. Respondent asserts, in the alternative, to the extent that negligence is established (which it is not), that Mr. Cains bears a degree of fault for his actions preceding his death and therefore the doctrine of comparative fault is proper in this case. Ark. Code Ann. § 16-64-122.
7. Respondent asserts, in the alternative, that Mr. Cains, Ms. Robinson (his Guardian), and Ms. McAuliffe, through their involvement with the treatment team and in the development of the treatment plan, knew of the use of emergency restraints and acquiescence to its use, therefore assuming the risk.
8. Respondent is entitled to immunity from punitive damages. Ark. Code Ann. § 21-9-203. The Arkansas Claims Commission was established to enable claimants to receive payment on the "just debts" of the State of Arkansas. Acts 1955, No. 276 § 5. Punitive damages are not the "just debts" of the State of Arkansas and instead are designed to punish behavior, not compensate the Claimant.
9. Claimant has failed to state facts upon which relief can be granted and the complaint should be dismissed with prejudice.

WHEREFORE, Respondent, DHS moves that this claim be denied, and for all other just and proper relief to which it may be entitled.

Mr. Gillispie, if you'll file the discovery requests that you propound to DHS and your responses to discovery requests propounded by DHS to you, that will be sufficient. You can electronically file those by sending them to asccpleadings@arkansas.gov. DHS can do the same with its filings. No need to send us four hard copies. We are in the middle of updating our rules. Thanks.

Kathryn:

With respect to the requirement that four copies of discovery responses be filed with the Commission, does that rule mean we file our responses to the state's discovery requests or do we file the state's responses to ours? I am assuming the former, but I wanted to be sure.

I see we are also to file one copy of the requests themselves. Same question there.

Ms. McDaniel:

If possible, I would like to set this matter for a hearing. I would appreciate any guidance you can provide me on what my office needs to do in order to get a setting. The respondent agency, DHS, has denied liability in their answer. Their attorney, Eric Collins, has been copied on this email.

Thank you for your assistance.

CLAIMANT'S RESPONSES TO RESPONDENT'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES AND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

Interrogatories

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her responses to DHS's First Set of Interrogatories and Requests for Production, states as follows:

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Please identify by name, address and telephone number, each and every person that you expect and/or will call as an expert witness at the trial of this claim and for each and every such person, please state the subject matter on which he or she is expected to testify, and state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and give a summary of the grounds for each such opinion.

ANSWER: Plaintiff has not yet formally retained an expert witness, but she will be doing so soon and will supplement this response at that time. It is likely that one or more of the Disability Rights Arkansas advocates who have previously investigated BHDC will be called to testify concerning DRA's findings and conclusions, including those findings contained in their 2015 Report, 2016 Report, and their Investigative Report on David Cains' death. These reports, which are being produced herein, speak for themselves.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2: Please identify by name, address and telephone number, each and every person who has personal knowledge of any or all of the facts, circumstances, claims and events alleged and/or damages sought in the claim filed herein including, but not limited to, all claimed acts, omissions, statements, duties, causation and damages which you assert in your claim. For each such person, please state the subject area of his or her knowledge related to the claim.

ANSWER:

Plaintiff objects to the breadth of this interrogatory as written, as Plaintiff has no way, at this early stage of the case, of knowing every single person who might have such knowledge, and Plaintiff reserves the right to supplement this response. At this time, without waiving her objection, Plaintiff can provide the following:

Charlene Robinson, [redacted]
Was the first person notified by telephone that David was in critical condition after choking on lunch and was on his way to Mercy hospital. Received the first notification from the BHDC, via a summary of incident letter, that any type of restraint had occurred.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3: For each and every report and/or conversation that you had with any employee of DHS prior to the death of Mr. Cains regarding Mr. Cains' treatment plans, Mr. Cains' behavioral issues, the availability of alternative care for Mr. Cains, and the management of Mr. Cains' behaviors, please:

1. Identify the name of the DHS employee involved;

2. State the date of each report and/or conversation; and

3. The facts and circumstances reported to DHS and/or reported to you.

ANSWER: Charlene Robinson kept in contact, sometimes in person but most commonly by telephone, with each and every case manager that was assigned to David during his 13 years at the BHDC. David's most recent case manager was Caleb Murray. Charlene Robinson spoke with Caleb Murray monthly, sometimes more often, about any medical issues, behavior events and how those behaviors were addressed. Charlene attended David's yearly meetings, in person, concerning his treatment plan. Each year the staff and family discussed David's progress, his new goals and whether or not to continue his placement at the BHDC.

Christine McAuliffe attended multiple yearly meetings for David's treatment plan, the last being in 2019. At this meeting, Christine brought up a concern of the number of behavior incidents and restraints David had received in the past year. The BHDC staff spoke about de-escalation techniques that are used during such events, to lessen the use of restraints. Christine McAuliffe kept in contact, by telephone, with multiple case managers over the years. Her last conversation with Caleb Murray, around the end of May 2020, was her concern with not being able to see David in person due to Covid protocols. Caleb explained these protocols were set by people in Little Rock but at her request he would contact his supervisors to see what the family's options were to see David in person.

Over the years, both Charlene and Christine would meet David and his staff for many of his out-of-town doctor's appointments, in Fort Smith and Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Additionally:

1.Sue Roberson (first case manager) – Ms. Robinson spoke frequently with her about David's overall care

2.Jennifer Berry (dorm supervisor in the early years) – Ms. Robinson spoke frequently with Ms Berry about David's behaviors in the dorm, eating habits, getting along with other residents

3.Vickie Bradford (dorm staff and supervisor in the early years) Ms Robinson and Ms McAuliffe kept in frequent contact with Vickie about David's behaviors at the dorm, his eating habits, getting along with other residents, any personal needs for his dorm room

4. Ruth Freeman (case manager circa 2011) - Ms Robinson spoke with frequently about David's overall care. Circa 2012, [redacted]

5. Janet Campbell (nurse) circa 2011/12 - Ms Robinson spoke with Campbell about finding a new [redacted] for David; she found one in Fort Smith, AR, which David saw multiple times

6.Neil Berry (case manager) - Ms Robinson kept in contact about David's overall care

7. Mary Nicholson (case manager circa 2014) - Ms Robinson and Ms McAuliffe kept in contact about David's overall care

8. Ronnie Ledford (case manager circa 2015) - Ms Roinson and Ms McAuliffe kept in contact about David's overall care

9. Audra Delay (David's work supervisor) - Ms Robinson and Ms McAuliffe had multiple conversations over the years staying up to date with David's progress, behaviors and attitude as it pertained to working in the shop

INTERROGATORY NO. 4: Please state the dates and circumstances that lead to Mr. Cains [redacted].

ANSWER: Plaintiff objects to this interrogatory as being irrelevant to the claims and defenses of the present case, and not designed to elicit the discovery of potentially admissible or even relevant evidence. David Cains had lived at BHDC for 13 years at the time of his death, meaning that it had been over 13 years since he had lived with the [redacted]. Without waiving the objection, Plaintiff states the following:

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: Please identify, by (1) name and address, and (2) dates of residence, each and every residential admission of Mr. Cains to an institution, hospital, facility (medical and nonmedical), and/or school from the date of his birth until the date that he was admitted to the Booneville Human Development Center. This interrogatory includes identification of all locations where Mr. Cains received treatment, training, and/or education of any kind or nature in a residential setting.

ANSWER: The BHDC is the only residential facility to which David was ever admitted. [redacted] David attended Center Valley Elementary, Russellville Middle, Junior and High School, graduating in the 1995/96 school year. He attended the [redacted] (Russellville, AR) for a brief period of time in the mid to late 1990s. Sometime during the late 1990s/early 2000s, David held a short job placement [redacted] in the Fayetteville, AR area.

INTERROGATORY NO. 6: Please identify, by (1) name and address, and (2) dates present, each and every acute admission or stay in any institution, hospital, and treatment facility from the date of his birth until the date that he was admitted to the Booneville Human Development Center.

Kathryn:

With respect to the requirement that four copies of discovery responses be filed with the Commission, does that rule mean we file our responses to the state's discovery requests or do we file the state's responses to ours? I am assuming the former, but I wanted to be sure.

I see we are also to file one copy of the requests themselves. Same question there.

Thanks!

Mr. Collins, I spoke with Mr. Gillispie yesterday when he called with a question about submitting deposition testimony, and he and I discussed possible hearing dates. To allow for a full day of hearings, it looks like January 20, 2023, is our best bet.

Ms. Irby:

The parties have made significant progress in conducting discovery. I conferred with Mr. Collins today and we feel that we will likely be done with discovery by September.

Would now be a good time to look at having this matter added to the hearing docket?

Ms. McDaniel:

If possible, I would like to set this matter for a hearing. I would appreciate any guidance you can provide me on what my office needs to do in order to get a setting. The respondent agency, DHS, has denied liability in their answer. Their attorney, Eric Collins, has been copied on this email.

Thank you for your assistance.

December 16, 2022, is the current date set for the submission of witness lists, exhibit lists, exhibits, and prehearing briefs. I would like to request that the date for those submissions be extended. I am currently scheduled for extended military training in Ft. Benning during the months of October and November. I am set to return on November 22, 2022 and will be back in the office on December 1, 2022. I would greatly appreciate some additional time, perhaps another week or two, to reacquaint myself with the record, to gather the necessary materials, and to draft a prehearing brief. I understand this would push the due date to the week of Christmas, but I am hoping we can work out a solution on that timing. I have discussed this issue with Mr. Gillispie and ran the situation by him as well.

RE: Christine McAuliffe, as special administrator of the Estate of David Cains v. Arkansas Department of Human Services
Claim No. 220374

Dear Mr. Gillispie and Mr. Collins,

Due to a scheduling conflict, the Claims Commission has rescheduled this claim for hearing on Thursday, March 9, 2023, beginning at 9:00 a.m. All parties will attend via Zoom. If either party objects to a Zoom format, a written objection must be submitted via email (kathryn.irby@arkansas.gov) or mail no later than July 6, 2022. The Zoom invitation is enclosed.

Each party's witness lists, exhibit lists, and exhibits are due by Thursday, February 16, 2023. If the parties would like for the Claims Commission to review prehearing briefs, the briefs are due at the same time. If the parties will be submitting any testimony by deposition, those deposition transcripts are due at the same time. Ms. Irby -

Received. I've made my clients aware of the resetting. Upon considerable reflection, I would prefer the opportunity to present to the Commission in-person. Please let me know if I need to file a request to that effect or if it is enough to make you aware of the request in this email.

I would like to request that the date for those submissions be extended. I am currently scheduled for extended military training in Ft. Benning during the months of October and November. I am set to return on November 22, 2022 and will be back in the office on December 1, 2022. I would greatly appreciate some additional time, perhaps another week or two, to reacquaint myself with the record, to gather the necessary materials, and to draft a prehearing brief. I understand this would push the due date to the week of Christmas, but I am hoping we can work out a solution on that timing. I have discussed this issue with Mr. Gillispie and ran the situation by him as well.

Mr. Collins, I spoke with Mr. Gillispie yesterday when he called with a question about submitting deposition testimony, and he and I discussed possible hearing dates. To allow for a full day of hearings, it looks like January 20, 2023, is our best bet.

Mr. Gillispie and Mr. Collins, to that end, I am attaching a hearing letter. If this date is unworkable for Mr. Collins, we can go back to the drawing board.

The parties have made significant progress in conducting discovery. I conferred with Mr. Collins today and we feel that we will likely be done with discovery by September.

Would now be a good time to look at having this matter added to the hearing docket?

I would like to request that the date for those submissions be extended. I am currently scheduled for extended military training in Ft. Benning during the months of October and November. I am set to return on November 22, 2022 and will be back in the office on December 1, 2022. I would greatly appreciate some additional time, perhaps another week or two, to reacquaint myself with the record, to gather the necessary materials, and to draft a prehearing brief. I understand this would push the due date to the week of Christmas, but I am hoping we can work out a solution on that timing. I have discussed this issue with Mr. Gillispie and ran the situation by him as well.

Mr. Collins, I spoke with Mr. Gillispie yesterday when he called with a question about submitting deposition testimony, and he and I discussed possible hearing dates. To allow for a full day of hearings, it looks like January 20, 2023, is our best bet.

Mr. Gillispie and Mr. Collins, to that end, I am attaching a hearing letter. If this date is unworkable for Mr. Collins, we can go back to the drawing board.

THIRD SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSES TO RESPONDENT'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES AND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

Interrogatories

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Third Supplemental Responses to DHS's First Set of Interrogatories and Requests for Production, states as follows:

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Please identify by name, address and telephone number, each and every person that you expect and/or will call as an expert witness at the trial of this claim and for each and every such person, please state the subject matter on which he or she is expected to testify, and state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and give a summary of the grounds for each such opinion.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff has not yet formally retained an expert witness, but she will be doing so soon and will supplement this response at that time. It is likely that one or more of the Disability Rights Arkansas advocates who have previously investigated BHDC will be called to testify concerning DRA's findings and conclusions, including those findings contained in their 2015 Report, 2016 Report, and their Investigative Report on David Cains' death. These reports, which are being produced herein, speak for themselves.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Janice L. LeBel, EdD/PhD, ABPP. Dr. LeBel's CV and Fee Schedule are provided herein, which contain her contact information. Dr. LeBel, as reflected in her CV, is a psychologist and an expert in field of behavioral health services and residential care for vulnerable populations, including the disabled, mentally ill, and children. Dr. LeBel has published extensively on the use of restraints in these settings. She is expected to testify concerning the standard of care for a facility such as BHDC, and whether there were breaches of that standard that lead to Cains's death. Dr. LeBel can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant. At this time there is no written report to share with Defendant.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, MD. Dr. Brown-Forestiere's CV is provided herein. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is an Emergency Medicine Physician and an expert in her field of emergency medical services. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is board certified in Emergency Medicine. She is expected to testify concerning the cause of David Cains' death. Dr. Brown-Forestiere can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant.

THIRD SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

(a) Claimant will not be utilizing DRA advocates as expert witnesses in this matter. Claimant will reference the three DRA Reports in her pre-trial brief, reference them at the hearing, and likely submit copies to the Commission. Thomas Nichols, DRA's

Managing Attorney, has agreed to provide authentication and foundation, in the event DHS cannot stipulate to same and those steps are in fact necessary.

Managing Attorney

Dr. Janice LeBel

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available and what Claimant expects. Note that Dr. LeBel has not authored or produced to Claimant a written report concerning her opinions. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Janice LeBel is a liability expert, expected to testify that the physical restraint and physical ground restraint, and the circumstances surrounding the restraint, performed by three direct care workers at BHDC, which caused David to vomit and then choke to death on his vomit, fell below the standard of care for facilities caring for the intellectually disabled and that his death was a foreseeable consequence of Respondent's negligence, as evidenced by the acknowledged violations of BHDC's own rules and regulations and those of DDS, by the fact that the death restraint was unnecessary and unjustified, that it was not the least restrictive intervention available and not used for the least amount of time, that it was not an approved NCI method of restraint taught or authorized by DHS or BHDC, that it was medically contradicted for multiple reasons (see GERD for one), that it was not identified in any policies or in David's IPP as a potential form of restraint that could ever be used, that its form and repeated use by the facility was substandard, that it occurred as the result of substandard training and substandard oversight of direct care staff, that the large number of physical restraints used by BHDC staff on David Cains over the years and the facility's history of over-reliance on physical restraints in general was substandard practice and suggests a culture within the facility standing in opposition to commonly accepted norms and best practices for such facilities, that undertrained and/or underqualified direct care staff were allowed to use their own subjective discretion for when to use physical restraints with little to no oversight by supervisors and in ways often anathema to the training professed to have been provided them and the Respondent's own written rules, that the direct care staff's training and knowledge as regards first aid and basic lifesaving procedures was substandard (see placing him on his back after he starts vomiting), that BHDC in general failed to implement a functioning system of accountability for and oversight of staff designed to ensure staff were adhering to their training with regards de-escalation techniques and other nonviolent interventions, and that all of these ways in which BHDC fell below the standard of care directly led to and caused David Cains' untimely death – a foreseeable tragedy given the facility's historical refusal to reduce its reliance on physical restraints that are themselves inherently dangerous, particularly physical restraints performed on the ground like the one that killed David and which staff had been utilizing commonly and frequently in the months and years leading up to David's death despite the fact such ground restraints were at all relevant times unauthorized and prohibited. Dr. LeBel's CV (previously produced) speaks for itself as to her expertise, experience, and qualifications. Her grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in this precise field to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available. Note that Dr. Brown-Forestiere has not issued a formal written opinion or report on this matter. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere is a causation expert and partial damages expert (with respect only to Claimant's claim for damages based on David Cains' conscious pain and suffering prior to death), expected to testify that, but for the restraint and ground restraint in question, David Cains would not have died. David died because the physical restraint and ground restraint caused a struggle and that struggle induced vomiting upon which David choked to death. More specifically:

[redacted]

[redacted]

[redacted]

David, unfortunately, was also placed on his back after he began vomiting. [redacted]

[redacted]

Dr. Brown-Forestiere's grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in emergency medicine to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, medical records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

INTERROGATORY NO. 8: Please identify and itemize by nature, amount, and factual grounds/basis all damages sought herein, including financial damages, compensatory damages, consequential damages, punitive damages, and all other damages which are asserted and sought in this claim.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects to this request as overly broad and unduly burdensome at this early stage of the litigation, but, without waiving her objection, Plaintiff would direct Defendant to the Complaint, which provides a detailed factual basis for all damages sought, which include without limitation the following:

Damages of the Estate of David Cains

Loss of life of David Cains, commencing at death and ending at life expectancy;

Conscious pain and suffering of David Cains prior to death;

Medical care and expenses incurred as a result of David Cains' death (bills to be provided herein or upon receipt by Plaintiff's counsel); and Funeral expenses incurred as a result of David Cains' death (bills to be provided herein or upon receipt by Plaintiff's counsel).

Damages of Cains' Statutory Beneficiaries

Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, suffered up to the present time; and Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, that will continue well into the future.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff reserves the right to supplement, if necessary, but identifies the below elements of damages, as found in the Arkansas Model Civil Jury Instructions.

Damages of the Estate of David Cains

- Loss of life of David Cains, commencing at death and ending at life expectancy. "Loss of life" damages are recoverable by the estate as an independent element of damage. These are the damages that would compensate a decedent for the loss of the value that a decedent would have placed on his or her own life. Durham v. Marberry, 356 Ark. 481, 156 S.W.3d 242 (2004). Subject to revision as discovery continues: $2,000,000.00.
- Conscious pain and suffering of David Cains prior to death. For cases involving conscious pain and suffering prior to death, see New Prospect Drilling Co. v. First Commercial Trust, N.A., 332 Ark. 466, 966 S.W.2d 233 (1998); Chambliss v. Brinton, 229 Ark. 526, 317 S.W.2d 143 (1958). Subject to revision as discovery continues: $1,000,000.00.
- Funeral expenses incurred because of David Cains' death (bills previously provided in Claimant's First Supplemental Responses).

- Medical bills incurred, which here includes only the Ambulance bill, which has been produced in Claimant's First Supplemental Responses.

Damages of Cains' Statutory Beneficiaries (which include Claimant, David's sister, and Charlene Robinson, David's mother)

- Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, suffered up to the present time; and
- Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, that will continue for the remainder of each of their lives. "Future mental anguish is recoverable." Knoles v. Salazar, 298 Ark. 281, 766 S.W.2d 613 (1989). Subject to revision as discovery continues: $2,000,000.00 for Claimant and $2,000,000.00 for David's mother.

There is no amount of money that could ever fully compensate Claimant and Charlene Robinson for their mental anguish over the loss of their beloved brother and son. There is likewise no amount of money that could serve as an appropriate value on David's life and, therefore, his loss of life. Any one of these three elements of damages could by itself more than justify the current demand of $7,000,000.00. David's conscious pain and suffering that he experienced while he died choking to death while being pinned to the ground by three direct care staff is also, in and of itself, an element of damages a reasonable person would likely say is worth millions of dollars. Anyone who has ever choked for even a moment knows the intense pain and panic that comes with that. Any funeral and medical bills are negligible and not something Claimant intends to even present.

INTERROGATORY NO. 13: Please state and explain all injuries suffered as a result of the death of Mr. Cains and by whom.

ANSWER: Plaintiff objects to this request as vague, as well as overly broad and unduly burdensome at this early stage of the litigation, but, without waiving her objection, Plaintiff would direct Defendant to her response to Interrogatory 8.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Claimant directs Respondent to her response and supplemental response to Interrogatory No. 8.

Request for Production of Documents

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION 2. Copies of all expert opinions, reports, summaries and similar types of documents by the experts that will testify on behalf of the Claimant at the trial of this matter.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates she will be supplementing with further expert reports, but at this time is producing those currently in her possession, which include:

2015 DRA Report on BHDC
2016 DRA Report on BHDC
DRA Final Investigative Report on Cain's Death

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Neither Dr. LeBel nor Dr. Brown-Forestiere have provided written opinions or expert reports at this time. Dr. Brown Forestiere has shared with Claimant an informal summary of conclusions based on what she has reviewed thus far, which was produced in its entirety above, but will be copied below as well. Note again Claimant's reservation of her right to amend where necessary as discovery progresses:

[redacted]

[redacted]

[redacted]

David, unfortunately, was also placed on his back after he began vomiting. [redacted]

[redacted]

[redacted]

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION 4. Copies of all bills, statements, and invoices itemizing the financial damages claimed herein.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff will produce these upon receipt. However, these are not likely to be substantial, most likely consisting of funeral/burial expenses, the ambulance bill, and the hospital bill from the date of David Cains's death.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Provided herein, ambulance bill, funeral services bill, and headstone bill.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Claimant has nothing further to produce beyond the ambulance bill, funeral services bill, and headstone bill previously produced in Claimant's First Supplemental Responses.

Christine McAuliffe, as Special Administrator of the Estate of David Cains — CLAIMANT

V. — Claim No. 220374

THE ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES (BOONEVILLE HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CENTER) — RESPONDENT

MOTION TO COMPEL THE RELEASE OF CERTAIN DOCUMENTS BY RESPONDENT, WITH BRIEF INCORPORATED

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, as Special Administrator of the Estate of David Cains, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Motion to Compel the Release of Certain Documents by Respondent, states the following:

INTRODUCTION

Claimant, Christine McAuliffe ("Claimant") has brought this wrongful death action on behalf of her late brother, David Cains, against the Arkansas Department of Human Services, which operates the Booneville Human Development Center ("BHDC"), one of five state facilities established to provide care for people with developmental disabilities. The BHDC has long been criticized by disability rights advocates for its excessive and unnecessary use of dangerous and life-threatening physical restraints upon the developmentally disabled individuals placed there. Disability Rights Arkansas has published multiple reports in recent years critical of BHDC's overuse of physical restraints, pointing out that BHDC employs physical and mechanical restraints on its residents at a much higher rate than the state's four other human development centers. In 2016, Disability Rights Arkansas published a report finding that BHDC's overuse of physical restraints was such a continuing danger to its residents that it recommended the facility be shut down permanently.

David Cains, born [redacted] was admitted to BHDC on May 1, 2007. He lived there until his death on June 13, 2020. David was killed during an unnecessarily violent and improperly implemented physical restraint whereby three direct care staff – Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos – held him pinned to the ground shortly after David had finished his lunch, the violence of which caused David, who suffered [redacted] while Mattson, Jones, and Campos held him pinned to the ground.

ARGUMENT and AUTHORITY

The Arkansas Rules of Civil Procedure provide that "parties may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, which is relevant to the issues in the pending actions, whether it relates to the claim or defense of the party seeking discovery or to the claim or defense of any other party, including the existence, description, nature, custody, condition, identity and location of any books, documents, or other tangible things…." ARK. R. CIV. P. 26(b)(1).

Adult Maltreatment Reports

Claimant seeks the production of all Adult Maltreatment Reports for which Tyler Mattson was the accused offender while employed at the BHDC. Tyler Mattson is the staff member who initiated the excessive ground restraint and was the primary aggressor in the incident that killed David. Mr. Mattson, by his own admission at deposition, was previously accused and formally investigated for maltreatment against at least one other patient at the Booneville Human Development Center prior to the death of David Cains. Respondent objects to producing the additional Adult Maltreatment Reports for which Tyler Mattson was the accused offender, citing the confidentiality provisions of A.C.A. § 12-12-1717 and A.C.A. § 12-12-1718.

However, both of these statutes relied upon by Respondent specifically provide that the documents sought by Claimant may be made available to the court "upon a finding that the information in the record is necessary for the determination of an issue before the grand jury or court." A.C.A. § 12-12-1717(a)(5); A.C.A. § 12-12-1718(c)(8). Once produced, the court may then redisclose them to Claimant under a protective order. A.C.A. § 12-12-1717(f)(1)(C); A.C.A. § 12-12-1718(g)(1)(C). Here, documentation reflecting that Mr. Mattson has a history of violence towards BHDC residents is germane to Respondent's liability. Prior similar incidents are relevant to notice, foreseeability, and duty. See Dollar General Corporation v. Elder, 600 S.W.3d 597, 604, 2020 Ark. 208 (2020). Foreseeability is a contested issue that will require determination by the finder of fact; therefore, the Adult Maltreatment Reports concerning prior acts of excessive force used by Tyler Mattson on BHDC residents are necessary to determine foreseeability, an important element of negligence. Claimant will agree to an additional protective order and to the redaction of information identifying the resident victim that is the subject of the report.

Furthermore, to the extent the documents sought might contain protected health information, they can still be released under a protective order and in compliance with federal regulations codified under 45 C.F.R. § 164.512(e)(1). The BHDC, upon information and belief, is a covered entity as defined under HIPPA. 45 C.F.R. §160.103. Federal regulations governing the release of protected health information state that a covered entity, such as Respondent, "may disclose protected health information in the course of any judicial or administrative proceeding" simply in "response to an order of a court," with nothing more being needed. 45 C.F.R. § 164.512(e)(1)(i).

For these same reasons, Claimant is also seeking the production of any Adult Maltreatment Reports for which Amy Jones and Ryann Campos were accused offenders while working at the BHDC. Claimant will agree to an additional protective order and to the redaction of information identifying the resident victim that is the subject of the report.

And for related reasons, Claimant is also seeking the production of any Adult Maltreatment Reports involving allegations of staff-on-client maltreatment where Sandy Evans was the investigator and where the allegations were substantiated. Respondent previously reported to Claimant that Sandy Evans was the maltreatment investigator for 16 such substantiated staff-on-client maltreatment investigations at BHDC. The legitimacy of Sandy Evans' maltreatment investigation of the three direct care staff members involved in Cains' death, in which she chose not to substantiate maltreatment, is a significant issue in this case, and the suspect nature of that investigation has only been heightened by deposition testimony.

For instance, Tyler Mattson testified at deposition that the entirety of Sandy Evans' investigation into his personal involvement in the death included one brief interaction during which he was questioned for "barely a minute," that Evans did not ask him detailed questions about what happened, and that primarily all she did was provide him a witness statement form and then personally instruct him on how to complete the form.[1]

At her own deposition, Evans actually admitted that the death-causing restraint used by the three staff members was not the least restrictive method that could have been used on David

Cains.[2] Therefore, it was not necessary to use that amount of force on David. Inexplicably, Evans still failed to substantiate maltreatment against the three staff members. Per Respondent's own policy, any physical restraint exceeding in force the least restrictive option is unnecessary and forbidden at the BHDC. Arkansas Department of Human Services DDS Policy 3011-D. The statutory definition of "Abuse" in long term care facilities such as the BHDC includes any "intentional and unnecessary physical act that inflicts pain on or causes injury" to a developmentally disabled person. A.C.A. § 12-12-1703(1). Simultaneously, "abuse" is one of the definitions of "Adult Maltreatment." A.C.A. § 12-12-1703(2). In other words, Evans, by her own admission, acknowledges that adult maltreatment, as defined in Arkansas code, occurred, yet still failed to substantiate allegations of adult maltreatment against the three staff members who engaged in the unnecessary physical act that caused David Cains' death.

Claimant needs to know what Ms. Evans would consider maltreatment, if not this death-causing restraint that she herself testified exceeded in force what was required. Unless Respondent is willing to concede that maltreatment occurred here, Claimant should be able to review the Adult Maltreatment Reports of the 16 staff-on-client investigations Respondent claims Ms. Evans has substantiated to look for inconsistencies in her methods and other evidence that would further prove that the three staff members committed adult maltreatment upon David Cains. Claimant will agree to an additional protective order and to the redaction of information identifying the resident victim that is the subject of the report.

Mortality Review Committee

Respondent also objects to producing the Mortality Review Committee documents related to David Cains' death, the subject of this suit, citing A.C.A. § 16-46-109. The documents and findings produced by the Mortality Review Committee ("MRC") are potentially highly relevant to the question of liability in this case. Upon information and belief, the MRC conducts a review of each unexpected death of persons in human development centers, and that review includes, among other things, the circumstances surrounding the death, the identification of the primary risk factors involved in the death, the degree to which the death was believed to be preventable, and whether maltreatment was a factor. Respondent's position, per its Answer, is that David Cains' death was an unforeseeable incident that could not have been prevented or avoided. Upon information and belief, the findings of the MRC could belie that position, thereby further evidencing Respondent's liability for David Cains' death.

Furthermore, it is not clear to claimant from the face of the statute relied upon by Respondent that it would apply to the MRC documents sought. A.C.A. § 16-46-109 states that "proceedings, minutes, records, or reports of the quality assurance committee having the responsibility for reviewing and evaluating the quality of medical, nursing, or other care delivered in a long-term care facility" are exempt from disclosure and privileged. It is not clear to Claimant, given her understanding of the MRC's purpose and function, that it is precisely the type of quality assurance committee for which A.C.A. § 16-46-109 was meant to apply. "Mortality Review" is not synonymous with "quality assurance," in other words.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Claimant seeks an order compelling Respondent to release (1) all Adult Maltreatment Reports for which Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos were an accused offender while employed at the BHDC; (2) all 16 Adult Maltreatment Reports involving substantiated staff-on-client maltreatment where Sandy Evans was the investigator; and (3) Mortality Review Committee documents related to David Cains' death.

WHEREFORE, the Claimant prays for the Arkansas Claims Commission to grant this Motion and issue an Order directing Respondent to provide the documents requested in this Motion to Claimant, and for all other proper relief which she may be entitled.

Respectfully submitted by:

well, spend time with him?
A. She knew him in passing but didn't work with him regularly.
Q. Okay. And did you get along with Mandy well?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Do you know of any issues that Mandy has had with other clients in the past? Maybe a client has complained about her? Or perhaps something like what happened to you, another staff member or somebody accused her of maltreatment?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. Okay. Did Sandy Evans -- were you questioned by Sandy Evans after David's death?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And do you recall -- what do you recall from that?
A. She was empathetic towards me and that she gave me the sheet, and that was pretty much it.
Q. Just she told you she was sorry that you had -- you're having to deal with this?
A. More or less.
Q. She didn't question you about how it happened or anything like that?
A. It was all explained in the sheet.
Q. What sheet?

A. The Witness Report.
Q. The Witness Report that you wrote?
A. That I wrote, yes.
Q. Okay. So she -- she -- other than your witness -- she -- she -- I understood she accepted your Witness Report.
But, as far as you recall, she didn't -- she didn't do any further interrogation or questioning of you?
A. Not that I recall. She was just being empathetic and --
Q. Okay.
A. -- as she could professionally be in the situation.
Q. Sure, sure.
And how shortly after the death was this meeting with her?
A. Immediately afterwards.
Q. Okay.
A. And after -- yeah.
Q. And you never met with her again about it?
A. No.
Q. And about how long do you think that meeting with her lasted?
A. It took me maybe 15, 20 to write the report and I left.
Q. Okay. But how long did it take her to talk with you?

A. About the duration. She didn't talk to me afterwards or before, other than being empathetic. It was just I gave her the report and --
Q. So she had you write a report. She didn't -- she didn't ask you any questions about the event? She -- other than -- and she -- the only words you recall her speaking to you were kind of . . .?
A. She just kind of asked me what happened. But, like, as far as, like, did she interrogate me necessarily? Not that I recall.
Q. But -- so you say you do recall her as -- specifically asking questions about the event?
A. Just what happened. She didn't ask too many details that I remember.
Q. Okay. And about how long do you think the conversation part with her lasted?
A. Barely a minute. It was what happened and her being empathetic. And she handed me a sheet and she explained it me, and that's really just . . .
Q. Got it. And when you say explained it to you, meaning explained how to fill out the form?
A. Basically. I mean, like, she didn't tell me what to write down necessarily; but she was like -- she gave me a -- how do I word this? She basically just gave me basic -- basic instructions.

Q. Okay.
A. Of what -- what to write down and how to -- all that stuff, but nothing beneficial towards me necessarily.
(Exhibit 5 marked for identification.)
Q. Gotcha.
So I'm showing you what I've marked as Exhibit 5. This is Bates stamped 2714, and this is Client's Rights or Client Rights.
And this is from your training materials, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And you would agree that this is a list of sort of the rights of the clients that you're there to -- to care for, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you would agree that your -- that your primary role is to literally care for these people, correct?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. Number 8: "The right to receive medical care, nursing care, and dental care in a safe and clean environment."
Number 12: "The right to express individual preferences."
Number 14: "The right to privacy during treatment requiring retraining, yes.

Q Okay. And, you know, I think that you'd agree with me, well, you already have agreed with me, that what happened here with these three folks was not the least restrictive thing that could have been done, given the circumstances; correct?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
MR. GILLISPIE: Let me go off the record for just a moment, please. Take five.
(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Ms. Evans, the 9-1-1 policy, at the time, as I understand it, was that there was a 9-1-1 policy at BHDC that dictated that nonmedical staff in emergency medical situations were to first contact medical staff.
And then, if 9-1-1 needed to be called, that had to be done by medical staff; is that correct?
A I don't recall that policy exactly, so I couldn't say with certainty.
Q Okay. Let me grab it.
MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, let me try to find it in the produced discovery. I have a

BEFORE THE ARKANSAS STATE CLAIMS COMMISSION

CHRISTINE MCAULIFFE, AS SPECIAL ADMINISTRATOR OF THE ESTATE OF DAVID CAINS CLAIMANT

VS. CLAIM NO. 220374

ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES RESPONDENT

DHS' RESPONSE TO CLAIMANT'S "MOTION TO COMPEL" RELEASE OF STATUTORILY CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION UNRELATED TO THE PURPORTED WRONGFUL DEALTH CLAIM ASSERTED

COMES NOW Respondent, Arkansas Department of Human Services, by and through its counsel, Richard Rosen, and in response to Claimant's "Motion to Compel" release of statutorily confidential information unrelated to the actual claim, DHS submits the following points and authorities:

> "Some misfortunes, originating in misrepresentation, frequently flow and spread before they can be dissipated by truth"
> George Washington - May 8, 1796

Although Claimant's "motion to compel" is seemingly about the release of two types of confidential information which the Arkansas General Assembly expressly declared confidential as a matter of law, Claimant peppers her motion with self-serving, factually unfounded and unsupported characterizations concerning the circumstances of David Cains' unexpected death from choking, as if the characterizations asserted in the "motion to compel" were actually established by the facts, which they are not. Despite taking over 16 depositions of DHS staff (with two more currently scheduled), it is evident that Claimant is still searching for a prima facie case of liability against the state which she has yet to establish. As a result, Claimant now resorts to

"compelling" the release of statutorily confidential information of purported accusations against BHDC caregivers unrelated to any of the legal or factual claims raised in this claim. There is no allegation here of any maltreatment or pattern of maltreatment against David Cains by BHDC staff and, consequently, any release of such confidential information (to the extent any exists) is irrelevant to the facts that Claimant must prove in order to prevail.

David Cains, a 42 year intellectually disabled man, unfortunately choked on his on vomit during an aggressive behavioral outburst and died when neither BHDC medical staff nor the responding EMTs were able to clear his airway in time to save his life. Due to Mr. Cains prior aggression and behavioral outbursts, his [redacted] for his safety and for the safety of staff and residents around him. The IPP behavioral management plan was developed by a team whose members included both the claimant, Christine McAuliffe, and Mr. Cains mother and heir, Charlene Robinson, who approved and signed the program plan allowing such interventions during Mr. Cains aggressive behavioral episodes. The IPP included input from the BHDC medical team and David Cains' physician.

As stated by Claimant's counsel during his deposition questioning of Syed Hamid, M.D., David Cains' physician, both Mr. Cains and a staff member "toppled" to the floor after David Cains lunged at Tyler Matson during a behavioral outburst.[1] Tyler Mattson was a

[1] See 05/26/22 deposition of Syed Hamid, M.D., p. 27, lines 17 to p. 28, line 5:

Mr. Gillispie: I'll also represent to you that a behavior occurred. David and a staff member named Tyler Matson end up on the ground. How exactly David landed on the ground, whether he landed on his face, on his back, it's not crystal clear at this point, but he -- according to Mr. Matson, there was a struggle of some sort and they sort of topple over onto the ground. And I'll represent to you that that's how he got to the ground. Are you with me so far?

BHDC aide. Although Claimant now asserts that David Cains was somehow "taken to the ground," "pinned," and the emergency intervention was "unnecessary," none of these current statements are factually correct. Mr. Cains was not "pinned" to the floor but, instead, had his ankles and hands held to keep him from hurting himself and staff until he calmed down and could safely be released. Sadly, during this behavioral episode, Mr. Cains apparently choked on vomit which blocked his airway and the subsequent efforts to save his life were unsuccessful.

Claimant also asserts in her "motion to compel" several other characterizations and statements unrelated to her rationale for release of the confidential documents. For example, the motion posits that "BHDC has long been criticized" by Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA), an organization which has previously taken positions diametrically opposed to the expressed wishes and directions of the very family members and court appointed legal guardians of the individuals it professes to represent. DRA, however, is an organization openly critical of the availability of institutional care for the intellectually disabled and has previously sought to close down the BHDC and the other HDCs contrary to the interests and expressed wishes of the HDC residents, families, and the court appointed legal guardians. In context, DRA actively seeks to remove the option of institutional care from the Arkansas families and court appointed legal guardians who, along with the medical professionals, believe that institutional care is necessary for their loved ones, patients, and wards. Thus, it is no surprise that Claimant now references a 2016 DRA report critical of BHDC.[2]

[2] Even DRA's own legal counsel expressed to DHS that the 2016 DRA report was too remote in time to be relevant in this case. See DHS Ex. A – 09/26/22 email from Patrick Wilson, DRA counsel, to Rich Rosen, stating: "Those reports seem pretty removed from what happened to Mr. Cains years later, but I will look into it and discuss with DRA.

Maltreatment Reports

Per the motion, Claimant seeks release of confidential maltreatment reports, to the extent any even exist, for the three BHDC staff members attending to Mr. Cains behavioral outburst on June 13, 2020:

- Tyler Matteson
- Amy Jones
- Ryann Campos.

Significantly, none of the reports sought by Claimant, to the extent any actually exist, are asserted or alleged in the motion to be related to the June 13, 2020 incident. Claimant simply seeks any historical maltreatment reports which, she claims, will somehow establish liability under a false correlation theory that if excessive force was purportedly used against another resident at another time, it must have been used against Mr. Cains on June 13, 2020. Claimant even cites to the decision in Dollar General Corp. v. Elder, 2020 Ark. 208 in an effort to bolster the legitimacy of her argument. The Elder case, however, makes no such pronouncement supporting Claimant's argument. Instead, the decision involves real property law and addresses the property owner's duty to warn business invitees of hidden dangers existing on the property. In Elder, the court noted there was testimony that the plaintiff slipped and fell on smooth concrete and that others had, likewise, previously slipped and fallen on the same smooth concrete. Significantly, the Court of Appeals expressly stated that the evidence of prior falls was presented only to establish that the concrete was "unreasonably dangerous," a point relevant to the property owner's duty to warn invitees. It did not involve issues of foreseeability as now argued by Claimant. See Elder, 2020 Ark at *5.[3]

In a more similar situation, the Arkansas Supreme Court held that information sought by the plaintiff about the defendant's prior traffic violations or problems with insurance were in no way relevant to the issue of whether he is was negligent. Barker v. Clark, 343 Ark. 8, 12 (2000). The general rule in Arkansas is that evidence of prior accidents is not admissible for the purpose of proving negligence. Transit Homes, Inc. v. Bellamy, 282 Ark. 453, 460 (1984) reversed on other grounds, 314 Ark. 8, 13 (1993).

In this context, the records which Claimant seeks are confidential and not relevant to any issue before the Commission. Per Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1717(a), the availability of founded maltreatment reports by DHS "shall be confidential." Claimant, however, asserts that she is entitled to maltreatment reports, to the extent any even exist, because they are necessary for the determination of an issue before a grand jury or court. The exception, however, is not applicable because, as explained above, such prior acts are not relevant to prove negligence on the claims asserted. In other words, even if there were prior maltreatment allegations lodged against BHDC staff, it would not be admissible to prove any issue of foreseeability or proximate cause currently before the Commission. Thus, even under Claimant's theory, such reports, to the extent there are any, are not necessary for any determination before the Commission. Consequently, the exception does not apply.

[3] The Court of Appeals stated: "To establish that the concrete was unreasonably dangerous, Elder presented testimony from Bryant, the former assistant manager of Dollar General, who said that the area was slick and that she had seen at least four other people slip there, although not all of them fell all the way to the ground." Elder, 2020 Ark at *5.

The exceptions for screened out, pending, and unfounded reports under Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 are even more limited. Per Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718(a), there are no exceptions for screened out reports. While pending reports are subject to the same exceptions as founded reports, as explained above, the exception is not applicable because the reports are not necessary for determination of any issue on the wrongful death claim presently before the Commission. Finally, unfounded reports are only subject to the release exceptions after "satisfaction of due process" and only then when, again, it is necessary for a determination of an issue before the Commission. Consequently, the exception to the confidentiality of the reports, if any exist, is not applicable.

Mortality Review Committee

Claimant further seeks release of the DDS Mortality Review Committee documents related to David Cains which, per Ark. Code Ann. §16-46-109, are expressly "confidential" and, by law, "absolutely privileged." The DDS Mortality Review Committee is a Quality Assurance Committee subject to the confidentiality provisions of Ark. Code Ann. §16-46-109. Arkansas law defines a Quality Assurance Committee as having the responsibility for reviewing and evaluating the quality of medical, nursing, or other care delivered in a long-term care facility, or of professional consultants engaged by long-term care facilities to study quality-of-care issues identified by the committee. Ark. Code Ann. § 16-46-109(a). That is exactly what the DDS Mortality Review Committee does for unexpected deaths at its HDCs. See DHS Ex. B ("Purpose" excerpted from DDS Mortality Review Committee Protocol for 2020).

Even Claimant, in her motion on page 6, concedes that the DDS Mortality Review Committee conducts a review of each unexpected death of persons in HDCs which, per Claimant, includes circumstances of death and other risk factors. See Motion, p. 6. As HDCs are long-term care facilities, the DDS Mortality Review Committee meets the statutory definition of a Quality Assurance Committee whose records are confidential by law. Claimant's insinuations to the contrary defy her own statements about the role of the DDS Mortality Review Committee which, she admits in her motion, is to review the circumstances of unexpected deaths and other risk factors in a DDS HDC. Consequently, Claimant's arguments in favor of release are not only contrary to the Arkansas law cited but, in addition, conflict with her own representations to this Commission as to the duties of the committee in reviewing the circumstances of unexpected HDC deaths. Consequently, as a matter of Arkansas law, Claimant's claims are without legal merit and should be rejected.

WHEREFORE, the Arkansas Department of Human Services, by counsel, moves that the "motion to compel" release of confidential information be denied.

Respectfully Submitted,

Arkansas Department of Human Services

[EXTERNAL SENDER]
Rich,

Disability Rights Arkansas ("DRA") has retained us in connection with its limited involvement in the Cains matter before the Claims Commission. I don't have nearly all the information and am trying to get up to speed now, but I understand DHS is looking to take depositions of Kris Stewart and a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition of DRA on a couple of reports, from January of 2015 and January of 2016. Those reports seem pretty far removed from what happened to Mr. Cains years later, but I will look into it and discuss with DRA.

I understand you've suggested some possible dates for these depositions. Before we get too deep into that, however, we need to see a proposed notice of deposition with the topics clearly and specifically spelled out. We will then discuss with DRA.

Thank you. Look forward to working with you here.

BEFORE THE ARKANSAS CLAIMS COMMISSION

Christine McAuliffe,
as Special Administrator of the Estate
of David Cains CLAIMANT

V. Claim No. 220374

THE ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF
HUMAN SERVICES (BOONEVILLE HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CENTER) RESPONDENT

CLAIMANT'S REPLY FOR HER MOTION TO COMPEL THE RELEASE OF CERTAIN DOCUMENTS BY RESPONDENT

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, as Special Administrator of the Estate of David Cains, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Reply, states the following:

Tyler Mattson's history of physically abusing the developmentally disabled residents of the Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) made his physical abuse of David Cains on the day in question foreseeable, thereby making Cains' death foreseeable. Foreseeability is pertinent to the issue of Respondent's negligence. The Arkansas Supreme Court holds that "to constitute actionable negligence, it is not necessary that the actor foresee the particular injury which occurred, only that the actor reasonably foresee an appreciable risk of harm to others." Wallace v. Broyles, 331 Ark. 58, 961 S.W.2d 712, 715 (1998) (emphasis added).

Jonathan McCutcheon, who worked for several years at the BHDC, recently testified in deposition that in or around 2019 he witnessed Tyler Mattson physically abuse another developmentally disabled resident; specifically, McCutcheon testified that Mattson grabbed the resident by his collar, yanked him down to the ground, and then dragged the resident along a hallway floor all the way to the resident's room. McCutcheon testified that he reported what he witnessed, that he relayed what he witnessed directly to BHDC Administrator Jeff Gonyea, that a maltreatment investigation was conducted, and that the allegations of maltreatment against Mattson were determined to be unfounded.[1]

Meanwhile, Tyler Mattson testified at his deposition that he recalled it was Sandy Evans who most likely conducted the 2019 investigation that cleared him of wrongdoing in this prior incident of resident abuse.[2] This is significant, given that it was Sandy Evans who investigated and cleared Tyler Mattson of wrongdoing in David Cains' death. As previously stated in Claimant's Motion, there has been deposition evidence obtained that challenges the validity of Evans' maltreatment investigation into Cains' death.[3]

Given all this, Claimant deserves to see the documents she is requesting from Respondent. Claimant seeks an order compelling Respondent to release (1) all Adult

[1] The transcript of McCutcheon's deposition not yet provided by the court reporter.

[2] Please see p. 20: 5-22 and p. 22: 9-20 of Tyler Mattson's deposition transcript, attached here as Exhibit 1.

[3] For instance, Tyler Mattson testified at deposition that the entirety of Sandy Evans' investigation into his personal involvement in the death included one brief interaction during which he was questioned for "barely a minute," that Evans did not ask him detailed questions about what happened, and that primarily all she did was provide him a witness statement form and then personally instruct him on how to complete the form.[3]
At her own deposition, Evans actually admitted that the death-causing restraint used by the three staff members was not the least restrictive method that could have been used on David Cains.[3] Therefore, it was not necessary to use that amount of force on David. Inexplicably, Evans still failed to substantiate maltreatment against the three staff members. Per Respondent's own policy, any physical restraint exceeding in force the least restrictive option is unnecessary and forbidden at the BHDC. Arkansas Department of Human Services DDS Policy 3011-D. The statutory definition of "Abuse" in long term care facilities such as the BHDC includes any "intentional and unnecessary physical act that inflicts pain on or causes injury" to a developmentally disabled person. A.C.A. § 12-12-1703(1). Simultaneously, "abuse" is one of the definitions of "Adult Maltreatment." A.C.A. § 12-12-1703(2). In other words, Evans, by her own admission, acknowledges that adult maltreatment, as defined in Arkansas code, occurred, yet still failed to substantiate allegations of adult maltreatment against the three staff members who engaged in the unnecessary physical act that caused David Cains' death.

Maltreatment Reports for which Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos were an accused offender while employed at the BHDC; (2) all 16 Adult Maltreatment Reports involving substantiated staff-on-client maltreatment where Sandy Evans was the investigator; and (3) Mortality Review Committee documents related to David Cains' death.

WHEREFORE, the Claimant prays for the Arkansas Claims Commission to grant this Motion and issue an Order directing Respondent to provide the documents requested in this Motion to Claimant, and for all other proper relief which she may be entitled.

FIRST AID GUIDELINES

POLICY STATEMENT: First Aid Guidelines are available for use in each of the Aide Stations in each living area. This will permit appropriate and immediate attention to medical conditions of sudden onset, including injuries and choking.

PROCEDURES:

1. The First Aid Guidelines have been approved by the staff physician for the Booneville HDC.

2. In all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected, either to clients or staff, a call to the Medical Department should be made. This should be the first call so Medical staff can respond immediately to the situation.

   A call to Medical at 1422 should be made and the following information should be given:

   1. Caller's name and title
   2. Victim's name, location, situation and condition of the victim (alert, unconscious, etc.)
   3. Medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate.

3. All staff members are trained in first aid, CPR, and abdominal thrust for choking so, that if necessary, emergency rescue measures can be initiated before Medical staff arrives.

4. Choking is a serious and potentially life-threatening situation and the following guidelines should be followed:

   a. Staff will supervise clients during meal times and nursing staff will be available by phone at all times;
   b. emergency equipment including oxygen and suction machine will be kept in the dining room for use as needed;
   c. All staff will receive annual training in abdominal thrust and choking precautions.

5. First Aid kits, disaster kits, and first aid guidelines will be kept in all areas. Medical will do monthly inspections on first aid kits, and every 6 month inspections on disaster kits, and refill appropriately. If living area staff notice supplies are low, Medical is to be notified and supplies will be replenished.

Comes now, Arkansas Department of Human Services, by and through its attorney, Rich Rosen, and for its Answers to Claimant's Requests for Admissions.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 1: Admit that Melissa Weatherton was the director of DDS at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 2: Admit that Cindy Gillespie was the director of DHS at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 3: Admit that DDS had supervisory control over BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 4: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, DHS permitted staff at BHDC to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is vague, general, and unclear in its overbroad reference to "clients" of the HDC. Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 5: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, DDS permitted staff at BHDC to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 7: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, DHS was aware that BHDC permitted its staff to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is vague, general, and unclear in its overbroad reference to "clients" of the HDC. Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 8: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, DDS was aware that BHDC permitted its staff to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 9: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, the Director of DHS was aware that BHDC permitted its staff to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is vague, general, and unclear in its overbroad reference to "clients" of the HDC. Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references

"clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 10: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, the Director of DDS was aware that BHDC permitted its staff to restrain clients on the ground for purposes other than transitioning to mechanical restraints.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is vague, general, and unclear in its overbroad reference to "clients" of the HDC. Restraints, including emergency safety holds, are authorized for an individual client by his or her physician. Because the request references "clients" in general without identifying any particular or individual client, the request is vague and overbroad. As a result, DHS is unable to broadly admit or deny the request, as worded.

RESPONSE: Respondent admits that there are any number of reasons personnel, not just medical staff, would need to call 911, including instances wholly unrelated to medical issues, including fires, active shooters, or severe or damaging weather. As such, due to the lack of specificity in the Request for Admission, Respondent denies.

RESPONSE: There are any number of reasons personnel, not just medical staff, could need to call 911, including, for example, instances wholly unrelated to medical issues, including fires, active shooters, or severe or damaging weather. As such, due to the vague nature of the request and its lack of specificity, the request is denied.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 31: Admit that, at the time of David Cains' death, BHDC's non-medical staff, including direct care staff, were required to first call BHDC medical staff, not 911, during a medical emergency.

RESPONSE: Respondent notes that Claimant has not defined what would constitute a "medical emergency" under this Request for Admission nor has Claimant differentiated whether a "medical emergency" involves residents of BHDC, staff at BHDC, or members of the general public. REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 36: Admit that Booneville HDC Policy IV-B-10, attached here as Exhibit 1, was a policy in effect at BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 37: Admit that DHS was aware that Booneville HDC Policy IV-B-10, attached here as Exhibit 1, was a policy in effect at BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 38: Admit that DDS was aware that Booneville HDC Policy IV-B-10, attached here as Exhibit 1, was a policy in effect at BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 39: Admit that the director of DHS was aware that Booneville HDC Policy IV-B-10, attached here as Exhibit l, was a policy in effect at BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 40: Admit that the director of DDS was aware that Booneville HDC Policy IV-B-10, attached here as Exhibit 1, was a policy in effect at BHDC at the time of David Cains' death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 41: Admit that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother the existence of a maltreatment investigation related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, David Cains' mother was not entitled to disclosure because she was not a "subject of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). By law, a guardianship terminates upon the death of the ward. Ark. Code Ann. §28-65-401(a)(2); White v. Palo, 2011 Ark. 126, *8.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 42: Admit that DHS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother the existence of a maltreatment investigation related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, David Cains' mother was not entitled to disclosure because she was not a "subject of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 43: Admit that DDS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother the existence of a maltreatment investigation related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, David Cains' mother was not entitled to disclosure because she was not a "subject of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). By law, a guardianship terminates upon the death of the ward. Ark. Code Ann. §28-65-401(a)(2); White v. Palo, 2011 Ark. 126, *8.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 44: Admit that the director of DHS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother the existence of a maltreatment investigation related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, David Cains' mother was not entitled to disclosure because she was not a "subject of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). By law, a guardianship terminates upon the death of the ward. Ark. Code Ann. §28-65-401(a)(2); White v. Palo, 2011 Ark. 126, *8. See also response to request #14 above.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 45: Admit that the director of DDS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother the existence of a maltreatment investigation related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, David Cains' mother was not entitled to disclosure because she was not a "subject of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). By law, a guardianship terminates upon the death of the ward. Ark. Code Ann. §28-65-401(a)(2); White v. Palo, 2011 Ark. 126, *8.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 46: Admit that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother that there was a restraint incident related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: Denied because there was no restraint incident related to David Cains' death.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 47: Admit that DHS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother that there was a restraint incident related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: Denied because there was no restraint incident related to David Cains' death.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 48: Admit that DDS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother that there was a restraint incident related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: Denied because there was no restraint incident related to David Cains' death.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 49: Admit that the director of DHS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother that there was a restraint incident related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: Denied because there was no restraint incident related to David Cains' death. See also response to request # 14 above.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 50: Admit that the director of DDS was aware that BHDC did not disclose to David Cains' mother that there was a restraint incident related to his death prior to the letter mailed to her on June 19, 2020, containing the "Final Synopsis," attached here as Exhibit 2.

RESPONSE: Denied because there was no restraint incident related to David Cains' death.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 51: Admit that, following the incident that led to David Cains' death, employees at Booneville Human Development Center failed to disclose to emergency medical services that David Cains had been restrained prior to choking.

RESPONSE: Denied because the EMT stated he was unaware with whom he spoke when he arrived at the scene while the nursing team and staff were attempting to save David Cains's life. The request presumes that there was a "fail[ure] to disclose" when, in actually, it appears from the EMT's testimony that he spoke with a member of the nursing team who arrived in response to the emergency and was unaware of David Cains' prior behavioral episode. The EMT did not followed-up with BHDC.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 52: Admit that BHDC failed to disclose the restraint that led to David Cains' death until after the funeral, meaning that the family was not offered an opportunity to have an autopsy completed.

RESPONSE: Denied because the David Cains' mother or "next of kin," always had the opportunity to order an autopsy under Arkansas law. See Ark Code Ann. 20-17-302. See also Response to Request # 48 above.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 53: Admit that David Cains' family was not informed about a maltreatment investigation until at least nine days after his death and the family was unable to have an autopsy completed because he had already been buried.

RESPONSE: DHS objects because the then ongoing maltreatment investigation was confidential under Arkansas law and could not be disclosed. See Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1718 (screened-out, pending, and unfounded reports). At the time, neither David Cains' mother nor his family were entitled to disclosure because they were not "subject[s] of the report," as defined by Ark. Code Ann. §12-12-1703(23). By law, a guardianship terminates upon the death of the ward. Ark. Code Ann. §28-65-401(a)(2); White v. Palo, 2011 Ark. 126, *8.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 54: Admit that David Cains was under physician's ordered [redacted] at the time of his death.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 55: Admit that Sandy Evans, the maltreatment investigator for David Cains' death, investigated the same people she worked alongside.

RESPONSE: Denied.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 56: Admit that, due to reports made in the past by Disability Rights of Arkansas, that BHDC has been investigated in the past for overuse of physical restraints.

RESPONSE: Denied. Respondent also objects as the request asks for information outside of Respondent's knowledge and asks that Respondent speculate on the reason for any such investigation, to the extent there even was an investigation caused by or due to claims and reports made by Disability Rights of Arkansas. The Arkansas Office of Long Term Care, which is the state regulatory board for ICF-IIDs investigated BHDC over the circumstances of David Cains' death and found no failed facility practices and issued no deficiencies.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 57: Admit that, in the past, physical restraints have led to patients being injured at BHDC.

RESPONSE: Objection. Respondent objects to the Request for Admission as being irrelevant, overly vague and fails to define the parameter of the word "injured." Restraints are for safety.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 58: Admit that BHDC's own policies stated that physical restraints dramatically increase the risk of injury to disabled patients.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 59: Admit that Tyler Mattson had, prior to David Cains' death, been alleged to have committed maltreatment against a BHDC client.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is irrelevant to the allegations asserted in the claim. See Transit Homes, Inc. v. Bellamy, 282 Ark. 453, 460 (1984) reversed on other grounds, 314 Ark. 8, 13 (1993) (The general rule in Arkansas is that evidence of prior accidents is not admissible for the purpose of proving negligence). BHDC states it is unaware of any actual founded or substantiated complaint of maltreatment against Tyler Matson.

REQUEST FOR ADMISSION NO. 60: Admit that the maltreatment investigation into Tyler Mattson stemming from Jonathan McCutcheon's allegations was conducted by Sandra (Sandy) Evans.

RESPONSE: Objection. The request is irrelevant to the allegations asserted in the claim. See Transit Homes, Inc. v. Bellamy, 282 Ark. 453, 460 (1984) reversed on other grounds, 314 Ark. 8, 13 (1993) (The general rule in Arkansas is that evidence of prior accidents is not admissible for the purpose of proving negligence). BHDC states it is unaware of any actual founded or substantiated complaint of maltreatment against Tyler Matson.

Yes, there was an imminent risk of serious physical injury posed by Mr. Cains. The incident occurred in the lobby of the Commons building with other employees and clients were nearby. The canteen, restroom, medication window, recreation room are accessed from the lobby as well as the main entrance into commons and then into the dining room. Mr. Cains exhibited dangerous behavior which posed an imminent risk to himself, other clients, employees, and property. Mr. Cains became verbally and then physically aggressive during the incident. Mr. Cains destroyed property, spit at Mr. Mattson, and advanced on and attempted to strike Mr. Mattson.

On June 13, 2020, Mr. Cains went to the Commons Building on BHDC's campus for his medication and lunch. Mr. Mattson noted Mr. Cains seemed to be irritated and Mr. Mattson accompanied Mr. Cains to the bathroom.

Mr. Cains came out of the restroom and asked if he could sit down in the lobby to calm down. Mr. Mattson told Mr. Cains that that would be okay, and Mr. Cains sat down. Mr. Cains sat down and began screaming, cussing and ripped paper of the wall. Mr. Cains then jumped up, began spitting and attempted to hit Mr. Mattson. Mr. Mattson placed Mr. Cains in an emergency personal hold by holding Mr. Cains arms. Mr. Cains fell to the ground and Mr. Mattson fell with him. While on the floor, Mr. Cains continued to try and strike Mr. Mattson.

FOURTH SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSES TO RESPONDENT'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES AND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Fourth Supplemental Responses to DHS's First Set of Interrogatories and Requests for Production, states as follows:

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Please identify by name, address and telephone number, each and every person that you expect and/or will call as an expert witness at the trial of this claim and for each and every such person, please state the subject matter on which he or she is expected to testify, and state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and give a summary of the grounds for each such opinion.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff has not yet formally retained an expert witness, but she will be doing so soon and will supplement this response at that time. It is likely that one or more of the Disability Rights Arkansas advocates who have previously investigated BHDC will be called to testify concerning DRA's findings and conclusions, including those findings contained in their 2015 Report, 2016 Report, and their Investigative Report on David Cains' death. These reports, which are being produced herein, speak for themselves.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Janice L. LeBel, EdD/PhD, ABPP. Dr. LeBel's CV and Fee Schedule are provided herein, which contain her contact information. Dr. LeBel, as reflected in her CV, is a psychologist and an expert in field of behavioral health services and residential care for vulnerable populations, including the disabled, mentally ill, and children. Dr. LeBel has published extensively on the use of restraints in these settings. She is expected to testify concerning the standard of care for a facility such as BHDC, and whether there were breaches of that standard that lead to Cains's death. Dr. LeBel can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant. At this time there is no written report to share with Defendant.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, MD. Dr. Brown-Forestiere's CV is provided herein. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is an Emergency Medicine Physician and an expert in her field of emergency medical services. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is board certified in Emergency Medicine. She is expected to testify concerning the cause of David Cains' death. Dr. Brown-Forestiere can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant.

THIRD SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

(a) Claimant will not be utilizing DRA advocates as expert witnesses in this matter. Claimant will reference the three DRA Reports in her pre-trial brief, reference them at the hearing, and likely submit copies to the Commission. Thomas Nichols, DRA's

Managing Attorney, has agreed to provide authentication and foundation, in the event DHS cannot stipulate to same and those steps are in fact necessary.

Dr. Janice LeBel

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available and what Claimant expects. Note that Dr. LeBel has not authored or produced to Claimant a written report concerning her opinions. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Janice LeBel is a liability expert, expected to testify that the physical restraint and physical ground restraint, and the circumstances surrounding the restraint, performed by three direct care workers at BHDC, which caused David to vomit and then choke to death on his vomit, fell below the standard of care for facilities caring for the intellectually disabled and that his death was a foreseeable consequence of Respondent's negligence, as evidenced by the acknowledged violations of BHDC's own rules and regulations and those of DDS, by the fact that the death restraint was unnecessary and unjustified, that it was not the least restrictive intervention available and not used for the least amount of time, that it was not an approved NCI method of restraint taught or authorized by DHS or BHDC, that it was [redacted], that its form and repeated use by the facility was substandard, that it occurred as the result of substandard training and substandard oversight of direct care staff, that the large number of physical restraints used by BHDC staff on David Cains over the years and the facility's history of over-reliance on physical restraints in general was substandard practice and suggests a culture within the facility standing in opposition to commonly accepted norms and best practices for such facilities, that undertrained and/or underqualified direct care staff were allowed to use their own subjective discretion for when to use physical restraints with little to no oversight by supervisors and in ways often anathema to the training professed to have been provided them and the Respondent's own written rules, that the direct care staff's training and knowledge as regards first aid and basic lifesaving procedures was substandard (see placing him on his back after he starts vomiting), that BHDC in general failed to implement a functioning system of accountability for and oversight of staff designed to ensure staff were adhering to their training with regards de-escalation techniques and other nonviolent interventions, and that all of these ways in which BHDC fell below the standard of care directly led to and caused David Cains' untimely death – a foreseeable tragedy given the facility's historical refusal to reduce its reliance on physical restraints that are themselves inherently dangerous, particularly physical restraints performed on the ground like the one that killed David and which staff had been utilizing commonly and frequently in the months and years leading up to David's death despite the fact such ground restraints were at all relevant times unauthorized and prohibited. Dr. LeBel's CV (previously produced) speaks for itself as to her expertise, experience, and qualifications. Her grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in this precise field to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available. Note that Dr. Brown-Forestiere has not issued a formal written opinion or report on this matter. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere is a causation expert and partial damages expert (with respect only to Claimant's claim for damages based on David Cains' conscious pain and suffering prior to death), expected to testify that, but for the restraint and ground restraint in question, David Cains would not have died. David died because the physical restraint and ground restraint caused a struggle and that struggle induced vomiting upon which David choked to death. More specifically:

[redacted]

[redacted]

David, unfortunately, was also placed on his back after he began vomiting. [redacted]

[redacted]

Dr. Brown-Forestiere's grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in emergency medicine to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, medical records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

FOURTH SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

Please find attached the Provisional Summary of Opinions of Dr. Janice LeBel, supplemental to previous responses concerning Dr. LeBel.

Re: Review and Analysis of Documents and Expert Opinion Regarding Restraint use in the Matter of the Estate of David Cains v. Arkansas Department of Human Services (AR DHS) (Booneville Human Development Center)

Dear Attorney Gillispie:

At the request of your office, I was retained as an expert who has worked nationally and internationally with publicly-funded and private service settings such as psychiatric facilities, general hospitals, developmental centers, correctional facilities, residential programs, juvenile justice programs, and schools serving people with various disabilities and different ages in reducing and preventing the use of restraint and seclusion.

I was asked to review documents regarding the death of David Cains (DC) including but not limited to: the pleadings, the witness deposition transcripts, Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) policies and procedures, portions of DC's medical record, DC's individual treatment plan (IPP), behavior reports, restraint data, ambulance and emergency room records, the Adult Maltreatment Report, DHS Incident Report, Disability Rights Arkansas Investigative Report, OLTC Witness Statements, etc. Based upon this document review, I have rendered my professional opinion regarding the use of restraint with DC at BHDC.

My opinions, based upon my expertise and the document review process, are:

1) The physical restraint used on DC proximal to his death fell below the standard of care established by recognized standard setting entities. In addition, the physical restraint used on DC fell below the standard of care established by BHDC.

2) The BHDC emergency response policy, whereby direct care staff were prohibited from calling 911, fell below the standard of care and created a dangerous situation for DC and other clients and resulted in a delay in emergency service response and intervention.

These opinions are provisional. If additional information or documents are produced by the Respondent and submitted for review, the opinions may be modified, the report may be amended, and a revised report may be issued if necessary.

My opinions will be addressed in the order above. Deposition transcript citations/Bates Stamp numbers (where identified or applicable), standard setting citations (e.g., United Nations, World Health Organization, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, AR Developmental Disability Services (DDS), other state DDS services, and BHDC Policies & Procedures) and professional literature references will be provided to support the opinion as necessary. The reference section will follow the American Psychological Association, sixth edition, formatting requirements. The facility, Booneville Human Development Center, will be referred to as BHDC. The patient may be referred to as: patient, resident, person-served, DC, he, or his. For purposes of this review, DC's history will not be restated but relevant elements of his history may be identified and cited as indicated.

Opinion One: The physical restraint used on DC proximal to his death fell below the standard of care, including BHDC's standard of care.

Standard of Care

The standard of care required the Respondent to comply with federal CMS/ICF Regulations found at 42 C.F.R. § 483.00 et seq.; Arkansas DDS policies and procedures; and BHDC's own policies and procedures. These policies establish that: a) only the least restrictive approved form of physical restraint can be used, b) for only the least amount of time necessary, c) only to prevent imminent and serious harm in emergency situations, d) only as a last resort after nonviolent techniques have been exhausted, e) the form of physical restraint used must be an authorized method clearly stated in the client's IPP, f) the form of physical restraint must be clearly identified in the facility's policies, and g) the authorized form of physical restraint must be taught to staff. The Respondent failed to meet the standard of care in this case.

Specifically, the Respondent failed in the following ways:

- The physical restraint was not necessary or justified and violated DC's right to be free from abuse and restraint;
- The physical restraint was not implemented in response to a life-threatening emergency or behavior that presented a risk of serious injury/harm;
- The physical restraint was not the least restrictive option;
- The physical restraint did not follow a reasonable effort at nonviolent de-escalation;
- The physical restraint was in violation of the attending physician's standing order for [redacted];
- The physical restraint method used by staff was not an approved, authorized or instructed technique recognized by BHDC or documented in [redacted]

Right to be Free from Abuse and Restraint

The Respondent's use of restraint in this case was a violation of patient/resident rights and a violation of the facility's obligation to uphold the patient's right to be free from abuse and restraint use. Physical restraint is defined by the federal government (Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services [CMS]) as: Any manual method, physical or mechanical device, material, or equipment that immobilizes or reduces the ability of a patient to move his or her arms, legs, body, or head freely 42 C.F.R. § 482.13 and C.F.R. § 483.420. Physical restraint is a potentially lethal procedure of last resort which is used in an emergency circumstance in the event of imminent danger when alternatives have been attempted and/or ruled out (42 C.F.R. § 483.450). Patients/residents in health care settings have a right to be free from restraint. To affirm this position and prevent the risk of serious harm associated with restraint use, standard setting organizations such as the United Nations(UN) (2006), World Health Organization (WHO) (2019), and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS 483.12; CMS 483.420) mandate that patients/residents of facilities have the right to be free from abuse and neglect including but not limited to …any physical or chemical restraint … (emphasis added) imposed for purposes of discipline or convenience. When physical restraints are used, the facility is obligated to use the least restrictive alternative for the least amount of time and ensure that staff have and demonstrate needed competencies to effectively and appropriately interact with clients; monitor and take immediate action to address circumstances where possible abuse, neglect or mistreatment has occurred and prevent reoccurrence of abuse (CMS 483.12; Halverson et al., 2023; Huckshorn et al., 2021; AR DDS 3011-D; UN, 2006; & WHO, 2019).

Threshold for Restraint use was not Met

In health care settings, physical restraint is an emergency procedure of last resort and should only be used in the event of imminent danger to the patient/resident or others (Deposition testimony of BHDC Residential Services Director, S. Evans, 2022; Halverson et al., 2023; Huckshorn et al., 2021). BHDC staff documented and described DC's behavior as:

1. “yelling” (Jones, deposition testimony, p. 67); “screaming” (Jones OLTC Witness statement, labeled exhibit 4, p. 1)
2. “slightly agitated …became aggressive in common area” (IRIS report)
3. “irritated…screaming and cussing…ripped paper off the wall… jumped up … spitting and attempting to hit…” (Mattson, OLTC Witness statement, labeled exhibit 9, p. 1-2)

The behavior described above (# 1-3) is not lethal or life threatening, nor does it pose a risk of serious injury. The behavior described above does not require the use of force or a hands-on containment procedure. The antecedent actions described in the various documents do not meet the BHDC threshold of imminent danger requiring the implementation of physical restraint (BATES: 4348: Booneville policy, Policy I-D-4, Documentation and Response to Maladaptive Behaviors; Booneville Behavior Management policy) or accepted health care or restraint standards of practice (Halverson et al., 2023; Huckshorn et al., 2021; Huckshorn & LeBel, 2015; Ridley & Leitch, 2019).

In addition, it does not appear that DC initiated physical contact with staff or physically harmed anyone (emphasis added). Per Mattson’s OLTC Witness Statement (labeled exhibit 9, p. 2), he (Mattson) initiated physical contact with DC (“I applied personal by grabbing his arms”). Mattson grabbed DC’s arms. Mattson activated an autonomic, defensive physical response from DC referred to as the “Withdrawal Reflex” (Clarke & Harris, 2004). Mattson initiated the physical interaction with DC; he did so without first utilizing required supported stance and blocking techniques or any other form of nonviolent de-escalation required to be exhausted prior to physical restraint.

No Reasonable Effort at Least Restrictive Intervention and Non-violent De-escalation Intervention

The documentation provided does not identify any reasonable effort to de-escalate DC's distress. The most basic de-escalation strategies (time and physical space) were not apparent in the direct care staff OLTC witness statements (Campos & Jones). Mattson appears to be the only staff member with DC at the time the problem started. Mattson's written OLTC witness statement (p. 1-2) regarding the sequence of actions is disjointed. Mattson describes DC as: 'sitting, then screaming and cussing, then ripping paper off the wall to throw'. It is unclear how ripping paper off a wall occurs in a seated position. Mattson says DC then "jumped up … spitting and attempting to hit me." If DC was holding paper and attempting to throw it, one of DC's arms was likely elevated and rotated. It is not clear how quickly DC could rise to a standing position and attempt to hit Mattson. DC's physical actions were likely to have been slow, given his physical limitations. Mattson offers no detail about any verbal attempts he made to aid in calming DC, redirecting him, asking him to stop, offering DC any form of support, or utilizing the "supported stance" training.

Use of Restraint Violated BHDC Attending Physician's Order

[redacted]

[redacted]

Given the medical risk of restraint use with DC, BHDC could have put DC on their Do Not Restrain List but did not.

Use of Restraint Violated Policy Standards

The use of restraint was not consistent with BHDC policies (BATES: 4342). According to the deposition testimony of S. Evans, Residential Services Director, restraint is to be used, "Only as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury*" (p.30*); per ICF/CMS regulation 483.450(d)(5) and Evans (2022, p.32), "restraints must be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client" (emphasis added) and implementation of behavior management policy and practices is done when an individual's actions are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or others, are managed with the least restrictive method (emphasis added)." In this case, less restrictive interventions were not documented and the client (DC) was not protected. The client (DC) was fatally injured as a result of unwarranted restraint. No injury to staff was documented and no threat of serious injury was documented. Furthermore, the unwarranted restraint used was not described, addressed or documented in the facility's policies or [redacted], as required by federal regulation (483.450(b)(1)(IV)); it was, in fact, unauthorized. This use of restraint was not justified per BHDC policy.

Use of Restraint Violated BHDC Staff Training and Practice Standards

DC died as a result of being physically restrained by staff on the floor/ground. According to the deposition of BHDC Staff Development Coordinator and Non-Violent Crisis Intervention Restraint Trainer (Hise, 2022):

- (p. 21, 18-20): "The only reason that they would use the transition to the ground is putting a resident in mechanical restraint."
- (p. 22, 8-9): "I do not teach staff to hold a resident on the ground."
- (p. 22,19-21): "The training that we teach in NCI is a standing personal hold and a seated personal hold. There is no on-the-ground personal hold."
- (p. 24, 20+): "… use verbal strategies to de-escalate and redirection also teach blocking, stepping back..."
- (p. 25): "In the supported stance, if a resident was coming at you, you would put your hands up and deflect and step away."
- (p. 28, 6) "No, sir; do not restrain by yourself, use a supported stance to prevent falling over, if restraint on the ground, then prepare for mechanical restraint."
- (p. 34*) So Booneville Human Development Center does not authorize the use or train staff in the use of restraining clients on the ground except when doing so for the specific purpose of transitioning to a mechanical restraint; correct? Hise's Answer: "Correct."*

BHDC Staff Development Coordinator and Restraint Trainer Mark Hise affirms that the fatal restraint used on DC was not authorized, that the facility did not adhere to relevant restraint-related policies, and BHDC direct care staff did not follow the training they were provided.

There are several steps the Respondent should have taken to prevent this situation including but not limited to:

1) Adhering to international, federal, state, and facility standards identified above,
2) Adhering to AR DDS policy 311-D,
3) Adhering to BDHC relevant policies,
4) Using only BHDC approved and taught restraint methods,
5) Adhering to DC's Attending Physician's Orders and ensuring DC remained upright for one hour after meals,
6) Not laying hands on and grabbing DC's arms,
7) Attempting non-violent de-escalation techniques, both before initiating the restraint and after DC was taken to the ground, when staff could have simply given DC space as opposed to forcefully holding him on the ground,
8) Per Hise (2022), following BHDC restraint training and NCI protocol and using supportive stance blocking and/or a pivoting technique, particularly if there was a location/position concern,
9) Adopting an organized approach to preventing the use of restraint such as the Six Core Strategies© or Ukeru which was developed with a DD population,
10) Allocating resources to train, retrain, and support/maintain staff competence in restraint prevention and establishing a culture of non-violence,

11) Teaching staff to not restrain any patient with a comorbidity that compromises digestion, respiration, cardiac functioning, etc.,

12) Obtaining external consultation to more effectively respond to DC's distress without hands-on procedures, e.g., considered safety circles, Ukeru approach (blocking pads and ensuring soft items in the environment), etc.,

13) Ensuring patients with [redacted] are put on the Do Not Restrain List,

14) Ensuring physician's orders are known and followed by staff,

15) Incorporating the physician's order [redacted] into a repeated medical alert protocol to remind direct care staff on a daily basis (e.g., as part of change of shift report, as part of treatment team, as part of checks procedure, as part of meal-time supervision, etc.),

16) Emphasizing restraint prevention and implementing effective alternatives to restraint use such as sensory-based approaches and other methods for staff to support clients in distress without hands-on procedures,

17) Ensuring greater medical oversight of the use of restraint including nursing presence for initiating, monitoring, and determination of earliest possible release,

18) Explicitly prohibiting ground restraint unless medically contraindicated,

19) Developing an organizational action plan of restraint prevention/reduction with a committee representing leadership, staff and families/persons-served.

In short, the Respondent should know the standard of care is rising. In an era of evidenced-based practice, accountability to the persons-served and others is owed. Exemplar programs and organizations serving a similar population have done significant work in creating low/no restraint services for people with developmental disabilities. This information should have compelled the organization to action to change their use of restraint with persons-served creating a safer environment of care for staff and patients alike.

Opinion Two: The respondent facility's emergency response policy fell below the standard of care.

Standard of Care

The Respondent facility's policy, which prevented non-medical staff from calling 911, created an unnecessary obstacle to emergency response and life-saving intervention. The artificial layer of on-site communication created a dangerous circumstance for DC and all residents and likely contributed to DC's death. This approach to emergency intervention no longer occurs in other DDS state systems, such as Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Washington. Massachusetts DDS policies have required staff working in DDS settings to report events that they have reason to believe are harmful, including calling 911, since 1999 (#1999-4). New Jersey DDS enacted Danielle's Law in 2003 requiring staff working in services for people with intellectual/developmental or traumatic brain injury to call 911 when there is a life-threatening emergency to prevent delayed medical response Division of Developmental Disabilities | Danielle's Law (nj.gov). Washington state encourages staff and caretakers serving people with developmental disabilities to dial 911 and reach out online in the event of emergency circumstances (Report Concerns Involving Vulnerable Adults | DSHS (wa.gov)).

Recognizing the importance of unimpeded 911 access, broad federal legislation (Kari's Law) enacted in 2020 establishes that employers have a duty of care and a legal responsibility to help protect anyone using their phone system. When an emergency call takes place from within an organizations' network and the caller cannot connect to 9-1-1, or if dispatchers cannot pinpoint the caller's location, the employer can be liable in the event of an unfavorable outcome due to a delayed response. New legislation has also introduced penalties for any business or organization that does not comply.

The opinions contained in this report are based on my professional opinion and are within a reasonable degree of certainty within my field of practice. In the previous 20 years I have not testified as an expert at trial or by deposition. I hope these opinions are useful to you. If a more detailed analysis is desired, I would be happy to continue to review the documents provided or other materials made available to you. In the meantime, thank you for the opportunity to provide this expert opinion regarding the use of restraint with DC.

I would like to request that the date for those submissions be extended. I am currently scheduled for extended military training in Ft. Benning during the months of October and November. I am set to return on November 22, 2022 and will be back in the office on December 1, 2022. I would greatly appreciate some additional time, perhaps another week or two, to reacquaint myself with the record, to gather the necessary materials, and to draft a prehearing brief. I understand this would push the due date to the week of Christmas, but I am hoping we can work out a solution on that timing. I have discussed this issue with Mr. Gillispie and ran the situation by him as well.

Mr. Collins, I spoke with Mr. Gillispie yesterday when he called with a question about submitting deposition testimony, and he and I discussed possible hearing dates. To allow for a full day of hearings, it looks like January 20, 2023, is our best bet.

Mr. Gillispie and Mr. Collins, to that end, I am attaching a hearing letter. If this date is unworkable for Mr. Collins, we can go back to the drawing board.

Claim No. 220374

Dear Mr. Gillispie and Mr. Collins,

Due to a scheduling conflict, the Claims Commission has rescheduled this claim for hearing on Thursday, March 9, 2023, beginning at 9:00 a.m. All parties will attend via Zoom. If either party objects to a Zoom format, a written objection must be submitted via email (kathryn.irby@arkansas.gov) or mail no later than July 6, 2022. The Zoom invitation is enclosed.

Each party's witness lists, exhibit lists, and exhibits are due by Thursday, February 16, 2023. If the parties would like for the Claims Commission to review prehearing briefs, the briefs are due at the same time. If the parties will be submitting any testimony by deposition, those deposition transcripts are due at the same time. Absent a showing of good cause, the Claims Commission will not issue subpoenas for requests received after February 16, 2023.

Please note that a copy of any filing must be served upon the opposing party via U.S. Mail in accordance with the Arkansas Rules of Civil Procedure.

Mr. Gillispie, Mr. Rosen, and Mr. Gasper,

Can you all give me an update on this hearing? Have the parties discussed the logistics for this hearing? This hearing is set for one day, which, depending on the number of witnesses, means that only a limited amount of live testimony can be presented. In some claims, parties have elected to submit all testimony through deposition and to do closing arguments and field questions from the commissioners at the hearing. In other claims, parties have submitted some testimony through deposition and presented select live testimony at the hearing. Sometimes, parties elect to waive opening statements and to rely on the prehearing briefs. If live testimony will be presented, it is helpful for the parties to discuss how the hearing day will be divided to make sure everyone is on the same page.

If the parties cannot agree on an aspect of these logistics, please let me know by February 1, so that I can set a status conference for February 9. If the parties agree on the logistics, please let me know the plan to ensure that this hearing can be completed in one day.

I am happy to discuss further on Monday, if need be.

Thanks,
Kathryn

Kathryn-

Quick question. I intend to submit most testimony through deposition and present select live testimony. Given that, could you please give me a little guidance regarding an agreement between the parties on how the day will be divided? What I'm really getting at is are you wanting us to simply agree how to divide x amount of hours or are you wanting us to get into the specifics now of who are witnesses will be?

Thanks, and hope that made some sense.

Josh, the Claims Commission routinely handles claims with thousands of pages of prehearing materials. That's why the prehearing materials deadline is three weeks before the hearing. If you use binders to submit your prehearing materials, please number the binders. Also, you will need to submit four sets of binders (one for each of the three commissioners and one for the claim file).

It is also helpful when the parties do not duplicate deposition submissions. I'm copying Rich Rosen to make him aware this request, as well.

I do not know which three commissioners will be on the March panel yet, but I'm happy to share that information once I know.

If either party wants to check out the hearing room this Friday, please coordinate with SaBreana Hyche to do so. Her direct number is 682-2819.

Feel free to give me a call if this does not answer your questions.

Thanks,
Kathryn

BEFORE THE CLAIMS COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS

CHRISTINE MCAULIFFE,
AS SPECIAL ADMINISTRATOR OF THE ESTATE OF DAVID CAINS CLAIMANT

VS. CLAIM NO. 220374

THE ARKANSAS DEPT. OF HUMAN SERVICES (BOONEVILLE
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CENTER) RESPONDENT

SIXTH SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSES TO RESPONDENT'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES AND REQUESTS FOR PRODUCTION

COMES NOW the Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Sixth Supplemental Responses to DHS's First Set of Interrogatories and Requests for Production, states as follows:

INTERROGATORY NO. 1: Please identify by name, address and telephone number, each and every person that you expect and/or will call as an expert witness at the trial of this claim and for each and every such person, please state the subject matter on which he or she is expected to testify, and state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and give a summary of the grounds for each such opinion.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff has not yet formally retained an expert witness, but she will be doing so soon and will supplement this response at that time. It is likely that one or more of the Disability Rights Arkansas advocates who have previously investigated BHDC will be called to testify concerning DRA's findings and conclusions, including those findings contained in their 2015 Report, 2016 Report, and their Investigative Report on David Cains' death. These reports, which are being produced herein, speak for themselves.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Janice L. LeBel, EdD/PhD, ABPP. Dr. LeBel's CV and Fee Schedule are provided herein, which contain her contact information. Dr. LeBel, as reflected in her CV, is a psychologist and an expert in field of behavioral health services and residential care for vulnerable populations, including the disabled, mentally ill, and children. Dr. LeBel has published extensively on the use of restraints in these settings. She is expected to testify concerning the standard of care for a facility such as BHDC, and whether there were breaches of that standard that lead to Cains's death. Dr. LeBel can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant. At this time there is no written report to share with Defendant.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Plaintiff anticipates calling Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, MD. Dr. Brown-Forestiere's CV is provided herein. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is an Emergency Medicine Physician and an expert in her field of emergency medical services. Dr. Brown-Forestiere is board certified in Emergency Medicine. She is expected to testify concerning the cause of David Cains' death. Dr. Brown-Forestiere can be made available for deposition upon request from Defendant.

THIRD SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

(a) Claimant will not be utilizing DRA advocates as expert witnesses in this matter. Claimant will reference the three DRA Reports in her pre-trial brief, reference them at the hearing, and likely submit copies to the Commission. Thomas Nichols, DRA's

Managing Attorney, has agreed to provide authentication and foundation, in the event DHS cannot stipulate to same and those steps are in fact necessary.

Dr. Janice LeBel

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available and what Claimant expects. Note that Dr. LeBel has not authored or produced to Claimant a written report concerning her opinions. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Janice LeBel is a liability expert, expected to testify that the physical restraint and physical ground restraint, and the circumstances surrounding the restraint, performed by three direct care workers at BHDC, which caused David to vomit and then choke to death on his vomit, fell below the standard of care for facilities caring for the intellectually disabled and that his death was a foreseeable consequence of Respondent's negligence, as evidenced by the acknowledged violations of BHDC's own rules and regulations and those of DDS, by the fact that the death restraint was unnecessary and unjustified, that it was not the least restrictive intervention available and not used for the least amount of time, that it was not an approved NCI method of restraint taught or authorized by DHS or BHDC, that it was [redacted] that it was not identified in any policies or in [redacted] as a potential form of restraint that could ever be used, that its form and repeated use by the facility was substandard, that it occurred as the result of substandard training and substandard oversight of direct care staff, that the large number of physical restraints used by BHDC staff on David Cains over the years and the facility's history of over-reliance on physical restraints in general was substandard practice and suggests a culture within the facility standing in opposition to commonly accepted norms and best practices for such facilities, that undertrained and/or underqualified direct care staff were allowed to use their own subjective discretion for when to use physical restraints with little to no oversight by supervisors and in ways often anathema to the training professed to have been provided them and the Respondent's own written rules, that the direct care staff's training and knowledge as regards first aid and basic lifesaving procedures was substandard (see placing him on his back after he starts vomiting), that BHDC in general failed to implement a functioning system of accountability for and oversight of staff designed to ensure staff were adhering to their training with regards de-escalation techniques and other nonviolent interventions, and that all of these ways in which BHDC fell below the standard of care directly led to and caused David Cains' untimely death – a foreseeable tragedy given the facility's historical refusal to reduce its reliance on physical restraints that are themselves inherently dangerous, particularly physical restraints performed on the ground like the one that killed David and which staff had been utilizing commonly and frequently in the months and years leading up to David's death despite the fact such ground restraints were at all relevant times unauthorized and prohibited. Dr. LeBel's CV (previously produced) speaks for itself as to her expertise, experience, and qualifications. Her grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in this precise field to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere

The following statement describing the substance of facts and opinions and grounds for those opinions should not be construed as exhaustive. This supplementation is Claimant's best effort to provide a thorough response to DHS based on the information currently available. Note that Dr. Brown-Forestiere has not issued a formal written opinion or report on this matter. Claimant reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this response where required.

That said, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere is a causation expert and partial damages expert (with respect only to Claimant's claim for damages based on David Cains' conscious pain and suffering prior to death), expected to testify that, but for the restraint and ground restraint in question, David Cains would not have died. David died because the physical restraint and ground restraint caused a struggle and that struggle induced vomiting upon which David choked to death. More specifically:

[redacted]

[redacted]

David, unfortunately, was also placed on his back after he began vomiting. [redacted]

[redacted].

Dr. Brown-Forestiere's grounds for providing these opinions include the application of her expertise in emergency medicine to the facts and evidence of this case, including deposition transcripts, medical records, witness statements, relevant policies and procedures binding BHDC, and other documents produced in discovery.

FOURTH SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

Please find attached the Provisional Summary of Opinions of Dr. Janice LeBel, supplemental to previous responses concerning Dr. LeBel.

FIFTH SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE: Bob Bowen. CV attached. Mr. Bowen is expected to testify as a rebuttal witness to Respondent's expert Dr. Kastner. The substance of and grounds for his testimony and opinions will be dependent upon Dr. Kastner's live testimony. The subject matter of his testimony is expected to be the federal CMS regulations, also known as ICF-IID regulations, contained within Appendix J of the State Operations Manual (the federal regulations), and whether the Booneville Human Development Center violated those regulations in the case of David Cains.

Respectfully submitted,

Guiding Principles

Excellence, effectiveness, enthusiasm and ethical behavior are the guiding principles of my human services career. Having had the experience of being recruited, developed and mentored by great leaders, it is my goal to provide future leaders with the same opportunities to become their best selves professionally and personally. My experiences as an Adjunct Assistant Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Rochester for 10 years, a CEO of an international consulting firm, and experiences in the administration of residential supports for people affected by disabilities give me the ability to integrate my passion for knowledge with compassion for people to close the gap between research and practice, and most importantly improve the quality of life of all people with and for whom I work. Inviting rather than coercing behaviour change is the foundation upon which I enter relationships, seeking ways to eliminate the barriers that prevent full participation in the life of the communities in which we live, learn, work and play.

V.	Claim No. 220374
THE ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES (BOONEVILLE HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CENTER)	RESPONDENT

PRE-HEARING BRIEF

COMES NOW Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, by and through her attorney, Joshua D. Gillispie, and for her Pre-hearing Brief submits the following.

FACTS

The evidence in this case tells the following story:

David "Davie" Cains, a severely developmentally disabled resident of the Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC), died on June 13, 2020, while being physically restrained on the ground by three BHDC staff members – Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos. "This entire event took place on the floor while three people were holding David by his legs, torso, and head. A fact that was omitted in reports to EMS, the hospital, the coroner, and the family." Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death." Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA), the federally mandated and funded nonprofit organization designated by the state of Arkansas to protect the rights of Arkansans with disabilities, investigated Davie's death and concluded that "this restraint likely, either directly or indirectly, led to David's death." Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death."

Davie had finished lunch shortly before being restrained and pinned down to the floor by staff using a method not authorized by the facility. Staff ignored Davie's physician orders to remain upright for one hour after eating due to [redacted]. While he was being held down on his side by three BHDC staff members trained in first aid and CPR, he began to choke and vomit. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones p. 74. Davie appeared to be in respiratory distress and the staff turned him over onto his back within "a couple seconds" and attempted "upward thrusts." Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones p. 7: 13-16. [redacted]

[redacted]

Davie, as he was known to his loved ones, was 42 years old. A longtime resident of the facility, he was well-liked by staff. Davie was close with his family, particularly his sister and mother, who were very involved in his life. Davie loved his family, he loved his friends at BHDC, and he hated being alone. Davie loved to socialize, to talk, laugh, and tease, to sing and dance. Davie loved music; more specifically, Davie loved The Monkees – their music was a big part of Davie's life. He did not like silence. Davie did not like it when his friends were sad; he cried when they cried. Exhibit 45, Photos of Davie.

Davie died needlessly. The restraint staff used was unnecessary. Exhibit 2, BHDC Staff Development Coordinator Mark Hise, p. 35: 14-17. Staff are only allowed to physically restrain residents in emergency situations; restraint is to be used only as an emergency measure at BHDC. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Conyea, p. 27, p. 42, p. 44, p. 48; Exhibit 4, BHDC Policy I-D-4 (1); Exhibit 2, BHDC Staff Development Coordinator Mark Hise, p. 11. The facility may employ physical restraint "as an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury." Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(ii), [W296], Bates 1764; Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Conyea, p. 32; Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 30.

An emergency situation is one in which there is "imminent danger to the health or safety" of staff or clients. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 48: 12-15. Respondent defines "Imminent danger to health or safety" as a situation in which "death or severe bodily injury could reasonably be expected to occur without intervention." Exhibit 7, DDS 3004-I-Appendix A (6A), Bates 2052. This was the definition of "imminent danger" in use at BHDC at the time of Davie's death. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 62: 23-25, p. 63: 1-9. There was no emergency, nothing that could ever have remotely posed a risk of severe bodily injury or death. "[Davie] began screaming and cussing and ripped paper off of the wall to throw [sic] he then jumped up after me, spitting and attempting to hit me." Exhibit 8, Tyler Mattson OLTC Witness Statement. The evidence shows there was not even a risk of minor injury to staff.

Mattson testified at deposition to a different version of events than he gave in his OLTC Witness Statement and in his statement to DRA investigators, which were substantially the same. Almost two years after the event, he provided a very different version of the events leading up to the deadly ground restraint: in this version, Davie did not try to hit him, but rather "grabbed" at him, or perhaps charged at him, but not a running charge because there wasn't enough space between them for momentum, and he added, for the very first time ever in any of his official statements, that he thought he was near a ledge, which he said made it an emergency situation for him. Exhibit 9. BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 100: 24-25, p. 101: 1-25, 102: 1-25, p. 105, 14-23, p. 107: 5-17.

Again, in his written OLTC Witness Statement, completed near the time of Davie's death, Mattson said that Davie tried to hit him, omitting all mention of grabbing, charging, lunging, and omitting all mention of a ledge. Exhibit 8, Tyler Mattson OLTC Witness Statement. Mattson also omitted all mention of the ledge in his statement to DRA investigators, which was conducted within a few months of the event; he never mentioned a ledge, mentioned Davie charging at him, and never mentioned Davie trying to grab him or wrap him up. Exhibit 30, DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, p. 63; Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death." Dian Elliot, the Office of Long-Term Care (OLTC) Surveyor who also interviewed Mattson, approximately two weeks after the event, also reported zero mention whatsoever of a ledge during her deposition, and also zero mention of lunging or charging. See Exhibit 21, OLTC Surveyor Dian Elliot.

Mattson's OLTC Witness Statement says he grabbed Davie by both of his arms, causing Davie to fall to the ground. Exhibit 8, Tyler Mattson OLTC Witness Statement. At deposition Mattson first testified he grabbed Davie by his shoulders, then moments later said it was actually both of Davie's arms that he grabbed, and that this somehow caused them to lose their balance and fall over together. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 102, p. 103. Either way, one significant constant is that Davie never laid a finger on Mattson; Mattson grabbed Davie by either his shoulders or by both of his arms, a restraint violation in itself[1], and caused Davie to go to the ground.

Respondent will make much of Davie's size in the hopes of showing he was a threat, because he was over six-feet-tall and supposedly 250 pounds at the time of his death. However, Tyler Mattson was a very large man himself, at least average height if not tall and probably around 250 pounds or more, based on photos and based on his appearance at deposition. Exhibit 31, Photos of Tyler Mattson. See also the Videographer Footage of Mattson at his Deposition, which shows Mattson standing with Claimant's counsel during a demonstration.

[1] Staff are not supposed to grab both arms or both wrists of a resident simultaneously. BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 34; Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 52

This provides a good comparison, as Claimant's counsel is 6'3 and weighs approximately 220 pounds; Mattson is clearly significantly heavier.

Davie was not dangerous. Davie never caused injury to anyone at BHDC. Exhibit 2, BHDC Staff Development Coordinator Mark Hise, p. 50, p. 52; Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 66; Exhibit 10, BHDC Staff Ryann Campos, p. 49; Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p. 7, p. 10; Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 22, p. 24, p. 28; Exhibit 13, Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 8; Exhibit 14, BHDC Psychological Examiner Mike Alvis, p. 59; Exhibit 15, BHDC Social Services Worker Caleb Murry, p. 28; Exhibit 16, Claimant Christine McAuliffe, p. 21, 22.

At times Davie didn't know what to do with his emotions. His IQ was 36 and his intellectual functioning was believed to be similar to that of a four-year-old. Exhibit 14, BHDC Psychological Examiner Mike Alvis, p. 24, p. 29: 20-25, p. 30: 1-10. He was capable of temper tantrums, like any four-year-old: throwing objects that happened to be nearby, spitting, yelling, and even swinging his arms or faux-swatting with his hands. Davie never actually hit anyone, though, at least not anyone that the approximately twenty BHDC staff members deposed could identify. This is because Davie lacked the physical capabilities, like coordination, strength, and dexterity, to do so, even if he had desired to, which he did not. Exhibit 13, Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 15, 16 (not physically capable of intentionally causing harm to a grown man); Exhibit 16, Claimant Christine McAuliffe, p. 98: 9-16, p. 110: 7-25, p. 115: 6-25, p. 116: 1-6.

Even if this had been an emergency situation, staff were required to use only the "least restrictive" approved method possible. Exhibit 17, DDS 3011-D (3); Exhibit 5, Federal ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iii), [W278], Bates 1754 (the least restrictive appropriate technique possible); Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(4), [W289], Bates 1760; Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753; Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 30, p. 37: 5-9; Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 26: 24-25, p. 27: 1-3, p. 34; Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 113: 3-17; Exhibit 19, BHDC Residential Services Manager Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 43: 17-25, p. 44: 1-4; Exhibit 20, BHDC QIDP Program Manager Justin Jobb Part II, p. 49, p. 50; Exhibit 21, OLTC Surveyor Dian Elliot, p. 123: 5-12, p. 133: 23-25, p. 134: 1-4; Exhibit 22. Dr. Janice LeBel – Summary of Expert Opinions; Exhibit 37, Dr. Janice LeBel – CV; Exhibit 23, Dr. Janice LeBel Deposition Transcript. BHDC's written policy states: "Emergency Restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors" [emphasis added]. Exhibit 4, BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2)(a).

The evidence revealed a certain amount of disregard within Respondent's ranks for this most primary of Respondent's written policies on restraint usage. For example, Melissa Weatherton, Director of the Division of Developmental Services since 2016, actually testified she was not aware of a requirement that staff at BHDC use only the least restrictive method available when applying restraint. Exhibit 32, DDS Director Melissa Weatherton, p. 14: 24-24, p. 15: 1-8. This is concerning, given this is surely the most oft repeated and foundational safety rule for restraint use within the very division she heads. Exhibit 17, DDS 3011-D (3); Exhibit 5, Federal ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iii), [W278], Bates 1754 (the least restrictive appropriate technique possible); Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(4), [W289], Bates 1760; Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753; Exhibit 4, BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2)(a).

Sandy Evans was the Residential Services Director at the time of Davie's death, in charge of all direct care staff; she was also who Superintendent Gonyea appointed to conduct the facility's maltreatment investigation of Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos, all three Evans' subordinates and coworkers. Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 19, p. 59, p. 60; Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 56. Gonyea, in determining the three staff members did nothing wrong, claims he relied almost entirely on Evans' investigation. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 76: 23-25, p. 77: 1-2. Gonyea confirmed that, aside from the three staff members actually involved in the restraint, Sandy Evans possesses the most direct knowledge of anyone concerning the restraint incident on the day of Davie's death. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 77: 3-8.

Sandy Evans admitted at deposition that the restraint used on Davie at the time of his death was not the least restrictive option available. Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 50: 1-7, p. 47: 5-25 (they never gave Davie a chance to calm down and collect himself on the ground unrestrained), p. 48: 1-13, p. 49: 11-25 (it was an inappropriate use in violation of policy, requiring retraining, but in her opinion did not rise to the level of maltreatment). Amy Jones and Ryann Campos, the two staff members who helped Tyler Mattson perform the restraint, made similar admissions at deposition. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 115: 5-17 (acknowledging she probably should have made Tyler let Davie up right away); Exhibit 10, BHDC Staff Ryann Campos, p. 80: 17-21, 81: 2-6 ("there were less restrictive ways that the situation could have been handled").

DRA's investigation also specifically concluded it was a violation of DDS 3011-D (the "least restrictive" mandate) for staff to continue to restrain Davie after he was on the ground, as opposed to giving him space and time to calm himself, which would have been a less restrictive option readily available to staff. Exhibit 30, DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, p. 79: 6-16; Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death."

Davie certainly posed no danger once Tyler got him on the ground. Amy Jones testified Davie posed no significant danger to Tyler Mattson when she arrived at the scene and joined in the restraint. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 102: 4-13. When asked why Tyler did not simply back off to give Davie some space since he was neutralized on the ground, Jones said, "I don't know." Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 66: 12-15. Tyler had Davie on his left side while he knelt behind him holding him down with his left hand on Davie's shoulder and right hand on Davie's waist; only Davie's right arm was free, but he never once hit Tyler with it. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 66: 1-15. Tyler never asked her for help, but instead of ordering Tyler to release Davie, Jones testified she knelt down, grabbed both of Davie's arms to hold them in front of him near his face[2]. Later, Ryann Campos joined the ground restraint by kneeling down and grabbing both of Davie's legs by the ankles. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 67, p. 68, p. 72.

At no point throughout the ordeal did Davie strike any of them; he never hit one of them, kicked one of them, or spit at one of them. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 77: 1-7; Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 56: 9-11, p. 98: 15-17; Exhibit 10, BHDC Staff Ryann Campos, p. 56: 1-3, p. 59: 14-16, p. 63: 7-18, p. 64: 14-25. DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, one of the investigators in Davie's case, illustrated well the needlessness of the ground restraint in her deposition:

> A He said that they -- let's go back and see exactly what Tyler told me. He applied personals by grabbing his arms. So, Tyler grabs him, okay, and he says they end up falling over. David lands on his face but, then, Tyler is still able to roll him onto his side. So, my point is, if you're able to get up and gain physical whatever > over this guy and roll him on his side, you're probably just as able to be able to walk away and give him some space to see if he calms down [emphasis added].

> Q What if he didn't calm down?

Exhibit 30, DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, p. 99: 2-12.

Even there been a real emergency, the ground restraint used on Davie was not even an approved method of restraint at BHDC, much less the least restrictive option. Obviously, an unauthorized restraint technique could never be the least restrictive option. Only "authorized" forms of restraint can be used BHDC. Exhibit 33, BHDC Client Rights (17).

It was done in direct violation of training and facility policy. It was disallowed. Mark Hise is the Staff Development Coordinator at BHDC. Staff development is responsible for training staff in emergency procedures, which includes personal (physical) restraints[3]; staff development does "all the training" on the use of personal restraints. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 70, p. 71; Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 20. Hise, who has worked at BHDC for 27 years, is NCI certified. He is responsible for showing the staff how to use personal holds or personal restraints in cases of emergencies. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 71, p. 72; Exhibit 24, BHDC Assistant Superintendent Jennifer Berry, p. 124. As a Staff Development Coordinator, Hise would have the most knowledge or expertise concerning the use of personal restraints and personal holds in emergency situations at the facility. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 73: 12-17. Hise is BHDC's expert in the use of personal restraints. He is the CPI/NCI expert for the BHDC facility, the only training curriculum used for personal restraints at the facility. Exhibit 24, BHDC Assistant Superintendent Jennifer Berry, p. 127: 9-11, p. 128: 5-19.

According to Mark Hise, the ground restraint used on Davie was not allowed.

Exhibit 2, BHDC Staff Development Coordinator Mark Hise, p. 12: 1-22, p. 21: 8-25, p. 22: 1-25 ("The training that we teach in NCI is a standing personal hold and a seated personal hold. There is no on-the-ground personal hold."), p. 23: 1-8, p. 27: 16-25, p. 28: 1-6, p. 32: 9-22, p. 35: 5-17, p. 42: 5-10. Other staff members, including even restraint participant Amy Jones, agreed the ground restraint used on Davie was not allowed. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 35: 14-23 (expressly prohibited from putting a client on the ground for personal restraint); p. 43: 8-18, p. 44: 9-17; Exhibit 25, Dr. Syed Hamid, p. 78: 12-24; Exhibit 20, BHDC QIDP Program Manager Justin Jobb Part II, p. 8. Staff are not authorized to hold a client on the ground even where a client puts himself on the ground during an aggressive episode. Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 45: 1-9. Tyler Mattson testified he does not remember what personal restraint techniques he was taught to use in response to severe aggression prior to Davie's death. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 37: 25, p. 38: 1-3. There are good reasons ground restraints are not supposed to be used at BHDC. Ground restraints, particularly side restraints on the ground, are extremely dangerous. Exhibit 35, "An Investigation into the Physiological and Psychological Impact of Supine and Side Lying Physical Restraint Techniques."[4] See also Exhibit 39, CPI Risks of Physical Restraint - Part of BHDC Annual Training.

[4] "The SLR [side laying restraint] position was found to impose the greatest pressure to the thorax, the greatest ventilatory restriction, and was perceived to be the most anxiety inducing, the least comfortable and the most limiting to breathing when compared to the two supine positions.... In this current study SLR exerted greater pressure on the thorax (116.1 ±17.5) than did unsupported or supported prone restraint, and reduced FVC by 14.6% compared to 16% for unsupported prone, and 11% for supported prone, therefore the recommendation for the use of SLR as a safer alternative to both prone and supine restraint to minimize the risk of adverse restraint-related outcomes [14] should be challenged."

The fact that ground restraint was not described anywhere in BHDC's policies and procedures and not identified or even mentioned as an approved restraint in Davie's Individual Placement Plan (IPP) also made its use a violation of federal regulations.

The OLTC Survery's testimony is further confirmation that what staff did was a violation of federal regulations:

> Q Staff can't use methods that aren't approved by the facility, can they?
> A No.
> Q They can't use methods that aren't taught to them by the facility, can they?
> A No.
> Q Those would be violations of Appendix J, wouldn't they?
> A Yes. Dian Elliot,.

Exhibit 21, OLTC Surveyor Dian Elliot p. 110: 18-25, p. 111: 1. Mark Hise's testimony proves that staff violated Appendix J. Had Elliot interviewed Hise she would have known this:

> Q Okay.
> A So, if he told me -- then at that point, if he looked at me and I would have said, "Was that theleast restrictive that they could have used," and he looked at me and said, "No," that would have been in my investigation, that's part of my evidence. So, it would have been after I did my investigation if I would have asked her that. But she is just the investigator. I would go to the CPI person.
> Q And if the CPI person told you that the restraint used was something he did not teach, something that was not part of CPI, and not the least restrictive option, that would have been a big deal to you?
> A That would --
> Q That would have been a big deal to you?
> A I would have considered that strongly in my investigation, yes.

Exhibit 21, OLTC Surveyor Dian Elliot p. 140.

Tyler Mattson, who described his job caring for Davie and other developmentally disabled residents as "glorified babysitter," is the direct care staff member who initiated the restraint. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 25. Prior to Davie's death another staff member named Jonathan McCutcheon witnessed Mattson physically abusing another resident; he reported it to administration. Exhibit 26, Former Staff Jonathan McCutcheon, p. 6: 7-23, p. 7: 1-21, p. 8: 4-25, p. 9: 1-25. McCutcheon believes he reported it directly to BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. Exhibit 26, Former Staff Jonathan McCutcheon, p. 10: 1-25. Nothing was done. Exhibit 26, Former Staff Jonathan McCutcheon, p. 11: 1-11.

Just two weeks prior to Davie's death, Mattson employed unnecessary and unauthorized physical restraints on Davie twice in the same day. Had BHDC disciplined him, or even provided him additional training, Davie would very likely still be alive. The first one was in violation of policy because there was clearly no emergency to justify physical restraint, as Mattson himself acknowledged. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 71: 4-15 ("wasn't, like, a full-blown situation"); Exhibit 27, 5/29/20 Behavior Incident Report No. 1. At BHDC, staff can lay hands on residents only in full-blown situations – emergency situations likely to result in serious physical harm or death. Exhibit 5, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(ii), [W296], Bates 1764; Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 32; Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 30. Later this same day Mattson applied physical restraints to Davie again, this time for three minutes, because Davie threatened to throw a thermometer. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 73: 4-20; Exhibit 28, 5/29/20 Behavior Incident Report No. 2. Mattson incurred no consequences for either violation. The administrator who reviewed and signed her approval of Mattson's use of physical restraint for this second 5/29/20 incident admitted at her deposition that the situation did not in fact meet the definition of emergency that would justify physical force, and further, based on what is contained in the report, Mattson was not justified in his use of physical restraint and she should have flagged Tyler for this rather than approving it and moving on. Exhibit 19, BHDC Residential Services Manager Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 53: 1-17, p. 54: 3-16. Davie would likely be alive if she had. This was only two weeks before he died.

Mattson also did this to Davie in March of 2020, less than three months before his death. On 3/20/20, Mattson restrained him on the ground for four minutes; he said Davie "tried to spit and swing on me," but acknowledged Davie never laid a finger on him; he only let him up once Davie apologized. Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 77: 1-14; Exhibit 29, 3/20/20 Behavior Incident Report. This clear violation of restraint policy, notably the obvious use of an unauthorized ground restraint, was also approved by Carrie Johnson-Miller, whose testimony revealed she also required retraining on the fact that take-downs of clients to the ground for personal restraint on the ground were not allowed. Exhibit 19, BHDC Residential Services Manager Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 13, p. 14, p. 22: 11-20, p. 62: 9-13. BHDC squandered this opportunity to retrain Mattson on ground restraints, which could have saved Davie's life.

By holding Davie down on the ground just after his lunch, BHDC staff ignored Davie's know[redacted] risk and the physician orders tha[redacted]. Exhibit 46, Physician Orders at Discharge 6.19.20; Exhibit 47, Physician Orders 6.1.20; Exhibit 48 Physician Orders 3.1.19. [redacted] Tyler Mattson, who testified he was aware of Davie's [redacted] initiated the ground restraint right after Davie finished lunch. [redacted]. See Exhibit 43,

"Prevention of Choking and Aspiration" – New York Office of People with Developmental Disabilities, pgs. 3-4. This is noteworthy because Respondent's expert witness, Dr. Kastner, was recently the head of this office in New York, under former Governor Andrew Cuomo; some of Dr. Kastner's expert opinions in this case are in direct conflict with the contents of this document as it relates to [redacted]

Davie was a known [redacted]. BHDC staff knew Davie was [redacted]. See Exhibit 49, BHDC Prevocational Trainer Rhonda Harris p. 10, p. 11, p. 12, p. 14. He should have never been taken to the ground under any circumstances, particularly after lunch.

The ground restraint caused Davie to vomit, as explained by Claimant's expert witness, Emergency Room physician Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere:

> So, when someone is struggling in this scenario that's been described by all the participants, someone who is struggling has what's called a fight or flight response, meaning they're -- have adrenaline surges and they are fight -- essentially fighting for their life. Their muscles constrict to fend off what they feel is an attack. They -- so their muscles constrict, their breathing increases, (interference) set of physiological (interference) leads to increased intrathoracic pressure which is the pressure in your chest. And it also constricts the abdomen which increases the intra-abdominal pressure. Both of these are cavities in the body where the stomach is. The inferior or superior aspect on top of the stomach is the diaphragm in the chest above that, and just below it, the abdomen. And increased pressure on both of these does place increased pressure on the stomach and from the sides. Obviously, there's a definitive end to the body and how far it can stretch. And also his left side being on the floor is another definitive mechanical block as to where it can expand. So, if you think of the stomach as a cube, it's having pressure from all different angles for – because of the struggle and the position and the increased pressures. And it caused him to [redacted]

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, p. 13, p. 14; Exhibit 44, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere CV. Dr. Brown-Forestiere further testified:

> Q Okay. So if I'm hearing you correctly, Dr. Brown, and in my very nonmedical layman's terms, intense struggle that produces a fight or flight reflex and adrenaline can, in itself, increases the likelihood of triggering vomiting; is that correct?
> A In this scenario, it would, yes, due to gravity.
> Q And being on his left side increased the likelihood that the pressure, intrathoracic pressure and gravity, would --
> A Yeah.
> Q -- trigger vomiting?
> A Yeah. Unfortunately, the stomach -- and the stomach's on the left. So it means everything in the body and all the pressures above him were pressing down onto the stomach; which was butting up against the ground, essentially.
> Q Okay. And the fact that he had -- if I'm hearing you correctly, the fact that he [redacted]
> A Correct.

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, p. 14, p. 15. Respondent's expert witness, Dr. Ted Kastner, similarly opines that anxiety played a role in Davie vomiting during the restraint. Respondent's Exhibit, Dr. Kastner Report, Pt. 1, p. 21. Intense anxiety would certainly be an element to the "fight or flight" response described by Dr. Brown-Forestiere.

Because Davie was horizontal on the ground, gravity caused him to [redacted]:

Q And do you have any opinion as to after he began vomiting while he was on his left side, do you have any opinion or does what happened next, what staff did next, play into your opinion at all?
A Yes. So, unfortunately, [redacted]

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, p. 15, p. 16. Dr. Brown-Forestiere opined further on the role [redacted] might have played:

A So Mr. Cains was on the floor being restrained by three people in three different locations of his body. There was a struggle, fight or flight, patient just struggling, adrenaline pumping, causing a lot of constriction of muscles and things of that nature. If you think -- in simpler terms, if you think of the stomach as a water balloon, essentially, it had pressure coming from every single direction; and the water balloon, eventually the tie at the top, broke. That would be the lower esophageal I was talking about. The tie at the top broke and all the water was released and, unfortunately, the water was a solid substance and it then --
Q And his balloon tie is weaker than most because of his [redacted] correct?
A Correct. Yeah, so balloon, weaker tie, breaking, everything coming up. Those are solid substances. He was on his left. They then turn them [him] on his back, allowing the vomit to rest in his throat closing off his air pipe and closing off gas exchange. [redacted]

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, p. 27, p. 28, p. 29.

Neither Mattson nor the other two called 911, not after Davie began vomiting, not after he [redacted] BHDC policy forbade them from doing so; at BHDC, only medical staff are authorized to call for emergency medical help, while all other staff are only allowed to alert the facility's medical department. Exhibit 34, BHDC First Aid Guidelines – Policy IV-B-10; Exhibit 6, BHDC Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 51: 7-25, p. 52: 1-25; Exhibit 9, BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 78: 22-25, p. 79: 1-11 ("I would have like to" been able to call 911 for David); p. 123: 8-17 ("We're not allowed to" call 911); Exhibit 18, BHDC Shift Supervisor Amy Jones, p. 57: 9-25 (…it don't really make sense that we couldn't call them [medical department] and then call 9-1-1 as well."), p. 115: 5-17 (wishes she had violated the policy and called 911 right away for Davie); Exhibit 11, BHDC CPS Kelly King, p.20: 16-19; Exhibit 15, BHDC Social Services Worker Caleb Murry, p. 56; Exhibit 30, DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, p. 54: 14-18, p. 65: 22-25, p. 66: 1-22 (everyone she interviewed at BHDC confirmed there was a policy forbidding nonmedical staff from calling 911 in the event a resident has a medical emergency) (Gonyea told her they did not trust staff to recognize a medical emergency, feared 911 might be called unnecessarily), p. 67: 1-10 ; Exhibit 13, Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 22: 16-23, p. 23: 9-22 (There were "no exceptions" to the rule), p. 26: 11-25.

> Q Do you have any idea why that was the rule?
> A Yes. It was to control a situation. To be blunt with you, BHDC administration wanted to present their narrative in the documentation in an event like an emergency.
> Q What do you mean?

A They wanted total control of what was – would appear in the documentation. Any emergency event would have been documented. And they just presented an attitude where they wanted complete control.
Q Do you know why that was so important to them?
A It was just – they had had problems in the past where things leaked out that was not in their interest.

Exhibit 13, Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 24: 18-25, p. 25: 1-6.

Among many other violations, including basic common sense, BHDC's 911 policy violated its own stated Client Rights policy, which provides residents the "right to receive medical care." Exhibit 33, BHDC Client Rights (8).[5] DRA Advocate Kris Stewart testified that in her 27 years of working with and on behalf of developmental disability populations, she has never seen a similar 911policy. Exhibit 30, DRA Advocate Kris Stewart, p. 66: 19-22. DRA also documented this glaring deficiency in its report. Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death." The facility didn't believe direct care staff possessed the ability to recognize a medical emergency, yet it was these same staff in whom they entrusted the daily care of Davie and other residents, in whom they entrusted the task of performing dangerous restraints on Davie and other residents. If these staff truly were not equipped to know when to call 911, they could not possibly have been equipped to react to an emergency situation with appropriate care.

So, they called the nursing station instead, located in another building on the BHDC campus; they informed the three LPNs on duty Davie was not breathing. Exhibit 11, BHDC

[5] This is not the first time a reckless policy instituted by BHDC deprived a resident of their right to medical care and contributed directly to that resident's death; this resident also choked to death on her own vomit. Specifically, BHDC implemented a Behavior Treatment Program for a female client that "emphasized ignoring any behavior that resembled a seizure because it was believed that Jane was deliberately engaging in the seizure-like episodes to garner attention," which is exactly what staff did – ignored her as she suffocated to death on her own vomit on the ground right in front of them. Exhibit 38, DRA Investigation Report - BHDC Death - 2016.

LPN Kelly King, p.16: 10-15; Exhibit 39, Nurses Notes – Amanda Schmitt; Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 40: 17-19. Despite being told this in no uncertain terms, these three LPNs did not call 911 for an ambulance; rather, two of them, Kelly King and Amanda Schmitt, got in a car and drove across campus to the Commons building where Davie wasn't breathing, because they felt they needed to see if for themselves.

> Q Right. Because 9-1-1 -- everybody that I've talked to tells me that 9-1-1 has equipment and capabilities superior, life-saving equipment and capabilities. You know, they have EpiPens, they can do intubation, they can do deep suctioning, they can, you know, communicate. You know, they have superior life-saving skills. So I'm just asking, you know, why didn't you or Ms. Noah or Ms. Schmitt or somebody else, anybody else, call 9-1-1 the second you heard that a patient --
> A I don't --
> Q -- was literally not breathing?
> A Well, because, I mean, I didn't really know what was going on and a lot of --
> Q But you were told he wasn't breathing. Did you not believe the person?
> A Well --
> Q Did you need to see it for yourself?
> A Yes. Actually, I did.

Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p.22: 7-25 (emphasis added). King testified further that they cannot rely on direct care staff's word, that they sometimes experience false alarms:

> A Actually, I have had a couple of phone calls where a client is not breathing within the last year; and, when we got there, they were, in fact, breathing.
> Q Okay. And, because of that, you guys just don't take staff's word for it? You have to see – medical needs to see for themselves that somebody's dead or not breathing before you call 9-1-1? And that seems like a safe policy to you?
> A I -- you know, I don't even know how to answer that, to be honest with you.

Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p. 23: 25, p. 24: 1-11.

Q So that's two questions, actually. The first question, Nurse King, is do you have to see it for yourself? That's question one. The second question is, does that seem like a good, safe policy to you? So you can go ahead and answer now.
A You know, I'm going to say no for both those questions.

Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p. 25, 1-8. See also Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 48 (they did not call 911 for emergency help after they received the initial call because they get a lot of calls from staff saying a client is choking and that most of the time the client ends up being okay).

The three nurses' decision to "see it for themselves" squandered precious minutes for Davie. According to King and Schmitt it took them almost three minutes to reach Davie. Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 57, p. 58; Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p. 17. According to Don Carter, whose job for four and a half years was literally to drive from building-to-building picking up recycling, says that it would not have been possible for the nurses to make the trip in less than five minutes. Exhibit 13, Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 35: 6-24, p. 36: 1-3 ("But, even on a Saturday, I would say, for me to do that in a hurry would be five minutes"). According to Ryann Campos, the nurses did not authorize someone to call 911 for several minutes *after reaching Davie. Exhibit 10, BHDC Staff Ryann Campos, p. 46: 1-8.

The three LPNs did this despite being well aware that paramedics have superior life-saving capabilities and superior life-saving equipment; they have deep-suctioning devices, can intubate; can do chemical codes, and were only a 911 call away. Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 54, p. 55; Exhibit 11, BHDC LPN Kelly King, p. 25. They knew the paramedics could have provided better life-saving care. Exhibit 12, BHDC LPN Amanda Schmitt, p. 56: 7-11. These LPNs did not have the equipment, tools, or training to save Davie's life. The paramedics who responded after nursing staff eventually authorized calling 911 had all these things. Exhibit 40, Paramedic Samuel Scow, p. 45: 1-9 (Scow was actually able to clear Davie's airway using a Magill forceps, one of many tools BHDC did not have available); Exhibit 41, Logan County EMS Report. Dr. Brown agreed with this:

> Q Okay. And am I correct that a paramedic such as Mr.Scow, the training and the equipment that they brought to the scene, is much greater than what your typical LPN would be able to provide?
> A Oh, absolutely. An LPN is the -- one of the very lowest medical certifications in regards in the nursing world it -- as the lower end. And, even an RN, which is above an LPN, would not have been able to have the tools or administer the type of treatments or procedures that a paramedic can. They're very highly trained. So they -- they have quite a few tools at their disposal and knowledge to use them.

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown, p. 23: 6-18. Unfortunately, Scow arrived too late to save Davie's life.

The evidence strongly suggests at least five and maybe as many as ten minutes elapsed between the time Davie began choking and when BHDC called 911. Exhibit 9. BHDC Staff Tyler Mattson, p. 120: 1-5; Exhibit 10. BHDC Staff Ryann Campos, p. 46: 1-8; Exhibit 13. Former BHDC Staff Don Carter, p. 35: 6-24, p. 36: 1-3; Exhibit 40, Paramedic Samuel Scow, p. 8: 14-21, p. 10: 19-25 (determined, based on the 911 call coming in at 11:37 am, that it was eight minutes from the time Davie stopped breathing and when the facility called 911); Exhibit 41, Logan County EMS Report. Respondent will argue that these five to ten minutes would not have made a difference, but Paramedic Scow disagrees: "I can't give any specific like certainty. But I can say that, yeah, time is tissue. So it doesn't matter what the patient condition is, whether it's asphyxiation, cardiac arrest, stroke, heart attack, you know, the longer you go without oxygen circulation gas exchange, so -- and I can't say that he would have lived. But I may or may not have been able to get ROSC. And that's just based on -- and that ROSC is return of spontaneous circulation, for those who don't know." Exhibit 40, Paramedic Samuel Scow, p. 13. Dr. Brown testified that "those eight minutes, honestly, in my opinion, I think that it could have had a very large impact." Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown, p. 21

Respondent will argue that because it took Paramedic Scow approximately nine minutes [redacted] that the paramedics arrival sooner could not have made a difference. However, there is no way for Respondent to know how long it would have taken Scow to clear the airway at an earlier time. Meaning, [redacted], was not static or fixed; Davie's condition was changing by the moment in those precious minutes wasted by BHDC, and it is entirely possible Davie's condition was more favorable for [redacted] at any time prior to Scow's arrival. Further, it is possible the ambulance could have arrived sooner if called for at an earlier time – traffic conditions might have been different, traffic lights might have been different, or the ambulance, if already mobile, might have happened to be nearer to the facility at any earlier time. All that can be said with absolute certainty is that every second counts in a medical emergency; that is inarguable. For Respondent to suggest that it would not have increased Davie's odds if the paramedics arrived five to ten minutes sooner is nonsensical. It is more likely than, by a preponderance of the evidence, Davie would have had at least a slightly better chance at survival.

BHDC provided false information on the cause and circumstances of Davie's death to the paramedics, to the emergency room, to the Logan County Coroner, and to Davie's family, who were not told that a restraint even occurred until ten days after Davie's death and three days after his burial; BHDC's deceit successfully prevented an autopsy, foreclosing the possibility of criminal charges. Exhibit 52, BHDC's Timeline of Events (this was the facility's official version of events that was provided to DRA and other interested parties; it intentionally omits that there was a restraint); Exhibit 53, Facility Case Notes 6.13.20 – Documents False Info Provided Davie's Mother (reflects BHDC gave Davie's mother false information about her son's death, telling her only that he choked on his food at lunch; all mention of the restraint was omitted). Gonyea identified this document as a case note from the day of David's death reflecting Booneville's communication with and notification to David's mother, Charlene Robinson, about Davie's death and what happened. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 92. See also Exhibit 60 Final Synopsis Provided to Charlene Robinson (the first and only notification the family ever received notifying them there had been a restraint, received three days after Davie's funeral, and it offered no explanation beyond stating that the staff who had restrained Davie at the time of his death had been cleared of all wrong doing and the case was closed, this despite the fact that this was the very first mention of a restraint Davie's family have heard).

Paramedic Samuel Scow testified that he was never once informed there had been a restraint; rather, he was told Davie choked on his lunch and was simply found lying on the floor by himself. Exhibit 40, Paramedic Samuel Scow, p. 9; 1-17. This lie caused false information to be related to the emergency room and then to the coroner, Michael Chrisman, who told DRA investigators that had he known of the restraint he would have likely ordered an autopsy. Exhibit 1, "DRA - Final Report on Cains Death."

Davie's sister, Christine "Chrissy" McAuliffe, and his mother, Charlene Robinson, reasonably believed BHDC was the best place for Davie, who required 24-hour care. Both were heavily involved in Davie's life. Davie's mother and sister were very involved in his life; his was one of the most involved families at BHDC, according to Caleb Murry, whose job it was to be the liaison between clients and their families. Exhibit 15, BHDC Social Services Worker Caleb Murry , p. 22, 23. Murry had regular contact with both his mother and sister: "It wasn't uncommon for his sister to call and say, you know, I'm going to be sending him a birthday cake for his birthday or, you know, we're going to come get him." Murry says he talked to DC's mom even more: "me and his mom talked pretty frequently." Exhibit 15, BHDC Social Services Worker , p. 22, 23.

> Q And they were pretty involved?
> A Oh, absolutely. Yes, they were.
> Q More so than the average family member?
> A Yeah. I would say, as far as family involvement, they were probably one of the top, top ones as far as being involved with any other. They were very close to him.

Exhibit 15, BHDC Social Services Worker , p. 23. However, they were never told that dangerous and unauthorized forms of physical restraint would be used on Davie. They were never told that nobody would call for an ambulance were Davie to suffer a medical emergency.

It was not until after Davie's death that they learned improper and excessive restraint use was pervasive at BHDC. It was not until after Davie's death that they learned BHDC administration often turned a blind eye to these violations. Following Davie's death, Chrissy and Charlene learned that in 2019 BHDC staff broke one resident's arm during a restraint and choked another resident unconscious during a restraint. Exhibit 50, 1.31.21 Dem-Gaz Article. They learned that Disability Rights Arkansas had issued a report in January of 2016 entitled "Bound to the Past: The Excessive Use of Restraint at the Booneville Human Development Center," which revealed, among other things, that restraint use at BHDC was "approximately twenty-five times higher" than at the other four Human Development Centers in Arkansas. Exhibit 51, DRA 2016 Report - Booneville's Excessive Use of Restraints.

NEGLIGENCE

Respondent, the Arkansas Department of Human Services (DHS), and more specifically its Division of Developmental Services (DDS), which oversees operation of the Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC), is vicariously liable for the negligent acts of its agents and employees at BHDC.

The essential elements of a negligence claim are "(1) the existence of a duty on the part of the defendant to conform to a specific standard of conduct to protect the plaintiff; (2) breach of that duty by the defendant; (3) injury to the plaintiff actually and proximately caused by the defendant's breach; and (4) resulting damages to the plaintiff or his property." Cross v. Western Waste Industries, 2015 Ark. App. 476, 7, 469 S.W.3d 820, 825 (2015).

While negligence requires an appreciable risk of harm to others that a reasonably careful person would recognize, "it is not necessary that the actor foresee the particular injury which occurred, only that the actor reasonably foresee an appreciable risk of harm to others" [emphasis added]. Wallace v. Broyles, 331 Ark. 58, 961 S.W.2d 712, 715 (1998). Proximate cause in a negligence action may be shown from circumstantial evidence, and such evidence is sufficient to show proximate cause if the facts proved are of such a nature and are so connected and related to each other that the conclusion therefrom may be fairly inferred. Id.

Under the doctrine of respondeat superior, an employer may be held vicariously liable for the tortious conduct of an employee or agent if the evidence shows that such conduct was committed within the scope of the agent's employment. St. Joseph's Reg'l Health Ctr. v. Munos, 326 Ark. 605, 612, 934 S.W.2d 192, 195 (1996). The test for whether an employee is acting within the scope of his employment is whether the individual is carrying out the "object and purpose of the enterprise," as opposed to acting exclusively in his own interest. Porter v. Harshfield, 329 Ark. 130, 137, 948 S.W.2d 83 (1997). A principal may be liable for an agent's unauthorized, and even intentional conduct if the conduct was something that might be expected in view of the agent's duties. Life & Cas. Ins. Co. of Tenn. v. Padgett, 241 Ark. 353, 355, 407 S.W.2d 728, 729 (1966).

RESPONDENT OWED DAVID CAINS A DUTY OF CARE.

BHDC owed David Cains a duty of care. In agreeing to accept the custody, care, and control of Davie, Respondent expressly assumed a duty of care for David Cains. The relationship between BHDC and Cains imposed a duty in this case. Duty can be assumed or created through actions, and "where a person undertakes to act, they must do so carefully or they will be liable for negligence." Yanmar Co., Ltd. v. Slater, 2012 Ark. 36, 16, 386 S.W.3d 439, 449 (2012). The moment Respondent agreed to take care, custody, and control of David, a duty was created.

The Arkansas enabling statute for the creation of BHDC makes this clear: "There are created and there shall be maintained institutions for the care, custody, treatment, and training of individuals with intellectual and other developmental disabilities to be known as 'human development centers.'" A.C.A. § 20-48-403. And: "For the purposes of the institutions, the Board of Developmental Disabilities Services is charged with the care and training of individuals with intellectual and other developmental disabilities." A.C.A. § 20-48-403.

More importantly, BHDC was required to comply with federal regulations governing its operation. These federal regulations are referred throughout testimony interchangeably as the CMS regulations, Appendix J, the State Operations Manual, and ICF-IID regulations – all terms referring to the same federal regulations found at 42 C.F.R. § 483.00 et seq. Additionally, BHDC was required to adhere to state DDS policies, as well as its own policies and procedures. These federal, state, and facility policies constitute specific duties owed by BHDC to Davie Cains: See the Policies and Regulations Summary attached with this brief.

RESPONDENT BREACHED ITS DUTIES OF CARE

Respondent breached its duties of care to Davie as specifically described in the preceding FACTS section of this brief, as well reflected in the deposition transcripts and Deposition Summaries, attached hereto.

AN APPRECIABLE RISK OF HARM WAS A FORESEEABLE CONSEQUENCE OF RESPONDENT'S BREACHES

While negligence requires an appreciable risk of harm to others that a reasonably careful person would recognize, "it is not necessary that the actor foresee the particular injury which occurred, only that the actor reasonably foresee an appreciable risk of harm to others" [emphasis added]. Wallace v. Broyles, 331 Ark. 58, 961 S.W.2d 712, 715 (1998).

As described in the preceding FACTS section of this brief, as well reflected in the deposition transcripts and Deposition Summaries, attached hereto, not only was an appreciable harm to Davie foreseeable, but this particular harm was highly foreseeable. Respondent knew full well that restraints posed a significant risk of injury to Davie, as reflected in BHDC's own Restraint Incident Debriefing Form:

> "The Booneville Human Development Center is dedicated to the reduction of restraint use at the facility. The use of restraints is proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients, with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used. All efforts must be made to deescalate behavioral situations so that they do not result in restraint. All restraint at the facility is to be for emergency use only (even when part of a behavior treatment program) when a very real risk of personal injury or severe property damage is imminent."

Exhibit 61, BHDC Restraint Incident Debriefing Form. This written directive was in use at BHDC at the time of Davie's death. Exhibit 3, BHDC Superintendent Jeff Conyers, p. 65.

RESPONDENT'S BREACHES DIRECTLY AND PROXIMATELY CAUSED DAVIE'S DEATH

Respondent caused Davie's death, as specifically described in the preceding FACTS section of this brief, as well reflected in the deposition transcripts and Deposition Summaries, attached hereto.

If Davie had been standing or seated when he vomited, he would not have [redacted], regardless of what caused the vomiting; he was on the ground when he vomited because staff were holding him on the ground, regardless of how he got to the ground. Staff were not authorized to hold clients on the ground, not trained to do so, and were in violation of policy in doing so.

THE DAMAGES ARE SIGNIFICANT

Please see the deposition transcripts of Claimant, Christine McAuliffe, Charlene Robinson, and Sarah Ashley Cains.

Damages of the Estate of David Cains

- Loss of life of David Cains, commencing at death and ending at life expectancy. "Loss of life" damages are recoverable by the estate as an independent element of damage. These are the damages that would compensate a decedent for the loss of the value that a decedent would have placed on his or her own life. Durham v. Marberry, 356 Ark. 481, 156 S.W.3d 242 (2004).

- Conscious pain and suffering of David Cains prior to death. For cases involving conscious pain and suffering prior to death, see New Prospect Drilling Co. v. First Commercial Trust, N.A., 332 Ark. 466, 966 S.W.2d 233 (1998); Chambliss v. Brinton, 229 Ark. 526, 317 S.W.2d 143 (1958). Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere testified that Davie's death would have been particularly painful:

  A So, when someone chokes and their airway is closed off, obviously, they can no longer receive oxygen or expel CO2. This quickly induces kind of what we would call a terror fight or flight response, similar to a drowning victim. They start fighting with everything they can. Unfortunately, as the airway is blocked, CO2 which is -- turns into a toxic substance, which is an acid, builds up in their body, their muscles fighting against and are unable to expel the lactic acid they build up. So, essentially, you're not only suffocating, but it's a feeling of burning. Your lungs begin burning, your whole body, because of the acid build up. And the struggle -- and eventually you become unconscious and -- and your body continues to struggle until it no longer can.

Exhibit 42, Dr. Ricki Brown-Forestiere, p. 19.

- Funeral expenses incurred because of David Cains' death
- Medical bills incurred, which here includes only the Ambulance bill

Damages of Cains' Statutory Beneficiaries (which include Claimant, David's sister, and Charlene Robinson, David's mother, and David's half-sister Sarah Ashley Cains)

- Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, suffered up to the present time; and

- Mental anguish and emotional distress, including grief and despair, that will continue for the remainder of each of their lives. "Future mental anguish is recoverable." Knoles v. Salazar, 298 Ark. 281, 766 S.W.2d 613 (1989).

CONCLUSION

If there are no repercussions for misconduct, likelihood that the offense will be repeated increases. If there are not consequences for this event, the roughly 900 developmentally disabled Arkansas currently residing in Arkansas HDCs will be more likely to meet the same fate as Davie.

Only significant consequences can force the change that is needed to protect this most vulnerable population of Arkansans.

Dr. Kastner's opinions should be given little weight, if any.

Dr. Kastner prepared two expert reports for DHS regarding this matter. One report is dated January 5, 2023 (part one), and another dated January 6, 2023 (part two). He also provided testimony via deposition. Many of Dr. Kastner's opinions are based on mistaken assumptions, incorrect representations of testimony and/or statements, his own contradictory statements, and shifting definitions and standards.

Dr. Kastner offers some of his opinions "based upon a reasonable degree of medical certainty" on matters that aren't medical. Dr. Kastner's puffery in attaching this phrase to non-medical conclusions is obvious on its face, and should be considered when judging his credibility and the weight (if any) that his opinions should carry. For example, Dr Kastner offers the following opinions "based upon a reasonable degree of medical certainty":

- "While on the floor, Mr. Cains continued to demonstrate aggressive behavior towards Mr. Mattson and, subsequently, to other staff." Kastner Part Two, p. 5.
- "While on the floor, Mr. Mattson and other staff applied personal holds for the purpose of protecting Mr. Cains, staff and other individuals." Kastner Part Two, p. 5.
- "While on the floor, staff made no effort to hold or "pin" Mr. Cains to the floor. The application of personal holds was solely for the purpose of protecting Mr. Cains, staff and other individuals from Mr. Cains's aggressive behavior." Kastner Part Two, p. 5.
- "I agree with Dr. LeBel that the CMS regulations are "centrist." Kastner Part Two, p. 3.
- "Mr. Cains, who [redacted] at the time of the event, "charged at" or "lunged" at his staff, Mr. Mattson, and thereby initiated the process which led to physical contact between the two." Kastner Part Two, p. 4.

- "Mr. Cains is entirely responsible for the fact that the medical order, [redacted] was violated." Kastner Part One, p. 9.
- "Inconsistencies in the recording of the timing of the events was so frequent that all time notations, with the exception of when EMS was notified and the team dispatched, should be considered approximate." Kastner Part One, p. 10.

These opinions aren't medical in nature, but fall more along the lines of making assertions of non-medical facts (i.e., aggressive behavior, Mr. Cains charged at and lunged); discerning the intent and purpose of staff (i.e. applied personal holds for the purpose of protecting, the application of personal holds was solely for the purpose of protecting); ideological and political opinions (the CMS regulations are centrist); assigning liability, fault and blame (Mr. Cains is "entirely" responsible); and setting his standard for how this Commission should weigh the facts and evidence in this matter (Inconsistencies in the recording of the timing of events, with one exception, should be considered approximate).

Dr. Kastner testified during his deposition that the standard of care he was applying consisted of government and facility regulations, plus what a reasonably qualified direct support professional would have done under the circumstances. Kastner Deposition, p. 70. He testified that he derives this reasonable professional standard from the fact that professionals have to comply with licensing entities who set standards for the licensure of certain professionals. Kastner Deposition, p. 186. However, he admitted that the three staff members who held Davie down did not have any such licenses, or that they were even required to have a license. Kastner Deposition, p. 221. Additionally, in both of his written reports he never references that he is applying a reasonable licensed professional standard or definition in evaluating whether staff in this matter met the standard of care. It was during his deposition that he first made this distinction.

But Dr. Kastner contradicts himself. His report states "CMS rules and regulations, ARDDS policies and procedures, and BHDC policies and procedures represent the standard of care for the delivery of behavioral services at BHDC." Kastner Part Two, p. 3. He does explain later that "staff exercised their professional judgment in order to meet the standard of care including the use of less restrictive procedures, "time and space," and other appropriate means." Kastner Part Two, p. 5. But this brief statement that they exercised professional judgment hardly advises the reader that the licensing requirements of professionals (which didn't apply to these staff members) was part of his definition of the standard of care set out earlier in his report. Additionally, Dr. Kastner was unable to cite any federal, state, or BHDC regulation, rule or policy that applied the licensing requirements of professionals as part of the standards applied to staff members such as those in this case.

Dr. Kastner actually contradicted his licensed professional standard during his direct examination by DHS counsel. When asked "what is the standard of care for restraint use in human development centers in the State of Arkansas, who determines that, standard of care?", he testified under oath that "the standard of care is determined by the Centers for Medicaid and Medicare—Medicare and Medicaid Services, and subsequent state and facility-based documents." Kastner Deposition, p. 49. Dr. Kastner did not include his reasonable licensed professional definition in this response to the question from DHS's counsel. Dr. Kastner at one point even excluded the governmental and facility regulations from his standard of care when attacking the Claimant's expert: "the only standard of care that is applicable to the conduct of an RCT in performing their duties is the standard for what an RCT is expected to know and to do.

And that would be based upon their training, their experience and their judgment as to what was the most appropriate course of treatment." Kastner Deposition. p. 94.

In offering his opinions, Dr. Kastner ignores inconsistencies in different statements (oral or written) given by BHDC staff, and assumes every statement they made was true and accurate. Also, Dr. Kastner just simply gets some of the facts wrong. In his deposition he stated that "Mr. Mattson and Mr. Cains had been discussing how Mr. Cains felt while he was in the dining area. He had experienced and communicated some nonspecific gastrointestinal distress." Kastner Deposition. p. 65. However, Tyler Mattson testified that Davie asked to go to the bathroom immediately after finishing lunch, and that Davie was getting agitated, but he did not know what caused the agitation. Staff Tyler Mattson Deposition. p. 93. Mattson further testified that he went into the bathroom with Davie, that Davie only urinated, and took "less than a minute." Staff Tyler Mattson Deposition. p. 96. At no time during his deposition testimony, or in any other statements did Mattson say that Davie discussed how he felt regarding gastrointestinal distress.

Dr. Kastner also provides an extremely specific prediction as to Davie's life expectancy at the time of his death without any semblance of a scientific basis or methodology. He cited some figures regarding obesity in his reports; however, he admitted under oath that they only applied to individuals between the ages of twenty and twenty-nine, and that Davie was older than twenty-nine. Kastner Deposition. p. 306-308. Dr. Kastner uses inapplicable studies, statistics, and standards to support some of his opinions. He also offers opinions that defy common sense. He testified that the BHDC policy requiring direct care staff to call medical first, and prohibited them from calling 911 for an ambulance, even when a person has no pulse and isn't breathing, was a completely appropriate policy with respect to the care provided to Davie. Kastner Deposition. p. 332-333. It is shocking that any medical professional would every justify a policy that instructs staff to disregard their CPR training by prohibiting them for immediately calling 911 or directing someone else to immediately call 911 when a person is without a pulse and not breathing. Dr. Kastner opines that Davie did not suffer severe pain when he was suffocated with his own vomit and food debris. Kastner Part One. p. 49-51. And while he attacks Dr. Brown and claims she didn't support her opinion regarding pain, he does not support his assertion other than to say the sensation of pain requires tissue damage. It is obvious the acidic contents of a person's stomach will burn and damage tissue in the airway and lungs.

Policy Summary

Federal Policy

The facility must take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5). [W127]. Bates 1658. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 16. 17.

The facility must ensure that clients are not subjected to physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5). [W127]. Bates 1656. Identification of patterns or isolated instances of physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment without prompt identification and corrective action by the facility would result in a non-compliance determination for this Standard and Condition level non-compliance. Id. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 15. 17.

The facility must develop and implement systems that protect clients from all forms of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, including client to client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5). [W127]. Bates 1657. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 15. 17.

The facility is expected to ensure that staff possess and demonstrate needed competencies to effectively and appropriately interact with clients. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5)(a). [W127]. Bates 1657. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 15. 17.

The facility must monitor to assure that systems are effectively implemented and the facility takes immediate actions to address circumstances where abuse, neglect, or mistreatment have occurred and prevent reoccurrence. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5)(b). [W127]. Bates 1657. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 15. 17.

The facility must act to prevent physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5)(d). [W127]. Bates 1657. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 16. 17.

Since many clients residing in ICF/IIDs are unable to communicate feelings of fear, humiliation, etc. associated with abusive episodes, the assumption is made that any actions that would usually be viewed as psychologically or verbally abusive by a member of the general public, would also be viewed as abusive by the client residing in the ICF/IID, regardless of that client's perceived ability to comprehend the nature of the incident. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(5). [W127]. Bates 1658. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 16. 17.

Regulation Section ICF-IID 483.420(a)(6). [W128]. Bates 1658 states that a facility must ensure that clients are free from unnecessary physical restraints. Pursuant to this regulation, BHDC had a duty, at the time of his death, to keep Davie and other clients free from unnecessary physical restraints. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 19: 4-18.

The long-term use of a drug/physical restraint to manage behavior combined with one or more of the following may indicate unnecessary use:
• The client's developmental and/or behavioral needs are not being met and the appropriateness of less restrictive approaches to manage inappropriate behaviors should be questioned;
• Staff behavior may be prompting behaviors in clients which result in the chronic use of physical restraints and drugs to control behavior;
• Staff may have inadequate training and/or experience to provide active treatment and employ preventive measures;
Restraints applied for behaviors when less restrictive measures have not been tried or have been tried and found to be just as effective. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.420(a)(6), [W128], Bates 1659.

The facility must specify all facility approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(i), [W276], Bates 1753. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 21. Sandy Evans, p. 24.

All interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(i), [W276], Bates 1753. BHDC had a duty to clearly state and describe in its policies all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which were approved for use. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 21. Sandy Evans, p. 24.

The facility must designate facility interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented, ranging from most positive or least intrusive, to least positive or most intrusive. Policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 21, 22.

Facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment. The plan must still begin at the least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 21, 22.

The facility policy for unexpected behavioral incidents must provide direction for the staff in the utilization of the hierarchy. For clients not on a behavior plan, staff must apply the appropriate level of intervention per the established hierarchy, including emergency measures to prevent harm to self or others. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753, 1754. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 21, 22. [purpose of hierarchy is to ensure only least restrictive specific technique is used, applies equally to emergency situations]

Tags W275 and W276 fall under Section b – Management of Inappropriate Client Behaviors. As in most sections of the regulations, these separate (b) Tags are meant to be read as continuing in nature, as seen here: "These procedures must," [ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1), [W275], Bates 1752 (final line)], "Insure" [sic] prior to the use of more restrictive techniques, that the client's record documents that programs incorporating the use of less intrusive or more positive techniques have been tried systematically and demonstrated to be ineffective; and Policies must be implemented to ensure that all restrictive procedures begin at the lowest level of the hierarchy unless there is documented evidence that less intrusive interventions have been tried and have been found to be ineffective.
The facility is not required to justify discontinuing the use of a more restrictive technique before initiating a less restrictive technique, since the intent of the regulation is to use the most positive, least intrusive technique possible.
In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible. [ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iii), [W278], Bates 1754]. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 30. Residential Services Director Sandy Evans also testified that BHDC had a duty to adhere to this policy, that pursuant to this regulation, in emergency situations BHDC and staff are required to choose the least restrictive technique possible. Sandy Evans, p. 26, 27.

Q Yeah. And the last paragraph under this regulation states, that in emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the physical restraint technique chosen must be the least restrictive appropriate technique possible. Did I read that correctly?
A Pretty much. It says the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.
Q Ah, yes. Would you agree with that statement?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree that that is a policy that Booneville was required to comply with?
A Correct. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 30.

Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 23. [Ground restraints are not addressed in BHDC's policies and procedures.]

Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the persons who can use the physical restraints, must address the parameters for duration of application, and must address methods that ensure the health and safety of the person to be restrained. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 23, 24. [Persons to use, parameters, and methods for ground restraints are not addressed in BHDC's policies and procedures, as ground restraints are not mentioned anywhere.]

Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the specific training required for staff who are allowed to apply the physical restraints. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 23, 24. [Ground restraint training is not addressed in BHDC's policies and procedures; it is not addressed because it is not an authorized method.]

Interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior must be employed with sufficient safeguards and supervision to ensure that the safety, welfare and civil and human rights of clients are adequately protected. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(2). [W285]. Bates 1758.

Techniques to manage inappropriate client behavior must never be used, ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(3). [285]. Bates 1758, for the convenience of staff. Inadequate numbers of staff, inefficient deployment of staff, and insufficient training of staff can lead to restrictive practices used for staff convenience. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(3). [W287]. Bates 1759.

The use of behavior interventions are expected to be incorporated into the IPP and be based upon the results of the functional behavioral assessment. However, there may be isolated and rare instances when a client exhibits unexpected behavior that requires immediate intervention on the part of the staff. In these instances, the least restrictive intervention must be employed and removed as soon as the client is no longer an immediate threat to self or others. The IPP team must then discuss the need for adding a behavioral plan into the client's program. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(4). [W289]. Bates 1760.

BHDC is required to specify, within a client's IPP, the physical restraints that can be used. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(i). [W295]. Bates 1764. The IPP must address, among other things, "the type of physical restraint" and the "specific type of client behavior" for which these physical restraints described in the plan can be used. Id. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 25. Sandy Evans. p. 29. 35. [Ground restraints are not addressed or mentioned in DC's IPP.]

Q Okay. Would you agree that any physical restraint that could potentially be used on a client at Booneville needed to be clearly stated in that client's IPP?
A Yes. Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 25: 8-11. Sandy Evans. p. 29. 35. [Ground restraints are not addressed or mentioned in DC's IPP.]

He waivers when I ask if this includes emergency restraints, because he realizes he's trapped.

The only physical restraint use ever at BHDC is for Emergency Situations. Therefore, if any physical restraint that could potentially be used on a client at BHDC must be clearly stated in the client's IPP, that is referring to those physical restraints used in Emergency Situations, since that is the only time physical restraint is used at BHDC.

Q I'll go back to the question that I asked that you agreed with, so one question back.
I believe I asked if you'd agreed that -- Oh, would you -- I asked if you would agree that any physical restraint potentially used on a client at Booneville needed to be clearly stated at that client's IPP.
And you responded, yes.
A Correct.
Q Is that still your answer?
A Correct. Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 26.

Q I'm correct that personal restraints at Booneville can only be used in emergency situations?
A That's correct.
Q Okay.
A That's correct.
Q And I assume that there are approved forms of restraint to be used in those emergency situations?
A That's correct.
Q And am I also correct that staff can only use approved forms of restraint?

A That's --
Q Is that correct?
A That's correct. Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 27.

Q Well, that's not exactly my question. My question is, has to do with this regulation, which you agreed that Booneville was required to comply with. Specifically, that approved, that the – that Booneville was required to specify within a client's IPP the use of approved physical restraints that can be used.
A Correct.
Q You still agree with that?
A Right.
Q Okay.
A Yeah.
Q Well, then -- and the only physical restraints that are ever used at Booneville are emergency restraints?
A That's correct. Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 28.

The facility may employ physical restraint "as an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury." ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(ii), [W296], Bates 1764. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 32; Sandy Evans. p. 30.

Physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which the client has not exhibited before, exhibiting behaviors not identified in the functional analysis of that client's behavior, or the client ARE harming other people or themselves. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(ii), [W296], Bates 1764, 1765; BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 32; Sandy Evans. p. 30. [Note the present tense "are," foreclosing the appropriateness of force in anticipation of harm.]

The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(2)(i), [W298], Bates 1766. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 33; Sandy Evans. p. 31. [Such as when the client is on the ground.]

The facility must not issue orders for restraint on a standing or as needed basis. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(3), [W300], Bates 1767. BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 33 [Tyler was not aware that restraint could only be used for true emergency situations. He literally testified that he could use them on an "as-needed" basis.]

A client must be released from a physical restraint as quickly as possible, meaning as soon as the client is no longer a danger to self or others. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(4), [W302], Bates 1768); BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 34; Sandy Evans. p. 32. "Yes. Anytime he was in a personal hold, they would be released as quickly as possible." BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 34.

Restraints must be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(5), [W304], Bates 1768); BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea. p. 35; Sandy Evans. p. 32.

Q That is a rule, that any restraint used must be designed not to cause -- specifically designed not to cause physical injury; correct?

A Correct. Sandy Evans, p. 32.

DDS Policy and other Arkansas Law

"An individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or others, must be managed with the least restrictive method." DDS 3011-D (3); Sandy Evans, p. 34; BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 37. Only the least restrictive method in any given situation can be used at BHDC. Sandy Evans, p. 34.

Q And would you agree that Booneville was required to manage an individual's actions that were aggressive, disruptive, and/or presented a danger to the individual or others with the least restrictive method?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And you'd agree that, in fact, only the least restrictive method in any given situation would be allowed to be used at Booneville?
A That's correct. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 37.

It is emphasized that emergency procedures may not be used at frequent intervals, becoming a routine method of intervention. If emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action. DDS 3011-D (6). BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 39.

The emergency use of restraint must conform to the federal ICF regulations, and must be reported immediately to the facility administrator or designee. DDS 3011-D (6). BHDC had a duty to comply with this policy. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 39. [They cannot just use any restraint they want because it's an "emergency."]

Personal or mechanical restraint is to be used only as an emergency measure at BHDC. BHDC Policy I-D-4 (1); Mark Hise, p. 11; BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 42.

Q And this states that emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And is what I just read, in fact, the policy at BHDC?
A Yes.
Q And was it also the policy at the time of David's death?
A Yes.
Q And am I correct that that is Booneville's definition of emergency restraint?
A That, what you read there?
Q Yes. Is what I read there a definition, Booneville's definition—
A Yes.
Q -- of emergency restraint?
A Yes. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 43, 44.

At BHDC, Personal (physical) restraints are only allowed in emergency situations. An emergency situation is where there is "imminent danger to the health or safety" of staff or clients. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 48.

"Imminent danger to health or safety" means a situation in which death or severe bodily injury could reasonably be expected to occur without intervention. DDS 3004-I-Appendix A (6A), Bates 2052. This was the definition of "imminent danger" in use at BHDC at the time of Davie's death. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 62, 63.

The burden of proof shall be upon the department to show by clear and convincing evidence that such imminent danger exists. DDS 3004-I-Appendix A (6B), Bates 2052.

All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported by all individuals having knowledge of the alleged incident to the on-site administrator. DDS 3004-I (6)(B)(1), Bates 2047. Gonyea agrees this was the policy at BHDC and that he was in fact the on-site administrator. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 50.

All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported to the appropriate abuse reporting hotlines by the on-site administrator. DDS 3004-I (6)(B)(2), Bates 2047. Gonyea agrees this was the policy at BHDC. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 54.

"The on-site administrator is responsible for ensuring that staff accused or suspected of maltreatment leave the facility grounds immediately and have no contact with clients until an investigation has been completed. Under no circumstances will the subject(s) of an investigation resume regular duties or assume new duties at the facility until an investigation is complete." DDS 3004-I (6)(C), Bates 2048.

"Abuse" means any intentional and unnecessary physical act which inflicts pain on or causes injury to an endangered or impaired adult, including sexual abuse." DDS 3004-I-Appendix A (1), Bates 2052. This was the definition of abuse in use at BHDC. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 62.

A.C.A. § 12-12-1703:
(1)(A) "Abuse" means with regard to any long-term care facility resident or any patient at the Arkansas State Hospital by a caregiver:
(i) Any intentional and unnecessary physical act that inflicts pain on or causes injury to an endangered person or an impaired person, excluding court-ordered medical care or medical care requested by the patient or long-term care facility resident or a person legally authorized to make medical decisions on behalf of the patient or long-term care facility resident;
(2) "Adult maltreatment" means abuse, exploitation, neglect, or sexual abuse of an adult.

BDHC Policy

BHDC defines Emergency Restraint as use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2)(a); Sandy Evans, p. 38; [illegible] BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 43.

Restraint will not be used as punishment or for the convenience of staff in lieu of adequate programming. BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2). [Programming was inadequate.]

"Personal restraint of a client is used when the behavior is such that verbal control has been lost and other less restrictive measures have failed to control the behavior." BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2)(d). [Tyler never attempted less restrictive measures.]

The use and documentation of disciplinary procedures will comply with all relevant ICF/IID regulations and DDS Policy #3011-D. BHDC Policy I-D-2.

Emergency restraint is the only form of physical restraint or personal hold allowed at BHDC. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 44.

The BHDC definition of personal (physical) restraint is "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb." BHDC Policy I-D-4 (6); Sandy Evans, p. 40; BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 45; Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 56, 66.

[The facility's definition makes clear all personal restraint use is for emergency situations.]

Gonyea is unable to identify any other definition of personal restraint for BHDC. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 45, 46. There is no other definition or policy for approved methods of Personal (Physical) Restraint to be used at BHDC other than "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb." Sandy Evans, p. 40, 41; Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 66.

Q Sure. What is your understanding of why only the least restrictive method of intervention is allowed at Booneville?
A So they only use the minimum necessary to protect the client from themselves or others.
Q And would one of the reasons for that be to preserve the safety of the client?
A That's correct. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 46.

Client safety is the purpose of the "least restrictive" mandate. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 45.

"The Booneville Human Development Center is dedicated to the reduction of restraint use at the facility. The use of restraints is proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients, with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used. All efforts must be made to deescalate behavioral situations so that they do not result in restraint. All restraint at the facility is to be for emergency use only (even when part of a behavior treatment program) when a very real risk of personal injury or severe property damage is imminent." BHDC Restraint Incident Debriefing Form. This written directive was in use at BHDC at the time of Davie's death. BHDC Superintendent Jeff Gonyea, p. 65.

BHDC Client Rights – this violated those, as one of the rights is a right to medical care, which this rule deprives. A duty of even ordinary care would encompass an obligation to provide emergency medical care, including calling 911 for an ambulance as quickly as reasonably possible (and using CPR).

DC had very little understanding of abuse and neglect, would have struggled to articulate it. "He was not able to communicate a full understanding of his rights and needs the support of his guardian and the staff here at BHDC to ensure his rights are protected." Caleb Murry, p. 35.

Staff at the HDCs are required to follow their training. They are not allowed to wing it and use techniques not taught to them. Melissa Weatherton, p. 43, 74;

"In all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected. either to clients or staff, a call to the Medical Department should be made. This should be the first call so medical staff can respond immediately to the situation. Medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate." BHDC First Aid Guidelines – Policy IV-B-10 – Version 12/29/17

"If victim [choking victim] is unresponsive then you must call for help. Call 911 if the victim is a fellow staff member and if the victim is an individual/client/resident you must first phone the BHDC Medical Only Emergency # 1422. If there are other staff members present have them make the call – if you are alone make the call yourself and return to the victim's side." BHDC Choking Protocol – Annual Training 2020

Physical Abuse: Physical contact which may include, but is not limited to such obvious physical actions as hitting, slapping, pinching, kicking, hurling, strangling, shoving, unauthorized or unnecessary use of personal intervention, or otherwise mishandling a person receiving services- Physical contact which is not necessary for the safety of a person and/or causes discomfort to the person may also be considered to be physical abuse, as may the handling of a person with more force than is reasonably necessary. Phase II Training Materials, Bates 16659

Staff training teaches that if an upset client is standing, staff should stand; if an upset client is sitting, staff should sit; purpose of this is to appear less threatening. BHDC Avoiding/Defusing Violent Behaviors

Justin Jobb – Deposition Summary

- Jobb's job title is program coordinator/QIDP. He has been a program coordinator for BHDC for between 12 and 13 years. He has worked at BHDC for 24 years.
- Only in emergency situations can staff carry out any type of restraints
- Staff are not allowed to carry out an intervention not authorized in the IPP.

- There are no planned restraints or restraints that are made a planned part of a client's IPP or Behavior Treatment Plan at BHDC. "That's the only – we do not have -- in anybody's plan, we do not have any type of restraint that's not emergency." "Whether it's category one or category three. It's not part of any behavior treatment program then; it's not part of any behavior treatment program now. Only in emergency situations."
- As DC's QIDP, Justin Jobb was ultimately in charge of and responsible for DC's IPP. He wrote it.
- He is responsible for overseeing the implementation of the IPP.
- As QIDP, he is also chair od DC's interdisciplinary team.
- The IDT works with Jobb (as its chair) to draft the IPP.
- Chrissy attended the meeting for DC's most recent IPP, in addition to his mother; even though she wasn't his guardian and not part of his IDT (Interdisciplinary Team), she attended.

Justin Jobb II – Deposition Summary

- Jobb's job title is program coordinator/QIDP. BHDC policy states that, in that role, he monitors the implementation of training objectives and the delivery of services for clients on their assigned caseload, as determined in each client's IPP.

- Only the least restrictive method available can be used for a behavioral intervention.

- Only the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors can be used on DC.
- The definition of personal restraint at BHDC is "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb."
- The program coordinator/QIDP also reviews monthly progress notes and other documentation relative to each client. And then they submit monthly plan reviews to summarize information from their observations and their record reviews.

- The program coordinator QIDP functions as an advocate for the client by assuring he/she receives the maximum benefit of active treatment.
- Jobb, who is primarily responsible for drafting DC's IPP and present at DC's last two IPP meetings, does not recall anyone ever explaining the types of PRs to be used on DC to his mother or sister.
- Q*. Do you recall anyone ever, in the 2018 and 2019 meetings for which you were the Q, do you recall anyone ever addressing with the mother and sister that David might be restrained on the ground?*
  A*. No.*
- Ground restraints were never discussed at any time with DC's mother or sister.

- Nowhere in DC's IPP does it mention physical restraints or personal holds on the ground.
- Jobb says he was not aware staff was using ground restraints. He agrees with Mark Hise this is an improper restraint.
- There is nobody, that he knows of, who is responsible for supervising how staff use PRs on clients.

- Even though, as Davie's Q, he was supposed to eventually see documentation of every restraint used on DC, he testified he'd never received a report of DC being restrained on the ground.
- It was never reported to Jobb that staff were using this restraint on DC.

- Staff are not allowed to restraint clients on the ground. That is the rule now and it was the rule at the time of DC's death.
- If Jobb had been made aware that staff had restrained DC on the ground, he would have reported it to the Superintendent.
- It is emphasized that emergency procedures may not be used at frequent intervals, becoming a routine method of intervention. If emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action. DDS 3011-D (6). This never happened because Jobb thought it was only for mechanicals used three times in three months.

- Q. Let's just, you know, for a given month, let's say David's put in personal or physical restraints three times for that particular month. Are you required to document that in your monthly progress notes?*
  A. It's -- it's optional. I mean --*
  Q. It's optional?*
  A. Yeah.*
- Jobb says he does not think he documented the use of personal restraints on DC! He only kept up with mechanical restraints.
- Jobb was under the mistaken believe that he only had to hold IDT team meetings if DC had three mechanical restraints in a three-month period, in which case "I'd have to have a special team meeting."
- Jobb was DC's Q for several years, including 2018 through his death.
- It was the program coordinator/QIDP's job to guide the interdisciplinary team (IDT) and assure that team decisions comply with established policies as well as ICF regulations.
- Jobb says he was supposed to be notified every time DC was held in a PR for longer than one minute.
- There is nobody, that he knows of, who is responsible for supervising how staff use PRs on clients.

- Q. Okay. Are you able, as David's Q, as the person that drafts his plan, his IPP and is responsible for implementing his plan, are you able to articulate to me what, if any, supervisory, supervision techniques or safety mechanisms are in place to ensure that RCTs are not regularly using improper personal restraints? Or is it simply there's no system in place, it's just, if somebody sees something, they report it?
  A. Well, they are trained.
  Q. We've covered that.
  A. And we count on them doing the correct procedure, correct job. And, if anything is not carried out properly, we are counting on other staff to report it.
- The persons best placed for observing and reporting abuse by RCTs are fellow RCTs.
- Jobb could not articulate or identify any formal system of staff supervision.
- Q. And are you able to articulate any formal plan or policy used for supervising the RCTs? For instance, supervisor has to be present for this many, you know, this many times a week for this long --
  A. No.
- Jobb is not aware of there being a formal system in place for the supervision of RTCs in June of 2020.
- Staff at BHDC are required to report suspected maltreatment to the Superintendent, rather than to hotline it themselves. Then the Superintendent decides what happens.
- Q. And my last question, I think we basically are in agreement here, but I just want to make sure, because we kind of danced around it for a while. And it's my very last question here. So I think we definitely agreed that staff development is -- with regards to physical restraints and personal restraints, staff development is responsible for training the direct care staff in that, training the RCTs in that; correct?
  A. Correct.
  Q. And then it would mainly fall on the shoulders of the, I think you said, the direct care chain of command, all the way up to the residential services director to enforce those, that training, to ensure -- in other words, to ensure that the RCTs and other direct care staff are following the rules with regards to physical restraints; correct?
  A. Yes.
- The person ultimately responsible for giving directives to RTCs and the person ultimately responsible for direct care staff is the Residential Services Director [Sandy Evans].
- A. But, a lot of times, I remember specifically with him, he'd be listening and dancing and singing to the Monkees --

Q. Yeah.
A. -- in his bedroom. So you'll probably see a lot of that in my progress notes, because that happened a lot.
Q. I've seen a lot of mention of the Monkees everywhere.
A. It was a big part of his life, yes.

- His mother was involved in his treatment. Charlene took him to doctor appointments.

- His mother was involved in his treatment. She didn't care the facility's former psychiatrist, prior to Dr. Hudefi's arrival, and she would not allow DC to be seen by him. She'd take him to someone in Fort Smith instead, before Dr. Hudefi got there.

- Chrissy attended the meeting for DC's most recent IPP, in addition to his mother; even though she wasn't his guardian and not part of his IDT (Interdisciplinary Team), she attended.

Mike Alvis – Deposition Summary

- Mike Alvis works as the Psychological Examiner at BHDC where his job is to provide testing, psychological evaluations, individual and group counseling. He also attended meetings regarding IPP, or Individual Program Plans. Mike Alvis, p. 10.
- DC's [redacted]. Mike Alvis, p. 24.
- DC's [redacted]. Mike Alvis, p. 30.
- DC's [redacted]. Mike Alvis, p. 24.
- DC's [redacted]. Mike Alvis, p. 30.
- DC was given no therapy or counseling. Mike Alvis, p. 32, 33.
- Mike Alvis has no knowledge of DC ever harming or injuring anyone. Mike Alvis, p. 59.
- DC was Category I, not Category III, meaning he had no planned restraints, only emergency. Mike Alvis, p. 54.
- Mike Alvis, his psychological examiner and a member of his IPP team and the author of DC's BTP, does NOT know if emergency procedures allowed ground restraints, the same emergency procedures HIS BTP authorized. He says he does not think it "allowed for that kind of stuff" but that he is not sure. Mike Alvis, p. 56.
- Mike Alvis, the Psychological Examiner responsible for authoring DC's Behavioral Treatment Program, does NOT know what the emergency procedures are that his own Behavioral Treatment Plan authorizes staff to use on DC. Mike Alvis, p. 46.
- Alvis authored DC's Behavior Treatment Program. Mike Alvis, p. 43, 47.
- Alvis admits the BTP he authored provides instruction to staff on what they can and cannot do, specifically that they can use "other Center emergency procedures, if necessary," but he states he has little understanding of what those emergency procedures might be, other than that he is aware that mechanical and chemical restraints are sometimes used. He apparently has not knowledge about any personal holds that could be used in emergency situations. Mike Alvis, p. 47.
- He confirms the entirely of his knowledge with regards to emergency procedures is that mechanical and chemical restraints are used. Mike Alvis, p. 48.
- Mike Alvis testified he had little to no knowledge of what physical restraints could be used on DC, despite being author of his BTP. Mike Alvis, p. 58.

- Physician and diet orders take precedence over any possible need to employ emergency restraints – "take precedence over any possible need to employ Category I procedures or other Center Emergency Procedures." Mike Alvis, p. 49, 50 (As reflected in the Behavior Treatment Program 8.10.18 made an exhibit to his deposition).
- "Therapeutic interventions," as referenced in the Behavior Treatment Program 8.10.18 authored by Alvis, refers to Category I procedures or other Center Emergency Procedures. Mike Alvis, p. 49. [This language also contained in the Addendum to BTP 2016. Mike Alvis, p. 51.]
- Alvis believes this order for physician orders to take precedence over behavioral interventions is standard for most clients. Mike Alvis, p. 51.
- Medical issues take precedence over behavior issues. Mike Alvis, p. 52. This is so even in emergency situations, given the language of the order. Mike Alvis, p. 49, 50.
- Mike Alvis testified that [redacted] could NEVER be ignored because of need to restrain over minor physical aggression. Mike Alvis, p. 57.
- Alvis does not think counseling would have helped DC because he would not have been able to retain any of it. "Because the level of retention that people have with the -- their disability, it -- the -- I mean, they could sit there and tell you things and act like they understand it, but then they really don't understand it. Because just minutes later they go back and, you know, say I -- you know, so and so did this to me. I – you know . . ." Mike Alvis, p. 55.
- Facility was always running short-staffed. Mike Alvis, p. 60.
- Understaffing probably more of a burden for direct care staff. Mike Alvis, p. 61.

Jennifer Berry – Deposition Summary

- Jennifer Berry serves as the Assistant Superintendent at BHDC. Jennifer Berry, p. 6. She has worked in that position since March of 2020. Jennifer Berry, p. 7.
- BHDC owed a duty to keep DC reasonably safe. Jennifer Berry, p. 117.
- His IPP reflects that he seems to display aggression when [redacted]. Jennifer Berry, p. 58.
- Jennifer Berry was not personally present and did not witness any of the incidents described in the Behavior Incident Reports that Rich Rosen took her through in direct examination. Jennifer Berry, p. 129.
- She does not recall every speaking to the staff members involved in DC's incidents; she did not speak to the staff members involved in any of the incident Rich asked her about. Jennifer Berry, p. 130.
- Exhibit 4A to Jennifer Berry's deposition, a photograph of the chairs outside of the bathroom, proves that if Tyler Mattson with within 6 or 7 feet of DC then Mattson was nowhere near the ledge. Jennifer Berry, p. 39, 45 – Exhibit 4A.
- If Mattson was 7 feet from those chairs, it means he was a greater distance than that from the ledge. The bathrooms are at the end of the hallway, all the way in the back, furthest from the ledge. Jennifer Berry, p. 47 – Exhibit 4G.
- The facility cannot use any type of force that it wants on the clients. Jennifer Berry, p. 116.
- The facility must comply with ICF policies, with DDS policies, and with its own policies. Jennifer Berry, p. 116.
- Mark Hise is one of two Staff Development Coordinators at BHDC. He has been with the facility for 27 years. He worked as a program coordinator (QIPD) for thirteen years before moving to staff development in 2016. Jennifer Berry, p. 123, 124.
- Hise is responsible for training staff on the use of NCI and personal holds at BHDC. Jennifer Berry, p. 124.
- He [Hise] has done this since 2016 and he still does this now. He is NCI certified. Jennifer Berry, p. 124.
- Hise is BHDC's expert in the use of personal restraints. Jennifer Berry, p. 127.
- He [Hise] is the NCI expert for the BHDC facility. Jennifer Berry, p. 128.

- "He [Hise] has a great a sense of knowledge of what to do in terms of personal holds and NCI at our facility, based on the training he received from the experts at CPI." Jennifer Berry, p. 128.
- The portion of DC's IPP that mentions TACT procedures is supposed to say NCI. They don't use TACT; they use NCI. Jennifer Berry, p. 61.
- "A personal hold [personal restraint] is where an employee has their hands on the individual to calm them." Jennifer Berry, p. 107.
- The facility cannot use any type of force that it wants on the clients. Jennifer Berry, p. 116.
- Every single time a personal restraint is used on a client at BHDC it means there was an emergency situation; it means that they are labeling as an emergency whatever the event was the preceded the use of personal restraint. Jennifer Berry, p. 131.
- Every time hands are laid on a client it means there must have been an emergency. Jennifer Berry, p. 132.
- On 12/18/19, they physically restrained DC for two minutes because he threw a Christmas ornament that almost hit someone. Jennifer Berry, p. 72.
- Nowhere in BHDC First Aid Guidelines – Policy IV-B-10 – Version 12/29/17 does it say that nonmedical staff have the option to call 911. Jennifer Berry, p. 133. There is no other written policy that says this either. Jennifer Berry, p. 134.
- Berry testified they preferred staff call medical because ambulances could take a while. Jennifer Berry, p. 134.
- Berry does not know why so many current and former staff members testified that they were forbidden from calling 911. She has no answer for this. Jennifer Berry, p. 136. She then concedes these staff must have interpreted the policy to be this. Jennifer Berry, p. 136.
- The version of Physician Orders with two pages is the legitimate one. Jennifer Berry, p. 145.
- Jennifer Berry testified that DC was required to remain upright for one hour after eating. Jennifer Berry, p. 151.
- Ambulances typically arrive within 15 minutes. Jennifer Berry, p. 104.
- The OLTC investigation was done before the depositions in this case. The OLTC investigator would not have had the benefit of seeing Mark Hise's or Sandy Evans' testimony or any of the other testimony from this case. Jennifer Berry, p. 119, 120.

- It [the OLTC Investigation] was conducted by a single OLTC surveyor [Dian Elliot]. Jennifer Berry, p. 121.
- Jennifer Berry, Assistant Superintendent, testified that BHDC utilizes two levels of investigation for suspected adult maltreatment: maltreatment investigations, which are full-fledged investigations and then administrative reviews, which are less than full-fledged investigations. Jennifer Berry, p. 109.
- Jennifer Berry testified that, for McCutcheon's allegation of maltreatment against Tyler Mattson, only an administrative review was done. Jennifer Berry, p. 109.
    - Then she catches herself and tries to say that administrative reviews are full-fledged investigations. Jennifer Berry, p. 110.
    - When asked to explain the difference between the two, she states that full-fledged maltreatment investigations involve reporting the allegation of maltreatment [presumably to DDS and OLTC]. Jennifer Berry, p. 110.
- Even though she herself had served as a maltreatment investigator at BHDC and even though she is second in charge at BHDC, she could not say what the standard was for determining what gets reported for suspected maltreatment and what stays in-house as an administrative review. Jennifer Berry, p. 110.
- She [Christine McAuliffe], along with her mother, directly participated in the development of Davie's IPP. Jennifer Berry, p. 57.
- Chrissy attended and participated even though she was not his guardian and not a member of his IDT. Jennifer Berry, p. 68.

Dr. Ricki Brown – Deposition Summary

- Dr. Ricki Brown is a board-certified emergency physician. Dr. Brown, p. 5.
- DC [redacted]. Dr. Brown, p. 12.
- So, when someone is struggling in this scenario that's been described by all the participants, someone who is struggling has what's called a fight or flight response, meaning they're -- have adrenaline surges and they are fight -- essentially fighting for their life. Their muscles constrict to fend off what they feel is an attack. They -- so their muscles constrict, their breathing increases, (interference) set of physiological (interference) leads to increased (interference) pressure which is the pressure in your chest. And it also constricts the abdomen which increases the intra-abdominal pressure. Both of these are cavities in the body where the stomach is. The inferior or superior aspect on top of the stomach is the diaphragm in the chest above that, and just below it, the abdomen. And increased pressure on both of these does place increased pressure on the stomach and from the sides. Obviously, there's a definitive end to the body and how far it can stretch. And also his left side being on the floor is another definitive mechanical block as to where it can expand. So, if you think of the stomach as a cube, it's having pressure from all different angles for – because of the struggle and the position and the increased pressures. And it caused him to vomit. Additionally, he had an additional risk which is [redacted]. Dr. Brown, p. 13, 14.
- Q. Okay. So if I'm hearing you correctly, Dr. Brown, and in my very nonmedical layman's terms, intense struggle that produces a fight or flight reflex and adrenaline can, is itself, increases the likelihood of triggering vomiting; is that correct?*
  A. In this scenario, it would, yes, due to gravity.*
  Q. And being on his left side increased the likelihood that the pressure, intrathoracic pressure and gravity, would --*
  A. Yeah.*
  Q. -- trigger vomiting?*

A. Yeah. Unfortunately, the stomach -- and the stomach's on the left. So it means everything in the body and all the pressures above him were pressing down onto the stomach; which was butting up against the ground, essentially.
Q. Okay. And the fact that he had -- if I'm hearing you correctly, the fact that he had [redacted]
A. Correct. Dr. Brown, p. 14, 15.

- Q. And do you have any opinion as to after he began vomiting while he was on his left side, do you have any opinion or does what happened next, what staff did next, play into your opinion at all?
A. Yes. So, [redacted] Dr. Brown, p. 15, 16.
- Immediately placing him on his back after he began vomiting was essentially the worst thing staff could have done. Dr. Brown, p. 16.
- A. So Mr. Cains was on the floor being restrained by three people in three different locations of his body. There was a struggle, fight or flight, patient just struggling, adrenaline pumping, causing a lot of constriction of muscles and things of that nature. If you think -- in simpler terms, if you think of the stomach as a water balloon, essentially, it had pressure coming from every single direction; and the water balloon, eventually the tie at the top, broke. That would be the lower esophageal I was talking about. The tie at the top broke and all the water was released and, unfortunately, the water was a solid substance and it then --
Q. And his balloon tie is weaker than most because of his [redacted] correct?
A. Correct. Yeah, so balloon, weaker tie, breaking, everything coming up. Those are solid substances. He was on his left. [redacted] Dr. Brown, p. 27,28,29.
- Without any intervention, someone who suffocates will likely die within five minutes. If there is a resuscitation, meaning the CPR that was immediately started for him, that leads into a resuscitation time. Our research, and it's plentiful in emergency medicine, shows that a resuscitation past 20 minutes drastically drops the possibility of a meaningful outcome; meaning not only that we can revive the body but also the brain.

So, yes, it is very unfortunate. Those eight minutes, honestly, in my opinion, I think that it could have had a very large impact. Dr. Brown, p. 21.

- It did take the paramedics 13 minutes to get there. And review of Samuel's deposition discusses the fact that [redacted] to Mr. Cains may have drastically changed his outcome. Dr. Brown, p. 21, 22.
- Furthermore, they were doing CPR already and getting them with a paramedic who is very well trained in what we call ACLs which is the emergency resuscitation of someone in cardiac arrest. They're very well trained. They have all of the medications and the tools needed to do so. They would have been able to do much more sophisticated resuscitation. Dr. Brown, p. 22.
- A. Many different ways that could have helped. I can't say for sure if it would have changed whether he died or not, but I can definitely tell you that there would have been a much better chance had it been done earlier.*
  Q. Okay. And am I correct that a paramedic such as Mr.Scow, the training and the equipment that they brought to the scene, is much greater than what your typical LPN would be able to provide?*
  A. Oh, absolutely. An LPN is the -- one of the very lowest medical certifications in regards in the nursing world it -- as the lower end. And, even an RN, which is above an LPN, would not have been able to have the tools or administer the type of treatments or procedures that a paramedic can. They're very highly trained. So they -- they have quite a few tools at their disposal and knowledge to use them.* Dr. Brown, p. 23.
- It was still wrong to put DC on his back even if he had already stopped breathing. Dr. Brown, p. 62,63.
- Back strikes, with the patient leaned over a chair if they are unable to stand or over your knee, is correct protocol. Dr. Brown, p. 62.
- Abdominal thrusts are not the correct approach to a choking patient. Dr. Brown, p. 64.
- The teaching is quite clear that laying someone on their back occludes their airway and it is never the teaching to lay them on their back -- unless you happen to have a device that can then remove things from the airway. Dr. Brown, p. 63.
- Make gravity work for you, not against you. "If you put them on the back, the food falls into the back of the oropharynx and blocks the trachea. If you put them over your knees and have a space in between and strike on the back, you're trying to dislodge something and also give it space to move from the oropharynx." Abdominal thrusts would only dislodge it and cause it to fall right back into the oropharynx. Dr. Brown, p. 64, 65.

- There were multiple avenues of pressure that could have caused the stomach to erupt in vomit. Dr. Brown, p. 69.
- Regurgitation of food is a symptom [redacted] because of weakened esophageal sphincter. Dr. Brown, p. 72.
- "The only point of the [redacted] that it had a weakened sphincter and that is why he was more of a risk of vomiting." Dr. Brown, p. 73.
- A struggle often induces vomiting; being restrained is likely an intense struggle. Dr. Brown, p. 75, 76.
- However minimal Mattson's physical pressure was, if he was restraining him, there was at least some level of pressure coming from his arm. Dr. Brown, p. 105.
- A. So, when someone chokes and their airway is closed off, obviously, they can no longer receive oxygen or expel CO2. This quickly induces kind of what we would call a terror fight or flight response, similar to a drowning victim. They start fighting with everything they can. Unfortunately, as the airway is blocked, CO2 which is -- turns into a toxic substance, which is an acid, builds up in their body, their muscles fighting against and are unable to expel the lactic acid they build up. So, essentially, you're not only suffocating, but it's a feeling of burning. Your lungs begin burning, your whole body, because of the acid build up. And the struggle -- and eventually you become unconscious and -- and your body continues to struggle until it no longer can.
  Q. Is it a painful death?
  A. It's probably the -- one of the most painful deaths there could be. That and I assume burning to death. Dr. Brown, p. 19.

- Campos says she held his legs for two minutes before realizing he was choking on his vomit. Ryann Campos, p. 30.
- Amy Jones and Ryann Campos did not witness nor does either have any knowledge of Tyler Mattson attempting nonphysical interventions prior to using physical force. Ryann Campos, p. 44.
- Mattson and Jones were holding DC pinned to the ground when Campos arrived. Ryann Campos, p. 24.

- There was no mechanical restraint present, no papoose or joey board; they were not transitioning DC to mechanicals or even considering it; not once was it mentioned. Ryann Campos, p. 29, 40.
- DC did not hit or kick or spit at Campos. Ryann Campos, p. 30.
- Campos held his legs for about TWO MINUTES before they realized he was choking; the three of them restrained him on the ground for two minutes after Campos arrived. Ryann Campos, p. 30.
- Nobody asked Campos to grab his legs. Ryann Campos, p. 36.
- Campos says they were taught to respond to a client swinging at them by calling for assistance, stepping out of the way, redirecting, backing up and giving client chance to calm down, separation; taught to do everything possible to avoid laying hands on them. Ryann Campos, p. 42, 43, 78.
- Campos has no knowledge of anything that happened prior to her arriving on scene. Ryann Campos, p. 44.
- Campos never saw DC hit Tyler, Amy, or herself, never saw him make contact with hands or feet. Ryann Campos, p. 56, 59, 63, 64.
- Campos stands by her written OLTC written statement, which states that Jones was holding DC by the head. Ryann Campos, p. 59.
- Campos agrees the following is a good question: Why not just let him up and give him some space to calm down on his own so they don't have to restrict him so severely? She cannot say that would not have worked. Ryann Campos, p. 79.
- Campos says they could have handled the situation better: "I'm sure there is [sic] multiple ways that we could have did [sic] something better than what we did or how we did it." Ryann Campos, p. 80. Campos says what she means by "better ways" is in fact "less restrictive ways." Ryann Campos, p. 81.
- They did not use the least restrictive method. Ryann Campos, p. 80, 81.
- An on-the-ground personal hold is not an approved NCI method; that should not be done. Ryann Campos, p. 29.
- Campos was trained in restraint use by Mark Hise. Ryann Campos, p. 25.
- Tyler Mattson testified that, for severely aggressive clients, they would put them on the ground as "a control mechanism." Used for transitioning to the papoose board but also used frequently without purpose of transitioning to mechanical restraint. Ryann Campos, p. 39.

- Mattson says he was taught to restrain clients on the floor, that he could do so for up to 15 minutes. Tyler Mattson, p. 53, 54. Campos says something very similar. Ryann Campos, p. 39.
- Campos cannot recall her training and is not sure whether she was allowed to restrain clients on the ground. Ryann Campos, p. 28. Later, Campos claims she was trained to restrain clients on the ground like they did with DC. Ryann Campos, p. 39.
- She saw other clients restrained on the ground like this, and not for purposes of transitioning to mechanicals. It was common. Ryann Campos, p. 51, 52, 53.
- Campos claims they were specifically taught them to do what they did, hold clients down for even 6-7 minutes on the ground until they calm down. Ryann Campos, p. 54, 55.
- Campos was aware DC was [redacted] DC was a wonderful guy, a wonderful person, and fun to be around. Ryann Campos, p. 66, 67.
- Campos stands by her written OLTC written statement, which states that Jones was holding DC by the head. Ryann Campos, p. 59.
- Campos testified [redacted], but that she joined the restraint and grabbed his legs anyways. Ryann Campos, p. 21, 22, 23. Campos changes her story yet again later in the deposition, saying [redacted] during the two minutes she held his legs. Ryann Campos, p. 30.
- Campos held his legs for about TWO MINUTES before they realized he was choking; the three of them restrained him on the ground for two minutes after Campos arrived. Ryann Campos, p. 30.
- DC was on his left side while they pinned him. Ryann Campos, p. 32.
- Campos' first indication that something was wrong was DC defecating. Ryann Campos, p. 36.
- It took two to three minutes for nursing staff to get to the scene, because "Judge Hill is kind of a ways down the hill," and you would have to run to make it in two to three minutes. Ryann Campos, p. 45.
- They did not call 911 or for an ambulance/paramedics for 5 to 6 minutes after medical arrived at the scene. Ryann Campos, p. 46. The nurses waited five or six minutes after arriving on the scene to call 911. Ryann Campos, p. 46.
- Sandy Evans was physically in the room with Mattson, Jones, and Campos while they completed their witness statements, literally looking over their shoulders and stopping them every couple sentences in order to help them complete it correctly. Ryann Campos, p. 18.

- Campos says Sandy NEVER questioned her. Just had her fill out a witness statement and turn it in, like Mattson described as well. She never talked about the incident with Sandy. Ryann Campos, p. 18,19,20, 60.
- Staff were warned not to talk about the incident to anyone. Ryann Campos, p. 33.
- DC was a wonderful guy, a wonderful person, and fun to be around. Ryann Campos, p. 65.
- Davidson house, where DC lived, was infested with bed bugs. It was such a problem that Ryann Campos quit her job over it, after brining it home with her. Ryann Campos, p. 8, 9. Gonyea was aware, everyone was aware; facility did not do enough to get rid of the bed bugs. She saw them crawling on clients as they slept. Ryann Campos, p. 12, 13.
- Campos expelled from college for "drinking and partying too much" shortly before starting at BHDC. Ryann Campos, p. 27.
- Campos says he would have choked to death anyways even if he'd never been taken to the ground, even if he'd never been restrained and was standing perfectly upright. Ryann Campos, p. 33.
- Campos was worried she would go to prison when it happened. Ryann Campos, p. 62, 64.
- Nurses did CPR when they arrived. She never claims that they did it before that. Ryann Campos, p. 40

Don Carter – Deposition Summary

- Don Carter's job was literally to drive from building-to-building [at BHDC] pickup up recycling, which he did for four and a half years. Don Carter, p. 6.
- DC never injured me, never injured anyone that I know of. Don Carter, p. 8.
- Never seen DC cause injury to another person. Don Carter, p. 8.
- DC was not dangerous. DC was not capable of intentionally harming a grown man. He might kick chair or table which could potentially hurt Don Carter, p. 15.
- Otherwise, DC was not physically capable of causing actual harm to a grown man. Don Carter, p. 16.
- Don knows of no time DC ever caused harm to another person. Don Carter, p. 16.
- Don was around DC for up to 30 minutes just about every day, in the Stone Building where DC worked; Don knows him pretty well. Don Carter, p. 21.
- Don Carter helped Rhonda Harris restrain DC on the ground once in approximately 2019. DC had just come back from lunch. Rhonda Harris took DC to the ground and then Don held DC's legs to keep him from kicking while Rhonda restrained him on the ground by his shoulders until he calmed down. This was in response to DC becoming agitated and kicking at desks and maybe chairs, but he did not try to kick or hit another person, but "not to attack a person." They restrained him like this on the ground for five to ten minutes. Don Carter, p. 9, 10, 11, 12.
- Ground restraints were the common way to restrain DC in an extreme situation; Don Carter is saying the desk-kicking incident was an extreme situation. Don Carter, p. 12.
- Don Carter personally witnessed clients being restrained on the ground in this same way "at least" 20 to 30 times. Don Carter, p. 13.
- No staff were ever reprimanded for it; he understood it to be proper restraint procedure. Don Carter, p. 14.
- He worked there four and a half years. Ground restraints were a common occurrence. Don Carter, p. 15.
- Don Carter thinks he personally witnessed DC taken to the ground and restrained twice, including the one he participated in. Don Carter, p. 15.
- Don Carter says this was the policy: "We were told we're not – staff members were not allowed to call 911." Don Carter, p. 22, 23.

- Q. And so you're saying the policy was, no matter what, no matter what, you were told that you cannot call 9-1-1 unless you're a member of the medical staff?
  A. That is correct.
  Q. And there were no exceptions?
  A. No exceptions. Don Carter, p. 23.

- Q. Do you have any idea why that was the rule?
  A. Yes. It was to control a situation. To be blunt with you, BHDC administration wanted to present their narrative in the documentation in an event like an emergency.
  Q. What do you mean?
  A. They wanted total control of what was – would appear in the documentation. Any emergency event would have been documented. And they just presented an attitude where they wanted complete control.
  Q. Do you know why that was so important to them?
  A. It was just - they had had problems in the past where things leaked out that was not in their interest. Don Carter, p. 24, 25.

- Don Carter says deaths and injuries to clients prior to DC's death caused problems for BHDC, so it was important they control the narrative in these situations where possible. Don Carter, p. 25.

- A. The -- from my experience, the administration were what I would call control freaks. They -- if something was out of their control, it made them uneasy. They had to -- they had to be in control.
  Q. Are you suggesting they would cover things up if they had to?
  A. I wouldn't go that far. But I would say they would paint a picture that would show them in the best light. Don Carter, p. 26.

- He is familiar with where the nurses congregate in Judge Hill. He is familiar with the layout of the entire facility. It would NOT have been possible for the nurses to get to DC in Commons in less than five minutes. Don Carter, p. 38.

- Even on a Saturday, it would have taken the nurses at Judge Hill a minimum of five minutes to reach Davie in Commons; it would have taken him five minutes "even in a hurry." Don Carter, p. 35, 36.

- Q. And you're saying it is simply not possible for these nurses to have taken this call in the Judge Hill building, grab their stuff, hop into a car, driven over to the Commons building, and gone inside in less than five minutes?
  A. That is correct. Don Carter, p. 38.

- A. Well, the parking areas are very cramped. By the time a person would get in their car, navigate the narrow parking area -- this is a 1940s design. And the parking areas are -- the driveways are narrow. To back out of a parking area, to navigate, and to arrive at that location, a minimum of five minutes.
  Q. Even on a Saturday?
  A. Yes. Don Carter, p. 35.

- A. Let me just say this. I have -- I have picked up recycle at all the offices. So, I am very familiar with the layout of all the offices.
  Q. Okay. So, you've driven from the Judge Hill building to the Commons building many times?
  A. Yes.
  Q. You've picked up recycling, your job was to literally pick up recycling and go from building to building?
  A. Yes.
  Q. And you're saying it is simply not possible for these nurses to have taken this call in the Judge Hill building, grab their stuff, hop into a car, driven over to the Commons building, and gone inside in less than five minutes?
  A. That is correct. Don Carter, p. 38.

- Q. Okay. Would you say it's more likely even longer than five minutes?
  A. Could very possibly be. But, again, under optimal conditions, it would take five minutes.
  Q. And, one more time, in as much detail as you can, tell me why that is.
  A. Several factors, as I've mentioned. Narrow driveways dating back to the '40s, possibly other cars parked along the -- those passageways which probably was not the case on a weekend. But it's just a -- it's kind of like a rat maze going from one building to another.
  Q. Okay. So it's not a straight shot across a flat parking lot?
  A. No. It's a 1940s design for smaller cars.
  Q. Okay.
  A. It's just not of modern standards. Don Carter, p. 39.

- Don Carter estimates a distance of a quarter mile between Judge Hill and Commons, but it would be further if you were driving. Don Carter, p. 40.

- Q. Do you think it would be as much of a hassle if their car was not in a parking spot, where it was instead parked on the curb?
  A. There are very few parking spots. Most likely, the car would have been parked on the curb.
  Q. Okay. Would there still have been as much of a hassle?
  A. Yes.
  Q. And why is that?
  A. The parking area is very small behind the Judge Hill nursing area, so it -- there's only like two parking spots. So most of the nurses park along a curb. Don Carter, p. 41.

- The nurses would never park in front of the front door of Judge Hill on the curb. They park on the curb behind Judge Hill. Don Carter, p. 41.
- Q. And what if they were parked in front of the front door?
  A. Excuse me?
  Q. And if they were parked in front of the front door on the curb?
  A. The nurses never park -- even on a weekend, the nurses -- to the best of my nurse -- the best of my knowledge, the nurses would not park in front of the front door. The front door would be in front of a living area. And the bus runs. And, because of the narrow restrictions, you do not park in front of Judge Hill. So the nurses would have parked in the back. Don Carter, p. 41, 42.

Sandy Evans – Deposition Summary

- Sandy Evans worked at BHDC for 36 years and retired in May 2021 Sandy Evans, p. 5. She worked at BHDC as an instructor, QMRP, a team leader, a maltreatment investigator, before retiring as Residential Services Director Sandy Evans, p. 6.
- In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the physical restraint technique chosen must be the least restrictive appropriate technique possible. Sandy Evans, p. 27.
- Physical restraint may be used as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury. Sandy Evans, p. 30.
- Physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which the client has not exhibited before, exhibiting behaviors not identified in the functional analysis of that client's behavior, or the client IS harming other people or themselves. Sandy Evans, p. 30
- The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. Sandy Evans, p. 31.
- A client must be released from a physical restraint as quickly as possible, meaning as soon as the client is no longer a danger to self or others. Sandy Evans, p. 32.
- Restraints must be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client. Sandy Evans, p. 32.
- An individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or others, must be managed with the least restrictive method. Sandy Evans, p. 34.
- Only the least restrictive method in any given situation can be used at BHDC. Sandy Evans, p. 34.
- BHDC defines Emergency Restraint as use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. Sandy Evans, p. 38.
- The restraint used on DC was not the least restrictive option available. Sandy Evans, pgs. 47, 48, 50.
- What Tyler, Amy, and Ryann did was not the least restrictive option under the circumstances. Sandy Evans, p. 50.

- Tyler and the other two could have used a less restrictive method. Sandy Evans, pgs. 47, 48.
- They never gave DC a chance to calm down and collect himself on the ground, which would have been a less restrictive method. Sandy Evans, pgs. 47, 48.
- Personal restraint policy comes from Staff Development. Sandy Evans, Residential Services Director, testified that Staff Development was responsible for teaching direct care staff the rules regarding physical restraints, not her (Hise is the expert, meaning anything Mark Hise says is going to be accurate). Sandy Evans, p. 20.
- Federal Regulation states that all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility must be clearly stated and described in its policy. Any type of intervention that is to be used to manage client behavior must be clearly explained and stated in the facility's policy. Sandy Evans, p. 24.
- BHDC is required to specify, within a client's IPP, the use of approved physical restraints that can be used. Any physical restraint that could potentially be used on a client must be clearly stated in the client's IPP. Sandy Evans, p. 29, 35.
- Approved Personal (Physical) Restraint use at BHDC includes only "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb." Sandy Evans, p. 40.
- There is no other definition or policy for approved methods of Personal (Physical) Restraint to be used at BHDC other than "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb." Sandy Evans, p. 40, 41.
- There is no policy or document that allows for ground restraint or the restraint used on DC. Sandy Evans, p. 41,42.
- The facility must not issue orders for restraint on a standing or as-needed basis. This is forbidden. Sandy Evans, p. 31.
- Sandy Evans testified that every personal restraint can be different. Sandy Evans, p. 42
- Sandy Evans believes that NCI teaches the ground restraint used on DC. Sandy Evans, p. 47.
- Sandy Evans believes that it is okay for staff to ignore physician orders when a client is being aggressive. Sandy Evans, p. 56.
- Sandy Evans acknowledges the policy was that only medical staff could call 911. She assumes medical came up with it. Staff may have complained to her about it. Sandy Evans, p. 52, 53.
- DC was [redacted]. Sandy Evans, p. 54.

- The staff who restrained DC were required to take this into consideration. Sandy Evans, p. 54.
- These three staff did not keep him upright; they held him on the ground. Sandy Evans, p. 55.
- Physician orders are to take precedence over behavioral interventions. Sandy Evans, p. 58.
- The three staff could have given the [redacted] consideration. Sandy Evans, p. 58.
- Sandy Evans' job, as Residential Services Director, was to oversee the direct care of the clients and oversee the direct care staff. Sandy Evans, p. 19.
- Sandy Evans reported directly to Superintendent Gonyea. Sandy Evans, p. 19.
- Sandy Evans had the power to control how staff treated clients. Sandy Evans, p. 20.
- Sandy's testimony reveals that she is not even aware that unnecessary restraint is a form of physical abuse, i.e., maltreatment. Sandy Evans, p. 49.
- Sandy Evans believes that using a more restrictive method than necessary is only a violation of policy, not maltreatment. Sandy Evans, p. 49.
- Jeff Gonyea personally asked her to investigate her subordinates, assigned her the job at 12:13pm the day DC died. Sandy Evans, p. 59, 60.
- Gonyea reviewed her findings; he did not question them. Sandy Evans, p. 61, 62.
- Sandy Evans completed the Maltreatment Investigation June 17, 2020, four days after DC died, and submitted it to Gonyea. Sandy Evans, p. 62.
- Gonyea used Evans' Maltreatment Investigation to create his own report (the DHS Incident Report presumably), then sent his report, Sandy's report, and the witness statements to DDS. Sandy Evans, p. 63.
- Sandy's Maltreatment Investigation consisted of interviews with nine staff members, all of them conducted on the day of DC's death. Nine interviews in a single afternoon – that was pretty much the investigation. Sandy Evans, p. 63.
- Sandy says Tyler's version of her investigation is a lie. Sandy Evans, p. 73.
- Sandy's interview method is laughable. Strongly suggests she's coaching witnesses. Sandy Evans, p. 74.
- Sandy admits that she essentially helped them write their witness statements. Sandy Evans, p. 74, 75.
- Sandy Evans was physically in the room with Mattson, Jones, and Campos while they completed their witness statements, literally looking over their shoulders and stopping them every couple sentences in order to help them complete it correctly. Sandy Evans, p. 74,75, 80, 81.

- Sandy Evans then used these same witness statements to find there was no maltreatment. Sandy Evans, p. 81.
- Sandy Evans investigated her subordinates who were under her supervision in the department she was in charge of. Sandy Evans, p. 87.
- The three staff would have been terminated on the spot had Sandy substantiated maltreatment. Sandy Evans, p. 88.
- Sandy Evans testified she doesn't recall if she'd investigated him [Tyler Mattson] for maltreatment before. Sandy Evans, p. 15.
- Later, Sandy still says she doesn't recall investigating Tyler previously, but now she says it may be in her files. Sandy Evans, p. 66.
- She might have been the one who investigated Tyler previously for the McCutcheon allegations, but she "cannot say with certainty" that she recalls. Sandy Evans, p. 67.
- Sandy Evans does not have a favorable opinion of Tyler Mattson; she will only say she has a "neutral" opinion. Sandy Evans, p. 68.
- Sandy Evans testified the Superintendent's office keeps records that would show if Evans investigated Tyler before. Sandy Evans, p. 18.

Dr. Syed Hamid – Deposition Summary

- Dr. Hamid is the medical physician at BHDC and has worked there since 2007. Dr Hamid, p. 6.
- Dr. Hamid, facility physician, did not approve the use of ground restraints for DC. Dr. Hamid, p. 77.
- Dr. Hamid agrees that ground restraints, for any purpose other than transitioning to mechanicals, is not allowed. Dr. Hamid, p. 78.
- More likely to choke on vomit if on the ground. Dr. Hamid, p. 44.
- The kind of "extreme agitation" that DC was under while being restrained on the ground can trigger a heart attack, can trigger a stroke, can trigger a lot of things, including vomiting. Dr. Hamid, p. 42, 62.
- Vomiting can be brought on by extreme agitation. Dr. Hamid, p. 62.
- Dr. Hamid acknowledges the possibility that the physical restraint or taking him to ground caused the vomiting. Dr. Hamid, p. 61.

Rhonda Harris – Deposition Summary

- Rhonda Harris worked there [at BDHC] ten years and had DC every afternoon for 5 or 6 years for his vocation. Rhonda Harris, p. 6. She was a prevocational trainer in the Stone building. She oversaw the clients tearing books for recycling morning and afternoon; DC came to her in the afternoon every day for his vocation. Rhonda Harris, p. 5, 19.
- Rhonda Harris was around DC every afternoon for 5 or 6 years. Rhonda Harris, p. 6.
- Rhonda Harris and Don Carter took DC to the ground and restrained him for about 5 minutes after he threw a chair that did not hit anyone. Rhonda Harris, p. 7, 8.
- Rhonda Harris says DC was at risk for sudden vomiting, so she was always careful to put him facedown when restraining him on the ground. Rhonda Harris, p. 9.
- They would take him to the ground for restraints, whether he initiated it or not. Rhonda Harris, p. 11.
- Ground restraint worked best for DC, particularly face down. Rhonda Harris, p. 12.
- Everyone that worked there knew DC had medical issues that caused him to vomit suddenly at times and knew to keep him facedown when restraining him on the ground. Rhonda Harris, p. 10.
- Q. And that's specifically because he was a [redacted]?
  A. Yes. He had medical issues going on. I still to this day don't know if the nurses ever found out what exactly was wrong with him, but everybody that worked around him knew that, you know, so you always – we always -- where I worked, you know, we had the understanding, you know, [redacted] Rhonda Harris, p. 10.
- DC was not vomiting intentionally. Rhonda Harris, p. 10, 11.
- Q. So everybody that was accustomed to David or had been around David and knew David was aware that there was a risk of him vomiting?
  A. Yes.
  Q. I think you said at first, you know, you couldn't tell if he was doing this on purpose.
  A. Yeah, purposefully or not, but, you know, as time went on, you know, and it continued -- and I'm telling you it was months, you know, of this, that he was doing this. [redacted]

Q. [redacted]

A. [redacted] Rhonda Harris, p. 10, 11.

- DC w[redacted] and the nurses were not helping when they'd call. It happened right after lunch. It was not on purpose. The nurses didn't take it seriously. Rhonda Harris, p. 13.
- Cafeteria crowds upset DC; this was known. Rhonda Harris tried for a long time to get them to let him eat lunch in his dorm instead so he wouldn't be so upset when he gets to afternoon vocation. Rhonda Harris, p. 13.
- [redacted]t. Rhonda Harris, p. 14.
- All the direct care staff would have been aware of his [redacted]. Rhonda Harris, p. 14.
- Nurses did not take health concerns seriously – "not at all" seriously; they were quick to accuse patients of faking things. [see DRA Death Report on 2016 Victim.]. Rhonda Harris, p. 15.
- King, Noah, Schmidt, and Nelson were four nurses who possibly didn't take client's medical needs seriously. Rhonda Harris, p. 16.
- Rhonda Harris specifically recalls discussing the [redacted] with Schmidt, King, and Noah, Weinbrenner, and Nelson. Rhonda Harris, p. 16.
- [redacted]e. Rhonda Harris, p. 18.
- "We didn't know he was [redacted] at the time. We originally first thought like maybe he was just doing it purposely, but, I mean, when you go like, you know, several months of this for, you know, almost every day during the week, like no human -- to me, no any human is going to be able to do that, you know. And then we started figuring maybe there was, you know, a little in-depth, you know, situation going on, so we would just, you know -- and his behaviors, you know, got to where they escalated, you know what I mean, where it was more frequent, you know, with him because [redacted] [redacted] so we just got to where we would, you know, contact the nurses. And they would say it was a behavior." Rhonda Harris, p. 18, 19.

- Eventually they found out DC was [redacted] Rhonda Harris, p. 16.
- The vomiting mainly always happened just after lunch. Rhonda Harris, p. 22.
- Harris recalls the vomiting got [redacted]. Rhonda Harris, p. 22.
- She thinks that's when they figured out [redacted]. Rhonda Harris, p. 23.
- Q. Do you feel like there was something that the medical team, the nurses, could have done more to help him with his [redacted]? Just based on your --
  A. Yeah, they -- yeah, they -- yeah.
  Q. What else do you think they could have done?
  A. [redacted] You know, we're around him all the time. Rhonda Harris, p. 23.
- Written warnings were sent out to staff about DC's [redacted]. Rhonda Harris, p. 23, 24.
- She thinks Weinbrenner sent out a memo on DC[redacted] to all staff. Rhonda Harris, p. 24.

Mark Hise – Deposition Summary

- Mark Hise, Staff Development Coordinator who's been with BHDC 27 years, was a program supervisor over direct care staff for 13 years before moving to Staff Development in 2016; he is responsible for training staff on BHDC policies and procedures, including how to use NCI. Mark Hise, p. 8.
- Mark Hise is responsible for teaching staff NCI, responsible for teaching the use of emergency restraint procedures. Mark Hise, p. 9.
- I never knew DC to be physically aggressive. I supervised his unit under a previous role at BHDC. He was happy-go-lucky. He would get sad and cry sometimes. Never violent with me, that I can recall. Mark Hise, p. 50, 52.
- No knowledge of DC ever causing injury to another person. Mark Hise, p. 50.
- DC was NOT considered one of the dangerous clients. Mark Hise, p. 52.
- Staff are given specific training on what to do when a client tries to hit them: de-escalation techniques including verbal commands, redirection techniques, removal from situation and several other procedures. Mark Hise, p. 23, 24.
- Staff are specifically taught not to lay hands on the client unless all other measures have been exhausted. Mark Hise, p. 24.
- If a client swings at a staff member the staff member must attempt verbal control and to redirect client before laying hands on them. Mark Hise, p. 24.
- Staff are specifically trained to use a supportive stance and blocking technique in situations when a client tries to hit. Mark Hise, p. 24, 25. Put your hands up in supportive stance, deflect, step away.
- Staff absolutely have to at least try the blocking technique or some other form of de-escalation before laying hands on a client with personal restraint. Mark Hise, p. 25.
- Tyler Mattson must have failed to use the supportive stance in which he was trained; otherwise, he should not have fallen. The supportive stance is designed to communicate respect to the upset client, to show you mean them no harm. The supportive stance, properly used, should have prevented Tyler and DC from ever going to the ground. Mark Hise, p. 28, 29.
- "Supported stance" is the first order of action whenever intervening during a crisis. Mark Hise, p. 29.

RECEIVED

- If they do end up on the ground, staff should get up and get off the ground. Let the client stay on the ground if client wants without touching client. Staff should get up and give the upset client some space in which the client can de-escalate. Mark Hise, p. 29.
- Client attempting to hit staff is not necessarily an emergency. Mark Hise, p. 31.
- The contact Tyler Mattson made with DC after he was already on the ground was unnecessary. Mark Hise, p. 35.
- Restraints are dangerous; ground restraints are dangerous; staff is taught restraints are dangerous to clients. Mark Hise, p. 36.
- Staff are also taught to use a pivot movement when using the blocking technique in supported stance, to use if they cannot move backward. Mark Hise, p. 43.
- Tyler should have been capable of taking a hit from DC's body if DC were charging at him. Mark Hise, p. 45.
- Tyler should have been able to pivot, assuming he's telling the truth about being near the ledge. There was room to sidestep or pivot and maintain his supportive stance and blocking technique. Even if he couldn't pivot or sidestep, Tyler was trained to maintain his supportive stance which should have prevented the need to restrain DC. Mark Hise, p. 54, 55.
- Mark Hise is a certified NCI instructor; he personally teaches staff how to use PR in emergency situations. Mark Hise, p. 12.
- All personal restraints taught at BHDC are NCI; staff are not allowed to use anything but NCI methods he teaches. Mark Hise, p. 12, 20.
- The three staff involved would have received the same training Mark Hise teaches, which is only NCI approved methods. Mark Hise, p. 16.
- The only time you transition a client to the ground or hold a client on the ground is for the sole purpose of transitioning to a mechanical restraint. Mark Hise, p. 21, 42.
- Staff are NOT taught to hold a client on the ground or restrain a client on the ground. Mark Hise, p. 21, 42.
- "The training that we teach in NCI is a standing personal hold and a seated personal hold. There is no on-the-ground personal hold." Mark Hise, p. 22, 42.
- An on-the-ground personal hold is not an approved NCI method; that should not be done. Mark Hise, p. 23.
- What the three staff did to DC is definitely not something taught at BHDC; it was in fact against NCI policy. Mark Hise, p. 28, 31, 32, 42.

- It would be "dangerous" to attempt to restrain a client on the ground by yourself. Mark Hise, p. 32.
- Staff has no business holding a client on the ground unless they are transitioning the client to the papoose board. Mark Hise, p. 35, 42.
- Personal or mechanical restraint is to be used only as an emergency measure. Mark Hise, p. 11.
- Staff are given refresher training in NCI only every two years. Mark Hise, p. 20.
- Training files on Mattson and Campos containing their competency ratings were deleted. Mark Hise, p. 18.
- Staff are taught clients' medical conditions can make personal restraints particularly dangerous; this is "covered pretty intensely" in phase training. Mark Hise, p. 40.
- Mattson and the others were specifically trained to be aware that things lik[redacted] can make personal restraints deadly; choking, in particular, is a big risk at BHDC; choking is a high priority. Mark Hise, p. 40.
- Mark Hise was not questioned or consulted in Sandy's investigation. Mark Hise, p. 33.
- He was a happy-go-lucky guy. Mark Hise, p. 50.

Carrie Johnson-Miller – Deposition Summary

- Carrie Johnson-Miller was hired at BDHC in 2011. She was originally hired to work as a Q before being promoted to Residential Services Manager in 2014. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 5. She retired December 1, 2021. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 6.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller claims she saw DC hit a staff member in the head with his fist while walking down a hallway. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 17. [There is no report of this that I know of.]
- She cannot say who the staff member was or when this happened. She cannot say when this happened, other than she doesn't think she'd been at BHDC very long. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 21.
- She cannot say whether the staff member was injured. She doesn't know if he was hurt. She does not know if he needed medical attention or if he just shook if off and went about his day. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 18, 21.
- She has no other recollection of DC harming anyone else. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 19.
- She never witnessed DC harm anyone else, in the approximately ten years she worked there. She never heard of any other situations in the approximately ten years she worked there suggesting DC caused harm, aside from hearing about the MacDonald's thing off campus with his uncle. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 20.
- Johnson-Miller cannot identify a single incident in which DC caused injury to someone necessitating medical attention. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 21.
- If a client swings at a staff member the staff member must attempt verbal control and to redirect client before laying hands on them. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 70, 71.
- Johnson-Miller says they were taught to respond to a client swinging at them by calling for assistance, stepping out of the way, redirecting, backing up and giving client chance to calm down, separation; taught to do everything possible to avoid laying hands on them. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 70, 71.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller testified that staff should take a step backwards if a client swings at them. If the client moves forward staff should keep moving back. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 28.
- When asked what if staff cannot keep moving back, she said staff should watch their body posture and try to move out the client's way. She added that by then, hopefully, other staff are there to help or you have been able to contact the nurse. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 28.

- In a one-on-one situation where a client swings at the staff member, that staff member is supposed to step back, be careful with his posture because the client takes cues from that, attempt to redirect, and call for assistance or for a nurse – all of these things should be tried before staff lays hands on a client who swung on them. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 70, 71.
- Personal restraint should never be used unless there is an emergency. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 41.
- Laying hands on a client should only occur in an emergency situation as a last resort. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 42.
- "A personal hold is dangerous if you are the client period wherever you're at. That's why you use the least restrictive method you can that's available to you at the time." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 43.
- Staff are only allowed to use the least restrictive intervention for the least amount of time possible in any situation. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 44.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller, the Residential Services Manager who supervised Tyler Mattson and who often reviewed and approved his use of physical restraint on DC, when asked how she was supposed to know what form of personal restraint staff used on a client when the Behavior Incident Reports typically never say, responded that "Well, there is a definition of personal restraint." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 55.
- She is referring to the BHDC Policy I-D-4 (6); she testified that "personal restraint" is "an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 56.
- This is the only definition of "personal restraint" of which she is aware; she knows of no definition that includes taking clients to the ground or holding clients on the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 66.
- She knows of no policy that authorizes personal restraints on the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 66.
- She also agreed that BHDC defines "Emergency Restraint" as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors [as found at BHDC Policy I-D-4 (2)]. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 56.
- Johnson-Miller refused to admit that Tyler's written description of the 3/20/20 restraint clearly implies they were on the ground [Tyler himself testified that this four-minute restraint DID occur on the ground, Tyler Mattson, p. 77], but she did testify that if Tyler did in fact restraint DC on the ground for four minutes [as he admits he did] that she would have flagged it as a bad act [she did not]. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 64. [Presumably, this means she'd have flagged Tyler for the death restraint.].

- Carrie Johnson-Miller, the Residential Services Manager who reviewed and signed off on this restraint after it happened, at first testified that the second 5/29/20 incident "could be deemed as an emergency, you know." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 52. [An emergency is anything they choose to label as an emergency. There are no rules. They routinely label minor events as emergencies in order to justify use of physical restraint, because physical restraint is convenient for staff.]
- She repeatedly mentions "he may have been escalating," further evidence that staff would physically restrain clients in anticipation of their actions, as Tyler admitted to doing. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 53.
- When pressed, Johnson-Miller admits that screaming and threatening to throw something [as was the case in the second 5/29/20 incident] could NOT meet the definition of emergency that would necessitate physical force. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 53.
- Q. Screaming and threatening to throw something could meet the definition of an emergency necessitating physical force, yes or no?
  A. No.
  Q. Okay. So did you report Tyler for improperly using a physical restraint for this incident?
  A. At that time, it was not deemed improper.
  Q. What does that mean?
  A. At that time, it was an acceptable -- evidently an acceptable thing that we did. What date was that anyway?
  Q. It was May 29th of 2020, two weeks before David was killed. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 53.
- Johnson-Miller admits that, based on what is contained in Behavior Incident Report for the second 5/29/20 restraint, Mattson was not justified in his use of physical force/restraint and she should have flagged this as a bad act by Tyler rather than approving it and moving on. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 54. [Johnson-Miller suggests that perhaps there was more to the story than what was contained in the written account; however, Mattson himself confirmed in his deposition that this was all it was. Tyler Mattson, p. 72, 73].
- Johnson-Miller, regarding the 3/20/20 restraint that she reviewed and approved:
- Q. And that biting [DC biting himself] combined with him trying to spit at Tyler calling him a bitch and swinging on Tyler, that, to you, justifies taking him down and holding him down there for four minutes in personals?
  A. It could. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 62. [Takedowns would never be justified]
- Carrie Johnson-Miller, a Residential Services Manager at the time of DC's death, at first testified staff was taught that they could take clients to the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 11, 13.

- She understood that I was not asking about taking to the ground for purposes of transitioning to mechanicals, but purely for purposes of personal restraints on the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 13. [Takedowns were used for personal restraints.]
- Carrie Johnson-Miller, Residential Services Manager over Mattson at the time of DC's death, wrongly believed that they were allowed to take clients to the ground for purposes of personal restraint. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 22.
- Q Were you taught that for any other reason, meaning you weren't taught to restrain them on the ground as a form of a personal hold that does not intend to transition to a mechanical restraint, did you?
  A As far as on the ground or on the floor, it depends on what the situation is at the time. It depends on the severity of their violence at the time and keeping them safe and other clients safe and yourself safe. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 11.
- Q Right. So when were you taught or what were you taught about when you can take them to the ground?
  A If they're out of control, if they're going to hurt themselves, if, you know, other clients -- you've got to get the safety of the other clients. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 13.
  [Acknowledges takedowns]
- Q. And, again, we're not talking about – you understand that I'm not asking about mechanical restraints or transitioning to mechanical restraints, right?*
  A. Right.*
  Q. I'm just asking about personal holds on the ground separate and apart from taking them to the ground for purposes of transition. I'm not interested in the latter. You understand that?*
  A. Yes. When they're out of control, sometimes their head is going back and forth. Their arms will be going back and forth. They're kicking you. They're kicking walls. They're hitting walls. And it's very difficult at times to provide safety for someone like that.*
  Q. Okay. And so describe for me then -- I guess in that situation, you might have to -- or you might need to take the client to the ground in that situation if there's no other option?*
  A. If you can't get them to stop, yes. I mean, if you can't get a hold of their arms and just get them calm, you may have to.*
  Q. And if you had to, how would you do it?*
  A. Well, there's different holds that people are -- the staff were taught that they could do to just keep their limbs from moving.* Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 13, 14.
- Q. Ms. Johnson-Miller, I'm asking can you -- if you can't tell say that, that's fine. I'm just asking you, you were a residential services manager for roughly seven years and these staff members who had to do these things were under your supervision as well as under Ms. Evans' supervision and I just want to know, do you know specifically the way that these staff members took clients to the ground? Physically how did they do it and how were they supposed to do it?*

A. Well, like I say, there's different holds were taught and I don't know all of the holds and I don't remember all the different holds that they use.
Q. Well, is there a hold you were taught specifically for taking clients to the ground?
A. You can hold them on each shoulder. You can hold their arm. You can take them down. If their legs are flailing, you would need other staff probably to help assist with the legs. And then you just lower them to the ground as gingerly as you can. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 15. [She doesn't know that takedowns are not allowed.]

- She recalls seeing these takedowns (for personal restraint purposes) occur seven or eight times. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 16. She did not see it but she heard of this happening to DC at some point before his death. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 17.

- Q. But it is your testimony as you sit here today that staff were authorized to take clients to the ground in emergency situations in order to restrain them there on the ground*, correct?*
A. Yes, for their safety of the clients and the other clients. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 22.

- After she hears about Hise's testimony, Johnson-Miller tries to change her testimony, basically saying she misspoke: "Maybe not while on the ground...." "you do the best you can to keep off the ground...." "Okay. What I meant was you may not be intentionally taking them to the ground. That may be where the -- where it winds up." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 23, 24.

- Q. You specifically said you were taught to take them to the ground and that you had to do that sometimes. Are you saying that's not the case now?
A. Well, that's some of it, yes, but initially you're not going to just slam somebody on the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 25.

- Q. Ms. Johnson-Miller, are you now saying that initiating taking a client to the ground was not allowed, that it was only something that could be done if going to the ground sort of occurred naturally in a struggle?
A. Yes. And sometimes that -- most of the time that helps. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 26.

- Q. Before you said that sometimes you could initiate taking the client to the ground to restrain them if the situation required it, in a situation where you said where they might be flailing or kicking. You can take them to the ground purposefully to restrain them on the ground.
A. Yes.
Q. Are you now saying that that is not the case?
A. No, and I never intended for that to sound like that either. I mean, you might -- you're going to do least restrictive. You're going to get help. You're going to do everything you can, and if it takes you there, then you're going.
Q. So now your testimony is that you can only restrain a client on the ground if you accidentally end up on the ground with your client?

A. But yes, you're not going to slam somebody to the ground. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 26, 27.

- Finally, when asked one final time whether staff were authorized to "take a client to the ground" if the situation called for it, she testified: "Authorized is questionable." Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 43.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller, Residential Services Manager and BHDC staff member for approximately ten years, cannot describe specifically which personal holds were allowed and which were not. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 42 [More top-down ignorance/failure]
- Johnson-Miller claims DC could vomit at will, but then admits that she never once witnessed this herself. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 45, 46.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller was one of three Residential Services Managers at the time of DC's death. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 7.
- This position was under the Residential Services Director (Sandy Evans). Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 5.
- She supervised Team White (one of three teams), which included Tyler Mattson. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 6, 7.
- There were also direct floor supervisors between Johnson-Miller and Mattson [like Amy Jones at the time of DC's death]. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 6.
- Carrie Johnson-Miller testified there was a bed bug infestation at Davidson House, on both the first and second floors, and that it was so bad that multiple staff members quit over it. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 29, 30.
- Johnson-Miller testimony indicates that direct care staff might have been short staffed on the day of death. She thinks there was supposed to be two staff for every 8 clients. Carrie Johnson-Miller, p. 39, 40.

Amy Jones – Deposition Summary

- Amy Jones had worked at BDHC briefly in the 2000s as a Life Skills Trainer and again in 2016 as a Cook before returning in 2017. She worked as a Residential Care Technician She was promoted to Residential Care Supervisor a few weeks before DC's death. She currently works as a Residential Operations Manager.
- Never seen DC cause injury to another person.
- DC never caused harm or injury to Amy Jones.
- DC never made contact with Tyler, never struck him, was only swinging his one free arm behind his back at Tyler.
- An individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or others, must be managed with the least restrictive method.
- BHDC defines Emergency Restraint as use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations
- The restraint used on DC was not the least restrictive option available.
- What Tyler, Amy, and Ryann did was not the least restrictive option under the circumstances.
- Staff are given specific training on what to do when a client tries to hit them: de-escalation techniques including verbal commands, redirection techniques, removal from situation and several other procedures.
- Staff are specifically taught not to lay hands on the client unless all other measures have been exhausted.
- Staff are also taught to use a pivot movement when using the blocking technique in supported stance, to use if they cannot move backward.
- Jones and Campos never attempted any non-physical de-escalation before joining Tyler in the personal restraint on the ground.
- Jones admits DC was not a danger to them or Tyler while on the ground.

- Amy Jones admits she should have made Tyler let go of DC so she could try to calm him down.
- Amy Jones was the Residential Care "Shift Supervisor" on duty at the time of DC's death. She was the supervisor over Tyler Mattson and Ryann Campos; she'd recently been promoted from Residential Care Supervisor. Her direct supervisor was Sandy Evans. Says normally there would be a Program Supervisor that was below Sandy but above Shift Supervisor, but there was not one assigned at this time.
- Amy Jones says staff were trained to respond to a client swinging at them by grabbing the client's wrist [singular] and maneuvering it to where they cannot hit staff or hurt themselves, by pushing client's arm away from their body.
- A staff member is not supposed to grab a client by both wrists or by both arms.
- Staff are trained not to grab clients by both arms; rather, staff are specifically taught a sidestep maneuver for when they are by themselves and a client attempts to hit them, which involves pushing the client's hand away [blocking technique] and moving around the side of the client in a sidestepping [pivot] motion, which allows staff to avoid grabbing the client by both arms – which is something that could lead to injury.
- Staff are not authorized to hold a client on the ground even where a client puts himself on the ground during an aggressive episode.
- Amy did not witness how Tyler got DC to the ground.
- DC was struggling while on this left side, trying to hit Tyler who was behind him with his right arm, according to Amy Jones. However, DC did not make contact with Tyler, only tried to. "He wasn't hitting him. He was hitting at him."
- "I don't know" why Tyler did not just back up and give DC space to calm himself since he was already on the ground.
- Amy Jones, instead of ordering Tyler to release DC, kneels down, grabs both DC's arms and holds them in front of him near his face.
- Ryann Campos joins the ground restraint by kneeling down and grabbling both of DC's legs by the ankles.
- Amy Jones and Ryann Campos did not witness nor does either have any knowledge of Tyler Mattson attempting nonphysical interventions prior to using physical force.

- Jones and Campos attempted no nonphysical techniques before helping pin DC to the ground by force. Jones verbally asked DC to calm down, but only after she'd already taken hold of his arms.
- Jones admits DC posed no significant danger to Tyler Mattson when she arrived at the scene and joined in the restraint.
- The only time you transition a client to the ground or hold a client on the ground is for the sole purpose of transitioning to a mechanical restraint.
- Staff are NOT taught to hold a client on the ground or restrain a client on the ground.
- An on-the-ground personal hold is not an approved NCI method; that should not be done.
- Staff has no business holding a client on the ground unless they are transitioning the client to the papoose board.
- No ground restraints were taught or allowed. Staff expressly prohibited from putting client on the ground. NCI does not teach restraining clients while on the ground.
- Staff are not authorized to hold a client on the ground even where a client puts himself on the ground during an aggressive episode.
- Amy Jones says this was the policy.
- Amy Jones thinks it still is the policy, as does Tyler.
- Amy Jones wishes she had called 911 right away, despite the policy.
- Only medical staff were authorized to call 911.
- Amy Jones says they could not even call 911 after first calling medical, which she says does not make much sense.
- Jones was not aware of DC's [redacted] at the time of the restraint; she admits she should have been.
- Jones says all the clients are supposed to remain upright after meals, [redacted]; she also says she was aware DC had just eaten at time of restraint.
- They rolled him onto his back as soon as they saw he was vomiting.

- DC [redacted] according to Jones.
- They knew [redacted] when they called medical.
- They did not do CPR because there was no mouthpiece/barrier, and they were taught only to do it when a mouth barrier was available. No CPR until nurses arrived.
- Amy Jones saw DC on his left side with Tyler behind him. DC was struggling; Tyler was trying to control DC on the ground and Tyler had one hand on DC's shoulder and ONE HAND ON DC's WAIST.
- DC's face was red and he was "very agitated" at the point during which Amy Jones joined in the restraint. Tyler has his right hand on DC's waist and his left on DC's shoulder trying to keep DC from moving.
- After all three staff are restraining him together, Amy Jones remembers DC moving his head to look back at Tyler; then vomit started coming out of his mouth, while all three staff have him restrained – Jones has his arms, Campos his legs, and Mattson his midsection (Jones thinks about 20 seconds after Campos started holding his legs).
- 11:33am is pretty close as to when staff called medical.
- Sandy Evans was physically in the room with Mattson, Jones, and Campos while they completed their witness statements, literally looking over their shoulders and stopping them every couple sentences in order to help them complete it correctly.
- Amy Jones' OLTC Witness Statement contains a significant inaccuracy; it says that she saw DC hitting Tyler when she arrived at the scene, but the truth, as she explained in her deposition, is that she saw DC hitting AT Tyler after he was already restrained on the ground on his side and Tyler was behind him; all she saw was DC swing his one free arm behind himself AT Tyler, but never made contact, didn't hit him.
- Staff training teaches that if an upset client is standing, staff should stand; if an upset client is sitting, staff should sit; purpose of this is to appear less threatening.
- DC enjoyed music, particularly the Monkees.

Kelly King – Deposition Summary

- Kelly King has worked at BDHC as an LPN [Licensed Practical Nurse] since 2008. Kelly King, p. 5.
- Kelly King worked with DC for 12 years. She described him as funny and playful. Kelly King, p. 6.
- No knowledge of DC ever causing injury to another person. Kelly King, p. 7.
- DC was NOT considered one of the dangerous clients. Kelly King, p. 10.
- Kelly King was slapped once by DC during 12 years of working with him; this was the only time he ever touched her. She was not injured; it only hurt briefly. She admits that she was not in danger when he slapped her, that it was "like a child acting out." Kelly King, p. 7, 11.
- Kelly King witnessed staff restrain patients on the ground regularly, estimated once every two or three months. Staff holds them down on the ground so she can administer chemicals sometimes. Kelly King, p. 14, 15.
- Kelly King says this was the policy. Kelly King, p. 20.
- Only medical staff were authorized to call 911. Kelly King, p. 20.
- BHDC wants medical staff making the decision. Kelly King, p. 21.
- Nurse Deborah Noah was told in the initial call from direct care staff that DC was not breathing. Kelly King, p. 16.
- The drive itself from Judge Hill to Commons took about a minute. Kelly King, p. 17. Kelly King claims it took 20 second to grab their gear run to Schmidt's car and 30 seconds to exit the car and haul the gear to the scene in Commons. Schmitt says it all took a bit longer. Kelly King, p. 17.
- The nurses did not ask for 911 to be called until after they physically arrived at the scene themselves, despite being told on the phone DC wasn't breathing. Even by King's shorter timeline, nursing staff still squandered anywhere from two to five minutes (depending on who you are asking) between learning DC was not breathing and calling 911. Kelly King, p. 18.
- Kelly King wasn't willing to take staff's word that it was an emergency, even though she was told he wasn't breathing. She says she needed to see if for herself. Kelly King, p. 22.
- They cannot rely on direct care staff's word. Get a lot of false alarms. Kelly King, p. 23, 24.

- King later agrees that this is not a safe policy. Kelly King, p. 25.
- Paramedics have superior life-saving capabilities and superior life-saving equipment; they have deep-suctioning devices, can intubate; can do chemical codes. Kelly King, p. 25.
- DC [redacted]d. Kelly King, p. 26.

Tyler Mattson – Deposition Summary

- Tyler Mattson was hired at BDHC in February 2017 as an RCA [Residential Care Assistant]. Tyler Mattson, p. 11. He was promoted to RCT [Residential Care Technician] six months after he was hired. Tyler Mattson, p. 12. He worked at BDHC for 4 and a half years. Tyler Mattson, p. 13.
- No knowledge of DC ever causing injury to another person. Tyler Mattson, p. 66.
- DC was NOT considered one of the dangerous clients. Tyler Mattson, p. 66.
- DC always told Tyler Mattson that he loved him: "I love you, Tyler." Tyler Mattson, p. 61.
- DC never injured me, never injured anyone that I know of. Tyler Mattson, p. 66.
- DC craved reassurance. Tyler Mattson, p. 61.
- DC got along with everyone. Tyler Mattson, p. 62.
- DC never once harmed Mattson, never once even made contact when swinging towards Mattson. Tyler Mattson, p. 77.
- Mattson testified at deposition to a different version of events than he gave in his OLTC written statement and in his statement to DRA. Says DC "grabbed" at him, but did not swing at him or try to hit him; charged at him, but not a running charge because there was only 6 or 7 feet between them. Tyler Mattson, p. 101, 102.
- Admits his memory was fresher two years before when he gave his OLTC and DRA statements than it is now; note he made ZERO mention of a ledge in either statement. Tyler Mattson, p. 107.
- Mattson's justification for holding DC on the ground was that DC was resisting (while lying face down) after he was taken down; Mattson described this resistance as "squirming," and testified that this squirming constituted DC being "violent." Mattson is conflating resistance with violence to justify his actions. Tyler Mattson, p. 108, 109.
- Mattson chose not to give him space to deescalate while on the ground or use any de-escalation techniques as required. Mattson pinned him on his left side and intended to hold him there until DC complied with his orders to calm down, until he stopped calling Tyler names. Tyler Mattson, p. 109, 110.
- Staff are also taught to use a pivot movement when using the blocking technique in supported stance, to use if they cannot move backward. Tyler Mattson, p. 50, 51, 52.
- Tyler was taught the blocking technique and says he was taught to pivot away by stepping in a half circle if a client swings at you or attacks. Tyler Mattson, p. 50, 51, 52.

- Not supposed to grab clients by both wrists at the same time. Tyler Mattson, p. 52.
- DC was sitting in chair outside of bathroom before he allegedly charged Mattson; Mattson was standing 6 or 7 feet away when DC got out of the chair and supposedly charged. Tyler Mattson, p. 101.
- Mattson made physical contact with DC before DC ever made contact with him; Mattson testified that he grabbed DC by both of his upper arms/biceps before DC ever could touch him. Tyler Mattson, p. 102, 103.
- Mattson OLTC statement says DC fell over and he went with him after grabbing DC by his arms. Mattson OLTC Witness Statement. But at deposition Mattson says they tripped each other up after he grabbed DC by both of his arms. Tyler Mattson, p. 104.
- DC landed face down, but according to Mattson did not hit his face on the ground. Tyler Mattson, p. 106.
- Mattson held DC on the ground for around two minutes before Jones arrived. Tyler Mattson, p. 113.
- Mattson and Jones held him down on the ground together for two or three minutes more before Campos arrives. Tyler Mattson, p. 114.
- They continued to hold him down simply because he was still resisting and screaming. Tyler Mattson, p. 114.
- Mattson admits they were going to keep him pinned on the ground until he stopped screaming and "said that he was calm," even though DC had not harmed any of them and had not even made contact with any of them with his hands or feet. Tyler Mattson, p. 115, 116.
- All three held him down together after Campos joins in for another one to two minutes. Tyler Mattson, p. 116.
- They continued to keep him pinned to the ground even after they knew he'd defecated because he was still "being aggressive". Tyler Mattson, p. 117.
- Tyler agreed that once DC was on the ground, he could no longer charge at him. Tyler Mattson, p. 130.
- Mattson could have tried to give DC space on the ground, but he didn't because DC was still squirming, screaming, and appeared agitated, and because Mattson speculated DC could get back up and attack him. Tyler Mattson, p. 133.
- If he could do it over Tyler Mattson would try to let DC up off the ground sooner. Tyler Mattson, p. 137.

- Tyler testified he does not remember what personal restraint techniques he was taught to use in response to severe aggression before DC's death. Tyler Mattson, p. 38.
- Tyler Mattson's practice was to use personal restraints, including the basket hold and hip-to-hip maneuver, in response to non-emergencies – verbal aggression and slight physical aggression or resistance to guidance. Tyler Mattson, p. 34, 35, 36.
- Tyler Mattson testified that, for severely aggressive clients, they would put them on the ground as "a control mechanism." Used for transitioning to the papoose board but also used frequently without purpose of transitioning to mechanical restraint. Tyler Mattson, p. 38, 39.
- Mattson says he was taught to restrain clients on the floor, that he could do so for up to 15 minutes. Tyler Mattson, p. 53, 54.
- Mattson believes he could use personal restraints on an as-needed basis, based on his own discretion. Tyler Mattson, p. 55.
- Mattson believed he was allowed to operate based on his own subjective discretion: "the job was very much pick your battles kind of job," as he says. Tyler Mattson, p. 60.
- Mattson doesn't know the difference between graduated guidance and personal restraint. Tyler Mattson, p. 70
- Mattson claims that holding a client by the wrist is not an approved method or method that is taught. Tyler Mattson, p. 72.
- Mattson put DC in physical restraints on 5/29/20 twice, the first time because he says DC "was screaming and attempted to smack me." This was not an emergency, yet Mattson physically restrained him anyways. Mattson admits this was not an emergency situation, stating that "it wasn't like a full-blown situation." Mattson attempted no nonviolent methods of de-escalation prior to putting him in physical restraints. Tyler Mattson, p. 70, 71.
- On 5/29/20 Mattson put DC in physical restraints for a second time, this time for three minutes even though he was not attacking anyone or trying to hit anyone or attempting to go after anyone; all DC did was threaten to throw a thermometer. Tyler Mattson, p. 72, 73.
    - Mattson put DC in personal restraint before DC became physically aggressive; Mattson said he put him in the hold because he anticipated DC might become aggressive; Mattson attempted zero de-escalation techniques prior to using personal restraint, even though DC had not yet made a move towards anyone. Tyler Mattson, p. 74, 75.

- The method of personal restraint used is never described in the behavior incident reports. Tyler claims he cannot remember what hold he used each time on 5/29/20. Tyler Mattson, p. 73.

- Mattson put DC in personal restraints on 3/20/20; restrained him on the ground for four minutes while they were alone and only let him up once DC apologized and appeared calm; Tyler again lies that they "fell over," when in reality he took him to the ground because he regularly took people to the ground; claims DC had tried to spit and swing on him, but did not make contact because he never once made contact. So Tyler restrained DC on the ground for four minutes even though DC never laid a finger on him. Tyler Mattson, p. 77.
- Tyler Mattson says this was the policy. He wishes he could have called 911 as soon as he knew DC was in trouble. Tyler Mattson, p. 78, 79, 123.
- Mattson says he is not even aware that the policy has since changed. Tyler Mattson, p. 79.
- Tyler had his cell phone on him during the time of the death restraint. Tyler Mattson, p. 91.
- Mattson knew that DC had just eaten less than 10 minutes before the restraint. Tyler Mattson, p. 106, 125.
- Mattson was aware of the [redacted] Tyler Mattson, p. 125.
- Tyler had his cell phone on him during the time of the death restraint. Tyler Mattson, p. 91.
- Mattson was holding DC down with one hand on DC's side. Tyler Mattson, p. 112.
- They rolled him onto his back as soon as they saw he was vomiting. Tyler Mattson, p. 118.
- Two or three minutes passed between when DC started vomiting and when they called medical. Tyler Mattson, p. 120.
- They knew he had stopped breathing when they called medical. Tyler Mattson, p. 120.
- They did not attempt mouth to mouth because there was no mouthpiece and they didn't want to make direct contact with his mouth. Tyler Mattson, p. 122.
- DC was screaming right up until the moment vomit started coming out of this mouth. Tyler Mattson, p. 119.
- Sandy Evans was physically in the room with Mattson, Jones, and Campos while they completed their witness statements, literally looking over their shoulders and stopping them every couple sentences in order to help them complete it correctly. Tyler Mattson, p. 84, 85, 86, 87.

- Tyler Mattson recalls that it was probably Sandy Evans who investigated and cleared him in the 2019 maltreatment incident. Tyler Mattson, p. 20, 22.
- Tyler Mattson testified that the entirety of Sandy Evans' investigation into his personal involvement in the death included one brief interaction during which he was questioned about the incident for "barely a minute," that Evans did not ask him detailed questions about what happened, that primarily all she did was provide him a witness statement form and then personally instructed him on how to complete the witness statement, that she was very empathetic towards him, and that the whole process took only 15 to 20 minutes. Tyler Mattson, p. 84, 85, 86, 87.
- Mattson attempted to get CNA certification twice before DC's death, but both times he was unable to successfully complete the test requirement. He did not get certification until after DC's death. Tyler Mattson, p. 14, 15.
- Tyler Mattson was accused of physically abusing a client by another staff member in 2019 and was investigated. Tyler Mattson, p. 18, 19.
- Tyler Mattson recalls that it was probably Sandy Evans who investigated and cleared him in the 2019 maltreatment incident. Tyler Mattson, p. 20, 22.
- Lied under oath by saying he never participated in other physical restraints on DC before his death, other than one time using hip-to-hip. Tyler Mattson, p. 67.
- When called on this contradiction at deposition, Mattson said he could not remember, that maybe what he put in his OLTC statement was the right version, it had been a long time. Tyler Mattson, p. 104.
- DC landed face down, but according to Mattson did not hit his face on ground, only admitting this after being confronted with his prior DRA statement; then finally admits that his memory was fresher when he spoke to DRA and told them DC did hit his face. Admits it's possible DC's face struck the ground. Tyler Mattson, p. 106, 108.
- Tyler was standing, ready for confrontation, while DC was sitting in the chair outside of the bathroom in the moments before Tyler says DC got aggressive. Tyler Mattson, p. 99.
- DC was very friendly, very social with staff. Fun to be around. Tyler liked him a lot. They had a good bond. Tyler Mattson, p. 64, 65.
- Describes as job as "glorified babysitter." Tyler Mattson, p. 25.

Christine McAuliffe – Deposition Summary

- Christine McAuliffe is DC's younger sister. Christine McAuliffe, p. 10.
- McAuliffe felt like nobody with the state was taking Davie's death seriously. Christine McAuliffe, p. 144.
- DC never hurt Chrissy, never threatened her, never hurt any of her friends. Christine McAuliffe, p. 21,22.
- Q. Okay. And when you would pick him up and bring him back to Russellville, was there ever any incidents or behavioral problems that you encountered?
  A. I mean, he dealt with, you know, behaviors.
  Q. Tell me about them.
  A. Like he would get anxious, sometimes he would cry, he would get upset. Yeah, you know, he dealt with those types of things.
  Q. Did he ever become violent?
  A. No.
  Q. Aggressive?
  A. I mean, he would get agitated.
  Q. Tell me what that means.
  A. Like he might raise his voice, he might start cussing or crying.
  Q. Did he ever threaten violence?
  A. No.
  Q. Did he ever spit or scream?
  A. He was known to spit sometimes when he was upset and he would yell, yes. Christine McAuliffe, p. 29.
- "And his behaviors generally lasted a short period of time. And immediately after, he would always start crying and apologize." Christine McAuliffe, p. 42.
- McAuliffe has a good understanding of her brother's behavioral issues at BHDC: "My understanding is that they were -- he would get upset, he would yell, he might cuss, he would spit sometimes, he was known to pick something up that was near him and throw it, he was known to, you know, swing his arms out, he would get - you know, you didn't always know why, you know, but he would get upset. And he was known to do those types of things." Christine McAuliffe, p. 59, 60.
- Q. Okay. Tell me what evidence you have it was a temper tantrum and not an aggressive or violent behavioral outburst.
  A. Because I had 40 years of experience with my brother, because I had been with him when he has had behavioral incidents when he -- when he, you know, swung his arm out, because of my own experience and my own knowledge. Christine McAuliffe, p. 95.

- Q. Oh. Trying to strike at another human being is not violence?
  A. I don't think, with my brother's capabilities and my knowledge of my entire life, my brother didn't have the capability, because he never had done it, he had never severely injured someone, he had never hurt someone. I've been hit by my brother, I've been spit on by him. I've dealt with his behaviors, my brother has never injured me. Christine McAuliffe, p. 97.

- Q. And did he ever lunge at you?
  A. No. My brother -- absolutely not, my brother didn't attack people. If you were in his general area when he was having a behavior event, he would swing his arms, he would pick something up and throw it. He didn't have the physical capability or strength to fight another person, to take on another person, and he never did that, to my knowledge. Christine McAuliffe, p. 98.

- It would be misleading to say Davie was physically a grown man simply because of his height or weight. He lacked the strength of a man. He wasn't physically strong. He didn't have the strength or dexterity or physical capabilities of a grown man. Christine McAuliffe, p. 110.

- He couldn't open a jar of pickles. Christine McAuliffe, p. 116.

- A. I mean, like my brother, he couldn't -- you know, he couldn't ball up his fist and aim it and land it on you and hit you. Anytime I witnessed my brother, it was just, you know, swinging his arms. And when he did hit you -- like I've been hit by my brother, it never even left a bruise. He just -- he didn't physically have that capability. Like even little tasks, picking things up and moving them, opening jars, those types of things, he didn't have the strength to do a lot of that. I would have to do it or my mom, somebody would have to do it for him, those types of tasks, you know.
  Q. Like opening a pickle jar?
  A. Like a pickle jar, because he loved pickles, actually. So, we would have these big, huge jars that we would have to open because he couldn't do it.
  Q. Claussen or Vlasic?
  A. I think he liked the Kroger brand, actually.
  Q. I had a roommate in college, and that was a debate, sometimes a fight. He couldn't open a pickle jar?
  A. Not on his own, no.
  Q. Okay. Well, did he have any athletic skills?
  A. No. Actually, it was -- I mean, we would joke about that. I mean, when we were little kids, we would play in the yard and stuff. But he was always -- he was terrible at sports. I mean, I played sports, I loved it. And we would play ball in the back yard with our dad, but he couldn't -- he would wear my dad's baseball glove on the wrong hand, he couldn't catch a ball, and he couldn't throw it and actually, you know, get it to a person. Christine McAuliffe, p. 115, 116.

- "So, it was explained to me that they -- there was never -- this is what was explained to me. They were allowed, which we authorized personal restraint. Caleb Murray explained to me because I asked, a personal restraint was holding one or both arms to the side of the body." Christine McAuliffe, p. 88.
- I was never told that they are allowed to take him physically to the ground just for the sake of holding them on the ground. Christine McAuliffe, p. 88.
- Q. Okay. And so, was he -- in the lawsuit, you say he was pinned. Tell me what evidence you have that he was pinned to the ground. You used that term "pinned".*
  A. Because the -- the three staff members said I have read their witness statements, and by their statements they all say my brother was on his side, and one -- Tyler was in the middle, another girl had his legs, another girl was at his head, and either holding his arms, his wrists, or his head. That's pinned to the ground. If you're holding someone at all three points of their body on the ground and they can't move, that's pinned to the ground.* Christine McAuliffe, p. 100.
- McAuliffe specifically asked BHDC, around the time of Davie's 2019 IPP, to clarify personal restraints. She was told that it meant holding one or both of Davie's arms by his side. That was the entire definition she was provided; that's what she thought it meant. She was never told and she had no idea they would ever use personal restraints on the ground. Nor was her mother ever told this, so far as she is aware. Christine McAuliffe, p. 129, 130. Had she been informed this was happening, she would not have approved. Christine McAuliffe, p. 131.
- Q. Okay. Were you ever told of the policy that was in place at the time whereby -- at Booneville whereby only medical staff could call 911?*
  A. I was never aware of that prior to my brother's death.*
  Q. Okay. Had you been made aware of that, would that have caused you concern?*
  A. Yes, absolutely.* Christine McAuliffe, p. 130.
- "I feel like my brother shouldn't have died that day, first of all. I feel like I went through the proper chain of command, I went to get answers of, I feel like, we were purposely misled and just flat out lied to about how he died. It was withheld from us that there was even a restraint, and the behaviors." Didn't learn the truth until it was too late for an autopsy. Christine McAuliffe, p. 132, 133.
- She and her family were told Davie died after choking on his lunch. Christine McAuliffe, p. 135.
- She was immediately suspicious because she knew her brother wasn't a choking risk. It didn't make sense that he would have choked on his lunch and died. That he was found in some hall. Christine McAuliffe, p. 135.
- She asked Caleb Murry at the funeral home that Monday what happened and all he would tell her is that he didn't know, that he wasn't there. Christine McAuliffe, p. 135.

- Then throughout that week she had phone conversations with Caleb Murry, pleading with him to walk her through what happened, and all he kept saying was that he wasn't there and he didn't know. He wouldn't answer her. Christine McAuliffe, p. 136.

- A. He [Caleb Murry] actually showed up to the funeral [six days after the death] with a few other staff members, Audra, the one Davie was really close to, and a few other people my mother knew but I didn't really remember. And I asked him that Friday, since it was during COVID, they had brought a lot of Davie's stuff, because we weren't allowed to go to the facility. I asked him again, I said, "Listen, I don't – I mean, we need someone to tell us what happened." He told me there was an investigation and it was concluded and we would get a paper in the mail so that-- Christine McAuliffe, p. 136.

- Then the following Monday or Tuesday her mom got the letter and called Christine to read it to her. This was the very first time they learned there had been a restraint incident. This was the very first time they ever heard the word "restraint" or "behavior" used related to Davie's death, and this was nine to ten days after his death. Christine McAuliffe, p. 137.

- Davie had been buried for three days by this point; it was too late for an autopsy. Christine McAuliffe, p. 137.

- Q. What did you do then?
  A. I immediately called Caleb Murray, and I wasn't very nice. I said, you know, "This is ridiculous. Why did nobody tell us this?" I said, "Why is this the first we're learning of this?" All he said was, "I don't know, I wasn't" -- he just keep repeating the same thing, "I don't know, I wasn't there. I don't know." I said, "Well, somebody needs to give me some answers." He said, you know, "I can't answer anything for you." I said, "Well, then, who do I need to talk to? He gave me the number of Jeff Gonyea. I left multiple messages with him, he never returned my call. I finally, I think on the third try, he picked up the phone, I had a conversation with –
  Q. Was this over a period of days that you tried to get ahold of Mr. Gonyea?
  A. This was over a period of a few days. Jeff Gonyea.
  Q. G-0-N-Y-E-A.
  A. I mean, I finally spoke with Jeff Gonyea. I said all those same things. I said, "You know, this is the first we have heard about a restraint, a behavior." I said, "Why is this, why has nobody told us this?" I said, "I need to see, you know, reports, investigation, whatever you have. I want someone to explain this to me." He said, "I can't help you or give you any of that information." I said, "Well, then, who can?" He directed me to Tammy Bimbrook, he gave me her number. Christine McAuliffe, p. 138, 139.

- Gonyea refused to answer any questions about Davie's death or to provide any information about what happened. He ignored her phone calls for days, in fact. She had left two messages that went unreturned. She only got to speak with him because he happened to pick up on one of her attempts at calling. He was very short with her, she recalls. Christine McAuliffe, p. 139.

- "I had been lied to." Christine McAuliffe, p. 140.
- The synopsis, which was redacted and only contained five or six sentences, was the only information BHDC or DHS every voluntarily provided the family about Davie's death. Christine McAuliffe, p. 141.
- It is Chrissy's understanding that DC was still dealing with some [redacted] at the time of this death. Christine McAuliffe, p. 72.
- Q. Okay. What symptoms was he dealing with?
  [redacted]
  Q. What does that mean?
  [redacted]
  Q. Okay.
  A. So, I know he was still dealing with symptoms. Christine McAuliffe, p. 72.
- Q. Okay. Are you aware -- so, you're attributing vomiting to the [redacted]?
  A. I don't know, because I'm not a doctor. I know in my experience that we -- my mother and I paid attention, especially when he was home, with what he ate. Specifically like we cut out spicy foods and stuff like that, stuff with too much sugar. He would get snacks and stuff, and I know if he ate - if he did happen to eat, you know, too many Doritos or eat something that may have been a little spicy or had too much sugar, he would still -- he would say, "Oh, I don't feel good," you know, "My stomach hurts."
  Q. And you witnessed all that?
  A. Yes. Christine McAuliffe, p. 72, 73.
- Q. But as the claimant here, you're saying that his [redacted] that you saw was this vomiting from eating?
  A. I'm saying what I witnessed, and they said, when we talked about him having [redacted] at IDT meeting], that we needed to pay particular attention after he ate. Christine McAuliffe, p. 73.
- When he got anxious his stomach would get upset. Christine McAuliffe, p. 30.
- Chrissy is who actually asked OLTC for an investigation. About a week later she got an email simply saying there was no grounds for maltreatment. That is all they would give her. Christine McAuliffe, p. 143, 144.

- OLTC refused to share their findings, claiming Charlene's guardianship no longer applied now that Davie was dead and that they did not have to let Charlene and Christine have any information about the investigation. Christine McAuliffe, p. 161.
- She did not feel with OLTC was impartial. She wanted someone not employed by the state to look at what happened. Christine McAuliffe, p. 165.
- DC enjoyed socializing. She wouldn't say that he necessarily enjoyed tearing the books, but he really loved Audra DeLay and the social aspects of his vocation. Christine McAuliffe, p. 51.
- Q. Did he always order the Big Mac meal at McDonald's?
  A. He always. He was very much a creature of habit, and but he was just very, you know, sweet. When he first came to the HDC, we would get him sugar-free snacks, sugar-free sodas. And they would let him keep them in his room. But he would give them away to everybody. So, he had to start -- they would put it in the hall closet and ration it out to him. He was just -- he was just funny and he was a happy guy.
  Q. Did he love food?
  A. Yeah, he loved food. That was -- when we were eating lunch, he would say, "Hey, what are we having for dinner," I mean, while we were eating lunch. That was probably -- eating was one of his favorite things. Christine McAuliffe, p. 119.
- Q. Okay. And what are some other things that Davie loved besides -- aside from his sister and food?
  A. He just -- he loved music. Everybody that has been around him for five minutes knows he loved the Monkees, because he would listen to it 24/7 every day. That's not even an exaggeration. I'm sure the people at Booneville would tell you that. But, you know, ever since he was a little kid--
  Q. And how did he come to love the Monkees? Being, you know, born in the late '70s, he was -- the Monkees were around in the '60s. How did he discover the Monkees?
  A. Me and my brother, when we were kids, we watched Nick At Nite all the time. We didn't-- you know, that's about all we watched. So, I remember me and him, we watched things like I Love Lucy, The Monkees, Leave It To Beaver, those types of shows. And for whatever reason, he just -- he just latched onto the Monkees and the rest is -- you know, he never stopped. Christine McAuliffe, p. 122, 123.
- *He had Monkees CDs, tapes, vinyl records, DVDs. His two favorite tracks were "*Not Your Stepping Stone" and "Last Train to Clarksville." Christine McAuliffe, p. 123.
- "And actually, thankfully, I have a few videos of him, he would play tambourine, and he had some maracas I had gotten him from Central America, and I actually have a few videos of him playing those, and one of my friends playing them with him, which he did all the time, you know." Christine McAuliffe, p. 123.

- He loved the Dukes of Hazzard. He had the DVDs and he would watch on repeat, except for the one season when Bo and Luke were replaced by Coy and Vance. He really didn't like that. Christine McAuliffe, p. 124.
- "Yeah. So, I mean, he loved music, he loved, you know, DVDs, watching TV, he loved food, he loved --really, he loved -- he was very social. He loved making people laugh and being around people. He didn't like being alone, he didn't like silence. He just -- I don't know. He just -- he loved those things, he loved being a part of something, you know. I feel like, you know, being part of - - he had friends. I don't know how to explain it." Christine McAuliffe, p. 124, 125.
- Photo of Chrissy and Davie at the Xmas tree in downtown Russellville in 2018. Christine McAuliffe, p. 151.
- Davie loved Christmas. It made him very happy. Christine McAuliffe, p. 152.
- McAuliffe has worked for a labor union since 2008, primarily at nuclear power plants. She moved to Vermont in 2016 doing the same work for the same union. Christine McAuliffe, p. 8.
- She works long hours. "So, I worked at Arkansas Nuclear One, but I also traveled to other nuclear plants. So, normally when they're shut down for maintenance, they're shut down anywhere from two weeks to four to six weeks. So, you're working seven days a week, six or seven, 12 hours a day. Christine McAuliffe, p. 9.
- When not working on power plants in Arkansas the union would send her to other states to this same work. Between 2008 and 2016, her job required her to travel to other states two to three times per year to work on their nuclear power plants. Christine McAuliffe, p. 9. These trips would be for several weeks at a time. Christine McAuliffe, p. 10.
- She was three years younger than Davie. Christine McAuliffe, p. 11.
- She and Davie grew up together in the same home. Their parents divorced in around 1982; she and Davie always lived in the same house growing up. Christine McAuliffe, p. 14.
- She and Davie lived primarily with their mother until Chrissy was about eight. Then they lived together with their dad for two or three years. Christine McAuliffe, p. 16
- Chrissy wasn't separated from Davie until their father was murdered in front of them when she was eleven. Christine McAuliffe, p. 17.
- They were each sent to different places for their own protection, as they were witnesses to their father's murder. Christine McAuliffe, p. 18. 4

- Chrissy testified against the man who killed their father in front of them and he was convicted in 1992. Christine McAuliffe, p. 19.
- Neither child was allowed to live with their mother because of the danger as witnesses. Davie went into care placement. Chrissy lived in Germany with an uncle for a year. Christine McAuliffe, p. 20.
- Davie was placed with the Green family in Pope County, where he lived for approximately four to five years. Chrissy spent a lot of time with her brother during this time period. "Yes. Actually, I spent a lot of time with the Greens. I would spend the night with them. They – you know, so Davie would come home on the weekends. I actually hung out with them a lot to spend time with my brother." Christine McAuliffe, p. 22.
- Q. Okay. And did you ever spend the night over at the Greens' house?
  A. Yes.
  Q. Okay. Tell me about their house.
  A. I mean, they lived in different places through those years. They had a house, they had an apartment. At some point, my brother transitioned from living with the mother, Marie Green, to her daughter, I believe, Julie Green. Christine McAuliffe, p. 23.
- After the Greens, DC was placed with the Roberts, also in Pope County. Christine McAuliffe, p. 24.
- They [the Roberts] had a house in Russellville. DC was with them until 2007. She visited her brother there as well. Christine McAuliffe, p. 25.
- She would go over to the Roberts' house to hang out with Davie; they spent time in his bedroom listening to music. Christine McAuliffe, p. 26.
- The Roberts moved to Fayetteville in around 1998-1999, around the time she graduated high school. Christine McAuliffe, p. 26.
- She visited her brother in Fayetteville a lot. Christine McAuliffe, p. 27.
- Q. Okay. Now, tell me about the Roberts' home in northwest Arkansas. Did you ever go there, first of all?
  A. Yes, we went there a lot.
  Q. Okay. How often?
  A. We would go up there to pick Davie up to bring him back to Russellville for his birthday, holidays, for just random visits, and then we would also go up there just to visit him. Christine McAuliffe, p. 27.
- She visited DC during his last several months with the Roberts and they still brought him home to Russellville regularly during these last several months with the Roberts. Christine McAuliffe, p. 31.

- She would have liked to have been able to care for him herself, but she believed that the HDC was what was best for him at the time. "I felt like once he came to the HDC and he started living there, they -- from the way it was set up, you know, I felt at that time that was good for him, because my brother was very social and outgoing, and it was like a little college campus. And I felt like that place had everything that, you know, that he deserved, you know, his own -- his independence and a job and his own friends." Christine McAuliffe, p. 38.
- When pressed by counsel for Respondent about why she didn't volunteer to take in DC in 2007: "That for me, that was always a conversation. But what it came down to was, you know, I worked two, three jobs. My brother needed 24-hour care. I would have loved to have done that. I mean, ideally, I love my brother, we had a good relationship, and I felt like, you know, in theory, I could have provided him a safe home. I mean, I could have provided him a safe home. But I worked multiple jobs, and since my mom -- and my brother needed 24-hour care, I wasn't capable of giving him 24-hour care." Christine McAuliffe, p. 39.
- She and her mom were of the believe that BHDC was a good placement for DC. Christine McAuliffe, p. 43.

- Q. Okay. Now hold on one second, okay? Now, there came a point in time when David passed away.
  A. Yes.
  Q. What day was that?
  A. June 13th, 2020.
  Q. And where did you live at that time?
  A. I lived in Vermont.
  Q. Okay. And someone told you that this happened?
  A. My uncle called me the day that it happened.
  Q. And your uncle, what's his name?
  A. My Uncle Patrick Riley.
  Q. And where does he live?
  A. He lives in London, Arkansas.
  Q. Where is that?
  A. Right next to it's right next to Russellville.
  Q. Okay. And he was your mom's brother?
  A. Correct.
  Q. And I'm sorry. What was his name again?
  A. Patrick Riley.
  Q. Okay. And did you come back to Arkansas?
  A. In general, or-
  Q. I mean, right after -- after you heard the news, did you return?
  Oh, yes. I flew in as soon as I could get a flight. Christine McAuliffe, p. 43, 44.
- She visited DC at BHDC "all the time." Christine McAuliffe, p. 48.
- In response to Rich's testing, her testimony revealed she knows all about how Davie spent his days at BHDC. She knows which staff members were his favorites. She knows what he did in prevocational training. She knows what he liked and didn't like at the facility. She got to know Caleb Murry and talked to him frequently about DC. She knew he lived in Davidson house and all about the living arrangements at BHDC. She knew he lived on the second floor of Davidson and then moved to the first floor around 2012. Christine McAuliffe, p. 48-53.
- Christine is very familiar with her brother's IPPs. "It's a plan that they would do at that facility yearly that included all kinds of things about his living situation, about his -- how to respond to behaviors, his medical needs, his things that work -- just like the class, things that they wanted him to work on. It encompassed a large amount of things." Christine McAuliffe, p. 54, 55.
- She directly participated in-person with his IDT in the development of more than one of his IPPs, including the last one. Christine McAuliffe, p. 55.
- My mother was not able to handle DC alone after our father was killed. Davie needed 24-hour supervision and she could not provide that. Christine McAuliffe, p. 58, 59.

- McAuliffe has a good understanding of her brother's behavioral issues at BHDC: "My understanding is that they were -- he would get upset, he would yell, he might cuss, he would spit sometimes, he was known to pick something up that was near him and throw it, he was known to, you know, swing his arms out, he would get - you know, you didn't always know why, you know, but he would get upset. And he was known to do those types of things." Christine McAuliffe, p. 59, 60.
- A typical visit to BHDC: "Normally I would pick him up around lunchtime and I would take him out to lunch somewhere in town, in Booneville. Sometimes I might drive - - you know, we might go to Fort Smith or the next town. But generally it was in Booneville. And after we ate lunch, which was always a - - you know, he had very - - he had a routine, and the KFC or McDonald's, we would go to Wal-Mart after that where he would pick something out, a hat, a DVD, a t-shirt. Sometimes we would go to Dollar General, and we would always go to Sonic and get a shake. And then, we would usually drive around and just talk and listen usually to the Monkees." Christine McAuliffe, p. 62, 63.
- Her visits would last between two and five hours, usually two or three hours. Christine McAuliffe, p. 63.
- She visited him at least every two to three months even after moving to Vermont. Christine McAuliffe, p. 64.
- Emergency restraint use on her brother was explained to her as in a case where they thought David was going to "severely harm himself or someone else, that they would, per the physician, I understood it was a nurse or physician that had to authorize it." Christine McAuliffe, p. 66, 67.
- Chrissy did not become aware of BHDC's checkered past and the DRA investigations and complaints of excessive restraints until after her brother's death. Christine McAuliffe, p. 75.
- She did voice concern over the number of restraints being used on DC in the last IPP meeting. She spoke with Caleb Murry about it as well at other times. Christine McAuliffe, p. 76.
- They discussed the restraint use at the IPP meeting and she and her mother agreed to its continued use as written in the IPP and as explained to her by Caleb Murry. Christine McAuliffe, p. 77.
- "I'm saying that I had a discussion with Caleb Murray about it was my concern for my brother that we needed to figure out, you know, why we thought he was having so many behaviors, because as his sister and being protective over him, of course, I didn't like the idea of him being physically restrained." Christine McAuliffe, p. 78. She was told how they were working on de-escalation techniques and redirection and techniques for him to calm himself. Christine McAuliffe, p. 78.

- "So, it was explained to me that they -- there was never -- this is what was explained to me. They were allowed, which we authorized personal restraint. Caleb Murray explained to me because I asked, a personal restraint was holding one or both arms to the side of the body." Christine McAuliffe, p. 88.

- "I was never told that they are allowed to take him physically to the ground just for the sake of holding them on the ground." Christine McAuliffe, p. 88.

- Q. Tell me exactly, as the claimant in this lawsuit, what you are alleging here that the Booneville HDC staff did wrong for which there is liability.
  MR. GILLISPIE: Object to the form.*
  BY MR. ROSEN:
  Q. And I'm going to write it all down so I can just understand it. So, go ahead.*
  A. Would you ask that one more time?*
  Q. Yes. Tell me exactly what you're alleging in this lawsuit that Booneville Human Development staff did wrong for which they should be held liable.*
  MR. GILLISPIE: Object to the form. Are you asking her to read the lawsuit to you?*
  MR. ROSEN: No.*
  BY MR. ROSEN:
  Q. I'm asking you what did they do wrong? Do you have an opinion as to what they did wrong?*
  A. Yes, I do.*
  Q. Tell me what that is.*
  A. I believe that they used excessive unnecessary physical force to restrain my brother and for a behavior incident that didn't call for that. I believe that they used improper techniques once he was on the ground to continually hold him on the ground, which wasn't necessary. I believe they caused him to -- to choke and to die because of the decisions they made. Christine McAuliffe, p. 99, 100.

- She did weekly zoom sessions with a counselor for a couple of months after her brother's death as a result of her brother's death. Christine McAuliffe, p. 104, 105.

- A. I mean, my whole life has changed since my brother is not here.*
  Q. Okay. Tell me how that changed.*
  A. I mean, my brother was three years older than me and, you know, we -- so he was literally there my whole life, and he was like my best friend. He was kind of like a kid to me. I had step-kids. I don't have my own kids. But my brother, because he was so child-like, he was like my best friend, he was like, you know, a child, I was protective of him. But for our whole life, I mean, we were always -- we had a special bond, and he was probably the person, you know, that I was closest to in my family. Like, we just -- we have always been that close. And the months after his death, it was just -- it was hard to deal with, like losing that connection.*
  Q. Okay. So, I know, and I think I have seen elsewhere maybe, in somewhere that your -- intellectually, your brother was -- had a very low IQ; right?*

A. Right. Christine McAuliffe, p. 109.

- A favorite memory: "Throughout his life he always participated in Special Olympics, and actually one of the last years that he was there, it's one of my favorite memories of him, I didn't tell him I was coming, it was at the Booneville High School. And because if I couldn't make it, I didn't want him to be upset. So, I get there and I'm in the stands, and I don't know how he saw me, but in the middle of the field, somehow he saw me and yelled, '"Yeehaw,"' like he was taking a hat off, which he didn't have on. And he said, '"There's my sister, there's my sister."' He yelled it. But so, it was just really funny." Christine McAuliffe, p. 116.

- A favorite memory*: "But that particular year is the only time I remember he actually won a race. And I have a picture of that. It's one of my favorite ones, because he came up to me afterwards and he was so proud. And he said, "Look, did you see me, Chrissie, I ran fast as hell." And I mean, he was just -- but like I said, his whole life, he was in his 30s and he – you know, he participated, but he never -- you know, he wasn't really good at it."* Christine McAuliffe, p. 117. "That's probably one of my favorite memories, just because he was so happy and so proud of himself. Because he literally never, I don't think ever, won anything." Christine McAuliffe, p. 117.

- "Oh. And he was really funny and outgoing. He didn't like [s]violence. He never - - anybody that was around him would tell you he never stopped talking. I mean, even when he went to the bathroom, he never stopped talking. So, he -- I guess one of my favorite stories is, you know, me and mom were probably the two closest people to him, but we still had different relationships. My mom was his mother, you know, I was his sister. So, he could always get, you know, extra stuff out of my mom. And he knew that I wouldn't do that. Like we would buy him dinner, and he would be at the HDC and we would take him out for the day, we would always get him dinner for later, and he would get a Big Mac meal and a Diet Coke. Well, he would always talk her into getting him an extra cheeseburger, too. But I wouldn't do that when he was with me, but he knew he could get my mom to buy him, you know, an extra cheeseburger." Christine McAuliffe, p. 118.

- Q. Did he always order the Big Mac meal at McDonald's?
  A. He always. He was very much a creature of habit, and but he was just very, you know, sweet. When he first came to the HDC, we would get him sugar-free snacks, sugar-free sodas. And they would let him keep them in his room. But he would give them away to everybody. So, he had to start -- they would put it in the hall closet and ration it out to him. He was just -- he was just funny and he was a happy guy.
  Q. Did he love food?
  A. Yeah, he loved food. That was -- when we were eating lunch, he would say, "Hey, what are we having for dinner," I mean, while we were eating lunch. That was probably -- eating was one of his favorite things. Christine McAuliffe, p. 119.

- She enjoyed taking him to Walmart to buy him little gifts during their visits. Christine McAuliffe, p. 119.
- "I mean, I feel like me and him had a really special relationship that he didn't have with anybody else. And I feel like, of our childhood and, you know, we went through some pretty traumatic things together [father's death], and nobody else experienced that. I feel like that definitely bonded us, and I just -- it's hard to explain, but his disability as far as our relationship, you know, it didn't factor in as far as personality. You know, we still had that connection. And that's, you know, what I miss the most." Christine McAuliffe, p. 120.
- He was always "Davie" to her and other close family. Christine McAuliffe, p. 122.
- Q. Okay. And what are some other things that Davie loved besides -- aside from his sister and food?
  A. He just -- he loved music. Everybody that has been around him for five minutes knows he loved the Monkees, because he would listen to it 24/7 every day. That's not even an exaggeration. I'm sure the people at Booneville would tell you that. But, you know, ever since he was a little kid--

And for whatever reason, he just -- he just latched onto the Monkees and the rest is -- you know, he never stopped.* Christine McAuliffe, p. 122, 123.
- He had Monkees CDs, tapes, vinyl records, DVDs. His two favorite tracks were "Not Your Stepping Stone" and "Last Train to Clarksville." Christine McAuliffe, p. 123.
- "And actually, thankfully, I have a few videos of him, he would play tambourine, and he had some maracas I had gotten him from Central America, and I actually have a few videos of him playing those, and one of my friends playing them with him, which he did all the time, you know." Christine McAuliffe, p. 123.
- He loved the Dukes of Hazzard. He had the DVDs and he would watch on repeat, except for the one season when Bo and Luke were replaced by Coy and Vance. He really didn't like that. Christine McAuliffe, p. 124.
- "Yeah. So, I mean, he loved music, he loved, you know, DVDs, watching TV, he loved food, he loved --really, he loved -- he was very social. He loved making people laugh and being around people. I feel like, you know, being part of - - he had friends. I don't know how to explain it." Christine McAuliffe, p. 124, 125.

- Davie had friends at BHDC. He had a job he was proud of. He seemed happy there. He would sometimes talk about getting back to his friends when he was home with them. She thought it gave him an opportunity to have a little bit of independence and something like a normal life. He seemed to excel there. Christine McAuliffe, p. 125, 126.
- "I feel like he had two homes. He called Russellville his home, where me and, you know, where my mom was, and he called Booneville his home. So, I feel like he actually -- he enjoyed it there." Christine McAuliffe, p. 126.
- Davie came home for the major holidays every year and for his birthday. Christine McAuliffe, p. 127.
- Q. Did you still, after moving to Vermont, make a point to see your brother in person? A. Yeah. I mean, that was something that was like nonnegotiable. I mean, at the time, he was my boyfriend, he's my husband now, but that was a discussion, and just for me personally, like, "Listen," I said, you know, "Financially, whatever I've got to do, I have to make sure that I can see my brother, you know, every couple months, and fly home, drive home, you know, make it work around working." That's what I did. To me, it was important, but I know it was important to Davie, too. Christine McAuliffe, p. 127.
- After moving to Vermont in 2016 she travelled back to Arkansas just to visit Davie every two to three months. There may have been random gaps that were a little longer, but for the most part it was every two to three months. No matter the cost, no matter the trouble. Christine McAuliffe, p. 128.
- When she drove, it was a 24-hour drive, which took two days getting her and two days getting back. When she flew, it was expensive. She and her husband had to budget for the plane tickets. Christine McAuliffe, p. 128.
- She saved money specifically for traveling home to visit Davie. Christine McAuliffe, p. 129.
- They called him on the phone every week. They regularly sent him mail. Christine McAuliffe, p. 128.
- "I think about my brother every day, and I wouldn't say at this point, a few years later, I think about how he died every day, but I mean, especially the month, you know, the year after, I mean, it's still something -- I try not to let myself go there now, because, you know, just thinking that my brother's last moments were on the ground choking to death, I just can't imagine that there's a worse death than that, gasping for air and choking. And then to add to it that there was three people that he presumably knew and trusted, I just can't imagine how scared he was and what that was like for him. And so, that has been a really hard part of -- I mean, it would have been hard, obviously, losing him, but knowing, it upsets me just because, you know, he's a human being, just to know that that's how his story ended, it – I mean, it breaks my heart." Christine McAuliffe, p. 132.

- A. That Saturday, June 13th, 2020, I had gone to town to go grocery shopping. I was a couple miles from my home. My uncle called me, and I answered and he just said, "Davie died." I said, "What are you talking about?" He said, "Davie died." I said, "Davie who?" I was confused, and he just kept saying, "Davie."
He was obviously hysterical. I said, "What do you mean, my brother, Davie?" He said, "Yeah, he's dead. " I said, "What are you talking about?" He said, "Your mom" -- you know, "Your mom was called today, they told her that he choked while eating his lunch, they tried to do the Heimlich, they couldn't get his throat clear, they took him, you know, to the hospital, but he was dead.
And it was -- I mean, it was pretty you know, wasn't the best way -- I mean, there's no best way to get that information, but, you know, my uncle was hysterical, too. So, I said, "Where's my mom?" He said, "She's hysterical right now. She can't talk on the phone. She asked me to call you." So, I hung up the phone, I was a few miles from home, I wanted to get home as fast as I could to my husband.
And, I mean, I was -- you know, I was sick to my stomach, I couldn't make any phone calls, I was crying. My husband actually talked to my uncle. I had reached out to a friend to make it to Russellville to go sit with my mom. My husband booked a ticket for me to come home. I came into town, flew to Little Rock that Monday. Christine McAuliffe, p. 133, 134.

Jonathan McCutcheon – Deposition Summary

- Jonathan McCutcheon worked at BHDC as direct care staff, an RTC, for over eight years.
- Jonathan McCutcheon, who worked for several years at the BHDC, testified at deposition that in or around 2019 he witnessed Tyler Mattson physically abuse another developmentally disabled resident; specifically, McCutcheon testified that Mattson grabbed the resident by his collar, yanked him down to the ground, and then dragged the resident along a hallway floor all the way to the resident's room. McCutcheon testified that he reported what he witnessed, that he relayed what he witnessed directly to BHDC Administrator Jeff Gonyea, that a maltreatment investigation was conducted, and that the allegations of maltreatment against Mattson were nevertheless determined to be unfounded.
- He witnessed Tyler Mattson commit an act of adult maltreatment upon another male client. He saw Mattson "grab him by the back of his shirt, jerk him down, and drag him to his room."
- This took place in the upstairs hallway of Davidson House, which is also where DC lived.
- Q. Okay. And, when you say drag the client, you mean he grabbed him by like the back of his shirt collar and kind of caused him to go to the ground and then dragged him along the ground back to his room?
  MR. ROSEN: Objection.
  A. Yes.
- Q. Mr. McCutcheon, are you testifying that he grabbed the client by the back of the shirt collar?
  A. Yes.
  Q. Okay. Did the client then go to the floor or end up on the floor?
  A. Yes.
  Q. Okay. Are you saying that Tyler Mattson pulled the client down onto the floor?
  A. Yes.
- Q. We can keep going, Mr. McCutcheon. Mr. McCutcheon, after, as you just said, Tyler Mattson grabbed the client by the back of the shirt, pulled him to the ground, what happened next?
  A. He drug him to his room.
  Q. Okay. Did he drag him along the ground to his room?
  A. Yes.

- Q. Okay. Who did you report this to?
  A. I think it was Jeff Gonyea. And then I was told to write a statement on it.
  Q. Okay. Do you remember who told you to write the statement?
  A. If I'm remembering correctly, it was Jeff Gonyea.
- McCutcheon recalls speaking to Gonyea about the incident over the phone. He was asked by Gonyea to write a statement and turn it in to the program supervisor.
- McCutcheon does not know the details of how his allegation was investigated or what the specific outcome might have been, but he knows that Tyler Mattson remained an employee. He knows of no disciplinary action being taken against Mattson.
- McCutcheon says there was no bad blood between he and Mattson preceding this incident; they were just coworkers.
- Q. Okay. And did you and Tyler, did you have any sort of relationship with him before this incident that you witnessed? And what I mean by that is were you friends? Were you enemies? Or were you just coworkers and you didn't know him that well?
  A. Mainly just coworkers. I mean, yeah, we talked a little bit here and there; but, I mean, I don't know that we'd consider it friends. But we wasn't enemies, by no means.
- McCutcheon believes this incident occurred sometime around 2019.
- McCutcheon quit BHDC, he thinks in 2021. Left by his own choice.
- McCutcheon is not 100% sure, but he believes Sandy Evans was the Residential Services Director at the time of the incident.
- McCutcheon says that BHDC staff were "not always" terminated after allegations of maltreatment were substantiated against them.
- Q. Okay. And so I think you mentioned it earlier. So, if the determination is founded or substantiated as being likely correct, the person would be terminated, would they not?
  A. Not always.
  Q. Okay. Well, there could be some due process hearings, appeals that they -- and so on. Are you familiar with that?
  A. Well, I have noticed, on some of them, they do an investigation and all they'll do is just move them away from that one client.
  Q. Okay.
  A. They won't put them back in that area.

- McCutcheon was at the other end of the hallway when he saw it happen.
- McCutcheon thinks Mattson dragged the client 50 to 75 feet.

Caleb Murray – Deposition Summary

- Caleb Murry, DC's Social Services Worker, who is also part of the team that develops his IPP, testified that he does not believe that DC's IPP contains the types of restraints authorized to be used on him. Caleb Murry, p. 76.
- DC had very little understanding of abuse and neglect, would have struggled to articulate it. "He was not able to communicate a full understanding of his rights and needs the support of his guardian and the staff here at BHDC to ensure his rights are protected." Caleb Murry, p. 35.
- DC was placed on enhanced supervision in or around September 2018 because of [redacted] Caleb Murry, p. 16, 17.
- Caleb Murry interacted with DC regularly for approximately three years as his Social Services Worker. DC was never once physically aggressive towards him Caleb Murry, p. 18, 19.
- Caleb Murry never once witnessed DC be physically aggressive towards anyone. Caleb Murry, p. 21.
- Murry stated that when another client would become upset DC would start crying out of sympathy for the other client. Caleb Murry, p. 20.
- DC was very friendly, but he sometimes required reassurance that things would be okay. Caleb Murry, p. 22.
- Murry has no knowledge of DC causing injury to any staff or other client ever. Caleb Murry, p. 28.
- DC was physically restrained frequently. Caleb Murry, p. 38.
- Caleb Murry testified that if he or any other staff member who is not medical personnel sees an emergency, they are required to call medical, not 911. That policy has not changed, so far as he is aware. He still is required to call medical, not 911. Caleb Murry, p. 56.
- According to Caleb Murry's case note dated 6/24/20, DC's mom reported to him that she'd received the summary mentioning the behavior and restraint [the letter she received three days after DC was buried]; that she'd not previously been told about DC having "a behavior" [or the restraint] at the time of his death; and that this was different than what she'd originally been told, which was that DC had gone to use the restroom and then was simply found on the ground. Caleb Murry, p. 61. This was the last time Murry spoke with DC's mom. Caleb Murry, p. 65.

- Murry claims he cannot remember if he was aware of the restraint incident when he and Susan met with the family at the funeral home on the Monday following DC's death. Caleb Murry, p. 62.
- Christine McCauliffe also called Caleb Murry on 6/24/20, according to this case note. She told him the summary provided by BHDC was not good enough. She told him there were things in the summary that did not make sense, such as DC vomiting and them doing the Heimlich in response. She noted the discrepancies between the EMS report [which contained no mention of the restraint] and the summary. "She seemed upset about the information that David was in a behavior" and was upset to learn about the restraint. Murry's note states he contacted Gonyea, who told him to document the calls with sister and mother and to make Jennifer Berry aware. Caleb Murry, p. 67.
- Caleb Murry was DC's Social Services Worker from 2017 until his death. Caleb Murry, p. 13.
- He was main point of contact between BHDC and DC's family. Caleb Murry, p. 7.
- DC's mother and sister were very involved in DC's life; DC's was one of the most involved families at BHDC, according to Caleb Murry, whose job it was to be the liaison between clients and their families. Caleb Murry, p. 22, 23.
- Murry had regular contact with both his [DC's] mother and sister. Caleb Murry, p. 22, 23.
- "It wasn't uncommon for his sister to call and say, you know, I'm going to be sending him a birthday cake for his birthday or, you know, we're going to come get him." Murry says he talked to DC's mom even more: "me and his mom talked pretty frequently." Caleb Murry, p. 23.
- Q. And they were pretty involved?
  A. Oh, absolutely. Yes, they were.
  Q. More so than the average family member?
  A. Yeah. I would say, as far as family involvement, they were probably one of the top, top ones as far as being involved with any other. They were very close to him. Caleb Murry, p. 23.
- The campus had been closed for a few months due to covid and they'd not been able to visit DC prior to his death. Caleb Murry, p. 60. This was hard for DC, because "he was used to having regular family contact," "he was used to having so much contact" with his family. Caleb Murry, p. 60.
- DC talked to his mom once per week on the phone, in Caleb Murry's office. After he was placed on advanced supervision in September of 2018, he would talk to his mom once a week from his dorm. Caleb Murry, p. 14. [Enhanced supervision was due to his diabetes.]

- Sometime in 2018, his mom requested that she be notified of DC's behavior incidents. Caleb Murry, p. 40.
- Caleb Murry testified that Alvis was the best person to know about anxiety triggers for DC. Caleb Murry, p. 22.

Amanda Schmitt – Deposition Summary

- Amanda Schmitt worked at BHDC as an LPN for 5 years. Amanda Schmitt, p. 9.
- No knowledge of DC ever causing injury to another person. Amanda Schmitt, p. 24.
- DC was NOT considered one of the dangerous clients. Amanda Schmitt, p. 22, 28.
- Never seen DC cause injury to another person. Amanda Schmitt, p. 24.
- DC was a "really fun guy." "He was such a fun guy." "He played the tambourine and loved the Monkees. "And he had a Mr. Potato Head. That was kind of mine and his thing, is he had this Mr. Potato Head and I'd always tell him I was going to take the eyes from his Mr. Potato Head and put it where the nose goes and the nose where the eyes go; and he would just get like all kinds of excited about it. And he moved it on a top shelf to show me that I couldn't reach it to move his eyes. And he was -- he was a really cool guy." Amanda Schmitt, p. 22.
- He couldn't control his behaviors. He would become overwhelmed and kind of lash out, but he didn't mean to. He never had behaviors in order to get his way. Amanda Schmitt, p. 22.
- DC might get overwhelmed and lash out, usually by throwing something, but he was never trying to hurt anybody; "he just didn't know what to do with his feelings." It was similar to toddler behavior; he would come down to the med window when he was upset and just cry. His behaviors were quickly followed with apologies; he never meant it. Amanda Schmitt, p. 23.
- According to Schmitt, the only thing DC ever did that could have caused harm was that he threw a fire extinguisher in the direction of her head once, but she says he was not aiming for her. Amanda Schmitt, p. 23.
- Schmitt never saw or heard of DC harming anyone; she cannot even think of a time he left a mark on another person. Amanda Schmitt, p. 25.
- Schmitt never saw or heard of DC swinging at or hitting anybody; she saw him pull his hand back like he was going to, but he never swung; it was more like what an upset child would do. Amanda Schmitt, p. 26.
- There are dangerous clients; DC was NOT one of them. Amanda Schmitt, p. 28.
- "I would never be afraid to be alone anywhere with David." Amanda Schmitt, p. 29.
- Schmitt believes it is correct to restraint clients on the ground if they are having a behavior, even if they are on [redacted] and have just eaten. Amanda Schmitt, p. 62.

- Amanda Schmitt, upon arriving at scene, told staff she needed to know exactly what happened. Direct care staff told her he was choking, omitted that it began during a restraint. Amanda Schmitt, p. 41.
- Schmitt specifically remembers paramedics asking direct care staff what had happened. Amanda Schmitt, p. 71.
- Direct care staff told paramedics how DC choked. It was one of the three direct care staff involved in the restraint who told paramedics what happened. Amanda Schmitt, p. 75.
- It was known that DC sometimes vomited during times of stress. Schmitt believes "very strongly that that's what happened," that he vomited due to the stress of the restraint - "he had a behavior, he was being restrained, and he -- he vomited." Amanda Schmitt, p. 61.
- Commons was up the road from Judge Hill. It took 45 seconds for Schmitt and King to get to Schmitt's car after Noah took the call. It took right about 1 minute to drive from Judge Hill to Commons. It then took another 45 seconds to 1 minute to get out of the car and arrive at the scene. Amanda Schmitt, p. 57, 58.
- Paramedics have superior life-saving capabilities and superior life-saving equipment; they have deep-suctioning devices, can intubate; can do chemical codes. Amanda Schmitt, p. 54, 55.
- The paramedics could have provided better life-saving care. Amanda Schmitt, p. 56.
- DC had no pulse when nurses arrived. Amanda Schmitt, p. 45.
- Deborah Noah took the emergency call from Campos; Schmitt and King were present with her in the Judge Hill break room when the call came in. Noah was told that a client was not breathing. Noah relayed this to Schmitt and King, who ran to Schmitt's car; by the time they got to the car Campos was calling Schmitt on her personal cell phone telling her to bring an AED, that the client isn't breathing. Amanda Schmitt, p. 37, 38, 40, 41.
- Schmitt says they did not call 911 for emergency help after they received the initial call because they get a lot of calls from staff saying a client is choking and that most of the time the client ends up being okay. Amanda Schmitt, p. 48.
- Schmitt was told DC choked on vomit. Amanda Schmitt, p. 67.
- [redacted]

- Staff should not have put DC on his back after he began vomiting and choking. Amanda Schmitt, p. 76.
- DC was fun to play with; he would tease them and they would tease him. Amanda Schmitt and Kelly King enjoyed playing with him; he was one they were close with. "He -- he'd always say Kelly's a big fat witch; and she's like this little bitty, tiny, skinny thing. And so I taught him to say that Kelly's a big fat witch and Amanda's a pretty, pretty princess." Amanda Schmitt, p. 59.
- Amanda Schmitt testified she quit because they don't care for the residents well enough, pointed to conflict between medical and residential departments. Amanda Schmitt, p. 7.
- Schmitt thinks DC was overwhelmed at times and needed to be allowed to recharge in his dorm rather than have to eat in commons or go to work. Amanda Schmitt, p. 8.
- Schmitt testified that chemical interventions were becoming more frequent with DC towards the end; she participated in them at least once every couple of months. Amanda Schmitt, p. 30.
- The facility was constantly understaffed. Often not enough staff to care for clients properly; staff frustrated and exhausted. Amanda Schmitt, p. 35, 36.

Kris Stewart – Deposition Summary

- Kris Stewart, who investigated DC's death for DRA and co-authored the report, has a bachelor's degree in social work (graduated 1995). She previously worked as a case manager for 12 years in two HDCs, one in Missouri and one in Tennessee. (Bellefontaine Habilitation Center is in St. Louis and Clover Bottom Developmental Center in Nashville). Part of her role in those jobs was to investigate abuse and neglect at those HDCs; also to write IPPs and work on client behavior plans. These HDCs were largely identical to Arkansas' HDCs, though Missouri has since abolished HDCs. The clients at these places were dual diagnosis (DD and mental health issues) clients who typically had behavioral and aggression issues, just like at BHDC. Kris Stewart, p. 56, 57, 58, 101.
- Mattson wrote in his OLTC statement that DC jumped up out of the chair and tried to hit him, omitting all mention of charging, lunging, and omitting all mention of a ledge. Mattson OLTC Witness Statement. Same with this DRA statement. Kris Stewart, p. 63.
- Admits his memory was fresher two years before when he gave his OLTC and DRA statements than it is now; note he made ZERO mention of a ledge in either statement. Kris Stewart, p. 63.
- Campos also told DRA Jones was holding DC's head, so that he wouldn't spit. Kris Stewart, p. 68.
- DRA investigation concluded it was a violation of DDS 3011-D for staff to continue to restrain DC after he fell to the floor [or was taken to the floor] as opposed to giving him space and time to calm himself, which would have been a less restrictive option available to staff. Kris Stewart, p. 77,78,79.
- A. Just back away. He wasn't a danger to you anymore if he's on the floor."
  Q. How do you know that?
  A. If he's on the floor and you're -- how is he a danger to you?
  Q. If I fell on the floor right now -- if I was threatening you and I fell on the floor, and hitting you and fell on the floor, could I not get up and hit you again?
  A. Couldn't you just get up and get away from him?
  Q. Well --
  A. That would be the least restrictive measure to take. Kris Stewart, p. 98.
- A. He said that they -- let's go back and see exactly what Tyler told me. He applied personals by grabbing his arms. So, Tyler grabs him, okay, and he says they end up falling over. David lands on his face but, then, Tyler is still able to roll him onto his side. So, my point is, if you're able to get up and gain physical whatever over this guy and roll him on his side, you're probably just as able to be able to walk away and give him some space to see if he calms down.

Q. What if he didn't calm down?*
A. Well, he didn't get a chance to.*
Q. So, was Tyler, when they were on the ground, still attacking -- excuse me, was David Cains --*
A. No. He was on his face.*
Q. Well, let me ask you that. That's --*
A. That's what he says.*
Q. Did he hit his head?*
A. He told us that he landed on his face.*
Q. And during the course of your investigation, did David Cains have any injuries to his face?*
A. I don't know. There were no photos taken of him [by BHDC].*
Q. So, you don't know --*
A. There were no photos taken of him. There were no photos taken of where it happened. Kris Stewart, p. 99.

- Mark Hise told DRA investigators that the ground restraint used on DC was not taught, approved, or authorized for use at BHDC. Kris Stewart, p. 73.
- DRA investigation concluded that NCI/CPI does not endorse or instruct any maneuver that involves physically restraining an individual on the floor. Kris Stewart, p. 80.
- They don't take people to the floor in NCI. He's [Mattson's] restraining someone on the floor, so the staff still had to get down there to restrain him. NCI does not do restraints like that. Kris Stewart, p. 88.
- DRA learned that, while BHDC formally trains staff in NCI, that staff are also regularly using methods of restraint that conflict with NCI training. Direct care staff told DRA investigators that they take clients to the floor often in restraints. Mattson is one of the staff members who told this to DRA. Kris Stewart, p. 74.
- Staff told DRA that they take clients to the floor in restraints, but staff could not articulate what this technique was called or where it came from. Kris Stewart, p. 80.
- Staff could not clarify what techniques they were commonly using physically restrain clients. Kris Stewart, p. 87.
- Staff could not state who was trained in taking clients to the ground or who was teaching the technique. Kris Stewart, p. 95.
- Staff told DRA that they take clients to the ground a lot for restraints. Kris Stewart, p. 88.

- DRA investigation determined all staff at Booneville needed to be retrained because NCI/CPI does not endorse the use of restraint while an individual is lying on the floor, and that the very fact that NCI is touted as the intervention strategy implemented by Booneville, and yet this individual was restrained on the floor long enough to aspirate and die means that NCI was either ignored or forgotten. Kris Stewart, p. 81, 82, 83.
- Only medical staff were authorized to call 911. Kris Stewart, p. 54, 66.
- Direct care staff are not allowed to call 911; they have to go through the nurses. Kris Stewart, p. 54.
- Every single BHDC employee that DRA interviewed told them that BHDC had a policy that forbade non-medical staff from calling 9-1-1 during a medical emergency. Kris Stewart, p. 66.
- Superintendent Jeff Gonyea himself admitted there was a policy that forbade non-medical staff from calling 9-1-1 during a medical emergency. Kris Stewart, p. 66.
- Gonyea told DRA they were "worried that people would call 9-1-1 kind of haphazardly, that didn't have training, you know, maybe for things that weren't a 9-1-1 emergency." Kris Stewart, p. 66, 67.
- In her 27 years of working with and on behalf of DD populations, Kris Stewart has never seen a similar 911 policy. Kris Stewart, p. 66.
- Samuel Scow told DRA that BHDC reported to him on the scene that "patient choked on food he was eating, aspirated, and stopped breathing" and that patient was found on unconscious on the floor in the hallway; that DC simply choked on his lunch; and that he was never once told of the restraint incident. Kris Stewart, p. 64, 65.
- BHDC provided DRA with a written timeline of events concerning DC's death that completely omitted that a restraint even occurred. Kris Stewart, p. 71.
- DRA interviewed the coroner, Chrisman, who stated that he would have likely requested an autopsy done had he been made aware of the restraint. Kris Stewart, p. 71.
- DRA investigation revealed that DC's family was also given false information that DC choked on his lunch with no mention of the restraint. Kris Stewart, p. 72.
- DC's family did not find out that the personal restraint had occurred until June 22nd, which was nine days after David had died and three days after he was buried. Kris Stewart, p. 72.
- DRA concluded BHDC failed to adequately inform David's family of the circumstances surrounding his death. Kris Stewart, p. 81.

- DRA investigation concluded that the facility failed to properly communicate the circumstances of this incident to emergency responders; that there was no evidence the facility properly communicated the circumstances of this incident to the Arkansas State Police, the Logan County Sheriff's Office, or any other law enforcement agency. Kris Stewart, p. 79, 80.
- DRA concluded DC's [redacted]
- Campos also told DRA Jones was holding DC by the head, so that he wouldn't spit. Kris Steward, p. 68.
- While omitted from his OLTC statement, Mattson told DRA that Jones was holding DC's head during the restraint so that he could not bite. Kris Stewart, p. 70.
- The DRA investigation concluded that "this restraint likely, either directly or indirectly, led to David's death." Kris Stewart, p. 79.
- Q. So, if there was a delay in a few minutes in calling 9-1-1, how would that impact the result, or the outcome here?
  A. Well, I think that if you are not allowed to call 9-1-1 when someone is on the ground and obviously in dire straits -- you know, they're out in Booneville in the middle of nowhere, so I think every minute counts*. It takes them a long time to get there, and that was part of our argument.* Kris Stewart, p. 107.
- The only start time for the restraint given to Kris Stewart was 1-1-3-0; she specifically remembers being told 1-1-3-0; she does not recall anyone telling her it was an estimate. Kris Stewart, p. 55.
- Kris Stewart then spent six years working for Missouri's Department of Mental Health as a case manager for DD individuals living in the community. Kris Stewart, p. 57.
- Stewart then moved to New Mexico to work for Easter Seals, where she worked for five years with the same DD population as in an HDC except these were in smaller group homes of around 15 individuals. Kris Stewart, p. 58.
- Kris Stewart spent 23 years working with DD populations prior to joining DRA in 2016 as an Advocate. Kris Stewart, p. 58.
- The DRA investigation involved reviewing the maltreatment investigation report, all witness statements, the DPSQA complaint investigation report, EMS report, hospital records, and the coroner's report. DRA interviewed BHDC staff, including Tyler Mattson, Amy (Mandy) Jones, and Ryann Campos, the individuals who restrained David; as well as Sandy Evans, the adult maltreatment investigator and director of residential services; Jeff Gonyea, the superintendent; Mark Hise, the staff development coordinator and NCI instructor; paramedic Samuel Scow; and the coroner. Kris Stewart, p. 62.

- Tyler Mattson NEVER mentioned a ledge, mentioned DC charging at him, never mentioned DC trying to wrap him up. Kris Stewart, p. 63. Mattson gave DRA the same version of events as in his OLTC statement. Kris Stewart, p. 63.
- Mattson told DRA that he grabbed DC by both arms, they fell over, and that DC landed on his face. Kris Stewart, p. 64.
- Every single BHDC employee that DRA interviewed told them that BHDC had a policy that forbade non-medical staff from calling 9-1-1 during a medical emergency. Kris Stewart, p. 66.
- Superintendent Jeff Gonyea himself admitted there was a policy that forbade non-medical staff from calling 9-1-1 during a medical emergency. Kris Stewart, p. 66. Gonyea told DRA they were "worried that people would call 9-1-1 kind of haphazardly, that didn't have training, you know, maybe for things that weren't a 9-1-1 emergency." Kris Stewart, p. 66, 67.
- In her 27 years of working with and on behalf of DD populations, Kris Stewart has never seen a similar 911 policy. Kris Stewart, p. 66.
- DRA investigation concluded Superintendent Gonyea failed to find that anyone violated any policy or procedure and inexplicably failed to find that any policy or procedure might need review and modification. Kris Stewart, p. 77.
- DRA investigator Kris Stewart authenticated the DRA Death Report she co-authored. Kris Stewart, p. 84.
- DRA's investigation and interviews of staff occurred within two to three months of DC's death. Kris Stewart, p. 93.
- BHDC provided DRA with a written timeline of events concerning DC's death that completely omitted that a restraint even occurred. Kris Stewart, p. 71.
- DRA interviewed the coroner, Chrisman, who stated that he would have likely requested an autopsy done had he been made aware of the restraint. Kris Stewart, p. 71.
- Tyler Mattson's statement to DRA deviated from his written OLTC statement. Kris Stewart, p. 70.
- While omitted from his OLTC statement, Mattson told DRA that Jones was holding DC's head (discrepancy) so that he could not bite (also a discrepancy, as biting is not mentioned anywhere else in the case). Kris Stewart, p. 70.

- DRA questioned Mattson's credibility; DRA found it "hard to believe" they fell over and more likely Mattson took DC to the ground, given the inconsistencies in his statements. Kris Stewart, p. 89.
- Mattson also reported to DRA it was common practice to take clients to the ground for restraint. Kris Stewart, p. 74.
- "I feel like my -- so, in investigations you have hunches. You kind of -- right? It's -- it's odd to me. I've been doing investigations about abuse and neglect. It's odd to me that he talks all about taking people to the floor and he -- it's just like he would not ever say that he restrained him -- that they fell and, so, it was -- it was odd. The whole thing seemed odd but -- he says he fell, so he did, but my -- you know, we stick with, if he fell, he was already on the floor. Just back away. He wasn't a danger to you anymore if he's on the floor." Kris Stewart, p. 98.
- One of the female staff members involved in the restraint did not seem bothered at all by the DC death incident. Kris Stewart, p. 92.

Melissa Weatherton – Deposition Summary

- Melissa Weatherton, Director of the Division of Developmental Services since 2016, testified she was NOT aware of any requirement that staff at BHDC use only the least restrictive method available when applying restraint. She is not aware of any rules or regulations to that effect. Melissa Weatherton, p. 14, 15.
- Weatherton is the boss over the HDCs. Melissa Weatherton, p. 42.
- Weatherton does not know that staff can only use "least restrictive" in all scenarios; she erroneously believes it can vary from client to client based on what is in their Behavior Management Plans. Melissa Weatherton, p. 14.
- Weatherton chose not to review a single document concerning David Cains' case prior to her deposition. Melissa Weatherton, p. 15.
- Q. Okay. All right. What is your understanding of what happened with Mr. Cains that day?
  A. My understanding is Mr. Cains was having lunch and that he went to the restroom and came out agitated and there was a fall and he started to aspirate. Again, I read the case probably two years ago.
  Q. I understand. You have access to all of those reports and reports; correct?
  A. I do. Uh-huh.
  Q. Okay. Is this any particular reason you didn't take a look at that before today?
  A. I did not have time. Melissa Weatherton, p. 16.
- Weatherton testified that she was not aware Cains was restrained around the time of this death. Melissa Weatherton, p. 16.
- Weatherton was not aware of the protocols in place with regards to DC's care, nor did she take the time to educate herself on this. Melissa Weatherton, p. 10.
- She only has "some understanding" of the restraint methods used at BHDC and the other four HDCS. Melissa Weatherton, p. 11.
- Weatherton agrees that federal CMS guidelines regulate how restraints are used at HDCs. Melissa Weatherton, p. 12.
- Weatherton claimed to know that BDHC's and DDD's policies on restraint usage are "in compliance with federal and state law." Melissa Weatherton, p. 13. It is unclear how she could know this if she doesn't know about "least restrictive."
- Weatherton testified that staff at HDCs are trained to attempt de-escalation techniques prior to using restraint. Melissa Weatherton, p. 13.

- She claims it is a goal of DDS to reduce restraints as much as possible; she agrees that is because restraints increase the risk of danger to both clients and staff. Melissa Weatherton, p. 30.
- There was a problem, at the time of DC's death, with HDCs not keeping up with personal restraint data, not collecting data on their usage of personal restraints, and not reporting their usage to the HDC Board. Melissa Weatherton, p. 38, 39.
- Shortly following DC's death, the HDCs began keeping up with personal restraint data and reporting it to the HDC board. Melissa Weatherton, p. 41.
- Weatherton acknowledged authoring her responsive letter to Tom Masseau in which she wrote "I am committed with your help and other members of the behavioral consultation committee to change the culture and significantly reduce the restraint usage." Melissa Weatherton, p. 46.
- BHDC was the only HDC that did not have cameras. Melissa Weatherton, p. 65, 66.
- Q. Would you agree that using a restraint should be an option of last resort if the other deescalation and other things that your staff have been trained have not been successful? A. I think we already talked about this. I didn't answer that because I really don't. It's so case specific and it's based on that person's behavior plan and I'm just not comfortable answering. Melissa Weatherton, p. 66.
- Restraint incidents are routed to the HDC's Human Rights Committee, who is supposed to review it to make sure it was appropriate, etc. However, Weatherton is not able to even say whether the HRCs have a standardized protocol or process they go by in doing so, or what any of those protocols might be. Melissa Weatherton, p. 67, 68.
- Weatherton has no recollection of the 2019 BHDC incident in which a staff member broke a client's arm during a restraint. She also has no recollection of a 2019 BHDC incident in which a staff member choked a client unconscious during a restraint. Melissa Weatherton, p. 67, 68
- Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether or not a choke hold around someone's neck that rendered them unconscious would be appropriate?
  A. I'm not going to give an opinion on something I don't know about it. Melissa Weatherton, p. 69.
- Weatherton acknowledges that CPI/NCI is the training curriculum used at HDCs to train staff on de-escalation techniques and proper use of restraints. Melissa Weatherton, p. 42.
- CPI/NCI is the training that has been authorized for use by staff at HDCs. Melissa Weatherton, p. 43.

- Staff at the HDCs are required to follow their training. They are not allowed to wing it and use techniques not taught to them. Melissa Weatherton, p. 43.
- Weatherton trusts Gonyea and Berry to provide accurate information. She would assume their statements concerning Hise to be true (same would go for statements they made about Evans). Melissa Weatherton, p. 45.
- Weatherton was quoted in a news piece stating that staff who broke client's arm in 2019 committed abuse and what he did was "not in compliance with our training," so he was terminated. Melissa Weatherton, p. 73, 74.
- Staff must follow the training they have been given when restraining clients. Melissa Weatherton, p. 74.
- Failure to follow proper training can cause abuse. Melissa Weatherton, p. 74
- Weatherton believes BHDC policy needs to be clarified or modified "to permit staff to contact 911 in response to emergency medical situations. Staff must have permission to identify and respond in an emergency." This was a recommendation made by DRA to the Committee she formed, and she agrees with this specific recommendation, which she included in her responsive letter to Tom. Melissa Weatherton, p. 58.
- According to Weatherton, retraining only occurs when OLTC finds something that needs further addressing after an event occurs, or when something is wrong. Melissa Weatherton, p. 51, 61, 62, 85.
- DDS formed a Behavioral Consultation Committee within a couple months of DC's death to work on reducing restraint usage within the HDCs. Melissa Weatherton, p. 35.
- Weatherton acknowledges she said this to the Dem-Gaz: "It's very clear that a personal restraint did occur leading up to him passing away-- but I've looked at every document, I've looked at [Disability Rights Arkansas]'s report, I've looked at hospital reports. I've not been given any kind of documentation that says the personal restraint did, or did not, lead to the passing of that client." Melissa Weatherton, p. 81.
- Weatherton's position is still that she does not know whether the restraint did or did not cause DC's death. Melissa Weatherton, p. 83.
- "Federally, we're required in Arkansas, when you have a developmental disabilities division, you're required to have a three-pronged organizational structure in your state. So Disability Rights fills one of those three prongs along with my division and the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. They are a federal advocacy organization that's been designated by the state to be the advocacy organization here in Arkansas." Melissa Weatherton, p. 17.
- The DD Act mandates DRA's involvement. Melissa Weatherton, p. 18.

- DRA's involvement is required by law. Melissa Weatherton, p. 19.
- She thinks it [the Behavioral Consultation Committee] was formed around the "end of summer" of 2020. Melissa Weatherton, p. 36.
- Weatherton appointed two representatives of DRA to this Committee, including its director Tom Masseau and one of its advocate attorneys, Regan Sanford (who co-authored the DRA Death Report on DC). Melissa Weatherton, p. 35, 37, 64.
- She wants their [the behavioral consultation committee] involvement on the Committee and to hear their [the behavioral consultation committee] ideas. Melissa Weatherton, p. 46, 47
- Weatherton told the Democrat Gazette that cameras would have helped make the [David Cains] situation "black and white" to her.
  Q. I think, in the article, you're quoted as saying that cameras -- if there had been cameras at the facility in Booneville, which had none, it would have helped to make the situation, quote, black and white to you. Does that sound like something you would have said or believed at the time?*
  A. I am a big believer that we need to have high quality cameras across our facilities.* Melissa Weatherton, p. 81.
- DC is not responsible for his own death, "of course not!" Melissa Weatherton, p. 85. This runs counter to the opinion of her expert witness.

Deposition Summary – Dian Elliott

The OLTC surveyor, Dian Elliot, is employed by the Arkansas Department of Human Services. Dian Elliot, p. 29 She works for the same state agency as DDS staff and as BHDC staff. She lives in the Booneville area, in Paris, which is about 20 to 25 miles from Booneville, according to Ms. Elliot. Dian Elliot, p. 30 She conducted the OLTC investigation in one day, 6.30.20. She began at approximately 8:40am and was finished by approximately 3:07pm. Dian Elliot, p. 31 On this same day, during these same hours, she conducted at least two other investigations into complaints unrelated to David Cains. Dian Elliot, p. 48

She conducted only four interviews; those were the three staff members who restrained Davie and one LPN who responded. Dian Elliot, p. 20 She does not recall the identity of the one LPN she interviewed. Dian Elliot, p. 55 She did not interview anyone else at BHDC during her investigation. Dian Elliot, p. 56 She did not interview or speak with Davie's mother or sister. Dian Elliot, p. 36 Elliot testified that all the documents she reviewed for her survey were: Ambulance Records, Clinical Record, Facility In-Service Records, Facility Investigative Reports, Hospital Records, Incident Records or Critical Incident Reports, Nurses Notes, Personnel Records/Background Check, et cetera, Physician Orders, Physician Progress Notes, Roster Matrix/Resident, Client Census, Staff Training, and the IPP and Speech/Language Evaluation. Dian Elliot, p. 50, 51

Ms. Elliot's testimony revealed she conducted her investigation under the mistaken belief that the paramedics were not able to clear Davie's airway. Dian Elliot, p. 58

The federal regulations (Appendix J) are the only set of policies that she uses to determine facility compliance. Dian Elliot, p. 71 It contains policies regarding restraint use. Dian Elliot, p. 72 Elliot testified that, in her investigation into whether the facility complied with ICF-IID federal regulations (aka CMS regulations, aka Appendix J, aka State Operations Manual), she utilized only certain parts of the regulations, those found under Tags 127, 128, 153, 154, 285, 286, and 331. Dian Elliot, p. 56, 57

Elliot testified that, if a BHDC staff member were to violate the federal regulations, it would be a violation on the facility. Dian Elliot, p. 64 The facility is responsible for its staff's actions. Dian Elliot, p. 64 If a staff member does something in violation of the federal regulations, that violation is attributed to the facility. She would cite the facility. Dian Elliot, p. 65 If a staff member were to subject a client to abuse, the facility would be in violation. Dian Elliot, p. 66 She looks at staff actions to determine whether the facility is in compliance with the federal ICF-IID regulations. Dian Elliot, p. 69, 70 Appendix J (the federal regulations, CMS regulations) pertains to how staff treat clients, including staff's use of restraints on clients. Dian Elliot, p. 70, 71

Q Right? And for a facility to be either in compliance or not in compliance, that would have to be based on what the people working there do or do not do?
A Yes. Dian Elliot, p. 64

Elliot testified that unnecessary physical restraint would be abuse. Dian Elliot p. 88: 8-9

She did not speak to Sandy Evans about how she went her interviews of staff during the maltreatment investigation. Dian Elliot p. 94

Elliot did not look to determine compliance with Tag 276 during her investigation. Dian Elliot p. 94: 16-17, 20 The facility must specify all facility approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(i), [W276], Bates 1753. All interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(i), [W276], Bates 1753.

Elliot agrees that the policies and procedures of a facility like BHDC must specify all facility-approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. Dian Elliot p. 98: 99 She agrees that all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in a facility like BHDC must be stated and described in its policy.

Elliot did not look to determine compliance with Tag 277 during her investigation. Dian Elliot p. 101: 56-57, 20 The facility must designate facility interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented, ranging from most positive or least intrusive, to least positive or most intrusive. Policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753. Facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment. The plan must still begin at the least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(ii), [W277], Bates 1753.

Elliot's testimony reveals that she does not possess a full understanding of at least some of the federal regulations. She testified that the potential physical restraints that might be used on a client do NOT have to be stated or described in that client's IPP. Dian Elliot p. 105 Counsel gave her an opportunity to correct herself, but Elliot doubled down, testifying that the types of restraints that could potentially be used on a client are NOT required to be described in the client's IPP. Dian Elliot p. 106: 19-22 Her testimony directly contradicts the federal regulation found at Tag 295, which Elliot did not look at to determine compliance with during her investigation. Dian Elliot p. 102: 56-57 BHDC is required to specify, within a client's IPP, the physical restraints that can be used. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(i), [W295], Bates 1764. The IPP must address, among other things, "the type of physical restraint" and the "specific type of client behavior" for which these physical restraints described in the plan can be used. Id.

After counsel pointed this contradiction out to Elliot, she explained she had misunderstood counsel's question: "It does say type of physical restraint. But you asked me, does it not have to describe the types, or how you -- I took it as how you do them, no. Because that -- and it will say -- the IPP will give you it gives you less restrictive measures, such as talking to them -- trying to talk them down, trying to -- they might say, you can put in a physical hold. Now, if there is something in a physical hold that will trigger them worse, that may be included in the IPP. Like they are not -- you are not allowed to maybe take them to the floor. (Indicating.)" Dian Elliot p. 109. Elliot eventually changes her answer, testifying that a client's IPP must address the "type of physical restraint" that could be used on that client. Dian Elliot, p. 112

Staff cannot use any form of physical restraint they deem appropriate. "Absolutely not." Dian Elliot, p. 110. Staff cannot use any form of physical restraint they choose in an emergency either. "Absolutely not." Staff must follow their training and instruction. Dian Elliot, p. 112, 24-25, p. 113, 1-5. Staff can only use the restraint methods they are taught. Dian Elliot, p. 116.

Q Staff can't use methods that aren't approved by the facility, can they?
A No.
Q They can't use methods that aren't taught to them by the facility, can they?
A No.
Q Those would be violations of Appendix J, wouldn't they?
A Yes. Dian Elliot, p. 110, 18-25, p. 111, 1. [Mark Hise's testimony proves that staff violated Appendix J. Had Elliot interviewed Hise she would have known this.]

Elliot did not look to determine compliance with Tag 280 during her investigation. Dian Elliot, p. 111, 16, 17, 20. Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the "types of physical restraint" that are allowed in the facility. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755. Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the persons who can use the physical restraints, must address the parameters for duration of application, and must address methods that ensure the health and safety of the person to be restrained. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755. Federal Regulation says policies and procedures of a facility must address the specific training required for staff who are allowed to apply the physical restraints. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B), [W280], Bates 1755.

She testified she agreed that a facility's policies and procedures must address the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility. Dian Elliot, p. 118. Elliot admits that she does not recall seeing the ground restraint used on David Cains mentioned anywhere in BHDC's policies and procedures. Dian Elliot, p. 119, 12-14.

Elliot never spoke to Mark Hise, Staff Development Coordinator and BHDC's restraint instructor. Dian Elliot, p. 120.

Q Hypothetically, if you had learned in your investigation that this was an unauthorized restraint that was used on David on the ground, could that have changed the outcome of your survey?

A It's possible that it could have as far as the use of an unauthorized restraint, yes. Dian Elliot, p. 122, ll. 4-9

Elliot, to explain why she might not have deemed the facility responsible for his death even had she been aware the restraint was unauthorized, then goes on to offer the following opinion as to David's cause of death: "As far as the facility being responsible for his death, probably not. Because he had diagnosis of GERD, he had a seizure disorder. It was directly after he had eaten. The facility -- he got upset, the facility responded as soon as he vomited. And aspiration of food is a big possibility whenever you vomit. You know, I mean, for him, for us, you know, we could -- (Indicating.) The GERD might have contributed to it, he may have had a seizure. I do not know. According to the documentation that I looked at, food could have even gotten into the airway, you know." Dian Elliot, p. 122 [Elliot opines correctly that GERD likely contributed to David vomiting. However, Elliot neglected to learn or consider that staff, by restraining Davie on the ground right after lunch, violated his physician's order requiring that he remain upright for one hour after eating. Elliot neglected to learn that the ground restraint used was not an authorized form of restraint in which staff are trained. It was unauthorized and staff were not trained to do it.]

Elliot did not look to determine compliance with Tag 278 during her investigation. Dian Elliot, p. 123, ll. 5-6, 17-20 In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible. [ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(1)(iii), [W278], Bates 1754].

Elliot testified she is aware that only the least restrictive form of physical restraint that is available can be used in any situation. Dian Elliot, p. 123 In an emergency situation, the staff are required to use the least restrictive technique available that might be effective in the situation. Dian Elliot, p. 123, ll. 13-14, 1-4

Q Okay. And the least restrictive -- and so, if I'm hearing you right, what you are saying is or how you interpret the regulation is that they would be required to use the least restrictive technique that could work for any given situation? Does that make sense?
A They have to use the least restrictive technique that would be appropriate for that behavior or situation that is happening at that time, yes. Dian Elliot, p. 146, ll. 17-25

Elliot did not speak with Sandy Evans, the facility's maltreatment investigator for the incident. Dian Elliot, p. 90, l. 138 Elliot says that it might not have made a difference in the outcome of her survey had Sandy Evans admitted (as she did during deposition) to her that the restraint used on Davie was not the least restrictive, because Sandy is "just the investigator." It would be CPI instructor (Mark Hise) whose opinion would have really mattered to her. Dian Elliot, p. 139, 140

A I do my own investigation. So, if she – even if she told me something like that, I would have to investigate and see what I found out, because I do my independent investigation. I do not go by what their facility has investigated.
Q Okay. Would that have been useful information to you?
A Not until after -- that might have been something -- if I had decided in my investigation that that was an inappropriate restraint and it was not the least restrictive or whatever, then what we would do is, then I would go to the CPI person, trainer, and I would ask -- I would ask him questions. Dian Elliot, p. 139

Q Okay.
A So, if he told me -- then at that point, if he looked at me and I would have said, "Was that the least restrictive that they could have used," and he looked at me and said, "No," that would have been in my investigation, that's part of my evidence. So, it would have been after I did my investigation if I would have asked her that. But she is just the investigator. I would go to the CPI person.
Q And if the CPI person told you that the restraint used was something he did not teach, something that was not part of CPI, and not the least restrictive option, that would have been a big deal to you?
A That would --
Q That would have been a big deal to you?
A I would have considered that strongly in my investigation, yes. Dian Elliot, p. 140

Q Ms. Elliott, is it your testimony, as you sit here today, that in response to an emergency situation staff are allowed to use any technique that they want? they want?
A Oh, no.
Q Is it your testimony, as you sit here today, that in an emergency situation anything that staff does in response is, by definition, the least restrictive possible?
A Anything they do in response would be the least restrictive? No. Dian Elliot, p. 141: 23-25; p. 142: 1-8. [Elliot interprets Tag 278 the same way Claimant does. She does not agree with her lawyer's interpretation, which is insane.]

Elliot also did not look to determine compliance with Tag 289 during her investigation. Dian Elliot, p. 20: 56: 57. The use of behavior interventions are expected to be incorporated into the IPP and be based upon the results of the functional behavioral assessment. However, there may be isolated and rare instances when a client exhibits unexpected behavior that requires immediate intervention on the part of the staff. In these instances, the least restrictive intervention must be employed and removed as soon as the client is no longer an immediate threat to self or others. The IPP team must then discuss the need for adding a behavioral plan into the client's program. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(b)(4), [W289], Bates 1760.

Elliot also did not look to determine compliance with Tag 296 during her investigation. Dian Elliot, p. 20: 56: 57. The facility may employ physical restraint "as an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury." ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(1)(ii), [W296], Bates 1764.

Elliot also did not look to determine compliance with Tag 298 during her investigation. Dep. Elliot, p. 20: 56: 57. The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. ICF-IID Reg. § 483.450(d)(2)(i), [W298], Bates 1766.

Director Melissa Stone
Division of Developmental Disabilities
Arkansas Department of Human Services

Director Stone:

Disability Rights Arkansas (DRA) is the designated federal Protection and Advocacy System ("P&A") for individuals with disabilities in Arkansas. One of DRA's core functions is to investigate the deaths of persons with developmental disabilities in facilities that provide services to people with developmental disabilities. DRA has authority under federal law to thoroughly investigate deaths occurring in any public or private entity that provides care, services, treatment, or habilitation to individuals with disabilities.

As you are aware, resident David Cains of Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) died on June 13, 2020. His death occurred while three BHDC staff restrained David on the floor outside of the cafeteria. David's family contacted DRA and requested we investigate his death and the circumstances surrounding it.

DRA completed an extensive investigation into David's death. Our investigation involved reviewing the Adult Maltreatment Investigation Report, all witness statements, the DPSQA Complaint Investigation Report, the EMS report, hospital records, and the Coroner's report. Our office interviewed BHDC staff, including Tyler Mattson, Amy (Mandy) Jones, and Ryann Campos, the individuals who restrained David; Sandy Evans, the Adult Maltreatment Investigator; Jeff Gonyea, the Superintendent; and Mark Hines the NCI instructor. Our office also interviewed the Emergency Medical Services provider, Samuel Scow, who provided emergency services that day, as well as Michael Chrisman, the Deputy Coroner who was assigned to David's case.

Summary

David Cains was 42 years old, [redacted]

According to the BHDC Staff written statements and interviews with DRA staff:

On June 13, 2020, David ate his lunch in the cafeteria at the Commons Building. After finishing his meal, David put his tray away, asked to go to the restroom, and was accompanied to do so by Tyler. According to Tyler, David seemed irritated, asked to sit in the lobby to calm down after exiting the restroom, and then began screaming, ripping paper off the wall, and attempting to hit Tyler.

Tyler stated that he, "applied personals[1] by grabbing [David's] arms and ended up falling over."[2] David landed on his face and Tyler then rolled him to his side.[3] Tyler believes that this restraint began at 11:30 a.m., although all times are estimates as there are not any visible clocks in the area where the restraint occurred, according to all staff interviewed. Mandy Jones arrived shortly after David was brought to the ground and assisted in the restraint. According to all written witness statements, David was resisting the restraint at that time. Ryann Campos arrived sometime later and began holding David's legs.

[redacted]

From EMS Report and BHDC Staff written statements:

At 11:37 a.m. one of the nurses instructed BHDC staff to call 911.[7] At 11:50 a.m. Logan County EMS arrived.[8]

[redacted]

This entire event took place on the floor while three people were holding David by his legs, torso, and head. A fact that was omitted in reports to EMS, the hospital, the Coroner, and the family.

During our investigation, we noted several unresolved discrepancies between written statements, subsequent interviews, and investigative conclusions:

1) There is not a consensus between the employees involved regarding the positioning and actions of each employee, information pertinent to identifying not only potential wrongdoing, but also possible missteps to be avoided in the future.

[7] BHDC Policy IV-B-10 states that on-site medical should be the first call and that "medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate." All persons interviewed, including Superintendent Gonyea, interpreted the policy to prohibit non-medical staff from calling 911 in response to a medical emergency and confirmed that as the BHDC practice.

a. Ryann's written statement and subsequent interview by DRA staff were consistent with one another. She states that when she arrived David was on the ground on his left side, Tyler was on his knees facing David and holding his wrists, and David's hands were by his sides. Mandy "came to assist to position David's head so he wouldn't spit"[11] and then Ryann attempted to assist by holding David's ankles when he began to kick.

b. Mandy stated that when she arrived, "David was on his left side with his arms held up with his elbows bent slightly."[12] She states she assisted by holding David's hands so that he could not strike Tyler, who was positioned behind David. Mandy denied ever holding David's head during the restraint.

c. According to Tyler's written statement he was "squatted over him, not putting [his] weight on him during any of this, holding his shoulder and sides,"[13] Mandy assisted by "grabbing his hands," and Ryann held his legs down. During our interview, Tyler deviated from his written statement, stating "she [Mandy] was on his side behind him, holding his head on the side, keeping close to ground but not pushing on it"[14] because David was trying to bite. He also clarified his positioning as being behind David, who was laying on his left side and "spread out T-style"[15] with his left arm on the ground. Tyler was holding his right arm (not Mandy) and trying to get it to the ground. David's arms were never above his head.

d. Adult Maltreatment Investigation Report #5-2020, completed by Sandy Evans, fails to resolve discrepancies regarding the placement of David's hands and whether a staff member was holding his head in place during the restraint.

e. Cameras at the facility would have been immeasurably helpful in resolving the discrepancies and ultimately understanding the circumstances surrounding David's death.

2) A timeline of events included in two separate documents we received completely omits any reference to a restraint having occurred.

a. The DHS Incident Report includes a timeline of events provided by Stacy Weinbrenner, RN/DON, who does not appear to have been at the scene of the incident at any time.

i. According to the timeline at "11:30 a.m. – Immediately after lunch, David Cains headed to common area kicking, yelling, and biting. Tyler and Mandy attempted to settle client. Suddenly started vomiting and turning cyanotic."

1. Tyler and Mandy's written statements and interviews with DRA indicate that Mandy did not arrive until Mr. Cains was already on the ground and being restrained by Tyler, in conflict with the assertion here.
2. There is no evidence of either staff member attempting to "settle" David.

b. A similar statement is included in a "Timeline of Events" that appears to be a word document included in David's medical file. The statement is not attributed to anyone in this document.

When DRA interviewed Emergency Services Worker, Samuel Scow, he stated BHDC staff never informed them that David had been in a personal restraint prior to or during this incident. Samuel stated that they were told that David was found in the hallway, unconscious, and staff attempted abdominal thrusts prior to CPR. They were told that he had choked on his lunch. EMS relayed the same information to the ER staff at Mercy Hospital in Booneville.

[redacted]

The same misinformation was passed on to the investigating coroner, Deputy Coroner Michael Chrisman, [redacted] Mr. Chrisman stated:

[redacted]

When our office interviewed Mr. Chrisman, he stated he had no knowledge that David was restrained prior to or during this incident. He confirmed that his office would have further investigated had they received that information and would likely have requested an autopsy.

When BHDC staff contacted David's mother, they told her that David choked on his lunch and that the family would need to contact the hospital for any additional information. When the family called Mercy Hospital, they were informed David was deceased. David's family did not find out about the personal restraint until June 22nd – nine days after David passed away and three days after David's funeral. By the time the family learned of the circumstances surrounding his death it was too late for them to request an autopsy.

This was a tragic event. Any time an individual passes away while in the custody and care of the state a meaningful, critical evaluation of the policies and practices that led to that incident should be required. In this case, that evaluation included: (1) an investigation by an individual who is employed by the BHDC, working alongside those who she is charged to investigate; (2) a review and endorsement of that investigation by the superintendent who hired or who is ultimately responsible for the actions of those employees investigated; (3) the suppression or omission of relevant, if not crucial facts from agencies who would further investigate the circumstances of this gentleman's death.

The BHDC review of this death, endorsed by Superintendent Gonyea, concluded that no individual involved in this incident did anything wrong; therefore, nothing could have been done differently to prevent it and nothing can be learned from it. To date, we have not been informed whether BHDC has reviewed or revised their restraint policies or practices following this event.

At some time after the internal investigation concluded the Division of Provider Services and Quality Assurance (DPSQA) investigated David's death and the circumstances surrounding it. Very little information could be gleaned from the DPSQA Complaint Investigation Report reviewed by DRA. Despite the ability to attach narratives of staff interviews, none were found or made available upon our request. Ultimately, the DPSQA investigation concluded similarly to the internal investigation conducted by BHDC with no description of the events or statements from witnesses.

Practice of Restraints at BHDC

In 2012, DDS retained H&W Independent Solutions, who are self-described "skilled trainers and workshop facilitators on a wide range of topics pertinent to organizations supporting people with disabilities." In April of 2012, BHDC participated in a training survey with H&W to evaluate and improve the quality of care to the residents. During the evaluation of BHDC, H&W found that significant improvement was needed due to, in part, the BHDC staff's reliance on emergency restraint.

Nearly four years later, in January 2016, our office issued a report regarding the use of restraint at BHDC. We warned that risks associated with restraint include physical injuries, significant trauma, and death. We pointed out that the overuse of restraint could cause physical and emotional trauma to both the residents and the staff at BHDC. We recommended that BHDC retain an independent expert to implement evidence-based alternatives aimed to reduce or eliminate the use of restraint at BHDC.

NCI/CPI trains staff to respond to crisis by intervening in non-violent ways to prevent escalation and offers programs to certify staff in this skill. At the same time BHDC certifies its staff in the use of NCI/CPI, BHDC also trains its staff to restrain residents using methods that require no certification, are not evidence-based, and, when practiced, conflict with NCI/CPI training. It is concerning that BHDC staff are then left to choose between non-violent crisis intervention and physically/emotionally traumatizing physical restraint.

Findings

- David was diagnosed [redacted]
- Instead of releasing David when he was lying down on the floor, David was restrained on the hard floor by three BHDC staff after finishing his lunch.
- Prior to the restraint, Staff failed to use other less intrusive interventions such as NCI/CPI, for which they are trained.
- Staff failed to leave him on the floor, unrestrained, until he was calm.
- [redacted]
- This restraint likely either directly or indirectly led to David's death.
- The facility failed to properly communicate the circumstances of this incident to EMS.
- We found no evidence that the facility properly communicated the circumstances of this incident to the Arkansas State Police, the Logan County Sheriff's Office, or any other law enforcement agency.

- BHDC's investigation failed to resolve discrepancies in statements from witnesses.
- It is not the policy or practice of BHDC to permit direct care staff to call 911 in an emergency.
- NCI/CPI does not endorse or instruct any maneuver that involves physically restraining an individual on the floor.
- During interviews, BHDC direct care staff reported that they, "take people to the floor often."
- BHDC could not articulate what kind of "restraint technique" is being taught to staff.
- The conclusion from Superintendent Gonyea failed to find that anyone violated any policy or procedure and inexplicably failed to find that any policy or procedure might need review or modification.
- No corrective actions were made or recommended by BHDC or DHS - Division of Provider Services and Quality Assurance.
- BHDC failed to adequately inform David's family of the circumstances surrounding his death.

Recommendations

1. Install video cameras on campus. Video cameras on campus would greatly assist investigators in determining whether maltreatment has occurred. Presently, we have differing statements from individuals regarding a restraint on the floor that led to an individual's death.
2. Retrain all staff in NCI/CPI. NCI/CPI does not endorse the use of restraint while an individual is lying down on the floor. The very fact that NCI/CPI is touted as the intervention strategy implemented by BHDC, and yet this individual was restrained on the floor long enough to aspirate and die means that NCI/CPI was either ignored or forgotten.
3. Reevaluate the use of restraint in all forms and employ evidence-based, nonviolent methods of crisis intervention. A greater problem that exists is the overall reliance on restraint at BHDC. It is a culture of compliance that we see often in prisons. When individuals are not compliant, they are made to comply. If DHS does not address restraint and physical, mechanical, and chemical intervention as a system-wide problem, the culture cannot be meaningfully changed. Further, the physical restraints BHDC employs are not based on any professional training or sanctioned method.
4. Clarify or Modify policy to permit staff to contact 911 in response to emergency medical situations. Staff must have permission to identify and respond in an emergency. BHDC is a large campus in a rural area of the state. While it is comforting that nursing staff is available to respond to medical issues, the current policy forces staff to ignore what many first aid/CPR certification programs insist is the first step in responding to a crisis – calling 911.
5. Engage qualified, independent investigators to complete thorough, meaningful investigations on ALL deaths.

a. Utilize investigators that are completely independent of the Human Development Centers they investigate. While it is important that BHDC review incidents internally for quality improvement and staff oversight, there must be a truly independent investigation by a disinterested third party. At one time, DDS employed an attorney whose role was to investigate deaths at any HDC. We are unaware whether or why such a position no longer exists. Anyone DDS authorizes to investigate serious incidents should have no connection to the Human Development Centers they investigate. Investigators should be informed regarding the requesting of an autopsy and empowered to make such a request when warranted.

b. Ensure all investigations are reflective of the gravity of the circumstances investigated. Death investigations must be both thorough and critical. Investigations that lack specificity in their investigative processes and findings, do not include interviews of all involved parties, and by design can only substantiate maltreatment or declare nothing could have been done differently undermine confidence in the process. When a family is left to gradually learn new information regarding the death of their loved one, including that the coroner was not accurately informed of the circumstances surrounding the death, what else are they to be left with other than suspicion and anger? Instead, the trauma surrounding the death is amplified and revisited with each new fact they learn. That is not closure; that is not justice.

PROCEEDINGS

WHEREUPON, Mark Hise was duly sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and gave the following testimony to wit.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Hi, Mr. Hise. Your name's Mark Hise; correct?

A Yes.

Q I'm Josh Gillispie. I'm an attorney and I'm just going to be asking you a few questions here.

Have you ever been deposed before?

A Maybe. (Inaudible.)

Q Mr. Hise --

A Not that I remember.

Q Okay. I got it.

You were speaking and we weren't able to hear you for a moment. I think you were cutting out for a second.

But can you hear me?

A Yes. I can hear you fine.

Q Okay. I can hear you fine now. All right. Good.

So a couple of ground rules here. The court reporter is taking down everything we're saying and she has to make a clean record so that we can have a good transcript. So, to that effect, it's important to verbalize yeses and nos as opposed to head movements so she can hear it clearly and avoid hu-uh, uh-huhs and stuff. You know, try to say yes or no, if possible.

If you need to take a break, at any point, that's fine. Just let us know. And, other than that, you know, like I said -- did she swear you in already?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

So, you know, a deposition is you're giving testimony at a deposition just like if you were in court. You know, you're under oath, subject to perjury, all that. And so that's what a deposition is. And I'm just going to talk to you for a little bit today and you'll be done.

If you don't understand any of my questions, please let me know right away. Okay?

A Okay.

Q And I'll rephrase them or help you understand them, as best I can.

Mr. Hise, my understanding is you work in the staff development department at Booneville Human Development Center?

A Yes.

Q Okay. What is your job title there?

A Staff development coordinator.

Q Okay. You also work with a woman who is also a staff development coordinator?
A Yes.
Q And remind me of her name.
A Vanessa Wyrick.
Q Vanessa Wyrick. Okay.
Is there a Ms. Shipley?
A There was a former employee in staff development named Shigley, Sandra Shigley.
Q Okay. Sandra Shigley. And she's no longer there?
A Correct.
Q How long have you been at Booneville?
A I started in June of 1990, so almost 27 years.
Q Okay. And, when I say Booneville, I mean, of course, the Human Development Center.
A Sure. Almost 27 years.
Q Wow. And have you been in staff development that entire time?
A No, sir. I've been in staff development since 2016. I think around May 2016.
Q Okay. What did you do before staff development?
A I've had several different titles at BHDC. I started out as what's called a life skills trainer. I was working directly with the residents.
And I kind of worked my way up through the supervisory ranks. I worked down at resident training and our recycling project for three years.

I've been a program supervisor on the 4-12 shift for ten years. And I was program supervisor on dayshift for about three years before I transferred to staff development.

Q So you've kind of done a little bit of everything?

A Everything. I started at the ground level and worked my way up.

Q Okay. And did you say that you've worked in direct care, at one point, as well?

A Yes, sir. For about two years when I first started.

Q About how many years?

A Two years.

Q Ten or two?

A Two.

Q Two? I'm sorry. I just couldn't hear you.

And, since 2016, you've been the staff development coordinator; is that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And what does that job entail?

A Basically, we train our new employees on policies and procedures. You know, certified in CPR and nonviolent crisis intervention training.

A lot of policy and procedure.

Q Okay. And, when you say policies and procedures, do you mean all BHDC policies and procedures? That's up to you to train them in?
A It's not up to me. We have different instructors that do certain parts of the training.
Q Okay. What parts of the Booneville policy are you responsible for training them on?
A Okay. I'm responsible for teaching our residential service staff and our nursing staff CPR, first aid, and AED operations.
Q What's that? ADD?
A Yes.
Q What's that?
A Automated external defibrillator.
Q Oh, okay. I cut you off. Sorry. Go ahead.
A Okay. And I teach our nursing staff BLS, which is basic life support.

I also teach all new-hire staff the nonviolent crisis intervention techniques. I teach emergency procedures.

There's -- they go through a two-week classroom training and we have different instructors coming in at different times and do certain trainings.
Q And is that what y'all refer to as Phase One?
A Yes, sir.

Q And is Phase I Booneville's term or is Phase I a term of some external policy or external training program y'all have adopted?
A No, it's a BDS policy, that we do the trainings.
Q Okay. So where does the term phase come from? Whose term is that?
A It's been phase every since I started 27 years ago. It's just called phase training.
Q Okay.
A I think we might have called it preservice before we send our employees out to work directly with clients. They have to be trained on how to properly handle situations and work with our residents.
Q Okay. And do you think that -- so it's not just Booneville but it's your understanding that it's all the human development centers across the state --
A Yes, sir.
Q -- are utilizing this same phase terminology and phase training?
A Yes, sir.
Q Okay. So it's your understanding it comes from DDS? It's DDS's terminology, their program?
A Yes, sir.
Q Do you know who at DDS would be most knowledgeable about this particular topic?

A No, sir.
Q And you said there are multiple people -- so Phase I lasts for how long?
A Two weeks. It's 40 hours of classroom training.
Q Okay. And that also includes training on personal restraints?
A Yes.
Q And does it also --
A Personal holds is a terminology that we use.
Q Okay. And does it also include training on personal holds or personal restraints in emergency situations?
A Yes. That's the only time that we use personal holds here, in an emergency situation.
Q Fair enough.
And you said there are multiple people throughout that first two weeks phase that come in and provide training; correct?
A Correct.
Q Are they all under you? Are you the boss of all those people?
A No, sir. I do not hold a management title.
Q Okay.
A I'm not a supervisor in any way. I just coordinating the training.
Q I see.

Who provides the actual training for the personal holds?

A Okay. That would be myself. I'm a certified nonviolent crisis intervention instructor.

Q Okay. That was my next question.

A That's what we touch on mostly.

Q Okay. So you are NCI certified?

A Yes.

Q Okay. I've been looking through their materials. A lot of it is available online and I've been studying up on that the last couple days, so I was going to ask you for that.

And the personal holds that you teach, are those all based on NCI?

A Yes.

Q Okay. So, as far as you know, there are no personal holds authorized at Booneville, authorized use at Booneville, that would not be authorized by NCI?

A No. We only use the nonviolent crisis intervention techniques that's been instructed to teach.

Q Okay.

A That's what I train our staff.

Q Okay. And has it always been that way? Or has it changed over the years?

A Changed over the years. When I first started in 1995, we used what was called -- it was -- let me try and think of the name of it. It's been awhile.

Gosh. Okay. It was AMT. And I can't remember what it was --

Q That's okay. How long has it been NCI?

A We had to switch from NCI or what was called -- gosh. I'm drawing a blank here. I'm sorry.

Q That's okay. Take your time.

A Okay. When I first started up here, it was called AMT. And it was called aggression management training.

And then, probably five years later, we switched to another aggression type training. And it was called Tact, T-a-c-t.

Q Uh-huh.

A And, to the best of my knowledge, we switched to the NCI training around 2010, possibly. Somewhere in there.

Q At the time of David Cains' death, y'all were using NCI?

A Yes.

Q And David passed away in June of 2020.

Has the personal restraint training changed in any way since David's death? Or personal hold training, however you want to call it.

A No.

Q Okay. So, since June of 2020, there's been no changes in what's allowed, what's not allowed, et cetera, as it relates to personal holds?

A No.
Q Okay. So is Phase One broken down into part one and part two?
A Yes. Uh-huh. We do Phase One, 40 hours on the first week. Then they go out for OJT for one full week. And then come back for the Phase One, Part Two, for another 40 hours.
So it's actually three weeks of training, including the on-the-job.
Q Okay. OJT, on the job.
And which part of it is the personal hold -- is it Part One or Part Two where the personal holds are taught?
A Part One. And then we do a refresher on it before we actually send them out on the floor.
Q Gotcha.
A So it's covered two times during the training.
Q Okay. And my understanding is there are written tests that new hires have to pass in order graduate from Phase One, part one and two.
A Correct.
Q And is there also a written test, a separate written test that relates solely to the personal holds?
A Yes. It's through the NCI, Nonviolent Crisis

Institute. They had their own test that we give them with their book and their workbook whenever we're doing the class.

Q Okay. I think I have that here. I don't know if it's the same one, but y'all use the NCI test?

A Yes.

Q And my understanding is, in order to pass, each person has to get 70 percent or better, at least 70 percent of the answers correct; is that right?

A Correct.

Q And that's both for the restraint portion of the test but then also just the overall score of their test as well?

A Correct.

Q And these tests, these written test scores, are they kept by your office? Are they kept in personnel files?

A They're kept in staff development, in the employee's personal training file.

Q I think my understanding is not all of phase is NCI. Just the personal hold, personal restraint portion, is NCI based?

A Correct.

Q Okay. Sorry to ask repeat questions. All of this stuff is new to me and I'm just trying to wrap my head around it.

A I understand.
Q Do you recall if you conducted the training for the three direct care staff that were involved in the death incident of Mr. Cains?
A Not right off. I can't say that I was the one that conducted the initial training.
But it's our policy and procedure that they get recertified every two years; so I would have been in the recertification process.
Q And I'm sorry. I didn't even tell you who they were. Tyler Mattson, Ryann Campos, and Mandy Jones, Amy Jones. I think she goes by Mandy.
Do you recall anything specifically about their phase training?
A No. That was -- we train a lot of staff the initial training. No, I can't say for certain that they -- that I was in staff development when they went through Phase One training. I would have to look at the dates.
Q Well, I'm pretty certain that all three of them came to work at Booneville around 2017 or later, I want to say.
So, assuming that's true, despite whether you were the one that gave the training, would they have received the same training that we're talking about here today?
A Yes, sir.

Q Okay.
And then have you looked, have you gone back and looked at their test scores in preparation for today?
A No, I have not.
Q Okay. So you couldn't tell me what their test scores were off the top of your head?
A Not off the top of my head. But I have access to their file right here.
Q Okay. Well, yeah. If you've got it right there, I'd be curious to know. I'm going to ask Mr. Collins to give me copies of it. But, just for the purposes of today, that'd be helpful, if you don't mind taking a quick look.
A Okay.
Q Do you need a minute? Do you want us to go off the record for a minute while you find those?
A Sure.
Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: Come back in like five minutes.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Mr. Hise, what did you find?

A Okay. Let me explain this to you.

Last year, we got relocated out of the HR building and moved to a different area. And so I do not have the deleted files on Campos and Mattson whenever they worked here the time before. Okay? I would have to do some digging and find those.

But, since Mandy Jones has been a current employee, I do have her file.

Q Okay. And what does hers reflect?

A Okay. It reflects that she successfully passed the NCI training.

Q Okay. Does it --

A I can show you the letter. Can you see it or. . .

Q I mean, does it say how she did on the test?

A It's just pass or fail.

Q Okay. So you don't keep a record of somebody if they got a 70 percent, 71 percent, or a 99 percent?

A Just on the final exam, all the things that were covered.

But, on the NCI training itself, it -- she passed.

Q Okay. Well, I'm going to, at some point, ask Eric to produce a copy of those things. You'll probably have to at least try to find some of those at some point. But you don't have to worry about it right now.

A Okay.

Q Okay.

Is everyone who would be teaching this NCI training in NCI certified as well?

A Correct. Yes.

Q Okay.

A The Crisis Prevention Institute's policy is that we have to be recertified every two years.

Q Okay. And I know you are. I just was asking, you know, you said there's other people that do training.

Who else is NCI certified at Booneville right now?

A Vanessa Wyrick.

Q Was Ms. Shigley?

A She was.

Q There was a video produced to me with you and a lady demonstrating transitioning to the ground.

Was that Ms. Wyrick or Ms. Shigley?

A No, that was Ms. Wyrick.

Q That was Ms. Wyrick? Okay.

And, real quick, Phase Two, does Phase Two involve personal holds or restraints at all? Phase Two training.

A We do like a refresher type training.

Q Okay. And then there's another test at the end of Phase Two?

A Correct.

Q And phase Two is only available to folks who have maintained their employment for six months?

A Correct.
Q And then decent employees, I believe?
A Sure.
Q Okay.
And then, after this initial phase training, Phase One and Phase Two -- and I apologize if you already told me this. In fact, I think you might have but I can't recall what you said.
How often are the direct care staff given refresher courses or retraining in the use of personal holds?
A Our procedure is that they get retrained every two years.
Q Okay. And is that procedure consistently complied with?
A Oh, yes.
Q Okay. Other than what we've already talked about -- and I'm assuming the answer's no.
But, other than what we've talked about, is there any other form of training provided to staff related to personal holds?
A No.
Q Okay.
Mr. Hise, I saw that video for transitioning to the ground. Am I correct that video is demonstrating how to safely -- and, again, this is the video with you and Ms. Wyrick and there's a volunteer and then there's a long-haired young man standing behind you acting as a spotter. You know what I'm talking about?

A Correct.

Q You know the video I'm talking about?

A Yes.

Q And I correct that what you're demonstrating in that video is how to safely transition a client to the ground for purposes of putting them in a mechanical restraint?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Is there any other purpose that you teach for transitioning a client to the ground?

A No.

Q Are staff members taught to restrain clients while the client is on the ground for purposes unrelated to transitioning to a mechanical restraint?

A No. The only reason that they would use the transition to the ground is putting a resident in mechanical restraint.

Q Okay.

So if a staff member, if a direct care staff member, were to hold a client on the ground because that client is having a behavior episode and that staff member were to hold that client on the ground, restrain that client while they're on the ground for several minutes, hoping the client will calm down, would that be an improper restraint?

A I really don't have enough information to speculate on that. That's -- you know, I don't know the details of the situation. Could you be a little bit more specific?

Q Sure.

A I do not teach that, no. I do not teach staff to hold a resident on the ground.

Q Right. And that's my understanding as well. My understanding has been, from what I'm reading in the NCI and what I've gathered from witnesses such as Ms. Jones is that clients are only to be taken to the ground in emergency situations where they're needing to be transitioned to a papoose board or a mechanical restraint; is that correct?

A Correct.

Q Okay.

A The training that we teach in NCI is a standing personal hold and a seated personal hold. There is no on-the-ground personal hold.

Q Okay. Therefore, if a staff member were to be using a on-the-ground personal hold, that would not -- that would be outside of what is allowed by NCI?

A Unless it was during a restraint procedure, an emergency mechanical restraint procedure.

Q Unless it was what?
A During an emergency mechanical restraint procedure. A resident had to be placed in a mechanical restraint.
Q Okay. But, in a situation where there is no mechanical restraint involved at all, that should not be done?
A Correct.
Q All right.
My understanding is you teach -- and I assume this is in Phase One. You teach staff techniques for responding to situations, different situations, where a client is behaving aggressively.
My question is, is there something specific that you teach for staff to use in response to a client who is slapping at them or acting like they're going to hit them or even swinging at them?
A Absolutely. De-escalation techniques. Trying to --
Q Okay.
A Verbal control of the situation. You know, first, you ask the resident that's being aggressive or in a crisis situation, to stop the act.
Q Okay.
A And then, you know, we teach our staff to, you know, redirect the resident, remove them from the situation.

So, yes, there's several different procedures that we use before we ask staff to put hands on. We teach our staff to only put hands on when all other measures have been exhausted.

Q Okay. And, in the situation where a client swings at a staff member, does that one act of swinging at the staff member, does that allow the staff to deem that an emergency situation and immediately use physical force?

A If they can't gain verbal control of the situation or redirect the resident.

Q Okay. But, if they're being swung on, how do they try to use verbal control or other de-escalations without using force when a client, you know, slaps at them?

Do they, you know, try to back away? Get out of the way? I'm asking --

A What we do, we go into -- the staff are trained to go into a supported stance to where you're ready in case the resident does swing at you.

Q Uh-huh.

A We try to de-escalate the situation, ask the resident, hey, what's wrong, can we go outside and talk about this, can you tell me what's bothering you.

Redirection. You know, try to get the resident's mind off what's bothering them and open up to staff and talk to them.

Q How about staff preventing themselves from getting hit though?
A Okay. If a resident is coming at you, we teach a blocking technique.
Q Yeah. Please tell me about that.
A Okay. In the supported stance, if a resident was coming at you, you would put your hands up and deflect and step away.
Q Okay.
A Stand back. Not step toward the resident. Step back.
Q Okay.
And what you teach, in that situation, a staff member absolutely has to at least try that or some other de-escalation technique before taking physical hold of the client?
A That is correct.
Q Okay.
Now, what about in a situation where a client is coming at a staff member and that staff member loses control of the situation and they both fall to the ground together?
In that situation, what would you recommend or train for that particular situation?
And if I need to reword that I can.

A Could you be a little bit more specific?
Q Yeah. So let me just tell you what mister -- first of all, let me ask you this, Mr. Hise.
Did you look at any documents to prepare for today?
A No, sir. I have limited knowledge of this incident.
Q Okay. Did you speak --
A The only document that I'd seen was my deposition order and I talked to Eric for a bit.
Q Okay. Other than Eric, have you talked to anyone else --
A No.
Q -- about what happened to David?
A No.
Q Do you have any knowledge about the incident that led to his death?
A No, I do not.
Q Okay. You're not aware of the restraints used by Mr. Mattson, Ms. Jones, and Ms. Campos?
A No.
Q Okay.
So what I'm going to do is, as best I can, I'm going to tell you what they said happened. When I deposed Mr. Mattson, Mr. Mattson says that Mr. Cains became upset and charged at him. And, originally, he said he swung at him. And then, when I deposed him, Mr. Mattson said that he thought that maybe David was trying to wrap his arms around him.

But what was consistent in his story was that he and Mr. Cains both ended up falling over onto the ground in the lobby of the Commons building outside of the cafeteria. Are you familiar with that area?

A Yes. That's the building that I work in.

Q Yeah. You've been there since 1995; obviously, you're familiar with it.

And so Mr. Mattson, in his written statement that he gave to Ms. Evans and the statement that he gave to Disability Rights and in the deposition statement he gave to me, says they ended up on the ground together and that David -- I'm not show how he landed. He may have landed on his face. I'm not sure.

But, for purposes of my question, just know that David ended up on his left side and Tyler then knelt behind him and placed his arms on various parts of his body to kind of hold him there.

A couple of minutes later, Ms. Jones hears the commotion, she comes in and she kneels down and either holds David by the hands or by the head, depending on who you're asking. If you ask her, she says by the hands; if you ask Ms. Campos, she'll say by the head.

And then, a couple minutes later, Ms. Campos arrived and joins in on the restraint and holds David by the legs because he's -- they're saying he's kicking and flailing and spitting.

And they do that for several minutes. I'm assuming that is definitely not something that you teach.

A No, sir.

Q Okay.

So my question would be, in that situation where Tyler or any other staff member and David Cains or any other client were to fall over together, would NCI say that the staff members should immediately get up and give the client some space?

A No. But that's the main reason why we use a supported stance.

You know, we teach the supported stance as, you know -- of course, when you're doing it, you're getting prepared so you don't go off balance.

It's not only for the safety of the resident, it's for -- you know, it communicates respect to where you're not like, you know, being forceful towards the resident.

You take a step back.

Q Yeah. So if the training had been properly utilized, you shouldn't fall over to begin with; is that what you're saying?

A I'm saying that the supported stance should not allow anybody to fall to the ground.

Q And that supported stance, they're trained in that supported stance? They should know how to use that; right?
A Correct. That's the first order of actions whenever you are intervening during a crisis situation.
Q Okay. Aside from that, let's say, for whatever reason, they both do end up on the ground.
What would be the proper thing for the staff to then do if he, you know, tumbles over with a client?
A Staff members should get up and get off the ground. And, you know, if the resident is still in crisis situation, you know, there's no policy saying that you have to intervene with a resident that's in crisis mode that's on the ground.
Q Right.
A Unless they were being put into a mechanical restraint.
Q But, in that situation, you'd at least get up, give them some space, and see if the separation, at least, can de-escalate the client's behavior?
A Sure.
Q Okay.
A Correct.
Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm going to take five minutes to confer with Garrett and then we can hopefully wrap up pretty soon.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Mr. Hise, I've just got a couple more questions for you.

A Okay.

Q I wanted to ask you about what constitutes an emergency situation.

And I think I have understanding of what it is; and I'll tell you what my understanding of it is and you tell me if I'm right.

Is an emergency situation a situation where severe injury is imminent or likely to occur to a client or staff member?

A We like to use the terminology crisis situation.

Q Okay. Well, flesh that out for me. And define with the bare minimum, the minimum -- well, what would count as an emergency situation?

A Okay. One, you would have to put hands on them.

Q Okay. But what kind of -- any time a client tries to hit a staff member, is that an emergency situation?

A Not necessarily. It could be an escalation.
Q Okay. What I just descried to you as having happened to Mr. Cains there where those three staff members restrained him on the ground, do you recall my description of that?
A Yes.
Q Okay. I know you weren't there. But assuming that my description of that is accurate, would you agree with me that that was unnecessary physical contact they were making with him?
A You know, I can't really speculate. I don't know the -- it's hard to say without being in that situation.
Q Well, we've already said that it's definitely against NCI policy.
A Correct.
Can I ask, the staff members, when they were restraining the resident on the ground, were they preparing to do the mechanical restraint procedure?
Q No.
A Okay.
Q No. And, assuming everything I'm telling you about it is accurate, assuming that's -- you know, you've said that's definitely not something they're trained in and that would mean it's something they're not supposed to do?

A Correct.
Q All right.
A Unless they were applying the mechanical restraint.
Q Right. And, when a mechanical restraint is to be applied, that's to be done in the way shown in that video; right?
A Correct.
Q There's no other way that they're allowed to get a client to the ground or keep a client on the ground for that purpose, is there?
A No. Definitely not by yourself.
Q Okay.
A Never try to restrain a client by, you know -- in that situation, on the ground, by yourself.
Q Okay.
A You know, that's dangerous.
Q And, when you're transitioning a client to the ground for an emergency mechanical restraint, I would assume that the client, you want to keep the client on the ground for as little time as possible; right?
A Correct.
Q So you'd want to have -- you know, you wouldn't do it unless you had that papoose board or mechanical restraint device nearby to complete the transition;

right?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
Did you ever serve as a maltreatment investigator at Booneville?
A Could you be more specific? I mean, I've done administrative reviews, but I've never had any formal training on maltreatment investigating.
Q Okay. Yeah. You would have received some sort of training from Little Rock on --
A No.
Q -- the certification process.
I know Sandy Evans investigated this particular incident or investigated the three staff involved to determine whether or not there was any maltreatment.
Were you questioned at all during that investigation?
A No.
Q Okay. Have you ever been questioned for any type of maltreatment investigation?
A Yes. Several times.
Q Have you yourself ever been the subject of a maltreatment investigation?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And it's not particularly relevant, but when was that?

A Oh, probably around 2006. Maybe 2007, somewhere in there. I was put on administrative leave for a maltreatment investigation. But it was cleared.
Q Okay. Do you recall what the basic allegation was? Did it have anything to do with restraints?
A No.
Q No? Okay. That's fine.
So Booneville Human Development Center does not authorize the use or train staff in the use of restraining clients on the ground except when doing so for the specific purpose of transitioning to a mechanical restraint; correct?
A Correct.
But, also, keep in mind too, you know, a lot of times, whenever your staff transition a resident to the ground, they may calm down. And, if they're calm and not fighting no more, we don't carry on with the restraint procedure.
Q Sure. Sure.
A I just wanted to make that clear.
Q Yeah.
Meaning that, if three staff members or two staff members were to properly transition someone to the ground for that purpose and then the client calmed down before they got them on the board, you wouldn't put them on the board?

A That is correct.
Q Good. That makes a lot of sense.
But, when there's no board present, there's no mechanical restraint present, not even contemplated, the staff has no business just holding the client on the ground in the way that I described?
A I'd say not.
Q Okay. Because there's so many other de-escalation options that not only could but have to be tried first; right?
A Correct.
Q And so it would be just unnecessary for a staff member to make that physical contact with the client on the ground in the way I described?
A I would say that's fair.
Q I saw in the NCI nonviolent crisis intervention workbook or training materials that it specifically talks about how certain types of restraints, particularly ground restraints, are very dangerous because they can lead to things like asphyxiation.
Are you familiar with what I'm talking about?
A Sure. I have the definition.
If you don't restraint -- restraint related position asphyxial.

Q Right.
A You know, that's one of the -- when we begin the training, you know, during our introduction, we tell people about the dangers of using restraints.
Q Do you tell them specifically about the dangers of using ground restraints?
A Any restraint. It don't --
Q Any restraint.
But you know the -- you just said it. You know the section I'm talking about. And then it has these -- I ought to just pull it up here. And then we're going to be done. Give me just a second.
Okay. I should now be sharing a screen with you. Do you see that?
A Yes. That doesn't look familiar to me. I don't know that I've ever -- could you tell me a -- is there a page number?
Q Well, yeah. And I got this document -- it's the Nonviolent Crisis Intervention, understand the risks of restraint.
A Right.
Q Dangers of restraints.
And it talks about these -- the restraint related positional asphyxia. That's what you said earlier;

right?
A Correct.
Q But you --
A I've never seen that particular page in my instructor manual.
Q Okay.
A It doesn't look familiar.
And it's saying that it looked like it was revised in 2012?
Q Yeah. I got that one off line. It may not be -- I'll need to use the one that you were given. And if it's been produced to me, I just haven't found it yet.
Regardless, what is your understanding of these? What did you call it?
A Could you be more specific about -- restraint related positional asphyxia? Is that --
A Okay.
Q So the workbook that you have or the manual that you have, what does it say about examples of restraints that are particularly risky for that? Asphyxia.
A Can I read you the definition?
Q Yeah.
A Okay. It says a fatal condition that occurs when the position of a person's body interferes with respiration and results in asphyxia or suffocation.

Q But your materials don't specifically address how on the ground scenarios are most likely to lead to this?
A I've never seen that page that you showed me there.
Q Okay.
A That's not in my manual.

MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, do you know if his manual was produced?

MR. COLLINS: I don't know off the top of my head.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay. Give me just a moment. I think I know where it might be if it was.

THE WITNESS: My instructor manual was updated May of 2018.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay. May of 2018?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. GILLISPIE: All right. Just a moment. If I have it, it's here, and I'll find it.

THE WITNESS: I mean, my manual, where it talks about understanding the risk of physical restraints, it starts on Page 155. And it says understanding the risk of physical restraints, theories of related -- restraint related deaths, positional asphyxia, and restraint position, prolonged physical restraint. It's in the very back of my instructor manual.

MR. GILLISPIE: All right. Yeah, I just have a very small part of NC -- it doesn't look like I have the same thing. That's okay.

MR. COLLINS: Josh, the small part you said, how long is it? How many pages?

MR. GILLISPIE: What I have from, it looks like it's NCI, is -- it looks like it's only about ten pages or so. It's Bates Stamped 2784. It's called CPI's top ten de-escalation tips.

MR. COLLINS: Okay. Thank you.

MR. GILLISPIE: And then there's a part called risk of physical restraints.

But it doesn't sound like it's the same as what Mark was reading from. But it's fine, I think. It's fine. I can do without it for now.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Okay.

Mark, are you also involved or do you also train staff to be conscious of clients, any medical conditions a client might have that could be compromised by a personal hold?

A Absolutely. That's covered pretty intensely throughout the phase training.
Q Okay.
Now, Mr. Cains, David Cains, was on [redacted]
This incident occurred just after lunch. That's something that's taught heavily though, that staff need to be aware of things like that in making decisions about interventions?
A Sure. Yes.
Q Okay.
A Choking is a major thing at our facility. You know, we have a lot of residents that, you know, have a lot of different healthcare needs.
Q Uh-huh.
A Choking -- you know, choking is a really high priority.
Q Would you say that choking is the most likely bad outcome from a personal hold?
A No, I couldn't say that. That's not what I'm saying.
I mean, I'm just saying that we've had client deaths in the past due to choking. But, usually, that was, you know, choking on food or accidental choking incidents.

Q Uh-huh. Okay.
A I personally never heard of a death due to a restraint incident and choking together.
Q I'm sorry. Say that again.
A In my career, I haven't experienced a choking death with a resident during a restraint procedure.
Q What kind of injuries to clients have you heard of during restraints?
A There's, you know, bumps and bruises, cuts and scrapes.
Q Okay. And have you ever heard of a client aspirating and choking on their own vomit at Booneville?
A Let's see. It seems like in 2010, we had a client-related death to where he had choked on some lunch meat and they -- they had trouble clearing the airway.
Q I don't mean just deaths. It's my understanding that a lot of clients there [redacted]

And I'm asking if you just -- not necessarily incidents that resulted in death but incidents where a client aspirates and chokes on their own vomit. Which I'll represent to you is what happened to Mr. Cains while he was being restrained on the ground by those three staff members.
A I did not know that.

Q Well, I don't think I have anymore questions for you, Mr. Hise.

Have you understood all of my questions?

A Yes.

Q Is there anything you feel like you need to clarify for me?

A No. I just want to reiterate that, you know, we don't train our staff to restrain residents on the ground unless it's for the purpose of placing them in emergency mechanical restraints.

And if, any time during that process, if the resident calms down, we don't follow -- we stop the restraint procedure once they're calm.

Q Uh-huh.

All right. Well, I appreciate your honest testimony.

A Okay.

Q Thank you very much.

A Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Eric, do you have any?

MR. COLLINS: Yeah. I have a few follow-up questions for you.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. COLLINS:

Q I guess we're going to start with your testimony earlier about the blocking.

So, when they're doing this blocking, are they standing rigid or are they expected -- I believe Tyler said it's a blocking plus a moving backwards type operation.

Which of those is the accurate assumption?

A In the supported stance.

Q Supported stance.

A Yes.

Q Okay.

A Block and would move backwards.

Q Say that again.

A You would block and remove or move backwards like in a retreating type.

Q Okay. And, if there was something blocking their movement, what steps should they take at that time?

A Pivot. We teach a -- pivot away.

Q If they're being blocked from pivoting or moving backwards, what steps should they take?

A Could you be a little bit more specific?

Q Okay. I believe Tyler testified to a ledge that was behind him that, had he backed away or moved behind, he would have fell over anyways; so that's why he chose not to back away. So, in that instance, what would he have done if he assessed the situation and decided not to back away?

A It would be hard for me to speculate on that.
Q They don't teach them what to do in that situation?
A Like whenever you're backed up against a ledge?
Q Uh-huh.
A I personally have never, you know, been put in that type of situation.
Q Okay.
When you're in the supported stance -- have you ever seen Mr. Cains or met Mr. Cains?
A Oh, yes. I've worked with David for -- ever since he was enrolled at our facility.
Q Okay. So are you aware of his size?
A I am.
Q How tall would you say he is? If you had to guess.
A He's probably about my height, 5'10".
Q Okay. And how much do you think he weighs? How much do you think he would have weighed?
A Maybe 160, 160 pounds; 170, maybe.
Q What if I told you that the medical records show he's around 6'2", 250 pounds?
A Wow. Okay.
Q I understand he was there for a while, so his weight may have fluctuated. But that was approximately his weight at the time of --

A He had put on some pandemic pounds, to me.
Q Okay.
So in the supported stance, if you had a resident charging you that was approximately that size, do you think that you'd be able to, you know, take a hit from that?
A Sure. Possibly. Uh-huh.
Q Would it possibly force you backwards?
A Yes, possibly.
Q Okay. And, if you had a ledge behind you and were contemplating the fact that you were going to get knocked over, would that possibly change how you would react to that situation?
A Possibly.
Q Okay.
Mr. Gillispie kind of gave you a rundown of the situation. And while it's largely accurate, I do disagree with some of the facts in there, so I'm going to add some additional facts and see how that maybe changes your opinion on it.
A Okay.
Q So, as Mr. Gillispie said, Tyler Mattson's testimony was that David had stood up, charged at him.
There was some discrepancy as to whether or not he was swinging at him or attempted to wrap him up.

Mr. Mattson, I believe, said that he attempted to hold his wrist or hold his arms; they fell down together.

At this point, I believe Mr. Mattson and the other two, Ms. Campos and Mandy's testimony, kind of all covers the same things, that Tyler was simultaneously attempting to kick, attempting to punch. He was spitting on them.

I believe Mandy said, if I can get her actual quote here, that David was yelling that he wanted to kill Tyler.

So that's the situation that's going as they're maintaining a physical hold on the ground.

When confronted with that situation, is it your belief that they should have released him and stepped away? Or do you believe that maybe that risk was too great at that time?

A It sounds like, to me, you know, that was at the heightened stage of a crisis situation.

You know, if the resident is threatening to kill you and spitting at you and charging you and hitting you, I would say that it would possibly be necessary for the resident to be put in mechanical restraints.

Now, I say that from my point of view. But I wasn't there. I don't know the specifics.

Q Yeah, it's all speculation for you. I understand that.

A That would be at the high end of a crisis situation.
Q Okay.
And NCI, does it cover every situation that you guys might face?
A Knowing this field, Eric, it's a -- you know, it changes all the time.
Q Okay. But is it kind of a high-level overview of the most common situations you guys might face?
A Yes. But a lot of things -- this is kind of irrelevant. But we're seeing a lot of trauma-informed care.
Q Uh-huh.
A That's the new terminology, that we're kind of having to adjust, adapt and adjust our training methods to deal with more trauma-informed care type residents.
Q I'm just going to go out there to the more far out thing. Let's say a resident had a gun and was pointing it at someone.
Does NCI teach you how to handle that situation?
A No. We don't -- no weapons.
Q So the NCI teaches you specific holds. Are you always able to perform that hold a hundred percent accurate or is it expected that you're going to have somebody weigh one way or the other?
A You know, it all depends on the situation.

You know, if it's a hot summertime and you're trying to physically hold somebody and they're sweaty, and -- you know, it would be possible for you to, you know, lose your grip and slip and maybe get busted in the nose or, you know, fall backwards. Or -- I mean, it could happen.

Q Okay.

A No intervention is foolproof.

Q Gotcha.

So what I'm kind of getting at, the NCI, that's a set of guidelines on how to handle these situations then?

A Correct.

Q Best case scenario is the scenarios that are found in --

A Sure.

Q Okay.

A The (inaudible) values of the nonviolent crisis intervention is, you know, the care, welfare, and safety and security of all persons involved.

Q Okay. When you're approaching a crisis or you're evaluating a crisis, do you teach your students that it's not a crisis unless someone is actually physically hit?

A No.

Q No? So they can intervene to prevent that hit from happening in the first place?

A Well, you know, if you had a resident that was being verbally aggressive, you're going to try to use a de-escalation technique to, you know, find out what's wrong with the resident.

Q Okay. I'll rephrase it a little bit. I was being too broad there.

I'm talking about physical intervention.

A Okay. Because --

Q I understand you're going to have the verbal interventions, you're going to have the removing them, de-escalading.

But, a physical intervention, are they allowed to physically intervene even if they've not been literally hit?

So for instance, in this case, someone's been kicking at them, swinging at them, are they allowed to intervene, even though they haven't physically been hit?

A Sure. I mean, say, if you had two residents that was involved in a fist fight, you know, staff have to intervene and break that up.

Q Okay.

A You might get hit in the process.

Q Okay.

MR. COLLINS: I have nothing further.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Mark, did you know David Cains to be particularly violent or aggressive?
A I knew David. You know, he was pretty happy-go-lucky. He -- sometimes, you know, I supervised the unit he lived in whenever we first got him. And, sometimes, he would get sad over certain things and he would, you know, cry a little bit.
Q Uh-huh.
A But I'd never really known him to, you know, be physically aggressive.
I want to say that's -- that's a possibility with any resident that we have at BHDC, you know.
Q Did you ever witness or do you know of David causing a physical injury to another person?
A I would have to think about that.
It's, you know. . .
Q That you can specifically recall as you sit here today.
A No.
I remember one time, whenever I was a program supervisor, that I got a call from the sheriff's department and had to go or send some staff to go get David from his hometown because he had become aggressive toward his mother.
Q Uh-huh.

A And we had to go --
Q But as far as staff or other clients at Booneville, you don't know of any situations where he caused an injury?
A No.
Q I'm sorry, no?
A No.
Q And, as far as the situation at his mother's house, do you have any knowledge of whether he caused an injury there?
A I can't speculate on that. I don't remember the details. That's been a long time ago.
Q No, I'm not asking you to speculate. I'm actually asking the opposite.
I'm asking, do you know what he did or didn't do at his mother's house on that occasion?
A I know that it was serious enough to where I got a call from the sheriff's department to send staff to get him, so. . .
Q Okay. Do you have any personal knowledge to whether any injuries occurred in that incident?
A No.
Q Okay.
And I assume David was never violent with you, personally.

A Not that I remember.
Q Okay.
Are there certain clients over the years who, if I asked you the same question, you'd say, yes, certainly, that person is dangerous and violent?
A Sure.
Q Okay.
A You know, for 27 years, I've had black eyes and bloody noses. You know, I was stabbed with a piece of glass one time. You know, it's -- it's the nature of the profession.
Q Right. I don't doubt it. I don't doubt it.
But David was not one of those clients where you felt the need to, you know, have your guard up more than normal?
A I didn't; because, you know, I never worked directly with David.
Q Okay.
A You know, I supervised the unit that he lived in for a while.
Q But he didn't have that kind of reputation, as far as you know? He didn't have that reputation for being a particularly -- you know, a dangerous client?
A Not dangerous. I mean, he would have his, you know, typical bad days to where --

Q Uh-huh.
A -- he'd throw things and break things.
Q Uh-huh.
A That's just typical.
Q Yeah.
This area that we're talking about outside of the cafeteria in the Commons building, I've not been up there. I've not seen the room or -- it's been described as a lobby to me in which this incident took place. My understanding is there's a bathroom in the room.
Tell me, do you know exactly the room that I'm describing?
A I do. It's right outside my door.
Q Okay. Is there a ledge in that room?
A There is.
Q And, when you say a ledge, what do you mean? What is it --
A It's a retaining wall that goes along the top of a stairwell.
Q Uh-huh.
A So there's a stairwell that goes down to go outside the exit doors; and there's that ledge to keep, you know, somebody from, you know, walking --
Q Okay.
A -- walking off the ledge.

Q Okay. So there's a ledge; and then, below it -- and then, next to the ledge, there's a stairwell that goes down?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
Let's say that David and Tyler are the only two people in that room, which they were when this incident started, and you had this ledge. And let's assume, for argument's sake, that Tyler is telling the truth about being close to that ledge. I say argument's sake because he didn't mention the ledge in any statement up until the time of his deposition.
But, assuming he's telling the truth about being close to that ledge, couldn't he still have sidestepped away? Couldn't he have sidestepped away to avoid the client and the ledge?
A It's kind of hard to say, I mean, unless you're in that situation yourself.
I mean, I can't -- I don't want to say that he did the wrong thing or did the right thing. I can't really say.
I mean, I would think that there would have been room, I mean, because that goes into the cafeteria doors there. And there's two doors that lead into the cafeteria.

Q I mean, unless it's a crowded room where he doesn't have room to go left to right, I don't see how he could not have room to sidestep.
A Yeah.
Q I mean, is that -- am I --
A I would think that there would be room.
Q Okay.
And, even if there wasn't, he was taught a positioning technique to support himself anyhow, as you previously said.
A Supported stance. Correct.
Q Supported stance. All right.
MR. GILLISPIE: That's all I have. Thank you.
MR. COLLINS: I have nothing further.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Mr. Gonyea, thank you for being here today.

My name is Josh Gillespie. I'm the attorney for the Estate of Mr. David Cains and his sister, Christine McAuliffe, who is the Special Administrator of that Estate and the claimant in this matter.

Have you ever been deposed before, Mr. Gonyea?

A I don't believe so.

Q Okay. Well, not a lot of rules to it.

Because she has to make a record, it's important that -- to verbalize yeses and nos as opposed to nodding or shaking your head is we're -- want to do.

A Okay.

Q Although we are filming it, if you don't understand a question, let me know.

A Okay.

Q I'll rephrase it.

Oftentimes, you're going to hear your attorney make an objection. And, typically, you're still going to need to answer the question unless he tells you, you know, specifically tells you not to answer.

The purpose of these objections is sort of the attorneys talking to each other; it's to make a record for the trial or the hearing in this case.

A Okay.

Q But you are going to hear that. And we may talk back and forth a little bit; but, when we're done, you're still expected to answer unless your attorney tells you not to answer.

A Okay.
Q Okay?
If you need to take a break, we can do that. Let me know. I'd only ask that you wait until there's not a pending question on the table.
A Okay.
Q So, with that said, tell me a little bit about your background and how you ended up becoming the superintendent of the Booneville Human Development Center.
A I started with DHS in 1998.
Q Okay.
A And I started Behavioral Health. I worked with the State Hospital and Arkansas Health Center.
And deployed to Iraq in 2003. When I came back, I came back to DDS, worked in the Community Waiver Program for about five years. And then, in January of 2010, became the superintendent up at Booneville Human Development Center.
Q Okay. Oh, and for purposes of today, when I say Booneville, I'm talking about the facility.
A Right.
Q I might say, BHDC, also talking about this facility.
A That's fine.

Q But, more than likely, I'm going to say Booneville.
A Okay.
Q So you were in the military?
A Correct.
Q Okay. Thank you for your service.
A Thank you.
Q What branch of military were you in?
A Ten years Air Force, 12 years Army.
Q Okay. And you served overseas in Iraq for a period of time?
A Correct.
Q And, prior to that, you began at DHS 1998, you said?
A That's correct.
Q All right. What was your -- what's your educational background?
A I have a Bachelor of Science.
Q Okay.
And skipping ahead somewhat, prior to being appointed the superintendent of Booneville in 2010, what was your job title?
A Before Booneville, Director of Waiver Services, Home Community Based Waiver Services.
Q Okay. Is that at a -- would you have worked at a particular facility doing that job or is that a job that you would --

A No, it was here in the central office.
Q Okay.
A I was responsible for the state, so --
Q Okay. Prior to becoming the superintendent at Booneville, had you served in any administrative role at any other similar type facility?
A Yes.
Q Okay. Tell me about that.
A I got my license as a long-term care administrator in 1991.
Q Okay.
A Started with Beverly Enterprise for a few years. Worked with some other --
Q Is that a private nursing home company?
A Nursing home. Uh-huh.
Q Okay.
A Worked for another private nursing home. Well, actually two others. Opened a facility in '95 out in Chenal.
Q What was the name of the facility in Chenal that you worked --
A Chenal Rehab.
Q Chenal Rehab?
A Uh-huh. And then --
Q What was your job at Chenal Rehab?

A I was the administrator. Of all these facilities, I was the administrator.
Q Administrator?
A Uh-huh.
Q And does that mean the --
A It's the same position I have now, superintendent.
Q So the top level --
A Yes.
Q -- person at the facility?
A Correct.
Q Okay. And, before Chenal Rehab, what nursing home did you work at?
A Before Chenal was the Lakewood Plaza, North Little Rock.
Q Lakewood Plaza, North Little Rock. I grew up near there.
A Okay. The Catletts own that home.
Q I'm sorry?
A Leon Catlett and his family, I believe, still owns that facility.
THE COURT REPORTER: Please speak up.
THE WITNESS: Oh, sorry.
THE COURT REPORTER: That's not my mic.
THE WITNESS: Oh, sorry.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q All right. So you were an administrator at Lakewood Plaza, Chenal Rehab. Where else?
A Oh, let's see. At -- it's not -- it's no longer in existence. It was Lakeland Lodge in Heber Springs.
Q Lakeville Lodge?
A Lakeland --
Q Lakeland Lodge?
A -- Lodge in Heber Springs.
Q Okay.
A And, before that, I was assistant administrator at another facility in Jacksonville that's no longer there either, Jacksonville Rehab or nursing home.
I don't even remember what it was called.
Q Okay. And is that, those four, is that -- are those all the places that you were a nursing home administrator?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
A Well, Arkansas Health Center.
Q Is that private or state?
A State. It was -- it was called Benton Service Center and then they changed their name to Arkansas Health Center.
Q And what did -- what services does it provide?
A Nursing home, skilled nursing facility.

Q Okay. But a state run --
A Yes.
Q -- nursing home essentially?
A Uh-huh.
Q Were you ever -- I apologize to have to ask this, but were you ever terminated from any of these jobs?
A No.
Q Okay. Did you leave all of these jobs voluntarily?
A Yeah. I mean, promotions and I went -- like when I went to Iraq, I -- it was a change of pace, you know, coming back to more facility-based services at DDS.
Q Okay. But, as far as you recall, there were -- you weren't, you know, asked to leave or left or resigned for any disciplinary reasons or anything like that?
A I -- no. No disciplinary.
Q Okay.
And so your first and only job at Booneville has been a superintendent?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. Do you recall who the superintendent was prior to you?
A I think it was Judy Story.
Q Okay.
And am I correct that there are certain policies and procedures that Booneville is required to comply with such as the ICF Federal Regulations?

A That's correct.
Q Okay. I'm going to start with -- I'm sorry.
MR. GILLISPIE: My phone's on silent, but --
MR. ROSEN: Do you have a copy for me, Counsel?
MR. GILLISPIE: Yes, I do.
(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 1 and is attached hereto.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Mr. Gonyea --
A Uh-huh.
Q -- do you recognize this document that I've handed you and what I've marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 and what is also Bates stamped 1607 --
A Yes.
Q -- as those ICF federal regulations? Or portions of them anyways.
A Yeah. I said yes.
Q Okay. I'm sorry. I didn't hear you.
MR. ROSEN: Jeff, you're going to have to keep your voice up --
THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. ROSEN: -- so that -- and it's a big room and --

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

MR. GILLISPIE: That's okay.

THE WITNESS: I'm not usually a loud talker.

MR. GILLISPIE: That's okay.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q And like I said, this is -- I didn't print off the entire document but only portions of it that are relevant to this case.

What I'd like to do first is draw your attention to Regulation Section 4803.420(a), which --

MR. ROSEN: Which page?

MR. GILLISPIE: That's going to be Bates stamped 1656.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Do you see this regulation that I'm referencing, Mr. Gonyea?

A The W140 or 127?

Q Yes. Under that, you see the Section 483.420 --

A Okay.

Q -- (a)(5)?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And you'd agree with me that that says that -- well, that the title of that regulation is -- well, the subject of that regulation maybe is ensure that clients are not subjected to physical, verbal, sexual, or psychological abuse or punishment?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And then, under that, you have guidance.

And, if you turn to the next page, you see at the top where the guidance for this regulation states, that the facility must develop and implement systems to protect clients from all forms of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, including client-to-client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And, under that, it further states that the facility is expected to ensure that staff possess and demonstrate needed competencies to effectively and appropriately interact with clients.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And, under that, it states that the facility must monitor to ensure that systems are effectively implemented and the facility takes immediate actions to address circumstances where abuse, neglect, or mistreatment have occurred and prevent occurrence.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And skipping down to D, the facility must act to prevent physical verbal, sexual, or psychological abuse. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q All right. Next, on the next page but still further guidance on this regulation, which again is 4803.420(a)(5), you see the top, the first sentence, since many clients residing in ICF/IIDs are unable to communicate feelings of fear, humiliation, et cetera associated with abusive episodes, the assumption is made that any action that would usually be viewed as psychologically or verbally abusive by a member of the general public would also be viewed as abusive by the client residing in the ICF/IID regardless of that client's perceived ability to comprehend the nature of the incident.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And, finally, fourth paragraph down, the first sentence, the facility must take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there.

Did I read that correctly?

A That's correct.

Q And would you agree with me, Mr. Gonyea, that all of these, all of this guidance that I've read from here for this regulation is a federal regulation that the facility, your facility, Booneville, must comply with?

A This is the state operations manual, so it wouldn't be a federal guide. But what you read is correct.

Q Okay. Yeah. And it says state operations manual. And I believe that the state operations manual contains these regulations which are the federal regulations, I believe, found at 42 CFR, Section 483.

But, regardless, are the statements that I just read from, would you agree that all of those are policy that Booneville was required to comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And, specifically, you'd agree that Booneville had a duty to ensure that rather -- scratch that.

You'd agree that Booneville had a duty to take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there?

A That's correct.

Q And generally owed the clients a duty of care to keep them reasonably safe?

A That's correct.
Q Moving to Regulation 4803.420(a)(6) on this same page, Bates stamped 1658, the subject of this regulation is ensure that clients are free from unnecessary drugs and physical restraints and are provided active treatment to reduce dependency on drugs and physical restraints.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree with me, that pursuant to this regulation, Booneville was -- and when I say was, I'm talking about at the time of David Cains' death, which was in June of 2020. Is that understood?
A I -- rephrase that again.
Q When I say was --
A Okay.
Q -- I'm referring to the time of my client's death.
A Okay. Okay.
Q Does that make sense to you?
A Okay. Yeah.
Q Because, likely, these policies presently are still your policies. And I understand --
A That's correct.
Q -- that, so -- but, for purposes of our case, we're concerned with what the policies were in June of 2020, even though they may still be the policies now.

A Okay.
Q That's all.
So my question is, Mr. Gonyea, would you agree with me, that pursuant to this Regulation 4803.420(a)(6), that Booneville was required to ensure that clients are free from unnecessary physical restraints?
A That's correct.
Q Booneville is a Human Development Center; is that correct?
A That's correct.
Q Okay.
And I did not print this off, but I found in Arkansas statute about the creation of Human Development Centers. And what I found, it states that the human development centers are created and there shall be maintained institutions for the care, custody, treatment and training of individuals with intellectual and other developmental disabilities to be known as human development centers.
Does that sound accurate?
A I -- I've never seen that statement, so --
Q Okay.
A -- I'm not --
Q Would you agree that at least one of the purposes of the Booneville Human Development Center is to provide care, custody, treatment, and training of individuals with developmental disabilities?

A For -- for Booneville, that would be the case. I mean, not all centers are the same, so --

Q But for Booneville it would be the case?

A Yeah.

Q And I'm pretty certain I'm only going to be asking about Booneville today. I don't think I'm going to ask you about any other --

A Okay.

Q -- human development centers. But I appreciate the clarification.

All right. I'll next turn to the same exhibit, Page 1753 is the Bates stamp number, sir. Let me know when you get there.

The top, this is Regulation Section 4803.450, little b, one, Arabic one, little i.

And would you agree with me that the subject of this regulation is the specification of approved interventions?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And the first sentence of the paragraph here under guidance states that all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors, which are approved for use in the facility, are clearly stated and described in its policy.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree with me, that at Booneville, all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors, which are approved for use at Booneville, must be clearly stated and described in its policy?

A Yes.

Q All right.

Next Regulation, Section 4803.450, little b, Arabic one, Roman numeral two, this regulation states that the facility is to designate interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented and ranging from the most positive or least intrusive to the least positive or most intrusive.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And then, under guidance, it states that policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior. Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And then it goes on to say that facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q The plan must still begin at the least restrict, least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. The facility policy for unexpected behavioral incidents must provide direction for the staff in the utilization of the hierarchy.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree that those are all -- those are all things that Booneville was required to comply with?

A Yes.

Q Moving to 483.450, little b, Arabic one, Roman numeral four, big B, which is Page -- Bates stamped 1755.

And this regulation -- the subject of this regulation is the use of physical restraints; correct?

A Correct.
Q And this states that physical restraint is defined as any manual hold or mechanical device that the client cannot remove easily and which restricts the free movement of normal functioning of or normal access to a portion or portions of a client's body.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And, skipping to the next paragraph, it states that policies and procedures of a facility must address the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree with me that that is something that Booneville was required to do?
A Yes.
Q Policies and procedures must address the persons who apply such restraints, the parameters for duration of application, the methods that assure the health and safety of clients while in restraints, and the specific training required for staff allowed to apply such restraints.
And would you agree with me that all those things, in addition to the types of physical restraint allowed, must be addressed in Booneville's policies and procedures?

A Yes.
Q Okay.
Moving to the next page, which is Bates stamped 1763, you see that?
A Yes.
Q All right. Do you see at the bottom, Regulation No. 4803.450, little d, Arabic one?
A Yes.
Q Okay. This states that the facility may employ physical restraint only as an integral part of an individual program plan that is intended to lead to less restrictive means of managing and eliminating behavior for which the restraint is applied.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And the regulation we're discussing here is, again, 4803.450, little d, Arabic one, Roman numeral -- well, little i, is what I'll call that.
But this states that the use of physical restraint is to be specified within the IPP; and that that plan must address the specific type of client behavior to be managed by this plan and must address the type of physical restraint.

Did I read that correct -- that's not all of it, but would you agree what I read is part of, part of it, and that I read that correctly?

A So you went from one then four?

Q I did.

A Those are two, two parts of that plan. That's correct.

Q Okay. Would you agree that any physical restraint that could potentially be used on a client at Booneville needed to be clearly stated in that client's IPP?

A Yes.

Q Including the types of emergency procedures or personal restraints that could be used in emergency procedures?

A Say that again.

Q And would that include also restraints that could be used in emergencies?

MR. ROSEN: I'm going to object. I'm not sure -- can you reword your question? Because it --

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.

MR. ROSEN: I think you're changing a little bit of the statute. And I just want to make clear as to whether it -- or not the statute, the regulation.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'll go back to the question that I asked.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q I'll go back to the question that I asked that you agreed with, so one question back.

I believe I asked if you'd agreed that -- Oh, would you -- I asked if you would agree that any physical restraint potentially used on a client at Booneville needed to be clearly stated at that client's IPP.

And you responded, yes.

A Correct.

Q Is that still your answer?

A Correct.

Q And so my follow-up question to that was, would that also include restraints that would be used and could be used in an emergency situation?

A Well, it -- it -- it would -- that's kind of hard to answer specifically just because you can't plan for all emergencies. And you can't always say, if an emergency arises, if it's not in their plan, how you would address it.

Because, first, our first priority is to protect the client.

Q Uh-huh.

A So -- so that's -- my answer is going to be we're going to do everything we can to protect the client first.

Now, if there's a plan for it, I can't say every client we have up there is going to have something in their IPP to address every situation that they are put in.

Q I'm correct that personal restraints at Booneville can only be used in emergency situations?

A That's correct.

Q Okay.

A That's correct.

Q And I assume that there are approved forms of restraint to be used in those emergency situations?

A That's correct.

Q And am I also correct that staff can only use approved forms of restraint?

A That's --

Q Is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q Okay.

And so, my -- I guess, my question is, would the IPP not be required to contain or rather specify what those approved forms of restraint are?

A Honestly, I -- I can't answer without really looking at every IPP to see if it's addressed in there.

Q Well, that's not exactly my question.
My question is, has to do with this regulation, which you agreed that Booneville was required to comply with. Specifically, that approved, that the -- that Booneville was required to specify within a client's IPP the use of approved physical restraints that can be used.
A Correct.
Q You still agree with that?
A Right.
Q Okay.
A Yeah.
Q Well, then -- and the only physical restraints that are ever used at Booneville are emergency restraints?
A That's correct.
Q Okay.
MR. GILLISPIE: Take just a couple of minutes here.
MR. ROSEN: You want to say five?
MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.
MR. ROSEN: We've been going about a half an hour or so --
MR. GILLISPIE: Sure.
MR. ROSEN: Okay.
VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time was roughly 12:08 p.m.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is approximately 12:21 p.m.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q All right. Mr. Gonyea, we're going to -- we're still on this same exhibit. What we're going to turn to page -- Bates -- what's the Bates stamped, 1754. You there?

A Fifty-four?

Q 1754.

A Yep.

Q Okay. And the regulations we're going to talk about now is for 483.450, little b, Arabic one, and then the three little i's.

A Okay. I'm sorry. Three -- I got it.

Q Yeah. And the last paragraph under this regulation states, that in emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the physical restraint technique chosen must be the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.

Did I read that correctly?

A Pretty much. It says the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.

Q Ah, yes. Would you agree with that statement?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree that that is a policy that Booneville was required to comply with?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
Skipping to Section D, so 483.450, little d, one, ii, which is going to be on Page 1764.
MR. ROSEN: 483.450, what did you say?
MR. GILLISPIE: Little d, Arabic one, and two little i's. Let me know when you guys are there.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q So this states that physical restraint may be used as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury.
Do you see where it says that there --
A Well, you kind of --
Q -- in bold right there?
A Well, you just kind of paraphrased a little bit.
Q I'll withdraw my question and I'll restate it.
So I'm looking at section 483.450, little d, Arabic one, two little i's.

A Okay.
Q And it states right there as an emergency measure -- well, scratch that as well. Because what it is, this is a continuation of 450(d)(1).
So if you'll turn one page back, 1763, the bottom, you see where it says 483.450, little d, Arabic one?
A Yes.
Q Okay. The facility may employ physical restraint only. And then it continues that regulation statement here on the next page at 483.450, little d, Arabic one, two little i's, as an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from the injury.
You follow me?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
MR. ROSEN: Wait. I see it.
MR. GILLISPIE: Okay.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q And so on. But my question would be, would you agree, Mr. Gonyea, with that statement, that physical restraint at Booneville may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where -- I'm sorry. Scratch that. Withdraw that.
Would you agree rather, Mr. Gonyea, that at Booneville, physical restraint may be used as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. And would you further agree, that at Booneville, physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention? Well, withdraw that.

Let me address the actual regulation first. And, again, this is going to be -- actually, this is guidance here at the bottom of 1764. So it's guidance for 483.450, little d, Arabic one, two little i's.

And it states here that physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which, one, the client has not exhibited before; two, were not identified in the functional analysis of that client's behavior; or, three, are harming other people or themselves.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And would you agree with me that that applies to Booneville, meaning that's something Booneville must comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

All right. Turning to the next page, Bates Stamp 1766, middle of the page, see the Regulation Section 483.450, little d, Arabic two, little i.

You see that?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And under that the second sentence under -- in that paragraph, under guidance, the client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And you would agree that is also a policy that Booneville was required to comply with?

A That's correct.

Q Next page, Bates stamp 1767, regulation found in the middle of the page there, Section 483.450, little d, Arabic three, the facility must not issue orders for restraint on a standing or as-needed basis.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Would you agree that that applies to Booneville? That Booneville must not order issue -- well, that that applied to Booneville and that Booneville was not allowed to issue orders for restraint on a standing or as-needed basis?

A That's correct.

Q Okay.

Next page. Well, the regulation I intended to address is 483.450, little d, Arabic four. However, I think that this regulation most likely pertains more so to mechanical restraints than personal restraints. And I'm not concerned with mechanical restraints.

But the guidance here talks about just the need to release the client from restrain as quickly as possible. Would you agree that that's kind of the subject of this?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And even though this particular regulation may be more relevant to mechanical restraints, would it also be true, that in a personal restraint scenario, the facility or staff at the facility would want to or need to release the client from that restraint as quickly as safely possible?

A Yes. Anytime he was in a personal hold, they would be released as quickly as possible.

Q Okay. Thank you.

Same page here, Bates No. 1768, Regulation Section 483.450, little d, Arabic five, you see that? They're kind of hard to --

A Yes.

Q Okay. And that says restraints must be designed and used; and then it skips down, so as not to cause physical injury to the client.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree, that at Booneville, restraints must be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client?

A That's correct.

Q And that was the case at the time of David Cains' death as well?

A Was that the --

Q That was also the -- that restraints were required to be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client --

A That's correct.

Q -- in 2020 as well?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. I'm just correcting my own error because I didn't use the past tense in the question.

All right. I believe we are done with this Exhibit. Mr. Gonyea, did you understand all my questions concerning this --

A Yes.

Q -- document? Okay. I'll make that Exhibit 1.

MR. GILLISPIE: Actually, I'm going to relabel that so that it doesn't say Plaintiff's Exhibit because we are claimant, not plaintiff. I don't believe they make a Claimant's Exhibit. We'll just call this Exhibit 1. Exhibit.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Mr. Gonyea, we're going to now look at DDS Policy 3011-D. And, Mr. Gonyea, do you --

MR. GILLISPIE: You want one?

MR. ROSEN: Yeah.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Mr. Gonyea, do you recognize the document that I've handed you to be a DHS, Division of Developmental Disability Services, policy? Specifically, Policy No. 3011-D?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And, if you go down to -- on the first page, under Section 3, the first paragraph states that behavior management as covered by this policy. And I guess the subject of this policy is behavior management; correct?

A Right.

Q All right. And so, back to this first paragraph under Section 3, behavior management, as covered by this policy, serves as a guide to ensure that an individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or to others are managed with the least restrictive method.

Did I read that correctly?
A Yes, you did.
Q And would you agree with that statement?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree that Booneville was required to manage an individual's actions that were aggressive, disruptive, and/or presented a danger to the individual or others with the least restrictive method?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And you'd agree that, in fact, only the least restrictive method in any given situation would be allowed to be used at Booneville?
A That's correct.
MR. GILLISPIE: Give me just a moment, please.
MR. ROSEN: Sure.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Okay.
If you would, please turn to Page 8 of this document. It'll be Section 6 but Page 8. Let me know when you're there.
A Okay.
Q And would you agree with me that this section pertains to emergency procedures?
A Are you talking about Item No. 6?

Q Yes, sir.
A Yes.
Q All right. And I'm going to read it.

Nothing in this policy prohibits the use of emergency restraint, mechanical or personal, confiscation, confiscation of any item used in a threatening manner or removal from the environment for the purpose of protecting the individual or others around him or her.

This includes the use of restraint procedures in the course of an established program when the individual becomes a danger to himself or herself or others, prior to staff being able to implement a lesser restrictive hierarchy.

Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q Okay. It goes on to say that, however, it is emphasized that emergency procedures may not be used at frequent intervals becoming a routine method of intervention.

If emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.
Q And then, finally, it says the emergency use of restraint must conform to ICF/MR Regulations and must be reported immediately to the facility administrator or designee.
Did I also read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And would you agree that everything that I just read, which was, in fact, this Section 6, was policy applicable to Booneville at the time of David Cains' death?
A Yes.
Q What does IDT stand for?
A Interdisciplinary Team.
Q Okay. And who typically would be part of a given client's IDT?
A There'll be a psychologist, a nurse. Typically, the, the QMRP. Like a case manager.
Q The Q?
A Yeah, the Q. And probably some direct care staff.
Q Okay. As superintendent, are you ever part of an IDT?
A Not typically.
Q Were you ever part of an IDT for David Cains?
A No.

Q Okay. Do you happen to know if Jennifer Berry ever was?
A I would not know.
Q Okay. The last sentence where it says the emergency use of restraint must conform to ICF regulations, that's referring to the federal regulations that we -- contained in Exhibit 1; correct?
A Correct. Correct.
Q Okay.
All right. Did you understand my questions regarding this is Exhibit 2, sir?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
MR. GILLISPIE: If you will -- thank you. I'll mark this as 2.
(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 2 and is attached hereto.)
(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 3 and is attached hereto.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q I'm now -- excuse me. I'm now showing you, Mr. Gonyea, what I intend to be Exhibit 3.
Do you recognize this to be a BHDC policy?

A Yes.
Q Okay. And it's -- specifically, it's BHDC Policy, Roman numeral, I don't know if that's a Roman numeral one or an I. But I'm going to call that an I. Do you know?
A I'd say one-D-four.
Q One-D-Four. All right. One-D-Four.
Possibly I-D-4, but we'll call it 1-D-4. And Policy 1-D-4, is -- the title of this is documentation of response to maladaptive behaviors; correct?
A Correct.
Q All right.
First paragraph, second sentence, personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure.
Did I read that correctly?
A Where are you at again?
Q At first paragraph, second sentence.
MR. ROSEN: Can you read it again?
MR. GILLISPIE: Yes.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure at Booneville?
MR. ROSEN: For clarification, it's up in the policy statement, at the top.

THE WITNESS: Up here.
MR. GILLISPIE: I'm sorry. Yeah.
THE WITNESS: Okay. Okay.
MR. ROSEN: Can you read it again now?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.
THE WITNESS: I'm with you now.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Yeah. Yeah. I'll read it again. Give me just a second. Just a moment. Right.

So I'll -- I'm going to read this statement one more time here now that we're looking at the same thing.

Personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And was that the policy at Booneville at the time of David's death?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. And then it goes on to state that maladaptive behaviors include but are not limited to behaviors that result in or have the potential to result in injury to self or others or the destruction of property.

Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And then, at the bottom, under -- or at the bottom of this page, Section 2, which is titled emergencies of restraint, do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And this states that emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And is what I just read, in fact, the policy at BHDC?
A Yes.
Q And was it also the policy at the time of David's death?
A Yes.
Q And am I correct that that is Booneville's definition of emergency restraint?
A That, what you read there?
Q Yes. Is what I read there a definition, Booneville's definition --
A Yes.

Q -- of emergency restraint?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And, again, emergency restraint is, in fact, the only form of physical or, I'm sorry, of personal restraint or personal hold allowed at Booneville; right?
A Say that one more time.
Q Emergency restraint --
A Uh-huh.
Q -- is the only form of physical --
A That's correct.
Q -- restraint allowed?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. Okay.
Turn to Page 4 of this document, please, which the Bates stamp number for that will be 4351. You see Section 6 there at the bottom --
A Correct.
Q -- titled approved restraint procedures, techniques and devices?
And the first item listed there is personal restraint; correct?
A That's correct.
Q And this defines personal restraint as an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb?

A That's correct.
Q Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And that is, in fact, the definition of personal restraint for Booneville?
A Correct.
Q Is there -- as far as you know, is there any other written definition of personal restraint found anywhere else in Booneville's --
A I --
Q -- documents or policies?
A I couldn't answer that. I'd have to do some research on that.
Q But, as you sit here today, you cannot point to any other definition of personal restraints specifically?
A Not without doing some research on it. What you've read is correct. But I -- I don't know if there's any other documentation to define that.
Q Do you think there could be an additional or supplementary definition of personal restraint in y'all's policy somewhere?
A I -- I'd have to ask my QA director who's over all the policies. That -- Q But --
A That'd be a better person to know that specifically.

Q Okay. But for today's -- or as you, you know, as of now, you can't -- A But that's --
Q -- specifically identify anything else right now at least?
A No. Correct.
Q Okay. This -- did you understand my questions concerning this Exhibit 3?
A Yes.
MR. GILLISPIE: I lost my microphone. Give me just a moment here.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Mr. Gonyea, what is your understanding of why only the least restrictive method of intervention is allowed at Booneville?
A Say that one more time.
Q Sure. What is your understanding of why only the least restrictive method of intervention is allowed at Booneville?
A So they only use the minimum necessary to protect the client from themselves or others.
Q And would one of the reasons for that be to preserve the safety of the client?
A That's correct.
(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 4 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q The next exhibit here is another DDS policy. This is DDS Policy 3004-I.

Mr. Gonyea, do you recognize this as a -- as being that DDS Policy number?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And you recognized that the subject of this policy is maltreatment prohibition, prevention, reporting, and investigation?

A Correct.

Q And Section 2 on the first page, Purpose -- oh, I'm sorry. Section 1, philosophy. You see that?

A Yes.

Q And I'm going to read that.

Every individual served by the Division of Developmental Disability Services, a/k/a DDS, has the right to be free from maltreatment. DDS strictly prohibits maltreatment, which includes but is not limited to, physical, verbal, psychological, or sexual abuse, neglect, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of rights of individuals receiving services.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Do you agree with that statement?
A Yes.
Q And that statement was, in fact, policy applicable to Booneville in 2020?
A That's correct.
Q And I feel certain I've already asked this, so apologies for being repetitive.
But, at Booneville, personal restraints or personal holds, as I understand y'all call them, are only allowed in emergency scenarios?
A That's correct.
Q All right. And would an emergency be a situation where there is imminent danger to the health or safety of staff or the client?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. Just a moment.
Turn to Page 3 under Section 3, where it says prevention. And I'm going to read this and I'm going to paraphrase slightly at the beginning.
Rather, let me ask it this way. Take a moment and read that to yourself, Mr. Gonyea. Just that first sentence there under Section 3, under prevention.
A Okay.
Q Okay. And I guess, first, I just want to know, you understand that or you would agree that this is, this is -- or that the -- this policy statements here would apply to Booneville?

A Correct.

Q Okay.

And so the second sentence there then would say that Booneville would be required to identify, correct, and intervene in situations in which maltreatment are more likely to occur.

Is that a fair statement?

A Correct.

Q Okay. And this would include an analysis of features of the physical environment that may make maltreatment and/or neglect more likely to occur; failure to recognize and respect clients rights.

Then, below that, the deployment of staff on each shift in sufficient numbers to meet the needs of the clients and assure that the staff assigned have knowledge of the individual client's care needs.

And then, below that, it states that this policy would include an analysis, or require rather, an analysis of inappropriate staff behaviors such as derogatory language, rough handling, ignoring clients while giving care, directing clients, any toileting assistance to urinate or defecate in their beds, and use items and staff for convenience.

Did I essentially read that correctly, even though I paraphrased a little bit?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I guess, really, my only question is, would you -- you would agree, that at Booneville, rough handling, derogatory language, use of items for staff convenience would be considered inappropriate staff behaviors?

A That's correct.

Q Okay.

And Section B, reporting, number one, all alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported by all individuals having knowledge of the alleged incident to the on-site administrator.

Did I read that correctly?

A That's correct.

Q And that's a policy that would have applied to Booneville; correct?

A That's correct.

Q What does -- who does on-site administrator refer to?

A Probably --

Q At Booneville.

A Well, it would be myself. And, if I'm not there, it'd be my assistant superintendent or a designee, if both of us are absent.

Q Assistant Superintendent, meaning Jennifer Berry?
A That's correct.
Q Who are the folks that would be -- that -- present day, who are some of the -- are there particular staff members that you would designate?
A Our QA director or Residential Service Director.
Q Okay. And was that also the case in 2020?
A Yes.
Q And, at the time of David's death, who was the Q? Well, what did say, Q what?
A Q -- QA Director.
Q Who was a QA Director in 2000 -- in June of 2020?
A I'm not exactly sure. I don't know the timeline. Our -- the one prior to the one we have now retired. So I don't know if she retired --
Q Who's the one now?
A Right now, it's Nikita Martin.
Q Okay. And who was the one before Nikita?
A Jane. I can't recall her last name right now --
Q But it would have been --
A Jane --
Q It's okay.
A Yeah.
Q But it would have been one of them though?

A Yes. Yes.
Q Okay.
A Yes. Yeah.
Q And then Sandy Evans was the residential services director --
A That --
Q -- in 2020?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. Who is RSD now?
A That's Jennifer Bancroft.
Q Jennifer Bancroft. And I've seen her name. Was Ms. Bancroft sort of like a deputy to Ms. Evans in 2020?
A She was -- we have -- the hierarchy of that is the residential services director and then there's three team leaders.
Q Uh-huh.
A So she was probably a team leader at that time.
Q Okay. And then are team leaders the same as program supervisors?
A No.
Q Are program supervisors a different department than --
A It's --
Q -- direct care?
A -- still under residential services. It's just not -- they don't have the same -- our -- our program supervisors there's usually -- we have three different shifts.

Q Uh-huh.

A And a program supervisor is -- was responsible for running the operations of that shift. So that's the day -- daily, you know, the --

Q Yeah.

A -- movement of clients, appointments, different things like that.

Q And --

A Possibility of staffing changes if they had to move somebody from an area to another area.

Q Okay. But you said program supervisors are part of residential care?

A Yes.

Q And those supervisors would have -- are answerable or they -- rather, they answer to the residential services director?

A Ultimately.

Q Ultimately.

A Yeah. I mean, there's resident service director, then you have your team leaders, and your program supervisors. Then you have other supervision below them.

Q Is it possible -- are -- and you may have already answered this.

But are program supervisors above team leaders or --
A No.
Q -- below?
A Below.
Q Below.
A Below.
Q Got it.
All right. Same section but here under report, No. 2, all alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported to the appropriate abuse reporting hotlines by the on-site administrator.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And do you agree with that?
A Yes.
Q And that was a policy at Booneville in 2020?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And then skipping to the next page, number five --
A Under which letter?
Q Same -- the same --
A Under B?
Q -- B reporting, yeah. Just next page number --
A Okay.

Q B-5. This states that reports of allegations shall also be made by telephone or fax by the on-site administrator/designee to local law enforcement where the facility is located and to the individuals parent, guardian, or advocate.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And do you agree with that statement?

A Yes.

Q And was that the policy at Booneville at the time of David's death?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Under D, investigations -- actually, rather than read through this, I just have a couple more general questions about this investigative process.

Am I correct, that when it's determined that a maltreatment investigation needs to occur, well, such as in David's case, an investigator or a licensed investigator or --

A Trained --

Q -- somebody who's received the training, right --

A Yes.

Q -- is appointed to do so; right?

A That's correct.

Q And, in David's case, my understanding is you appointed Sandy Evans?
A Correct.
Q Okay. She's one of your trained or qualified investigators?
A Correct.
Q And then she does an investigation.

And my question is, am I correct that she does an investigation that would include interviewing witnesses and participants, reviewing records where necessary, reviewing the IPP and other documents necessary to review, and then she would generate a document that y'all refer to as the maltreatment investigation?
A Correct.
Q Okay. And then the next thing she does is give that to you; is that right?
A Yes. After she's completed her investigation.
Q And so my question is, does the investigator, in this case Sandy herself, make a -- substantiate -- what am I -- you know what I'm trying to say.

Does the investigator make a determination as to whether or not maltreatment has been substantiated or does she simply give you the results of her investigation for you to make that determination?
A She'll -- she'll come up with a conclusion --

Q Okay.
A -- as to what her investigate -- what she's found in her investigation.
And then I'll review that information and supporting documents and either concur or not concur.
Q Okay. I think that makes sense. So, if I hear you right, she will say in her investigation, you know, my conclusion after conducting this investigation is that there was -- is that maltreatment is not substantiated or maltreatment was substantiated --
A That's correct.
Q -- but it's not official, it's not the official determination until you approve it?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And then do you then produce your own written document?
A I -- I do a summary document of the investigation that was conducted by the investigator. And we put that on a what's called an IRIS report, which is what we report through DHS.
Q And is that what you refer to as the DHS incident report?
A I -- I don't know if they call it that or not. I -- It's called an IRIS --
Q IRIS report?

A -- I don't know what the acronym -- I don't know what that stands for. But it's just -- is an IRIS report. It's throughout DHS for any kind of report.
Q And then that's what you send to -- where do you send that?
A It goes to -- I -- I don't even know what office actually gets it.
But, once it goes in there, it gets farmed out like also long-term care would, would get a copy of that. And then that triggers them for an investigation.
And so they would come out, do their thing. I think it goes maybe today to the A -- IG's office. I'm not sure. There's -- there's a list on there of who all it goes to.
Q Okay.
A So --
Q Do you also send them a copy of the investigator's maltreatment investigation? Or is it contained -- or is it all --
A I -- I --
Q -- one document?
A I believe they -- everything's one document. I don't do IRIS reporting. I have an individual that actually fills that out on the computer.
My best recollection is they put everything from the investigator's report, plus my summary in there, and that's what goes in. And then --

Q And then sometimes OLTC will follow up with its own investigation?

A Right. They'll -- they would come in and they get a copy of the entire investigation and -- you know, to include all the statements made by staff and any of the investigations or any documents that went into that. And then they would conclude their own investigation from that.

Q Does OLTC do that in every situation or just in cases of deaths and other, certain other --

A I --

Q -- more serious cases?

A It probably depends on the severity. It would probably be -- I don't know how long-term care quantifies --

Q Yeah.

A -- their investigations. But that, nine times out of ten though, a maltreatment investigation would probably trigger at least a -- what in -- on their side they call a complaint --

Q Uh-huh.

A -- which would trigger an investigator or a surveyor to come out to, to look at it.

Q Okay.
A So --
Q Turn to Page 5 of this same document, Section E, titled investigative reports, please.
Number one there, it says that when a reported incident has been determined to warrant an investigation, the on-site administrator must submit a report of findings to the Office of Long-term Care within five working days of the facility's knowledge of the incident to comply with OLTC Regulation, LTC 300, et. seq.
What is that referring to?
A That -- that's the IRIS.
Q That's the IRIS?
A Uh-huh.
Q Okay. That's not necessarily -- does that -- that's not necessarily your final summary?
A By -- yeah. By the fifth day, I have to submit my final summary to them.
Q Oh, okay. So the investigation is supposed to be -- the maltreatment investigation itself then is supposed to be concluded within that five-day window?
A That's correct.
Q Okay.
A That's the next paragraph.
Q Yeah. Okay. But, in David's case, you didn't have to submit any sort of status report? It was -- you were able to submit the --

A There's -- there's an initial report --
Q Uh-huh.
A -- that goes in to just -- and you have until, I don't know, 10 or 11 o'clock the following business day to get it, the initial report in, so --
Q Uh-huh.
A -- if there was a death, they would re -- at least started the IRIS. So that starts the process. Then you have five days to complete it.
Q And, in this case, you were able to get the final report to OLTC within the five days?
A Correct.
Q And then, under Paragraph 3, it says a full report in the format of a DDS investigative file must be completed and submitted to the DDS director and to OLTC within 14 calendar days of notification that an incident is being investigated.
Now, what is that referring to? The DDS investigative file.
A I -- IRIS report. They get that, that same report goes to them.
Q Okay. So that -- that's referring --
A It goes to multiple agencies.

Q Okay. So it -- that's also referring to the document that you generate and produce to Central Arkansas within that five-day window?
A Correct.
Q Okay. Almost done with this here.
Skipping to Page 8, which are some -- which is a -- do you recognize this to be Appendix A, statutory definitions that go along with this policy number 3004-I or Roman numeral one?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And this -- the first definition defines abuse. And one of the definitions of abuse, there at the big A, states that abuse means any intentional and unnecessary physical act which inflicts pain on or causes injury to an endangered or impaired adult, including sex abuse.
Did -- would you agree I read that correctly?
A That's correct.
Q And would you agree that that definition of abuse is what was in use at Booneville at the time of David Cains' death?
A Yes.
Q And skip down to No. 6, big A, imminent danger to health or safety means a situation in which death or severe bodily injury could reasonably be expected to occur without intervention.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And is that also a definition that was in use at Booneville at the time of David's death?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Did you understand my questions related to this document, sir?

A Yes.

Q Thank you.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 5 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Okay. I'm showing you here what I intend to mark as Exhibit 5.

Do you recognize this to be a Booneville restraint incident debriefing form? And take your time to take a look at it and make sure it's what I think it is.

A Looks like part of one.

Q It looks like the first page of one?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And it is, it's just the first page of one because I -- I only have one. I only -- short question here about it.

A I've seen it. This is not our current one. And I don't know when it changed to the new debriefing form, but --
Q Okay.
A -- this is as of October of '19, so --
Q Okay. About eight months, approximately, before David's death; correct?
A Correct.
Q All right.
This paragraph at the top, that's what I want to ask you about. And I'm going to read it.
The Booneville Human Development Center is dedicated to the reduction of restraint use at the facility. Has that -- you said it's changed.
Has that dedication to the reduction of restraint use at the facility changed since this date?
A No. That's always -- always -- we always strive for --
Q Okay.
A -- restraint free.
Q Okay. The use of restraints has proven to be dangerous for both staff and clients with the occurrence of injuries dramatically increasing when restraint is used. Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.

Q And is that still a true statement for -- is that still a true statement today?
A Probably so.
Q Okay. All efforts must be made to de-escalate behavioral situations so that they do not result in restraint. All restraint at the facility is to be for emergency use only, parentheses, even when part of a behavior treatment program, end of parentheses, when a very real risk of personal injury or severe property damage is imminent.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And do you feel like that is a statement that is still applicable at Booneville today?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And it would have been applicable at what I've -- this paragraph I've read would have also been applicable at the time of David's death?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
Any questions about this? Did you understand my questions about this document?
A Yes.
Q Okay. We're about done with policies here. I'm just make -- give me a second here to make sure I didn't miss anything. I'm trying to save us some time here.

There was a couple other policies I was going to ask you about that I don't think I'm going to have to.

A Okay.

Q If you'll just give me a moment to go through them.

MR. ROSEN: You -- it might be a good time to take like a ten-minute break, 15 maybe.

MR. GILLISPIE: Well, if you want to -- let's see. We've been going about two hours.

MR. ROSEN: Or do you want to take a lunch break? Whatever you want. I'm -- we're --

MR. GILLISPIE: I need to run -- I need -- I don't -- I don't know if you heard me saying my pharmacy has been out of my blood pressure medicine for two days.

MR. ROSEN: So you need to go get it?

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah. My mom -- my wife -- my mom. Tell you I need it --

MR. ROSEN: Yeah.

MR. GILLISPIE: My wife has it, so I'm going to go get it.

MR. ROSEN: You don't have to explain anything. You need something --

MR. GILLISPIE: Can I please go, Rich? Please?

MR. ROSEN: Yes.
MR. GILLISPIE: Thank you.
MR. ROSEN: Of course.
MR. GILLISPIE: Thank you.
MR. ROSEN: We can take lunch.
MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah, we'll take lunch.
MR. ROSEN: That's fine.
MR. GREEN: Okay. It's 1:25, do you want to come back at 2:30?
MR. GILLISPIE: You guys tell me. I'll do whatever.
MR. GREEN: How long do you want --
MR. GILLISPIE: It'll take me 30 minutes to go and come back, but -- 45 minutes? You want to come back at 2:30?
MR. ROSEN: Whenever you get back here.
MR. GREEN: Let's ask the court reporter.
MR. ROSEN: You'll probably -- it'll take -- where are you driving -- this is not on the record.
VIDEOGRAPHER: Okay. We're going off the record. The time is approximately 1:25 p.m.
(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is approximately 2:42 p.m.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Just a second. I'm trying to find my place here. Okay. All right.

Mr. Gonyea, we've talked about some policies. I have one more policy here to show you. Well, there's going to be a couple more, but one of the last ones here. I only have one copy of it here.

So I'm about to hand it to you, but I'll represent to you that it's Booneville policy, I believe that says either Roman numeral 1-1-1 or big I, big I, big I. But it's staff develop -- it has to do with staff development department.

And number one on that says the staff development department shall develop and implement training programs to meet the requirements of DDS Policy ICF/IID regulations and applicable accreditation council standards.

Did I -- do you recognize that policy to be what I represented that it is?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And did I read number one correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Number two states that staff development depart, staff development department staff will work closely with the directors of residential services and superintendent and assistant superintendent for assistance.

Did I read number two correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Number three, staff development department staff will work with the executive staff members to assist in the determination of training needs of each department.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Then, number four, the staff development department will maintain training records for each employee.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And then there's a fifth sentence. I'm not going to read that, but I assume you recognize this document and you agree with --

A Yes.

Q -- the statements contained therein; is that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Go ahead, Rich.

MR. ROSEN: Just as a matter of clarification, there's highlight on there though?

MR. GILLISPIE: Yes. Those are my --

MR. ROSEN: You did that?

MR. GILLISPIE: Those are my highlights, yeah. And that's -- I apologize. I didn't --

MR. ROSEN: No, no problem.

MR. GILLISPIE: Didn't get extra copies made of it.

Let's see. Make this Exhibit 6.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 6 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q And so piggybacking off of this staff development regulation, am I correct that staff development at Booneville is responsible for training staff in the use of emergency procedures?

A There's probably multiple things that they actually train on. That would probably be one of them.

Q Okay. Is there any other department at Bonneville that handles training staff in emergency procedures? Or is that staff development's responsibility?

A Primarily staff development.

Q Okay. And the emergency procedures, the staff development, train staff and would obviously include personal restraints or personal holds?

A Right. We -- we use CPI, which both of our staff development instructors are both trained in, certified.
Q Okay.
A And they do all the training with our staff.
Q Okay. And those -- and one of those staff develop -- what did you call them?
A Staff development.
Q Staff development --
A Instructor.
Q Instructors. And one of those staff development instructors is Mark Hice?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And the staff development instructor, the staff development instructors, are NCI certified?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And they're the folks at Booneville who are responsible for showing the staff how to use personal holds or personal restraints in cases of emergencies?
A That's correct.
Q And Mark Hice is a -- is one of those staff development coordinators; correct?
A Correct.
Q And you may not be aware, but am I correct that he's been with Booneville for approximately 27 years?

A Probably pretty close to that.
Q Okay. And I understand that he was a -- he's been a program supervisor. He did that for maybe 13 years before moving to staff development. Does that sound correct to you?
A I -- he worked at direct care. I couldn't tell you exactly how long in each position, but --
Q Okay.
A -- he did come out of residential services.
Q Okay.
A So he has a very good understanding of how that works.
Q Okay. And would you agree he also has a very good understanding of how personal restraints and personal holds are to be applied?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And he's been in, I believe he told me, he's been a staff development coordinator since 2016. Does that sound --
A I -- if that's what he told you.
Q Okay. And so Mark Hice is one of the staff development coordinators.
Is he -- would you agree that he's the person or one of the two people at Booneville with the most knowledge concerning the use of personal restraints and what to apply and how to apply it in emergency situations?

A Well, we have two instructors up there. Vanessa Wyrick is the other instructor. I -- I'm not sure which one's been there longer as an instructor, but -- Q And I -- you may --
A -- probably pretty close.
Q I may have mumbled it, but I actually said would you agree that he's one of two people --
A Right. Right.
Q -- up there. Because I knew there was another one.
A Right?
Q He's -- I guess another way to rephrase this question would be, are the staff development coordinators the folks at Booneville with the most knowledge or expertise concerning the use of personal restraints and personal holds in emergency situations?
A Yes. Yes.
Q And moving back briefly to the maltreatment investigation that occurred following David Cains' death, excuse me, Sandy Evans, who was director of residential services at the time, conducted that maltreatment investigation?
A Correct.
Q Was there anybody other than Sandy who took part in conducting that investigation in a direct way?

And I can --
A Not -- not -- not that I'm aware of.
Q Probably a poorly worded question.
Did you yourself, you know, conduct interviews with any of the witnesses or participants?
A No.
Q Okay. And my understanding of the way it works is -- and you tell me if I'm right or wrong.
But my understanding of the way it probably works would be that -- well, first of all, Sandy Evans received all the appropriate training in order to become an investigator; right?
A Correct. Correct.
Q You can't just say, Sandy, you're going to be an investigator now --
A That's correct. They go --
Q -- she has to --
A -- go through some training performed by an outside agency and they get certified.
Q They get certified?
A Yes.
Q And, at the time of David's death, do you have any, any idea how many certified maltreatment investigators you had at Booneville?
A I -- I would be guessing. Maybe five, six.

Q Oh, okay. I didn't realize it was that many.
Okay. And my understanding is Sandy -- you almost immediately got her working on this investigation after you --
A Correct.
Q Right. And my understanding is that she conducted at least, I think, 11 or so interviews with staff, including, you know, witnesses and participants that very day; right?
A I -- I -- I wouldn't know exactly how many she did that day, but I'm sure there were several.
Q And my understanding is she reviewed portions of, if not all of David's IPP, and reviewed EMT records, emergency room records, in addition to conducting the interviews with staff, is -- is that --
A I would --
Q -- also your understanding?
A I would -- I would say everything that was available to her, she probably looked at.
Q Okay. And did you, when she brought you -- when she finished her investigation, she came to you with a document? Is that kind of how it worked?
A Normally, when the investigator's done, they bring the complete report with all the supporting statements and --

Q Uh-huh.
A -- any evidence they have. They'll bring me a packet and then I review it.
Q Includes the OLTC witness statements?
A Yes. Yes.
Q All that. And that's what occurred in this case?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And I don't believe you had any criticisms or issues or any reason to question her findings at the time, did you?
A No, I did not.
Q Okay. And would it be fair to say that you relied upon, heavily relied upon, the results of her investigation in making the determination that you did make?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And I don't know if we've ask -- if we've addressed this specifically, but the determination that was made in this case was that maltreatment was unsubstantiated for the three direct care staff involved in the restraint; correct?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. And, again, it was -- and I assume this is, you know, how it's supposed to work.
But you relied very heavily or almost entirely on Sandy's investigation in making your determination?

A Yes.
Q All right. Is there anybody at Booneville, aside from the staff members that were actually involved in the incident, that would have more direct knowledge of the restraint incident on the day of Davey's death than Sandy?
A I -- I don't believe so.
Q Okay. When the Office of Long-term Care comes in and sort of does their -- does a follow-up investigation, are they investigating for the purpose of substantiating or not substantiating maltreatment, or rather are they simply coming in to review to make sure that everything -- that policy seemed to have been followed?
A I would --
Q If that makes sense.
A I would -- I'm not a surveyor. But I would think they would look at both those things.
One -- one, they want to see that the facility followed their practice and did everything according to the --
Q Uh-huh.
A -- what our policies state. But they also look at it in regards of, you know, did -- did they do what they were supposed to do.

Q Yeah. And I guess a better way to ask what -- the question I was trying to ask would be, does OLTC have the ability to reverse --

A Yes.

Q -- a maltreatment finding?

A They sure do.

Q So they can come in and say, no, we think this was maltreatment and --

A Yes, most definitely.

Q Oh, okay. All right.

MR. ROSEN: Wait -- wait until he --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. ROSEN: -- finishes the question.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Yes.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q That's one -- it's something I've been curious about. But that certainly answers that for me.

MR. GILLISPIE: I've got another exhibit here. And these are the first aid guidelines.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 7 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Well, let me do it the right way here.

Do you recognize these, Mr. Gonyea, as being the Booneville HDC first aid guidelines that were in effect at the time of David Cains' death?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Specifically, this is policy Roman numeral four, big B, Arabic 10; is that right?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And this is Bates stamped 4423.

And, Mr. Gonyea, would you agree that this is Booneville's written policy concerning -- or withdraw that.

Would you agree that one of the things that this policy covers or covered, I understand it's -- the policy was in place at the time. But one of the things that it covered was who can call 9-1-1 in cases of medical emergency?

Would you agree that's one of the things that this policy covers?

A I don't believe so.

Q Okay.

A This -- this is first aid guidelines and --

Q Okay.

A -- you know, the kind of first blush with things.

Q Sure. Well, let me just kind of take it and let's kind of go through it step by step.

Under Procedures, number two, you see number two under procedures?

A Yes.
Q I'm going to read.
In all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected, either to clients or staff, a call to the medical department should be made. This should be the first call, so medical staff can respond immediately to the situation.
A call to medical at 1422 should be made and the following information should be given; one, caller's name and title; two, victim's name, location, situation, and condition of the victim, in parentheses, alert, unconscious, et cetera; number three, medical asset -- will assess the situation and call an ambulance, if appropriate.
Did I read that section two correctly or accurately, Mr. Gonyea?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
And would you agree that this was, in fact, Booneville's 9-1-1 policy, at least at the time of David's death?
A No.
Q Okay. Why would -- and why would you not agree with that?

A If it was 9-1-1, it would state that it would be an emergency.

So anybody can call for an emergency, whether it's medical, could be a weather-related incident, it could be a fire, could be -- so anybody could call 9-1-1 at any time. As this states, it's a first aid guide, so --

Q Uh-huh.

A -- you know --

Q So this has to --

A -- depending on the situation, I guess, you know, if it's an emergency, they can call 9-1-1.

If it's a first aid or something, assessment, you know, could be a -- various things, it could be, they would assess it.

Q Would you -- okay.

Well, for the purposes of medical emergencies, would you agree that this policy, this is a Booneville policy pertaining to calling for emergency services in the event of a medical emergency?

A I think this -- this policy is in place to assess anybody, regardless of severity of their medical need.

This is just any time that there's -- there's something a nurse needs to look at, that's what they would call.

Q Is there another written policy at Booneville that covers calling 9-1-1?

A I -- I would probably have to check with my QA Director.
Q As you sit here today --
A And I -- I mean --
Q -- do you know of one, specifically?
A I mean, not off the top of my head.
Q Do you know of -- off the top of your head or as you sit here today, do you know of any other document, memorandum, anything that pertains to calling for an ambulance at Booneville, besides this document?
A Probably in some of the orientation training, there's going to be a reference into, you know, if there's an emergency call 9-1-1.
But I -- I don't have that document in front of me. So I couldn't reference anything, per se.
Q And you also don't know for sure if it's there or not?
A Not off the top of my head.
Q Okay. Would you agree with me that the first sentence of this document in section two states, that in all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected, either to clients or staff, a call to the medical department should be made?
Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.
Q And you agree that that sentence represents a policy that was in place at Booneville in -- at the time of David's death?
A I mean, that was the procedure in place at the time, yes.
Q And then the next sentence says this should be the first call so medical staff can respond immediately to the situation.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And would you also agree that that sentence represents a policy that was in place at Booneville at the time of David's death?
A Yes.
Q And then the -- still section two but number three in that subcategory or subparagraph there, medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And you'd agree that that sentence represents a policy that was in place at Booneville at the time of David's death?
A Yes.

Q And would you agree with me that nowhere in this document does it say that someone other than medical can call an ambulance?
A Say that again.
Q Would you agree with me that nowhere in this document in front of you does it say that anyone else, other than medical, can call an ambulance?
A This -- this document doesn't say they can or cannot call 9-1-1. Anybody can call 9-1-1.
Q Well, I guess what I'm -- you'd agree that this document specifically says that medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance, if appropriate; right?
A Right.
Q So it's -- it --
A But -- but it doesn't say in an emergency situation. This is just first aid guideline.
Q Okay. Is there another document that would pertain to some other situation, an emergency situation? Or is there some other document?
A Off the top of my head, I couldn't tell you that.
Q Okay. And you don't think that this document is meant to apply to emergencies?
A I do not.
Q You don't think a serious medical injury would be an emergency?

A It -- it could be. That's why, after the nurses get there, they would assess the situation. And, if it turns out to be an emergency, they would do the appropriate thing.

But this -- if somebody fell and got a scratch, they're going to call 1422 and the nurse is going to come over and assess them for an abrasion, a cut, the -- the need to maybe have it x-rayed. There's just a multiple reasons they would call that. I mean --

Q As -- as you sit here today, sir, is there a -- is there a document that you can identify for me today or point to today that specifically says that anybody can call 9-1-1 in an emergency situation?

A No. I -- I -- I think I've answered a couple times the same question. I -- I don't recall anything off the top my head to -- we may have one. I just couldn't tell you what it is.

Q Okay.

Well, if you do have one, would you agree to, with all possible speed, please get that to your attorneys?

A Sure.

Q Just a moment.

MR. GILLISPIE: Let me see that.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Same document here where it says policy statement at the very top, the second sentence, I'm going to read that. Again, this is under policy statement for these first aid guidelines. Well, I'll just read both sentences. Policy Statement.

First Aid Guidelines are available for use in each of the aid stations in each living area. This will permit appropriate and immediate attention to medical conditions of sudden onset, including injuries and choking.

Did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q And, again, these, those sentences I just read, those represent policies that were in place at Booneville at the time of David's death?

A Correct.

Q I've been -- my questions have used the term 9-1-1 mainly.

How about calling for an ambulance? Would your responses be any different if I used that term instead of calling 9-1-1?

A I mean, that -- that's how we would get an ambulance there, would be 9-1-1.

Q Okay. So, when I say 9-1-1, I -- I would -- I say -- I would use calling 9-1-1 or calling an ambulance interchangeably myself, but --

A Right.
Q -- are you saying that you kind of feel the same way?
A Some -- sometimes. Sometimes we call an ambulance just for transport. Depending on the nature of the client, if there's an injury or it could be a health condition that they -- they -- they have to be transported to a medical facility, so that -- we'll call for an ambulance up there.
Q Okay.
A We live in a rural area and the availability sometimes of getting an ambulance up there may be five or ten minutes or it could be up to 45, depending on where they are coming.
Q You typically would call 9-1-1 to get the ambulance though?
A Yes.
Q Okay. Okay. Oh, yeah, thank you.
A Yeah.
MR. GILLISPIE: Let's take a couple of minutes.
MR. ROSEN: Before -- can you mark that as Exhibit 7 --
MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.
MR. ROSEN: -- just before we forget?

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.

VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is approximately 3:14 p.m.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record. The time is approximately 3:26 p.m.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q So I'm finished with Exhibit 7. I did want to -- and I did mark it as Exhibit 7 and put it in here.

I did want to very quickly -- we're very close to being done, at least my part --

A Okay.

Q -- draw -- go back to 3011-D. I'm going to hand it to you. I'm just finding it.

MR. ROSEN: Which exhibit, Counsel, is that?

MR. GILLISPIE: It's two.

MR. ROSEN: Two.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q This is more just my curiosity than anything.

VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. You're on your mic, Josh.

MR. GILLISPIE: Oh.

MR. GREEN: You're stepping on it.
MR. GILLISPIE: I got it.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q And, Mr. Gonyea, my question is about these categories. Are you familiar with these Category I, Category II, Category III, that are described in this policy?
A Just -- just in reading it, I'm not the expert on their, you know, behavior management programs.
Q Yeah. And I don't have any particularly detailed questions about this. My questions were more general and it's this.
Am I correct that what all -- considering that -- well, as we've gone over ad nauseam, personal holds and/or personal restraints are only used in emergencies at Booneville? That, meaning that they're not made part of a treatment plan as described here in Category III; is that correct?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. But there are -- so everybody at Booneville is either going to be Category I or Category II
A I'd even have to look at the definitions in the categories.
Q Go ahead. Yeah.
A I -- I --

Q Take your time. Take your time. Just let me know when you're ready to continue.
A So what was your question again?
Q Are all of the clients at Booneville -- I know -- okay. I know David was Category I, but are all of the clients at Booneville Category I?
A I believe there'll be -- there'll be clients in each category all the way up to a III.
Q So you could have -- so you might have a Category III client and just -- but you still have the option of not including restraint in their behavior plan then?
A I'm not the psychologist to really make that determination.

But, to be a Category III, you have to -- you have to have a licensed psychologist sign off on it. So that'd really be a question for them.

Q But you believe that Booneville does have Category III clients?
A I -- I -- I think we have a few threes.
Q Would Category III clients, would that mean that they're more prone to violence or dangerous or in some other way kind of more severe cases?
A Again, I think that would be a psychologist question.
Q Okay. You're not --

A Because -- because they have to sign off on it, so --
Q Okay.
A -- that -- I'm not sure how they make all their determinations. That's what they're licensed --
Q Okay.
A -- for, so --
Q That's fine. That's fine. You can have that.
I have what I think is going to be our last exhibit here.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 8 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q I showed you what is Bates stamped Page 9019 and 9020 and 9021, so 9019 through 9021. And it's titled Arkansas Department of Human Services Developmental Disability Services Case Notes. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And dated the date of David's death, 6/13/2020. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And take a moment to scan through this, if you like or even, you know, read it, if you want to. I just have a couple of quick questions about it.

And just let me know when you're ready. Take your time.

A Okay.

Q All right.

Okay. Now that you've had a chance to review this document, what would you -- how do you describe what -- how would you describe what this document is? What is this document?

A To me, it looks like a case note of the conversation and notification from the social worker to the mom as to what happened. Or at least initially what happened.

Q You'd agree this, these -- this is a case note from the day of David's death reflecting Booneville's communication with and notification to David's mother, Charlene Robinson?

A That's what it looks like.

Q Okay. The second paragraph, it says -- and I'm sorry. And this was drafted by and signed by Amanda Krigbaum; is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q And she -- the date of the top says 6/13/20, but looks like she signed it, maybe completed it and signed it on 6/15/2020.

Who is Amanda Krigbaum?

A She's a social service worker.

Q Okay. So the second paragraph, I'm going to read what Amanda wrote here.

This is Amanda. I asked what happened -- and I'm sorry. Let me strike that. And let me preface by saying, that in this second paragraph, this would appear to be Ms. Krigbaum describing the initial notification she got from Amanda. I assume Amanda Schmitt in medical; correct?

A That's what it looks like.

Q Okay. And Ms. Krigbaum writes, I asked what happened; she, she being Nurse Amanda Schmitt, she said she did not know exactly what happened except he started having a behavior while he was eating, he started to choke.

Did I read that correctly?

A That's what it says.

Q Okay.

And down, the last paragraph, where it starts at 12:24 p.m., I, I being Ms. Krigbaum, made a call to Ms. Charlene Robinson, David's mother and guardian.

She answered the phone. I introduced myself; I could hear her clearly. I thought she could hear me. I gave the notifications.

During the call, the phone started having static sound and the call ended. I immediately called back at 12:25. She answered in a panic; again, I could hear her clearly, she could not hear me. She kept saying hello, then would hang up. I checked the on-call phone. It had full service bars. I continued to call, it went to her voicemail twice. I tried calling on a personal cell phone, it would not go through.

I called Jennifer Berry on my personal cell phone at 12:27. She said to try to call again with the on-call phone. I called while Jennifer was still on my personal cell. Ms. Robinson picked up, I made sure she could hear me, she said yes.

Did I read all that correctly?

A Yes.

Q It sounds like there was some mishaps with the phone.

I, again being Ms. Krigbaum, asked if she, meaning David's mother Ms. Robinson, heard anything from my initial call. She, being Ms. Robinson, said no. All she heard was that I didn't have any further information.

I, meaning Ms. Krigbaum, then started to give the notification again. I stated that I received a call from medical that David choked on his food. Before I could say anything else Ms. Robinson went into a panic mode and began crying and sobbing.

Did I read that accurately?

A Yes.
Q Okay. I tried to say that staff did rescue procedures until EMS arrived but unable to say that statement due to her continuing to cry and be in a panic state. She, meaning Ms. Robinson, then started asking if he was okay.
I, Ms. Krigbaum, stated that EMS got involved. He

[redacted]

During this statement, Ms. Robinson continued to cry, very upset, and in a panic state. Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q She, meaning Ms. Robinson, then asked what kind of food did he choke on. I, meaning Ms. Krigbaum, stated I did not know that information but just that he choked on his food.
Ms. Robinson continued to say that she just talked to him the other night and he was doing good.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And you'd agree with me that this is -- this reflects, that at least at this time, Ms. Krigbaum told Ms. Robinson that David had choked on his food?

A Was that a question?
Q Yes.
A Okay. Yes.
Q Okay. Last sentence of that same paragraph, she, meaning Ms. Robinson, continued to cry and sob and then she hung up the phone.
Jennifer Barry was still on my personal call and could hear the conversation.
All right. Read that correctly as well?
A Yes.
Q All right. And, at 12:58 p.m., Ms. Krigbaum notes here that she got a call from Angie, I presume Angie Nelson in medical, stating that the hospital had called time of death at 12:21. Is that correct?
A That's correct.
Q Okay.
Go down to the short little paragraph that starts at 3:14 p.m. Ms. Krigbaum writes that Angie from medical called stating the mother called them and asked to speak to us.
I explained I was getting information from the hospital to share with mom. Under that, 3:17 p.m., I, being Krigbaum, called Ms. Robinson, informed her that the hospital said that he was being taken care of and being sent to Roberts Funeral Home, the County Morgue.

She, meaning Ms. Robinson, was relieved when she heard this news and said, good, thank you. She was mixing up her words; and, after a couple of tries, stated that David's sister is coming from Vermont and will be in town Monday. But then she said that she was sorry, that she could not think clearly. She asked that I please notify her brother, Mr. Patrick Riley, because she was not able to. And then if -- on the last page --

MR. ROSEN: Was there a question there? Just for clarification.

MR. GILLISPIE: Oh, yes.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q My -- I'm sorry. My question is, did I read that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I assume you have no reason to think this is not an accurate accounting of Ms. Krigbaum's interactions with Ms. Robinson on this day?

A I -- I wouldn't have anything to -- I guess, best of her knowledge, at the point that --

Q I --

A -- spoke to her, that was -- that was the information she had.

Q Okay. And I just really was just asking if you -- you know, I assume you don't have any reason to think that what Ms. Krigbaum is writing here -- I'll withdraw that. Unnecessary.

Okay. The last page, at 1623 p.m., I, again Ms. Krigbaum, received a call on the on-call phone from Ms. Robinson. She asked if we were going to put this in the paper. I explained I do not believe so but I could double check. She said please do and she did not want this in the newspaper at all.

She, meaning Ms. Robinson, also asked if she would be able to come to BHDC to go through his things. She said that she wanted to get his favorite Monkees hoodie sweatshirt. I assume that means Monkees, the band, hoodie sweatshirt, and a nice pair of jeans to bury him in.

Did I read or at least paraphrase that accurately, Mr. Gonyea?

A Yes.

Q Okay. I assume you probably know, knew, David well enough to know that he loved the Monkees?

A I did not know that.

Q Oh, you didn't?

A No.

Q The band? Okay.

So my question is, are you aware of whether anyone, you yourself or anyone that works for you, are you aware if anyone ever got back in touch with Ms. Robinson and clarified the circumstances surrounding his death? Specifically that, you know, he had not choked on his food during lunch?

A I'm pretty sure at least -- I mean, I -- I couldn't answer interimly between the investigation, but I -- I think she was made aware of the end result of the Sandy Evans investigation, but --

Q She got a letter, that's correct. But I'm asking --

A I --

Q Let me just --

A I --

Q -- ask it in a sim --

A I don't have personal knowledge --

Q Okay.

A -- of that.

Q You never made a phone -- you yourself never reached out to her to tell her what -- the more accurate circumstances of his death?

A No. I -- I've never spoken with her.

Q Are you aware of anybody that works for you having done that, reached out to her to clarify the circumstances of his death?

A I -- not -- I don't know if they have or have not.

Q Okay.

A I don't -- I don't have personal knowledge of that.
Q Okay.
I'll represent to you that Ms. Robinson testified in her deposition that she was not informed of the restraint or that it wasn't his lunch that he choked on until she got that letter roughly nine days, I think, after his death.
Do you have any personal knowledge that would suggest she's wrong about that?
A I -- I do not have any knowledge of that.
Q Okay.
MR. GILLISPIE: I'm done with this. This is 8.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q We discussed this policy contained within -- one of the policies contained within 3011-D, DDS 3011-D, that we already discussed. And I can hand it back to you, if we need. It's Exhibit 2. But you may be able to answer this without having to look at it.
But one of those policies stated, that if emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action.
Do you recall that?
A Yes.

Q Okay. Do you have any -- do you have your -- do you have any personal knowledge of David Cains' IDT meeting and conducting a functional analysis at any point in 2020?

A I wouldn't know that.

Q Okay. So you don't have any personal knowledge of that?

A No.

Q Do you have any personal knowledge of David Cains' IDT meeting to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action at any point in 2019?

A I wouldn't know that either.

Q So you have no personal knowledge of that?

A No.

Q How about for 2018 or 2017?

A I --

Q Same answer?

A That's -- yes. I don't -- I don't track each client in their -- that's why they have case managers, to track that and follow up on.

Q Okay. Do you have any personal knowledge or memory of ever discussing David Cains' -- let me rephrase that.

Do you have any personal knowledge of ever discussing David Cains with his case managers at any point?

A No.
Q You said case managers is who you said would --
A Or -- or their Q --
Q -- keep with this; right? Okay.
A Yeah, their --
Q Well, do you have any personal recollection or knowledge of discussing David Cains with his Q or his case manager?
A No.
Q Did you ever attempt to reach out to the ambulance service or the hospital or the coroner to clarify the circumstances of David's death?
A I -- I have not.
Q Do you know if anybody that works for you ever did?
A I'm not sure.
Q You didn't ask anybody to though?
A It -- that wouldn't be something that I'd normally -- I'm -- I'm not sure what I would reach out to them for.

I mean, normally, social services handles any kind of like (inaudible) case or if there was a medical issue, it would be my director of nursing that might reach out for something.

But there wouldn't be anything for me to reach out, unless there was a problem with something.

Q Were you aware that the paramedic who responded to, that arrived on the day of Davey's death, claims that he was similarly told something similar to what Ms. Krigbaum told Ms. Robinson? Meaning that David had choked on his lunch? Were you aware of that?
A I -- I was not aware of that.
Q Okay. Nobody's ever talked to you about that?
A I -- I -- at the time, nobody ever brought it up. Probably when all this started, somebody mentioned something about that, but I don't, don't have any knowledge of it.

Nobody's presented me anything. Nobody's asked me any questions about it or said there was an issue.
Q Well, did you -- what about the -- did you personally review the Disability Rights Arkansas investigation that was -- the investigative report that was done concerning David's death?
A DRA, Disability Rights, never came to my facility to review that case.

Whatever they reviewed, I don't -- I don't know what they looked at. So they didn't -- they didn't present me with anything. I think there might have been some kind of something they wrote up, but there was never anything presented to me.
Q You weren't aware that they spoke to members of your staff during an investigation into David Cains' death?

A It might -- maybe afterwards. After everything had transpired.
But they -- they come up on my campus all the time to ask my staff or anybody all kinds of stuff. So that wouldn't be anything out of the ordinary.
Q But are you saying you never personally read the report produced by Disability Rights Arkansas regarding David's death?
A I -- I may have, but it's -- if -- if -- when it came out two years ago or more, I couldn't recall what it said.
Q Okay.
A They've put out a lot of disinformation over the years and I take everything they have with a grain of salt.
Q Okay.
Do you recall having a telephone conversation with David's sister, Christine McAuliffe?
A Not that I recall.
Q Do you -- is there something you're remembering that --
A I -- I -- honestly, I don't remember speaking with her.
Q Okay.

A I don't -- I don't know if I've ever met the lady.
Q You don't remember her ever calling you at your office shortly after they got the report and found out that there had been a restraint?
A I -- I couldn't recall that. I mean, it -- they could have talked to my assistant, Jennifer.
Q Okay.
A They come into the same office though. I don't personally recollect that, but --
Q Did you ever ask -- I understand that you didn't yourself, but did you ever ask anybody on your staff to reach out to David's sister or David's mother to -- after the -- after that, the determination was mailed to them?
A I -- I didn't specifically tell anybody to.
Normally, our social service department, Susan Bruce, would do that.
Jennifer Berry used to be over social services. She might have done it -- that herself as well. Those would be the two people that would have reached out to the family.
Q But you didn't personally yourself?
A No, I did not.
Q And you didn't personally order anybody to either?
A No.
Q How did you know -- how well did you know David?

Or it's vague question, but if you can answer it, go ahead.

A I mean, I knew who David was.

Q Uh-huh.

A And, I mean, the ones -- the ones I know the best are the ones we usually have the problems with, just because there -- there's more involvement with them, you know.

Q But you didn't know David particularly well?

A Not -- not -- not -- not really.

Q Okay.

Mr. Gonyea, is it your testimony or your opinion that -- well, testimony.

Is it your opinion that the restraint used on David on the day of his death was not a contributing factor to his death?

MR. ROSEN: Well, I'm going to object. I'm not sure that the administrator of that facility can determine cause of death. That would be more of a medical opinion.

MR. GILLISPIE: I agree. I recognize that. If, I guess, basically, if he has an opinion on it that he's going to give, I just want to hear it. And if --

MR. ROSEN: Well --

MR. GILLISPIE: -- if not, then that can be the answer.

MR. ROSEN: -- I'm going to also object to relevance. But -- but, I mean --

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q He makes a good point. I get that you're not a medical expert. So I'll try to -- I'll withdraw that question and I'll try to break it down and rephrase it.

And it'll sound a little silly because you're not a medical doctor, but I'm going to ask this anyway.

Do you intend to give any sort of opinion yourself on David's cause of death at the hearing?

MR. ROSEN: Same objections. At the hearing?

MR. GILLISPIE: Or at any point in this case.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Now, anytime between the hearing or at the hearing, do you yourself -- I understand that you have an -- that there's an expert, you know, that there'll be expert testimony.

I just mean, do you, Mr. Jeff Gonyea, intend to give any, you know, testify as to David's cause of death?

A I -- I don't -- I don't believe so. I mean, I'm just going to go with what the evidence showed and the investigation and what transpired there. That's all I can go by.

Q Okay. What do you mean by that?
A Well, the outcome of Sandy Evans' investigation and that staff followed protocols. And so, I mean, I -- I -- I can't really give you an opinion on that.
Q I understand that. I'd certainly agree that Sandy Evans' investigation determined that the determination was that there was no maltreatment.
But I don't believe Ms. Evans' investigation touched on cause of death, did it?
A No. And I -- I -- I don't -- again, she's not a medical person either. So I don't --
Q Right.
A I don't -- none of my staff would have really made a determination on cause of death. That would be a medical --
Q And I don't disagree. Just, you know, if you have some burning opinion, you know, some burning desire to give an opinion on this or you intend to at a later time, I just wanted to hear it now so I can be prepared.
A No.
Q That's all.
A I mean, I don't.
Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm going to take a take quick break. I think I'm done.

MR. ROSEN: Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm just going to consult with Chad.

MR. ROSEN: So five minutes or so?

MR. GILLISPIE: Sure.

MR. ROSEN: All right. We'll step out.

MR. GILLISPIE: It's probably 25.

MR. ROSEN: Okay.

VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record. The time is approximately 4:06 p.m.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is approximately 4:10 p.m.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q All right. Mr. Gonyea, I don't believe I have anymore, don't believe I have any more questions for you. Thank you.

MR. ROSEN: I have no questions. Thanks you.

VIDEOGRAPHER: This concludes the deposition. We're going off the record. The time is approximately 4:11 p.m.

2. The ability to make choices;
3. The ability to identify preferences; and
4. Cognitive abilities including tracking, attention span, communication, and the client's ability to understand the cause and effect. (The client understands of cause and effect is significant in the determination.)

Money management includes a broad spectrum of programs with varying levels of participation by the client ranging from the use of choice in money expenditures, to an understanding of the concept of money, and ultimately to actual money handling and budgeting. The IDT must not conclude that a money management program is inappropriate based solely upon the level of intellectual or physical disability of the client.

The CFA must be reviewed at least annually per 42 C.F.R.483.440(f)(2). As a part of this annual review, a client's ability to participate in money management will also be reviewed. The annual review should always include an update to the CFA and take into consideration any changes in the client's circumstances since the last IPP. The need for a formal money management program must be addressed in every client's IPP by the IDT on an annual basis.

The determination of the appropriateness of a formal money management program is made by the IDT and must be based upon a CFA. The IDT discussions resulting in that determination must be established through documentation in the client's IPP.

W127

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(5) Ensure that clients are not subjected to physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment;

Guidance §483.420(a)(5)

Identification of patterns or isolated instances of physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment without prompt identification and corrective action by the facility would result in a non-compliance determination for this Standard and Condition level non-compliance.

The facility must develop and implement systems that protect clients from all forms of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, including client to client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment.

a. The facility is expected to ensure that staff possess and demonstrate needed competencies to effectively and appropriately interact with clients.

b. The facility must monitor to assure that systems are effectively implemented and the facility takes immediate actions to address circumstances where abuse, neglect, or mistreatment have occurred and prevent reoccurrence.

c. The facility must be organized in such a manner as to proactively assure clients are free from any threat to their physical and psychological health and safety.

d. The facility must act to prevent physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse.

If the facility fails to implement appropriate corrective action, the potential of additional threats to the clients remain at the facility.

"Threat", for the purposes of this guideline, is considered any condition/situation which could cause or result in severe, temporary or permanent injury or harm to the mental or physical condition of clients, or in their death.

"Abuse", for the purposes of this guideline, is the willful infliction of injury, unreasonable confinement, intimidation or punishment with the resulting physical harm, pain or personal anguish.

Physical abuse refers to any action intended to cause physical harm or pain, trauma or bodily harm (e.g., hitting, slapping, punching, kicking, pinching, etc.). It includes the use of corporal punishment as well as the use of any restrictive, intrusive procedure to control inappropriate behavior for purposes of punishment.

Verbal abuse refers to any use of insulting, demeaning, disrespectful, oral, written or gestured language directed towards and in the presence of the client. Psychological abuse includes, but is not limited to, humiliation, harassment, and threats of punishment or deprivation, sexual coercion and intimidation (e.g. living in fear in one's own home). Since many clients residing in ICF/IIDs are unable to communicate feelings of fear, humiliation, etc. associated with abusive episodes, the assumption is made that any actions that would usually be viewed as psychologically or verbally abusive by a member of the general public, would also be viewed as abusive by the client residing in the ICF/IID, regardless of that client's perceived ability to comprehend the nature of the incident.

Sexual abuse includes any incident where a client is coerced or manipulated to participate in any form of sexual activity for which the client did not give affirmative permission (or gave affirmative permission without the attendant understanding required to give permission) or sexual assault against a client who is unable to defend him/herself.

The facility must implement, through policies, oversight and training, safeguards to ensure that clients are not subjected to abuse by anyone including, but not limited to, facility staff, consultants or volunteers, staff of other agencies serving the client, family members or legal guardians, friends, other clients, or the general public.

The facility must take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there. For example, if a facility is forced by court order or arbitration rulings to retain or reinstate an employee found to be abusive, the facility must take measures to protect the clients of the facility (such as assigning the employee to an area where there is no contact with clients).

W128

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(6) Ensure that clients are free from unnecessary drugs and physical restraints and are provided active treatment to reduce dependency on drugs and physical restraints;

Guidance §483.420(a)(6)

The facility must implement an aggressive active treatment program, which includes appropriate replacement behaviors, to address the reduction/elimination of physical restraints and drugs to manage behaviors.

For purposes of this Guideline drugs to manage behavior are "unnecessary" if there is evidence the drugs are being used:

- In excessive dose (duplicate therapy);
- For excessive duration;
- Not monitored adequately;
- Without adequate indications for its use;
- With adverse consequences which indicate the dose should be reduced or discontinued; or
- Any combination of the reasons listed above.

The long term use of a drug/physical restraint to manage behavior combined with one or more of the following may indicate unnecessary use:

- The client's developmental and/or behavioral needs are not being met and the appropriateness of less restrictive approaches to manage inappropriate behaviors should be questioned;
- Staff behavior may be prompting behaviors in clients which result in the chronic use of physical restraints and drugs to control behavior;
- Staff may have inadequate training and/or experience to provide active treatment and employ preventive measures;

Restraints applied for behaviors when less restrictive measures have not been tried or have been tried and found to be just as effective.

Guidance §483.430(e)(2)

Staff receive training in the following areas:

- developmental programming principles and techniques (e.g. techniques to involve clients in their programs to their highest capability, use of positive reinforcement, use of assistive technology, use of appropriate materials and providing informal opportunities to practice skills);
- use of adaptive equipment and augmentative communication devices and systems; and
- effective recordkeeping procedures.

§483.430(e)(2) behavioral,

Guidance §483.430(e)(2)

Staff receive training in the following areas:

- use of behavioral principles during interactions between staff and clients;
- use of accurate procedures regarding abuse detection and prevention, restraints, drugs to manage behaviors, client safety, emergencies, etc.;
- use of least restrictive interventions;

- use of positive behavior intervention programming; and
- training clients in appropriate replacement behaviors.

§483.430(e)(2) and health needs

Guidance §483.430(e)(2)

Staff receive training in the following areas:

- signs and symptoms of the client's changing health (e.g. constipation, urinary tract infections, adverse drug reactions, as indicated);
- exercise and diet;
- first aid;
- infection control;
- reporting to appropriate healthcare professionals; and
- for those staff who can administer medications, how to include clients in their medication administration by recognizing and encouraging the use of applicable skills.

W193

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.430(e)(3) Staff must be able to demonstrate the skills and techniques necessary to administer interventions to manage the inappropriate behavior of clients.

Guidance §483.430(e)(3)

Staff correctly and consistently implement the interventions specified in the behavior plans of clients with whom they are working.

§483.440(f)(3)(i) Review, approve, and monitor individual programs designed to manage inappropriate behavior and other programs that, in the opinion of the committee, involve risks to client protection and rights;

Guidance §483.440(f)(3)(i)

Any program that utilizes restrictive or intrusive techniques must be reviewed and approved by the specially constituted committee prior to implementation. This includes, but is not limited to:

- restraints;
- drugs to manage behavior;
- restrictions on community access;
- contingent denial of any right; or
- restrictions of materials or locations in the home.

The committee should ensure that consequences within a written behavior management program do not violate the client's rights.

There is no requirement for the committee to evaluate whether the proposed program is consistent with current practices in the field. Documentation should verify that the specially constituted committee considered factors, such as whether less intrusive methods have been attempted, whether the severity of behavior outweighs the risks of the proposed program and whether replacement behaviors are included within the plan.

Any revision to a behavior plan that increases the level of intrusiveness must be re-reviewed by the specially constituted committee. The committee need not reapprove a program when revisions are made in accordance with the approved plan. For example, if the physician changes the dosage of a medication in accordance with the drug treatment component of the active treatment plan to which the legally authorized person has given consent and which has already been approved by the committee, then there is no need for the committee or the legally authorized person to reapprove the plan. Generally, this would also apply if the medication was changed to another within the same therapeutic class or family.

W276

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(i) Specify all facility approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(i)

All interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. Examples of positive interventions include, but are not limited to, verbal praise reward systems, and prompting. Examples of negative interventions include, but are not limited to, removal of a privilege, implementation of restraint, and/or the use of exclusionary time out.

W277

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(ii) Designate these interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented, ranging from most positive or least intrusive, to least positive or most intrusive;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(ii)

Policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior.

Facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment. The plan must still begin at the least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client.

The facility policy for unexpected behavioral incidents must provide direction for the staff in the utilization of the hierarchy. For clients not on a behavior plan, staff must apply the appropriate level of intervention per the established hierarchy, including emergency measures to prevent harm to self or others.

W278

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iii) Insure prior to the use of more restrictive techniques, that the client's record documents that programs incorporating the use of less intrusive or more positive techniques have been tried systematically and demonstrated to be ineffective; and

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iii)

Policies must be implemented to ensure that all restrictive procedures begin at the lowest level of the hierarchy unless there is documented evidence that less intrusive interventions have been tried and have been found to be ineffective.

The facility is not required to justify discontinuing the use of a more restrictive technique before initiating a less restrictive technique, since the intent of the regulation is to use the most positive, least intrusive technique possible.

In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv) Address the following:

W279

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A) The use of time-out rooms;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A)

"Time-out room" is defined as a separate room that is used to remove a client from stimulation that may be triggering and reinforcing maladaptive behavior. The facility must have written policies and procedures for the use of time out rooms which address all the requirements of 483.450 (c) (1-4) standard: time out room.

W280

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B) The use of physical restraints;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B)

"Physical restraint" is defined as any manual hold or mechanical device that the client cannot remove easily, and which restricts the free movement of, normal functioning of, or normal access to a portion or portions of a client's body. Examples of mechanical devices may include arm splints and mittens.

Policies and Procedures must address:

- the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility;
- the persons who apply such restraints;
- the parameters for duration of application;
- the methods that assure the health and safety of clients while in restraints; and
- the specific training required for staff allowed to apply such restraints.

§483.450(c)(3) Clients placed in time-out rooms must be protected from hazardous conditions including, but not limited to, presence of sharp corners and objects, uncovered light fixtures, unprotected electrical outlets.

Guidance §483.450(c)(3)

Because placement in the time out room is typically secondary to extreme behaviors, it is acceptable that there be no furniture in this room.

A door that opens inward can potentially be held closed, either intentionally or inadvertently, by the client in the room, thereby denying staff immediate access to the room.

W294

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(c)(4) A record of time-out activities must be kept.

Guidance §483.450(c)(4)

The documentation in the client's record accurately reflects planned (e.g. part of the IPP) usage and presents a picture of events prior to, during, and following the use of time-out. The IPP should include direction as to how often data must be collected during each use of time out for each individual client.

(d) Standard: Physical restraints

§483.450(d)(1) The facility may employ physical restraint only- -

§483.450(d)(1)(i) As an integral part of an individual program plan that is intended to lead to less restrictive means of managing and eliminating the behavior for which the restraint is applied;

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(i)

The use of physical restraint is specified within the IPP. The plan must address:

1) The specific type of client behavior to be managed by this plan;
2) The less restrictive behavioral approaches which were previously used, but were unsuccessful;
3) The hierarchy of measures that must be utilized prior to the application of physical restraint;
4) The type of physical restraint;
5) The type of client behavior that would indicate that the patient is calm and can be released from the restraint; and
6) The replacement behavior being taught to the client to reduce the need for future restraints.

W296

§483.450(d)(1)(ii) As an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury; or

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(ii)

Physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which:

1) the client has not exhibited before;
2) were not identified in the functional analysis of behavior; or
3) are harming other people or themselves.

When there are repeated episodes of the use of physical restraint as an emergency safety measure, these episodes should be assessed for their predictability by the IDT, and revisions to the IPP considered addressing the behaviors through a formal behavior plan in order to reduce/eliminate the use of physical restraint.

W297

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(1)(iii) As a health-related protection prescribed by a physician, but only if absolutely necessary during the conduct of a specific medical or surgical procedure, or only if absolutely necessary for client protection during the time that a medical condition exists.

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(iii)

Physical restraint during medical procedures must be utilized only when absolutely necessary and be used as a last resort in order for the facility or practitioners to deliver needed medical care to the client. The restraint must be released as soon as the medical procedure is completed unless it is necessary to continue restraint for a longer period of time to continue to deliver care or to prevent the client from displacing tubes or dressings. These restraints may only be used as long as the physician indicates them to be necessary.

For instances where physical restraint are used by the facility or a practitioner during a medical procedure, the client record and interviews should verify that less restrictive measures were attempted before using physical restraint and verify whether any injuries occurred during the use of the physical restraint. Written orders by medical personnel for the application of a physical restraint should include the reason that the restraint is necessary, the type of restraint to be used and the length of time the restraint will be applied.

A restraint device used to prevent a client engaging in self-injurious behavior is not considered a restraint for medical condition.

§483.450(d)(2) Authorizations to use or extend restraints as an emergency measure must be:

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)

Facility policies should list who in the facility is allowed to authorize the emergency use of restraints or to extend the use of an emergency restraint, and the training that is required for those persons who may authorize. Documentation in the client record in those instances should confirm that the facility follows that policy.

W298

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(2)(i) In effect no longer than 12 consecutive hours; and

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(i)

This regulation does not mean that restraints may be authorized to be applied for up to a 12 hour period. The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. Once the behavior has ceased, the emergency has ended, and the client has been released, another authorization would be required for any new emergency situation.

The 12 consecutive hour period is the absolute maximum period of time that emergency physical restraint may be utilized for a client during an individual behavioral incident. It is reasonable to expect that the facility will reassess the emergency situation for any client who remains in physical restraint for longer than one hour and reassess the situation at least every 30 minutes thereafter up to 12 hours when the physical restraint must be removed.

W299

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(2)(ii) Obtained as soon as the client is restrained or stable.

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(ii)

There may be instances where the maladaptive behaviors of a client or clients escalate into a serious and immediate event that must be de-escalated quickly in order to prevent harm to clients, staff, other clients, or by standers when incidents occur in the community. In these instances, the staff should contact the appropriate person to obtain authorization for the use of physical restraint as soon as the situation is stable. Retrospective documentation of the incident should confirm the need for authorization after application.

§483.450(d)(3) The facility must not issue orders for restraint on a standing or as needed basis.

Guidance §483.450(d)(3)

All instances of physical restraint must be ordered on a case by case basis with individual assessment of the situation and authorization based upon the individual client. Authorizations should include the rationale for the use of the physical restraint versus other less restrictive measures.

W301

§483.450(d)(4) A client placed in restraint must be checked at least every 30 minutes by staff trained in the use of restraints,

Guidance §483.450(d)(4)

The frequency of monitoring will vary according to the type and design of the device and the psychological and physical well-being of the client. The facility should be checking the client often enough to adequately assess the physical status of the client (e.g., circulation, respiration and vital signs) of the client and the need to continued restraint. The more restrictive the intervention, the greater the risk to the client and the more often the client must be assessed. Frequent assessment will assure that the client will be released as soon as possible, however, in no instance may the staff go longer than 30 minutes without checking the client.

§483.450(d)(4) released from the restraint as quickly as possible, and

Guidance §483.450(d)(4)

"As quickly as possible" means as soon as the client is no longer a danger to self or others. Documentation should support that the client was released from restraint as soon as they became calm.

Guidance §483.450(d)(5)

Physical restraints to include mechanical devices must be the correct size for the client and be applied with the correct amount of pressure according to manufacturer's directions. In addition to observation of any physical mechanical restraint in use at the time of the survey, review incident reports for any injuries as a result of restraint use.

§483.450(d)(6) for a period of not less than 10 minutes during each two hour period in which restraint is employed,

Guidance §483.450(d)(6)

This requirement does not apply to cases of medical restraints that are specifically ordered for the immobilization of bones and joints during the physical healing process involved with fractures, sprains, etc. (e.g. a broken bone immobilized by a cast or splint). See 331 483.460(c) regarding surveillance of skin integrity during the use of medical restraints.

However, if a mechanical physical restraint is applied to an extremity to prevent a client from removing post-operative sutures, the restraint must be released every two (2) hours for a period of not less than ten (10) minutes in order to maintain adequate circulation.

Mechanical restraints placed on the client during sleeping hours must be medically based and specifically ordered by a physician. There should be evidence in the client's record why the mechanical physical restraint is necessary during sleeping hours. While it is not necessary to wake the client every two (2) hours to release the restraint and provide opportunity for exercise, the staff must check the restraint frequently during the night to ensure that the restraint is still properly applied and the client appears comfortable.

§483.450(d)(7) Barred enclosures

Guidance §483.450(d)(7)

A bed or play equipment with bars that prevent the client from leaving the bed or voluntarily climbing out of the bed are barred enclosures. The use of such enclosures must be a part of the written IPP and behavioral assessments must clearly state why such an enclosure is necessary, the risks of using the enclosure versus not using it and what less restrictive measures have been tried prior to the implementation of the barred enclosures.

Such devices may not be used in lieu of adequate staffing.

ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES
DIVISION OF DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES SERVICES
DDS DIRECTOR'S OFFICE POLICY MANUAL

Policy Type	Subject of Policy	Policy No.
Service	Behavior Management	3011-D

1. Purpose. This policy is intended to provide guidelines for managing challenging behaviors of individuals residing in DDS operated programs (Human Development Centers).

2. Scope. This policy applies to all DDS operated programs (Human Development Centers) and their employees/volunteers. All such programs will include a review of this policy as part of the employee orientation process.

3. Definition of Terms

Behavior management, as covered by this policy, serves as a guide to ensure that an individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive and/or present a danger to the individual or to others are managed with the least restrictive method. Behavior management is not a substitute for other forms of active treatment and is incorporated into program plans, based on individual needs.

Qualified Mental Retardation Professional (QMRP) or QMRP designee is used in this policy as a person designated to monitor, supervise, and make decisions regarding specific behavioral situations. QMRP/designee will be assigned by the administrator of the DDS program in which he/she works. Criteria for selection will involve prior training, experience, and demonstrated ability in the area of behavioral management. The QMRP/designee must be in a position that is on a level involving supervisory or decision-making responsibilities. The QMRP designee is authorized to perform any of the duties of the QMRP as outlined by regulations or policy.

Interdisciplinary Team (IDT) is defined as a group of persons (professionals, paraprofessionals and non-professionals) who develop an individual's program plan and whose participation is required in order to identify the needs of the individual and to devise ways to meet those needs. The IDT includes the individual and may also include those persons who have worked or will work most closely with the individual, those persons who provide needed assessments or services, and the individual's family, guardian, or advocate. In general, the IDT includes persons professionally qualified in such fields as health care, education, psychology, and social work.

Licensed nurse is defined as a registered nurse or licensed practical nurse. The agency may use a physician, in lieu of a licensed nurse, but this is not required.

Replacement: This policy replaces DDS Commissioner's Policy 3011-D, dated January 28, 1981, March 13, 1981, and DDS Director's Policy dated October 1, 1991; December 1, 1993; and January 30, 1998.

4. Policy

NOTE: It is the philosophy of the agency to utilize all positive approaches to behavior management prior to and in conjunction with more restrictive programmatic techniques. Positive approaches may include, but are not limited to: positive reinforcement, gentle teaching, redirection, graduated guidance, and modeling of appropriate behaviors. Measures to address positive behavior should be incorporated into formal program efforts to the extent feasible.

Efforts at positive programming prove to be successful with the majority of maladaptive behaviors. All Human Development Centers will maintain policies and procedures for positive programming. The use of behavioral programming other than positive is designed for the individuals who repetitively engage in dangerously aggressive behavior and for whom other interventions have not been effective. All behavior programs developed in accordance with this policy will be designed to reduce or eliminate the target behavior(s) within a specified time frame, will be supported by documentation that positive, less restrictive methods have been systematically attempted and failed, will be monitored regularly by the individual's QMRP and Interdisciplinary Team (IDT), and will be revised if proved to be ineffective. The potential harmful effects of each procedure will be weighed carefully against the harmful effects of the targeted behavior and the IDT will determine if the harmful effects of the behavior outweigh the potentially harmful effects of the procedure.

Category I:

Category I procedures are those which may be used without prior approval of the Human Rights Committee or psychology staff. To ensure consistency, they should be addressed by the IDT. Frequent use (as determined by IDT) of these procedures with an individual indicates the need for consideration of the development of a behavior plan by the individual's IDT.

The individual must be supervised during these procedures. With the exception of verbal intervention, any use of Category I procedures, whether part of a formal behavior program or not, requires documentation on a Behavior Incident Report, Data Sheet, or other locally used behavior documentation system.

A. Verbal Intervention: Verbal intervention is utilized to stop an inappropriate behavior in progress and involves telling the individual "no" or "stop", identifying the behavior, and redirecting to an appropriate activity. The command is given in a firm but normal tone of voice. Threats, screaming, yelling or issuing repetitive or multiple sets of commands are not considered verbal correction and are inappropriate.

B. Separation From Activity Up to 30 Minutes: The individual is prevented from engaging in a reinforcing activity in which he/she has displayed inappropriate behavior. Separation is maintained within the same room or outdoor area where the activity is conducted. This is considered a Category I procedure if compliance by the individual can be accomplished through verbal prompting/physical prompting without requiring personal restraint (holding).

C. Separation From Setting Up to 30 Minutes: The individual is removed from the area where the reinforcing activity is taking place. Separation must occur under observation either outdoors or in a living or training area (bathrooms, storage rooms and closets do not constitute living/training area). This is considered a Category I procedure if compliance by the individual can be accomplished through verbal prompting/physical prompting without requiring personal restraint (holding).

Note: Separation to Allow Calming (STAC) – Also available is the positive procedure of STAC whereby the person is encouraged to move to an area away from the person or situation that upset them. At the same time, they are assisted in directing their attention to talking about the problem, listening to music, talking about family, relaxing quietly, going for a walk, etc. The activity should be chosen by the person in need of calming. When sufficiently calm, staff will assist the person in resuming normal activities.

D. Assignment of Additional Chores: The individual is assigned additional chores as a consequence for inappropriate behavior. Additional chores may be assigned only if such chores are already a part of the Individual Program Plan (IPP) and are not designed to replace work assignments of housekeeping personnel.

E. Restitution: The individual is cued to restore any property damaged, stolen or defaced. If appropriate to the individual's level of functioning, he/she may be cued to offer a verbal apology to the offended person. If appropriate to the individual's ability to comprehend, monetary reimbursement for the value of the damaged or stolen property may be required if this is a part of the IPP. In lieu of full value, a symbolic portion of the value may be required. Monetary reimbursement requires Human Rights Committee approval and Guardian consent.

Note: The individual is not degraded nor put on display while restoring damage. The individual is given the same equipment and protection to complete the restitution as would normally be given to a person not responsible for the damage.

F. Withholding Privileges: The individual loses a particular privilege following the occurrence of an inappropriate behavior. Privileges include such things as special planned community activities. However, trips off grounds are special and should only be curtailed if problem behavior is anticipated during that trip. Examples of situations where problem behaviors may be anticipated include a problem behavior having already occurred and the person is not fully calm, or, a problem behavior has not yet occurred, but there are indications that a problem behavior is likely. The curtailing of trips off grounds should be done after consultation with psychology staff, or with supervisory staff if psychology staff is not available. Privileges do not include basic living activities, such as meals, habilitation activities, or basic rights afforded all individuals.

G. Personal Property Removal (less than one hour): Removal of an individual's personal item that is being used in an inappropriate or unsafe manner or location. For example, if an individual disturbs others in a common TV room by playing his radio too loudly and will not reduce the volume when instructed, the radio may be removed from that individual for a time not to exceed one hour. The item will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or to the individual directly, as appropriate (See Section 6, Page 8 of 9).

Category II:

Category II procedures may only be used as part of a formal behavior program designed by the individual's IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a licensed psychologist, physician, Human Rights Committee, and the facility administrator. Behavior program approval will include receipt of a signed consent from the individual and/or guardian.

A. Response Cost: The individual loses reinforcers previously earned in a behavior management system, (i.e., Token Economy Program)

B. Overcorrection - includes the following procedures:
   1) Restitutional Overcorrection: Requires the individual to restore the environment to a state that is better than it was before the occurrence of the inappropriate behavior.

   2) Positive Practice Overcorrection: Requires the individual to engage in an intensive practice period in which the alternative appropriate behavior is practiced.

C. Contingent Personal Property Removal (up to 24 hours maximum): Immediate removal of an individual's personal belongings contingent on the occurrence of a targeted behavior. Confiscated property will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or individual directly, as appropriate. This procedure is considered Category II if the individual voluntarily (without duress or coercion) surrenders the property upon request.

Category III:

Category III procedures may only be used as part of a formal behavior program designed by the individual's IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a licensed psychologist, physician, other professionals, as indicated by the nature of the program, Human Rights Committee, and the facility administrator. Behavior program approval will include receipt of a signed consent from the individual and/or guardian. The individual's record documents the IDT's conclusion that the potential harmful effects of each restrictive procedure (restraint, etc.) are clearly outweighed by the harmful effects of the targeted behavior.

A. Separation Time Out (Activity or Setting): Placement of an individual in a quiet area away from reinforcing activities or persons as a result of an inappropriate behavior occurring. The individual will be visually monitored during the time out. Further conditions include either:

1) Separation lasting for over 30 minutes to one (1) hour maximum.

2) Separation (any length of time) requiring physical intervention/personal restraint to ensure compliance.

B. Contingent Personal Property Removal (up to 24 hours maximum): Immediate removal of an individual's personal belongings contingent on the occurrence of a targeted behavior. Confiscated property will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or to the individual directly, as appropriate. This procedure is considered Category III if the individual does not voluntarily surrender the property upon request, and it must be physically removed.

C. Sensory Deprivation: Involves the temporary impeding of one of the individual's senses for a period of time, contingent upon the occurrence of the target behavior. Most often, this procedure includes only the use of a blindfold or cloth placed over the individual's eyes when it has been shown to facilitate calming. The individual must be visually supervised during the use of this procedure, which may be used in combination with other Category III procedures, as designated in the individual program. It could also include lessening auditory input by covering the individual's ears, or covering a body part (usually the hands) to limit tactile stimulation, hand in mouth, or biting.

D. Restraint: When utilizing restraint as a programmatic option, a hierarchy of lesser restrictive procedures will be attempted prior to restraint, except in limited cases where this is clearly clinically contraindicated. IDT consideration will be given to parent/guardian notification of the use of restraint and address it in the behavior program.

1) Personal Restraint: In order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage, the individual or a portion of an individual's body is immobilized by another person or persons in order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage. Approved methods of intervention must be in the individual's behavior program. This is planned personal restraint, contingent upon occurrence of a target behavior. When available, a licensed nurse should monitor the personal restraint and/or check the individual's physical condition as soon as possible following restraint.

Excluded as personal restraint are: physical assistance, prompting of graduated physical guidance to assist individuals during such procedures as toothbrushing and feeding, or to control random head or arm movements during such procedures as haircutting, or the use of physical assistance in escorting, redirecting, or in manual guidance techniques are not considered personal restraint and do not require documentation as personal restraint. Also excluded as programmed personal restraint is the use of personal restraint in an emergency situation (Section 6, Page 8 of 9*) or during a necessary medical or dental procedure.

In the event of personal restraint, the QMRP/designee of the area must be notified as soon as possible. Programmed personal restraint will occur until the individual is calm and will not exceed fifteen (15) minutes. The IDT will define what constitutes calm behavior for this individual when used in a behavior program.

2) Mechanical Restraint: In order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage, the individual or a portion of the individual's body is immobilized until calm by an approved device or devices which may also prevent normal functioning, as described in section C, above. Restraints must be checked for safety and integrity prior to use. The device's use will not exceed 15 minutes without an extension of time approved and documented by the QMRP/designee, preferably, after face-to-face attention. Unless otherwise determined by the IDT, QMRP/designee extensions will be obtained every 15 minutes until the individual is calm. The IDT should define what constitutes calm behavior for this individual when used in a behavior program. Unless determined clinically contraindicated by the QMRP/designee, should the time in restraint reach 55 minutes, the individual must be released for five minutes for motion, liquid intake, or toileting.

Should time in restraint reach 1 hour and 50 minutes, the individual must be released for at least 10 minutes–for motion, liquid intake, or toileting. If this 10-minute release is judged to be a danger to the individual and/others, additional staff should be called to ensure safety for all concerned. In addition, the individual will be checked, face to face, at least every 15 minutes for safety, well being, and integrity of the restraint. Constant observation is required.

Note: On-site monitoring by the QMRP/designee is recommended. When available, a licensed nurse should monitor the mechanical restraint. If unavailable to monitor, a licensed nurse shall check the individual's physical condition as soon as possible following restraint, but in no case later than thirty minutes after the initiation of the restraint.

Excluded as programmed mechanical restraint is the use of restraints in an emergency situation (Section 6, Page 8 of 9), during a necessary medical or dental procedure, or to promote healing following a medical procedure or injury. Devices such as a helmet which are not prescribed for the purpose of restricting an individual's movement and/or normal functioning, but rather for their safety and protection are not considered a mechanical restraint.

Note: For medical management, please refer to local site Policy on drugs to manage behavior (Behavior Management/Psychiatric Interventions).

5. Conditions for Use of Behavior Programs.

A. A formal behavior program will be developed by the IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a psychologist. It will include the following elements:

1) Description of the behavior to be modified;
2) Functional Analysis;
3) Thorough description of each step of the program to include duration and intensity of specific procedures, the methods of monitoring and analyzing the process, and special precautions that will be taken;
4) Description of any alternatives to the specific procedures;

B. The Individual Program Plan or behavior program will include:
1) Description of all procedures already attempted;
2) Side effects and risks, if any, of the intervention, in comparison with those of allowing the maladaptive behavior to continue; and
3) Behavioral objectives.

C. Behavior Management Procedures should be used in order of least restrictive, unless clinically contraindicated. Exceptions to this order must be fully documented and substantiated as to why more restrictive procedures are advisable before less restrictive ones.

D. All persons administering Category II and III procedures must have been trained in the administration of those specific procedures and have personally experienced those particular procedures, unless medically contraindicated for that person.

E. The Human Rights Committee will review all Category II and III programs at least every 6 months.

F. IDT consideration will be given to seeking consultation from outside expertise when IDT staff resources have been exhausted, as evidenced by the use of Category III procedures for over one (1) year without significant progress. If an outside consultant has been used without success, the agency should continue to access this or other outside expertise until an effective strategy is realized.

An outside consultant is defined as a professional of any discipline and who is not a member of the IDT. For instance, the outside consultant may be a member of the HDC staff not on the identified IDT, the agency staff, or a professional not affiliated with the agency.

6. Emergency Procedures. Nothing in this policy prohibits the use of emergency restraint (mechanical or personal), confiscation of any item used in a threatening manner, or removal from the environment for the purpose of protecting the individual and others around him/her. This includes the use of restraint procedures in the course of an established program, when the individual becomes a danger to him/herself or others, prior to staff being able to implement a lesser restrictive hierarchy. However, it is emphasized that emergency procedures may not be used at frequent intervals, becoming a routine method of intervention. If emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action. The emergency use of restraint must conform to ICF/MR regulations and must be reported immediately to the facility administrator or designee.

7. Prohibitions: These activities are expressly prohibited.

   A. Corporal punishment - refers to the application of painful stimuli to the body as a penalty for certain behavior, and includes, but is not limited to, hitting, pinching, the use of electrical shock or other infliction of pain, whether or not applied as part of a systematic behavior intervention program.

   B. Individuals who receive services from the agency disciplining other individuals unless involved in an organized and approved self-governing program. Individuals will not participate in the actual administration of discipline.

   C. Seclusion of an individual alone in a room or other area from which entry/exit is prevented. This does not include placement in a time-out area for brief, programmed time segments, as part of a behavior program that meets all applicable standards.

   D. Unless specifically requested by family/guardian, any procedure that denies visitation or communication with family members.

   E. Any procedure that denies sleep, shelter, bedding, food, drink, or use of bathroom facilities.

   F. Inappropriate vocalizations, maltreatment, neglect, or forced exercise.

8. Informed Consent. The individual served and/or guardian, as appropriate, will be provided a copy of the behavior program which utilizes Category II and III procedures. Informed consent will be obtained PRIOR to the implementation of the program, with the following procedures:

A. Persons 18 years of age or older who have no legally appointed guardian may give informed consent for their behavior program. If there is a question about the individual's ability to give informed consent and no guardian can be located, appropriate legal action must be pursued to have someone appointed who can give consent.

B. Consent by the legal guardian(s) is required if guardianship has been established.

C. The legally adequate consent will:
1) Specify, in terms that are easily understood, the restrictive or intrusive procedure(s) involved;
2) Inform the person(s) giving consent of any potentially harmful effects of the procedure(s);
3) Be time-limited, not to exceed one year; and
4) State that consent may be withdrawn at any time.

9. Uncategorized Procedures. In the event a proposed procedure does not readily fit in one of the prescribed categories, it may be utilized on an emergency basis, if necessary, at the discretion of the administrator or designee until the appropriate category is determined.

NOTE: Behavior Management Policy 3011-D does not preclude the use of other restrictive/intrusive procedures that would prevent serious bodily harm and/or destruction of property or death. These procedures can only be considered when lesser restrictive procedures have been proven ineffective or their implementation are determined to be clinically contraindicated. Approvals required are the same as those for Category III procedures. Additional approvals may be required as deemed necessary by the facility administrator.

DOCUMENTATION OF AND RESPONSE TO MALADAPTIVE BEHAVIORS

POLICY STATEMENT: Maladaptive behaviors must be documented on a Behavior Report (BR), a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint (also called the Restraint Log), or other authorized data keeping device. Personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure. Maladaptive behaviors include, but are not limited to, behaviors that result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property. Nothing in this policy removes or alters requirements as stated in other policies of verbal notification of incidents to the Superintendent and/or other staff.

PROCEDURES:

1. REQUIRED DOCUMENTATION

   a. When indicated, a BR must be completed following the maladaptive behavior. Incidents that are to be documented on the BR are the following:

      i. Behaviors that pose a threat to the physical or mental well being of the client or others.
      ii. Behaviors that have a direct negative impact on the client's programming.
      iii. Behaviors that directly contribute to the client remaining in a setting requiring a greater degree of supervision rather than a less restrictive one.
      iv. Target Behaviors identified by the Psychology Department and the Interdisciplinary Team.
      v. An incident requiring personal restraint (also requires notification of a QIDP). See Attachment #1.

   b. If the incident requires emergency mechanical restraint, a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must be completed. Such behaviors are defined as those emergency situations in which behaviors may result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property and cannot be controlled through the use of less restrictive measures.

   c. The rules of confidentiality will be followed when documenting these incidents. Any reference to a client other than the identified client in an incident report must be by initial only. Reference to other staff members involved will include their full name and title. All corrections must be made by a single line through the incorrect entry and the writer's initials. The Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must include the signature of the QIDP or other staff member authorizing the restraint.

2. EMERGENCY USE OF RESTRAINT

   a. Emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. Restraint will not be used as punishment or for the convenience of staff in lieu of adequate programming.

b. Seclusion will not be used as either an emergency or programmatic procedure.

c. A QIDP must be notified when personal restraint is used and it must be documented on a Behavior Report.

d. Personal restraint of a client is used when the behavior is such that verbal control has been lost and other less restrictive measures have failed to control the behavior.

e. Personal restraint will be implemented by staff who have been trained in the use of approved methods. Personal restraint must not exceed 10 minutes. During the period of personal restraint if the client becomes calm no further restraint procedures are to be implemented. If the client shows no indication of calming and becomes violent, staff will proceed as indicated in Paragraph f. below.

f. The request for the emergency use of mechanical restraint will be based on need as exhibited by the client who is so aggressive that restraint is necessary to prevent imminent physical harm to themselves, others, or property. Mechanical restraint may be used only when all other means of controlling the behavior have been exhausted. Staff will proceed in the following manner:

   i. A Restraint Incident Leader will be identified. The attending staff will immediately implement emergency mechanical restraint. As soon as possible staff will notify the on duty Program Supervisor who will contact a QIDP or other authorized staff for authorization for the use of emergency mechanical restraint.
   ii. The authorization for the mechanical restraints must not exceed 15 minutes. Continued use of mechanical restraint must be re-authorized every 15 minutes.
   iii. Immediately after emergency mechanical restraint has been applied, staff must contact the nurse on duty. The nurse will examine the client to ensure the restraint is applied in a pain free and harmless manner and present no physical danger to the client. The nurse will make a notation of the examination on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint.
   iv. A client in emergency mechanical restraint must be:

      1. Kept under constant visual observation. This observation will be for the client's physical condition (e.g., distressed breathing, bleeding, adequate blood flow to the head and extremities) as well as for signs of calming.
      2. Checked for security of restraint, current behavior and general status. A synopsis will be documented every 15 minutes.
      3. Released for 5 minutes every hour for motion and exercise.
      4. Given the opportunity for fluid intake, meals, baths and toileting. These needs will be addressed and documented as the need arises.

5. Released from emergency mechanical restraint as soon as possible. This is defined to mean as soon as the client is calm and no longer a danger to self or others. Verbal outbursts do not necessarily mean a person is still out of control or that restraint should continue.

v. After release from emergency mechanical restraint, using the Restraint Incident Debriefing Form, the Restraint Incident Leader will conduct and document a debriefing discussion with the other staff members involved in the restraint and the client that must include the following:

1. The behavior which resulted in the use of the personal or emergency mechanical restraint.
2. Any environmental factors involved in the incident.
3. The antecedents to the behavior including interactions with peers or staff
4. Any action by staff that might have kept the incident from escalating to restraint.
5. The client's reaction to the use of restraint.
6. Any changes to the client's programming which might have prevented the incident.
7. Options that the client could have used to avoid the use of restraint.

3. COMPLETION OF DOCUMENTATION

a. The person authorizing the use of emergency mechanical restraint must sign the authorization. During deviant hours authorization may be obtained by telephone. Attending staff will note on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint that such authorization was obtained by telephone.

b. The on duty Program Supervisor will be responsible for ensuring that the appropriate reports are completed in a timely and accurate manner.

c. Completed Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form will be filed in the client's Master File "Behavior Incident File".

4. REVIEW AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE COMPLETED DOCUMENTS

a. Upon completion of the report it will be sent to the appropriate Team Office.

b. The Team Leader will review all reports for content, accuracy and appropriateness and sign in the appropriate place. If corrections are required the Team Leader will contact the writer of the report and ensure corrections are made. As soon as possible the report will be given to Quality Assurance to be scanned, copied, and distributed to appropriate staff. The original report will be sent to the Record Center Operator and filed in each client's file within five days.

c. The Record Center Operator will review Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form for completeness and errors. The originator will be notified to correct errors found by the Record Center Operator.

d. The QIDP and Psychology staff member will review copies of all reports for programmatic issues, patterns of use, and the appropriate follow-up.

e. The authorized data keeping device (i.e., Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form) will be forwarded to the Psychology Department depending on the program requirement.

5. FUNCTIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL ANALYSES OF BEHAVIORS

a. The purposes of conducting functional and environmental analyses are to determine:

1. The pragmatic utility of a behavior for a client, i.e., what the behavior "does" for the client.
2. What role the environment may have played in the causation of the behavior.

These analyses assume aberrant behavior does serve a functional purpose, but that a functionally equivalent (appropriate) communicative response can be taught, and will serve to substitute for the aberrant behavior. Further, the aberrant behavior will reduce in frequency as the more appropriate response becomes systematically reinforced.

b. These analyses will provide the data needed to formulate programmatic responses to teach and reinforce appropriate behaviors to replace aberrant behaviors and inappropriate behaviors.

6. APPROVED RESTRAINT PROCEDURES, TECHNIQUES, AND DEVICES

a. Personal Restraint, an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb.

b. Chemical Intervention ordered by the Physician.

c. Protective Helmet.

d. Papoose Board, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

f. Wrist Restraint, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

7. AT BHDC ONLY ICF/IID QUALIFIED QIDP's SHALL BE APPROVED TO AUTHORIZE THE USE OF RESTRAINT

The Program Coordinator/QIDP is the first choice person to authorize restraint for clients on their caseload. After hours and on weekends the Team Leaders or other qualified QIDPs may be notified.

The following positions are recognized as being qualified QIDPs:

Program Coordinators/QIDPS, Team Leaders, Director of Residential Services, Superintendent, Assistant Superintendent, Director of Quality Assurance; Chief Psychologist, Psychological Examiners, Registered Nurses, and Staff Physician.

Current work telephone numbers for these persons can be obtained from DHS/BHDC Share.

THE STAFF PHYSICIAN MUST REVIEW, BY SIGNATURE, THE USE OF ALL EMERGENCY MECHANICAL RESTRAINT.

ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES
DIVISION OF DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES SERVICES
DDS DIRECTOR'S OFFICE POLICY MANUAL

Policy Type	Subject of Policy	Policy No.
Service	Maltreatment Prohibition, Prevention, Reporting, and Investigation	3004-I

1. Philosophy Every individual served by the Division of Developmental Disabilities Services (DDS) has the right to be free from maltreatment. DDS strictly prohibits maltreatment (which includes but is not limited to physical, verbal, psychological, or sexual abuse, neglect, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of rights) of individuals receiving services.

2. Purpose Each facility shall do all that is within its control to prevent occurrences of maltreatment and to report and investigate maltreatment when it occurs. This policy establishes a maltreatment prohibition protocol and defines responsibilities for reporting and investigating alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment of individuals served by DDS.

   This Policy does not replace or remove the mandated legal responsibility of any entity to report maltreatment or of any external entity to conduct investigations as required by law.

3. Scope Compliance with this policy is the responsibility of all facility staff, clients, consultants, volunteers, staff of other agencies serving the client, family members, legal guardians, friends, or other individuals. It is the responsibility of the on-site administrator to ensure overall compliance with this policy and to take all necessary precautions to prevent maltreatment.

4. Definitions

1. Maltreatment – Actions which include, but are not limited to, physical, verbal, psychological, or sexual abuse, neglect, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of rights of individuals receiving services

2. Founded charge of maltreatment - Credible evidence exists that supports the charge of maltreatment of an individual by a DDS employee.

3. On-site administrator – The administrator or his or her designee.

See other terms as defined by statutes in Appendix A and B.

Replacement: This Policy replaces: DDS Commissioner's Office Policy 3004-I (January 28, 1981, June 4, 1982, and May 25, 1983); DDS Deputy Director's Office Policy 3004-I (January 8, 1987); DDS Director's Office Policy 3004-I (May 1, 1993, December 1, 1993, and May 22, 1995).

Service	Maltreatment Prohibition, Prevention, Reporting, and Investigation	3004-I

5. Policy DDS Programs (hereafter referred to as facilities) will implement this policy and develop and implement consistent procedures for the prevention, identification, reporting, and investigation of maltreatment.

6. Procedures

A. Prohibition of Maltreatment

The on-site administrator is responsible for implementing this policy and consistent procedures that prohibit maltreatment through screening, training, prevention, and identification. Below are ways in which facilities should implement each component.

1. Screening:
   Screen potential employees for a history of maltreatment, as defined by applicable requirements. This includes:
   - attempting to obtain information from previous employers and/or current employers,
   - checking with the appropriate licensing boards, registries, and DHS personnel offices, and
   - performing criminal record checks.

2. Training:
   Train employees, through orientation and through on-going sessions, on issues related to maltreatment prohibition practices such as:
   - Rights of clients
   - Recognition of events that may precede or trigger certain behaviors
   - Early intervention techniques for positive behavioral support
   - Approved interventions to deal with aggressive and/or catastrophic reactions
   - Recognizing signs of staff burnout, frustration and stress that may lead to maltreatment;
   - Definition of maltreatment, and
   - Reporting suspected maltreatment.

3. Prevention:
Provide clients, families, and staff information on how and to whom they may report concerns, incidents and grievances; and how they may receive feedback regarding the concerns that have been expressed.
Identify, correct and intervene in situations in which maltreatment are more likely to occur. This includes an analysis of:
   - Features of the physical environment that may make maltreatment and/or neglect more likely to occur, such as secluded areas of the facility;
   - Failure to recognize and respect client rights.
   - The deployment of staff on each shift in sufficient numbers to meet the needs of the clients, and assure that the staff assigned have knowledge of the individual clients' care needs;
   - Inappropriate staff behaviors, such as:
     - derogatory language,
     - rough handling,
     - ignoring clients while giving care,
     - directing clients who need toileting assistance to urinate or defecate in their beds; and
     - use of items for staff convenience (i.e., disposable briefs, restraints)
   - The assessment, care planning, and monitoring of clients with needs and behaviors which might lead to conflict or neglect. This would include clients with a history of aggressive behaviors, clients who have behaviors such as entering other clients' rooms, clients with self-injurious behaviors, clients with communication disorders, and clients that require extensive care.

4. Identification:
Identify events, occurrences, patterns, and trends, such as bruising of clients, or a change in behavior that may suggest maltreatment.

B. Reporting.

1. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported by all individuals having knowledge of the alleged incident to the on-site administrator.

2. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported to the appropriate abuse reporting hotlines by the on-site administrator.

NOTE: Nothing in this policy removes the right and obligation of a mandated reporter (see Appendix B) to immediately report an incident directly to the appropriate abuse reporting hotline, as well as to the on-site administrator.

3. Reporting shall not be delayed for any type of investigation.

4. Incidents shall be reported in accordance with DHS Policy 1090, Incident Reporting, and the DHS Incident Reporting and Information System (IRIS).

5. Reports of allegations shall also be made by telephone or fax by the on-site administrator/designee to local law enforcement where the facility is located and to the individual's parent/guardian/advocate.

6. Incidents which are not specifically defined in statute as abuse but which have or may have a negative impact on clients shall be reported as noted in item 4 above. An example would be one or more acts of discourteous treatment by an employee, as defined in DHS Policies 1084 and 1085, Minimum Conduct Standards.

C. Protection of Individuals During Investigations

The on-site administrator is responsible for ensuring that staff accused or suspected of maltreatment leave the facility grounds immediately and have no contact with clients until an investigation has been completed. Under no circumstances will the subject(s) of an investigation resume regular duties or assume new duties at the facility until an investigation is complete.

D. Investigations

1. Investigations will begin promptly after an incident is reported. When applicable, the on-site administrator may delegate this task to a trained investigator on staff.

2. Allegations of maltreatment will be investigated according to DDS Procedural Guidelines for Investigations. Physical evidence (i.e., bruises, marks, etc.) shall be photographed when an incident is reported and again no more than three days later.

3. The on-site administrator may request that the Human Rights Committee review and make recommendations on current investigations and shall notify the Committee of all founded cases of maltreatment.

4. As mandated by statute, the on-site administrator will defer investigations to the proper entity (law enforcement, protective service agencies, Office of Attorney General, etc.).

5. Officials outside DDS who are authorized to conduct investigations shall request and obtain a copy of relevant documents from the on-site administrator.

E. Investigation Reports

1. When a reported incident has been determined to warrant an investigation, the on-site administrator must submit a report of findings to the Office of Long Term Care (OLTC) within five (5) working days of the facility's knowledge of the incident, to comply with OLTC regulation LTC 300 et.seq.

2. If the administrator is unable to submit a final report to OLTC within five days, he or she must submit a status report to OLTC within the five-day timeframe. This status report must detail the findings that have been determined to that point and what areas need further investigation.

3. A full report, in the format of a DDS Investigative File, must be completed and submitted to the DDS Director and to OLTC within 14 calendar days of notification that an incident is being investigated.

4. An extension of the 14-day timeframe must be requested of and granted by the Director's Office. Documentation of the extension approval shall be part of the file.

5. The DDS Director's Office shall send a copy of all investigative files to the appropriate Protective Services Agency, the Office of Chief Counsel, and the Office of the Attorney General.

F. Discipline.

1. Founded charge of maltreatment
   The employee is immediately terminated and his/her personnel file is designated as "not eligible for rehire" by DHS.

2. Failure to report alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment
   The employee is subject to termination, as in item F-1. If not terminated, the on-site administrator will utilize progressive discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084 Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances clearly warrant a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

3. Delay in reporting alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment
   The employee is subject to termination, as in item F-1. If not terminated, the on-site administrator will utilize progressive discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084 Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances clearly warrant a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

4. Other Involvement
   Any employee who is involved in any way with any aspect of a case of maltreatment and who is not terminated will be required to attend training relative to maltreatment prevention, reporting, and investigation. The on-site administrator shall specify the training course(s) and ensure that documentation of training is maintained.

G. Record Keeping.

1. Each facility shall maintain a copy of all files related to cases of alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment in a secure location. This record will include the original incident report (IRIS) and all follow-up reports; the on-site administrator's investigation report; any correspondence; any documentation of supporting evidence (photos, etc.), and documentation of the actions taken by the on-site administrator. These internal records shall be maintained for no less than ten (10) years. Original investigative files will be maintained in the DDS Director's office and retained indefinitely, in either paper format or other medium.

2. A summary report of investigations of all alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment conducted at the HDCs and subsequent outcomes shall be submitted to the DDS Director by January 15 of each year for the previous calendar year. Individual identifier information shall not be used. Victims shall be identified by case number and staff shall be identified by Job Title.

3. DDS Systems Development Section will also submit a summary report of the same information, as reported by DDS Community Programs, to the DDS Director by January 15 each year for the previous calendar year. Requests for the summary reports noted in G.2 and G.3 shall be made in writing to the DDS Director.

H. Release of Investigative Files.

It is the intent of this policy to protect the anonymity of all clients noted in investigative reports and the names of those who report abuse. For specific guidance for the release of information under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), see DHS Policy 1053. All client and reporter identifiers must be deleted (redacted) prior to release.

NOTE: When an investigation results in disciplinary action that is grieved, a copy of pertinent information from the investigation report will be provided to the grievant with client and reporter identifiers deleted. This may not apply to the grievance process at the state level.

I. Confidentiality.

All aspects of allegations, reports, and investigations of child and adult maltreatment are confidential. Verified violations will be subject to discipline under DHS Policy 1084, Employee Discipline and DHS Policy 1085, Minimum Conduct Standards.

J. Appeals.

Employees who have been disciplined based on provisions set forth in this policy retain the right of appeal according to established grievance procedures outlined in DHS Policy 1086, Employee Grievance Procedure.

CASE NOTES

Name: David Cains Date: 06/13/2020 Residence: DH Blue

On 06/13/2020 @1158, I received a call from Amanda, LPN in medical. She stated that she had some bad news and that they have been working on David Cains and have not been able to get a heartbeat.

I asked what happened. She said she did not know exactly what happened, except he started having a behavior while he was eating. He started to [redacted]

@1203, I contacted Jennifer Berry, asking what the procedures are on how to handle this. She said get as much information as possible to give mom a heads up. She provided me with Stacy's cell phone number (I already had Angie's), she stated contact Stacy or Angie and get information as what is going on from them.

[redacted]

@ 1214 I relayed the information to Jennifer, she stated to go ahead and call the mother and let her know, also provide the hospital phone number so that she could call her herself and also let her know she is able to go to the hospital as well.

@1224, I made a call to Ms. Charlene Robinson, David's mother and Guardian. She answered the phone, I introduced myself. I could hear her clearly, I thought she could hear me. I gave the notifications. During the call the phone stated having static sound, then the call ended. I immediately called back @ 1225. She answered in a panic, again I could hear her clearly, she could not hear me. She kept yelling Hello…then would hang up. I checked the on-call phone, it had full-service bars. I continued to call; it went to her voicemail twice. I tried calling on my personal cell phone, it would not go through. I called Jennifer Berry on my personal cell phone @ 1227. She said to try to call again with the on-call phone. I called while Jennifer was still on my personal cell. Ms. Robinson picked up, I made she sure could hear me, she said yes. I asked if she heard anything from my initial call. She said no, all she heard was that I didn't have any further information. I then started to give the notification again. I stated that I received a call from medical, that David choked on his food; before I could say anything else, Ms. Robinson went into a panic mode and began crying and sobbing. I tried to say that Staff did rescue procedures until EMS arrived, but unable to say that statement due to her continuing to cry and be in a panic state. She then started [redacted] stated that [redacted] also stated [redacted] during this statement, Ms. Robinson continued to cry, very upset and in panic state. She then asked what kind of food did he choke on? I stated I did not know that information, but just that he choked on his food. Ms. Robinson continued to say that she just talked to him the other night and he was doing good; she hasn't seen him in three months. She continued to cry, I Stated I could provide the hospital phone number and the she could call the hospital herself if she wanted it, she said yes and asked for the number. I provided the following number to her, 479-675-2800, and directed her to speak to the Emergency Room. I also let her know that she was able to go to the hospital if she wanted. She continued to cry and sob and then she hung up the phone. Call ended around 1233.

Jennifer Berry was still on my personal phone call and hear the conversation.

@1258, Angie from Medical called stating that the Hospital called and said that they had called the code at 1221.

@1258, I then called Jennifer to let her know.

@ 1301 Debbie, LPN from Medical called stating that the hospital called and needed to know if David's family had any idea what they wanted to do, any burial policy in place. She said that Dustin from the Hospital tried talking to the mother, but she was to distraught to answer any questions and asked that I call her.

@ 1304 I called Caleb Murry, Social Service Worker, for David, to see if they had a burial policy in place. Caleb said no, there was not one in place, they had just stated in their consents that they wanted to get one started.

@ 1310 I called Booneville Mercy ER to see exactly what they needed from us. I talked to Dustin, he stated that he just needed us to relay to the mother that he has called the County Coroner and that they are going to send David to the County Morgue. Which is Robert's Funeral Home in Booneville AR.

@ 1314, Angie from Medical called stating the mother called them and asked to speak to us. I explained I was getting information from the Hospital to share with mom.

@ 1317 I called Ms. Robinson, informed her that the hospital said that he was being taken care of and being sent to Roberts Funeral Home, the County Morgue. She was relieved when she heard this news and said good, thank you. She was mixing up her words and after a couple of tries stated that David's sister is coming form Vermont and will be in town Monday and then she said she was sorry that she could not think clearly. She asked that I please notify her Brother, Mr. Patrick Riley because she was not able to. I asked if she had given permission to talk to him and she said yes, he is on the contact list. I said I would notify him.

@ 1329 I contact Mr. Riley. Introduced myself. He said that he just got off the phone with David's sister and knew what was going on. He was very calm. He explained that he and his niece, Ms. Robinson's daughter, were going to help Ms. Robinson with all the details. He asked where David was being taken. I shared the information about Roberts Funeral Home. He then stated that he did not want to be rude, but that he didn't know me, and he would feel more comfortable with David's original social worker, Caleb. He asked if I could have Caleb call him. I stated that was fine and I would have Caleb call him.

@1336 I called Caleb Murry, Social Service worker, and explained Mr. Riley's request. I provided Caleb with the information about Roberts funeral home and provided Mr. Riley's cell phone number.

@ 1623, I received a call on the On-Call phone from Ms. Robinson. She asked if we (BHDC) were going to put this in the paper? I explained I did not believe so, but I could double check. She said please do and that she did not want this in the news paper at all. She also asked if she would be able to come to BHDC to go through his things? She said that she wanted to get his favorite Monkey Hoodie/Sweatshirt. And a nice pair of jeans to bury him in. I stated I would let Caleb know and that he or I look for the Hoodie on Monday morning and get it to her. I stated that due to Covid-19 our campus is still closed but I would get with Jennifer and see if there was something that could be done to let her come up. She said yes just let her know when we can, she would like for her daughter to be able to come up as well so that she could help carry everything @ 1624 I called Jennifer Berry, Asst. Superintendent, and asked if this would be released in the paper, and that mom did not want it in the paper at all. Jennifer stated that no she had signed a consent not letting us release his name and image. And that is something the funeral home would do and that she would just need to decline that at the funeral home. She also stated that she would check and see about letting Ms. Robinson on campus and would let Caleb or myself know when she got an answer.

@1627, I called Ms. Robinson back, shared the information that Jennifer stated to me. She thanked me for checking. Currently Ms. Robinson was in a calmer state.

DOCUMENTATION OF AND RESPONSE TO MALADAPTIVE BEHAVIORS

POLICY STATEMENT: Maladaptive behaviors must be documented on a Behavior Report (BR), a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint (also called the Restraint Log), or other authorized data keeping device. Personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure. Maladaptive behaviors include, but are not limited to, behaviors that result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property. Nothing in this policy removes or alters requirements as stated in other policies of verbal notification of incidents to the Superintendent and/or other staff.

PROCEDURES:

1. REQUIRED DOCUMENTATION

   a. When indicated, a BR must be completed following the maladaptive behavior. Incidents that are to be documented on the BR are the following:

      i. Behaviors that pose a threat to the physical or mental well being of the client or others.
      ii. Behaviors that have a direct negative impact on the client's programming.
      iii. Behaviors that directly contribute to the client remaining in a setting requiring a greater degree of supervision rather than a less restrictive one.
      iv. Target Behaviors identified by the Psychology Department and the Interdisciplinary Team.
      v. An incident requiring personal restraint (also requires notification of a QIDP). See Attachment #1.

   b. If the incident requires emergency mechanical restraint, a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must be completed. Such behaviors are defined as those emergency situations in which behaviors may result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property and cannot be controlled through the use of less restrictive measures.

   c. The rules of confidentiality will be followed when documenting these incidents. Any reference to a client other than the identified client in an incident report must be by initial only. Reference to other staff members involved will include their full name and title. All corrections must be made by a single line through the incorrect entry and the writer's initials. The Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must include the signature of the QIDP or other staff member authorizing the restraint.

2. EMERGENCY USE OF RESTRAINT

   a. Emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. Restraint will not be used as punishment or for the convenience of staff in lieu of adequate programming.

b. Seclusion will not be used as either an emergency or programmatic procedure.

c. A QIDP must be notified when personal restraint is used and it must be documented on a Behavior Report.

d. Personal restraint of a client is used when the behavior is such that verbal control has been lost and other less restrictive measures have failed to control the behavior.

e. Personal restraint will be implemented by staff who have been trained in the use of approved methods. Personal restraint must not exceed 10 minutes. During the period of personal restraint if the client becomes calm no further restraint procedures are to be implemented. If the client shows no indication of calming and becomes violent, staff will proceed as indicated in Paragraph f. below.

f. The request for the emergency use of mechanical restraint will be based on need as exhibited by the client who is so aggressive that restraint is necessary to prevent imminent physical harm to themselves, others, or property. Mechanical restraint may be used only when all other means of controlling the behavior have been exhausted. Staff will proceed in the following manner:

   i. A Restraint Incident Leader will be identified. The attending staff will immediately implement emergency mechanical restraint. As soon as possible staff will notify the on duty Program Supervisor who will contact a QIDP or other authorized staff for authorization for the use of emergency mechanical restraint.
   ii. The authorization for the mechanical restraints must not exceed 15 minutes. Continued use of mechanical restraint must be re-authorized every 15 minutes.
   iii. Immediately after emergency mechanical restraint has been applied, staff must contact the nurse on duty. The nurse will examine the client to ensure the restraint is applied in a pain free and harmless manner and present no physical danger to the client. The nurse will make a notation of the examination on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint.
   iv. A client in emergency mechanical restraint must be:

      1. Kept under constant visual observation. This observation will be for the client's physical condition (e.g., distressed breathing, bleeding, adequate blood flow to the head and extremities) as well as for signs of calming.
      2. Checked for security of restraint, current behavior and general status. A synopsis will be documented every 15 minutes.
      3. Released for 5 minutes every hour for motion and exercise.
      4. Given the opportunity for fluid intake, meals, baths and toileting. These needs will be addressed and documented as the need arises.

5. Released from emergency mechanical restraint as soon as possible. This is defined to mean as soon as the client is calm and no longer a danger to self or others. Verbal outbursts do not necessarily mean a person is still out of control or that restraint should continue.

v. After release from emergency mechanical restraint, using the Restraint Incident Debriefing Form, the Restraint Incident Leader will conduct and document a debriefing discussion with the other staff members involved in the restraint and the client that must include the following:

1. The behavior which resulted in the use of the personal or emergency mechanical restraint.
2. Any environmental factors involved in the incident.
3. The antecedents to the behavior including interactions with peers or staff
4. Any action by staff that might have kept the incident from escalating to restraint.
5. The client's reaction to the use of restraint.
6. Any changes to the client's programming which might have prevented the incident.
7. Options that the client could have used to avoid the use of restraint.

3. COMPLETION OF DOCUMENTATION

a. The person authorizing the use of emergency mechanical restraint must sign the authorization. During deviant hours authorization may be obtained by telephone. Attending staff will note on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint that such authorization was obtained by telephone.

b. The on duty Program Supervisor will be responsible for ensuring that the appropriate reports are completed in a timely and accurate manner.

c. Completed Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form will be filed in the client's Master File "Behavior Incident File".

4. REVIEW AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE COMPLETED DOCUMENTS

a. Upon completion of the report it will be sent to the appropriate Team Office.

b. The Team Leader will review all reports for content, accuracy and appropriateness and sign in the appropriate place. If corrections are required the Team Leader will contact the writer of the report and ensure corrections are made. As soon as possible the report will be given to Quality Assurance to be scanned, copied, and distributed to appropriate staff. The original report will be sent to the Record Center Operator and filed in each client's file within five days.

c. The Record Center Operator will review Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form for completeness and errors. The originator will be notified to correct errors found by the Record Center Operator.

d. The QIDP and Psychology staff member will review copies of all reports for programmatic issues, patterns of use, and the appropriate follow-up.

e. The authorized data keeping device (i.e., Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form) will be forwarded to the Psychology Department depending on the program requirement.

5. FUNCTIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL ANALYSES OF BEHAVIORS

a. The purposes of conducting functional and environmental analyses are to determine:

1. The pragmatic utility of a behavior for a client, i.e., what the behavior "does" for the client.
2. What role the environment may have played in the causation of the behavior.

These analyses assume aberrant behavior does serve a functional purpose, but that a functionally equivalent (appropriate) communicative response can be taught, and will serve to substitute for the aberrant behavior. Further, the aberrant behavior will reduce in frequency as the more appropriate response becomes systematically reinforced.

b. These analyses will provide the data needed to formulate programmatic responses to teach and reinforce appropriate behaviors to replace aberrant behaviors and inappropriate behaviors.

6. APPROVED RESTRAINT PROCEDURES, TECHNIQUES, AND DEVICES

a. Personal Restraint, an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb.

b. Chemical Intervention ordered by the Physician.

c. Protective Helmet.

d. Papoose Board, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

f. Wrist Restraint, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

Part 1 - Survey Protocol for Intermediate Care Facilities for Individuals with Intellectual Disabilities

I - Introduction

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

The principal focus of the ICF/IID survey process is on the "outcome" of the facility's provision of active treatment as defined by 42 CFR 483.440(a). Direct your principal attention to what actually happens to clients: whether the facility provides needed services and interventions; whether the facility insures clients are free from abuse, mistreatment, or neglect; whether clients, families and guardians participate in identifying and selecting services; whether the facility promotes greater independence, choice, integration and productivity; how competently and effectively the staff interact with clients; and whether all health needs are being met.

Use observation as the primary method of information gathering.
Conduct interviews and record reviews after completion of observations to confirm specific issues. Verify that the facility develops interventions and supports that address the clients' needs, and provides required client protections and health services. Do not conduct in-depth reviews of assessments, progress notes or historical data unless outcomes fail to occur for clients.

The provision of active treatment includes:

Comprehensive Functional Assessment (42 CFR 483.440(c)(3)).--Each individual client's interdisciplinary team must perform accurate, comprehensive functional assessments and reassessments within 30 days after admission that identifies all of the client's:

Specific developmental strengths, including client preferences;
Specific functional and adaptive social skills the client needs toacquire; Any presenting disabilities, and when possible their causes; and
The need for services without regard to their availability.
(W196, W197, W200, W210, W211, W212, W213, W214, W215, W216, W217, W218, W219, W220, W221, W222, W223, W224, W225, W259)

Individual Program Plan (IPP) (42 CFR 483.440(c)).--The interdisciplinary team must prepare an IPP which:

- Includes opportunities for individual choice and self-management;
- Identifies the discrete, measurable, criteria-based objectives the client is to achieve;
- Identifies the specific individualized program of specialized and generic strategies, supports, and techniques to be employed; and
- Must be directed toward the acquisition of the skills necessary for the client to function with as much self-determination and independence as possible and the Prevention or egression or loss of current optimal functional status.

(W196, W209, W227, W240, W242, W247, W159)

Program Implementation (42 CFR 483.440(d)).--Each client must receive a continuous active treatment program consisting of needed interventions and services in sufficient intensity and frequency to support the achievement of IPP objectives.

(W196, W249, W104, W120, W159, W164, W186, 189, W190, W194, W436, W474, W488)

Program Documentation (42 CFR 483.440(e)).--Accurate, systematic, behaviorally-stated data about the client's performance toward meeting the IPP objectives serves as the basis for necessary change and revision to the program.

(W196, W252, W253, W254, W111)

Program Monitoring and Change (42 CFR 483.440(f)).--At least annually, the comprehensive functional assessment of each client is reviewed by the interdisciplinary team for its relevancy and updated, as needed. The IPP is revised, as appropriate.

(W196, W255, W256, W257, W262, W263, W258, W259, W260, W264, W104, W159, W448, W449)

II - Survey Levels

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

There are three levels of ICF/IID surveys. They are the focused fundamental survey, the extended survey, and the full survey. Initial certifications and annual re-certification of ICF/IIDs also requires a Life Safety Code survey (see instructions in Appendix I), which is separate from these three health surveys). A full survey must be conducted for initial certification surveys and do not require a focused fundamental survey. A focused fundamental survey should be conducted for recertification surveys, unless, the State Survey Agency determines that a full survey is warranted based on the survey agency's identification of concerns related to the provider's capacity to furnish adequate services. A recertification survey can be expanded at any time to an extended survey or to a full survey based on surveyor findings.

A. Focused Fundamental Survey

The focused fundamental survey may be utilized for all ICF/IID recertification surveys. In addition to the entrance and exit, the focused fundamental survey follows the procedures outlined in tasks one through three. Initial surveys will still require a full survey. The focused fundamental survey process focuses the predominance of the survey time on the basic elements of the active treatment process. This is accomplished through the concept of regulatory standards; an emphasis on increased client observation time; and more effective use of interviews and client record reviews. During the focused fundamental survey, the primary method of information gathering is observation. Interviews and record reviews are conducted to confirm and/or provide additional information on any concerns identified during observations. Beyond the IPP and the comprehensive functional assessment (CFA), in-depth review of progress notes or historical data is not performed unless there is suspected non-compliance of a key standard. As a result, this focused fundamental survey requires less on- site survey time than the full survey while still providing sufficient information regarding the delivery of services by the facility to enable the State Survey Agency (SA) and/or CMS Regional Office (RO) to determine compliance or non- compliance with the Conditions of Participation (CoPs).

The focused fundamental survey involves the identification of key standards within the ICF/IID CoPs from which all other standards correspond When the facility is determined to be in substantial compliance with the identified key standard, the standards corresponding from that key standard are automatically determined as being met since the key standard could not be compliant otherwise. However, if any key standard is found to be out of compliance, all regulations corresponding to the key standard (s) must be reviewed to determine compliance or non-compliance of each corresponding standard. The SA or CMS RO must, at this point, make a decision as to whether it would be more appropriate to continue the focused fundamental survey by simply adding review of the regulations under the non-compliant key standard(s) or to convert the survey to an extended survey. The SA or CMS RO must convert the focused fundamental survey to an extended survey if standard-level deficiencies are found during survey and the survey team has determined or suspects that one or more CoPs examined during the survey may be out of compliance.

The focused fundamental survey process is focused on the key standards. However, the surveyors are not precluded from reviewing or citing any of the corresponding standards if indicated during the review of the key standards.

The key standard list and the corresponding regulations associated with each key standard is provided below in Table 1. The CoP is highlighted in bold and the key standard(s) under each CoP is shaded in gray. The specified W tags under each shaded key standard are the corresponding regulations associated with that key standard.

B. Extended Survey

During a focused fundamental survey, if a key standard of a CoP is found to be out of compliance, then the surveyor will review all corresponding standards under that key standard to determine compliance with that condition (i.e., to determine condition-level compliance). If the review of the key standard and corresponding standards could result in a condition-level non-compliance finding, then the SA can decide to survey all the standards within that CoP. This review of all the standards within an ICF/IID CoP is known as an extended survey.

However, if the review of the key standard and corresponding standards results in a CoP non-compliance finding at 42 CFR 483.420, 42 CFR 483.450 or 42 CFR 483.460, then the team must convert the extended survey to a full survey and follow the procedures for a full survey as indicated below.

NOTE: Neither the focused fundamental nor the extended survey processes preclude the survey agency from review of any standard, if evidence of non-compliant facility practice is suspected during any survey.*

C. Full Survey

A full survey is a review of all of the standards within all eight ICF/IID CoPs. In addition to the entrance and exit, a full survey follows the procedures outlined in all seven tasks.

A full survey is conducted when any one or more of the following criteria are met:

- The survey team is conducting an initial survey;
- An immediate jeopardy is called;
- The survey team determines from the extended survey that Condition-level deficiencies exist at one or more of the specific CoPs at 42 CFR 483.420, 42 CFR 483.450 or CFR 483.460; or
- At the discretion of the SA

III - Entrance

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

In addition to standard entrance procedures, the surveyor will complete the Form CMS-3070G "Intermediate Care Facilities for Individuals with Intellectual Disabilities Survey Report," to capture characteristics of the facility and the facility's population. Furthermore, the surveyor will establish the client sample selection by requesting a complete and accurate list of all the clients that currently reside in the facility. After the core number of clients are selected (see Task 1 below), the surveyor will request a copy of each selected client's Individual Program Plan (IPP). Each IPP will be utilized during observations to determine:

1. If the client's skills matches the IPP;
2. If the IPP is being followed;
3. If staff understand the IPP;
4. Staff and client interactions during the programs; and
5. Health concerns interfering with the IPP.

IV - Task One - Sample Selection

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

The complete sample for the facility will include a core number of clients selected at the beginning of the survey and additional clients are added during the process of the survey as needed based on observations and/or interviews. Do not permit the facility staff to select the sample.

A full review (observation, record review and interview) will be conducted on all clients in the core sample to include:

1. Comparison of the Comprehensive Functional Assessment to the Individualized Program Plan (IPP);
2. Comparison of the IPP to actual activity observed;
3. Review of documentation of client participation and progress compared to observations;
4. Timely and appropriate behavior program plan development and implementation as indicated; and
5. Medical assessments conducted as indicated and indicated medical care or interventions.

The core sample of clients is selected from a list of the facility's current client list without regard to client developmental levels or locations in the facility. At minimum, the core sample should include clients that meet any one or more of the following criteria:

- ☐ Admission within the last six (6) months;
- ☐ Participation in a day program;
- ☐ On a self-administration program; and/or
- ☐ Frequent hospitalizations or ER visits.

Table 2: Guidance to Calculate Core Sample Size:

Number of Clients Residing in the Facility	Minimum Number in Core Sample
4	2
5-16	3
17-50	4
51-100	6
101-150	8
Over 150	10

During observations, additional clients should be added to the core sample if areas of concern are identified. Examples may include, but are not limited to:

1. Clients with significant medical involvement which may be impacting the implementation of their IPP;
2. Clients with significant behaviors with lack of or inappropriate staff intervention;
3. Clients that are idle for extended periods oftime;
4. Clients that appear to have strengths but are not encouraged to use those skills or are performing activities below their skill levels; and
5. Clients who are not provided appropriate medical care.

Additional Sample Clients:

A client added to the core sample, during observations, does not require a full review of his/her program record. There is no minimum or maximum number of additional clients that must be added to the core sample. The program records for clients added to the core sample (additional clients), should only be reviewed for the observed areas of concern. For instance, in the case of a client observed to be doing work that appears to be for the benefit of the facility, the record should be reviewed to determine whether the work is included in the client's IPP; whether fair compensation is provided; and whether the client's needs are being addressed by the facility. The client and the staff should be interviewed and the information compared to the program records.

Another client may be added to the sample based solely on the fact that he/she is on a self - administration program for medication. In this case, the surveyor would focus the record review on:

- Whether the comprehensive assessment supported the indication for such a program;
- What the current objectives of the program are and whether the client is following those objectives; and
- What documentation is maintained of oversight of the objectives and whether the objectives are revised as indicated.

Observations and interviews with the client and staff would focus on the medication administration.

V - Task Two - Review of Facility Systems to Prevent Abuse, Neglectand Mistreatment and to Resolve Complaints

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

When determining whether or not facility systems are in place to prevent abuse, neglect, and mistreatment and to resolve complaints, surveyors will use Task Two.

Task Two consists of two phases. In the absence of pre-existing characteristics as described below, only Phase One should be completed. If there are pre-existing criteria or if in the course of the survey concerns with client protections are identified, the surveyor should extend to the Phase Two review. Any one or more of the following are pre-existing criteria that would initiate a Phase Two review.

- Substantiated complaints or facility reported events in Client Protections since the last recertification survey;
- A survey history of citations at W127, W153-W157; or
- Concerns identified by the SA that warrant a Phase Two review.

A. Task Two Phase One

The critical components of this Phase are client observations including staff-to-client and client-to-client interactions, and staff/client/family interviews. These observations and interviews identify the reporting records or investigation records that will be reviewed by the surveyor.
These records/reports are requested after the observations and interviews have been completed.

If the surveyor determines during Phase One that there is evidence of possible abuse, neglect and mistreatment, then the surveyor should follow-up with associated interviews and record reviews. The surveyor should contact his or her SA for a possible Immediate Jeopardy (IJ) call. If the CoP for Client Protections at 42 CFR 483.420 is cited, then this concludes Task Two.
Additional review of Task Two is completed at the discretion of the SA or CMS RO.

If during Phase One, the surveyor does not observe any instances of possible abuse, neglect and mistreatment, then Task Two may be ended.

1. Phase One Observations:

- Any signs of client injury (e.g., bruising, splints, bandages, scratches, limping or favoring a limb, etc.);
- Client-to-client aggression;
- Inappropriate staff-to-client interactions (e.g., physical, verbal);

- Signs of fear in the presence of specific clients or staff;
- Signs of mistreatment or punishment by staff such as rudeness, rough handling, restriction of rights, etc.; or
- Any clients currently in the hospital or experiencing recent hospitalizations or emergency room visits

2. Phase One Interviews:

If Phase One observations identify any concerns with possible abuse, neglect and mistreatment, as well as failure to resolve complaints, then specifically associated interviews must be conducted.

The client is interviewed first. Do not exclude clients who use alternate means of communication, such as communication boards or gestures. Most clients are able to communicate in some manner. Questions to the client may include, but are not be limited to:

a. Are the staff nice to you?
b. Do the staff yell, swear, or hit? Who?
c. Has anyone ever hurt you? Who? When?
d. Are you ever punished for anything? What was yourpunishment?
e. How did you get injured? (If the client has an obviousinjury)

Interview the family, legal guardian, advocates (if applicable) and close friends (if identified) of each client for whom a concern was identified either during observations or client interviews. Family members, legal guardians, advocates and close friends may be interviewed at the facility or by telephone. Questions to the families, legal guardians, advocates and close friends may include, but are not be limited to:

a. Have you noticed any bruises or injuries of an unknown source on (client'sname)?
b. If so, did you speak with thestaff?
c. What did they say?
d. How does the staff interact with (client'sname)?
e. Does (client name) complain of any mistreatment duringvisits?

Facility staff should be interviewed as indicated. This includes direct care staff from more than one shift, the applicable Qualified Intellectual Disability Professional (QIDP) and medical personnel. The goals of the interviews are to determine how often injuries/mistreatment are occurring, what process the facility is using for reporting such instances, the timeliness of notifications, whether clients are protected from harm during investigations and whether process changes are implemented by the facility to prevent future injuries and/or mistreatment. The questions during each interview should be tailored according to the observations made.

3. Phase One Record Reviews:

For any specific injury noted during observations (regardless of whether the client is in the sample or not), the surveyor requests the documentation associated with the injury (reporting/investigation/disposition). The goal of this documentation review is to verify the information provided by the staff and to ensure the prompt reporting, investigation and protection of clients with injuries and allegations of mistreatment.

If the observations, interviews or record reviews during Phase One confirm that the facility is identifying injuries and mistreatment promptly, notifying the appropriate persons, doing appropriate investigations, and doing appropriate interventions, then Task Two is concluded. Deficiencies may be written at Phase One without proceeding to Phase Two.

B. Task Two Phase Two:

If the surveyor determines during Phase One that there is insufficient evidence to find that the facility is in compliance with the Condition of Participation for client protections at 42 CFR 483.420, a more global review is indicated. Request the facility log of client incidents and reports and select a sample of 5 percent of the incidents from the total client incidents occurring during the last three (3) months (a minimum of 10 if available). Request the investigative reports for these incidents. Look for any evidence that suggests that clients are being abused, neglected or mistreated. Determine whether in each case the incident was reported promptly and investigated thoroughly and that safeguards were put into place during the investigation and corrective measures taken in order to prevent recurrences.

If the facility has a system in place to prevent abuse, neglect and mistreatment and to resolve complaints and takes the appropriate corrective measures, then, Task Two is complete.
If the 5 percent sample review is not determinative as to the compliance with the CoP for client protections, or the surveyor identifies any patterns of possible abuse, mistreatment or neglect, or the incident report logs for the past three (3) months indicate an extremely high incident rate, the surveyor should proceed to a full review of the total number of incidents and reports for the past three (3) months to identify any deficient practice by the facility.

If the surveyor believes that issues exist that rise to the level of an Immediate Jeopardy, investigate and procedures in Appendix Q should be followed.

VI - Task Three – Focused Observation

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

The majority of the time on an ICF/IID focused fundamental survey is spent doing observation, associated interviews and associated targeted record review. It is critical that observations of sufficient duration occur across the entire survey (i.e. early morning, afternoon, and evening) and occur across the client's various environments (home, recreation and day program). A minimum of two meals must be observed and two medication pass observations must be conducted.

Once the client core sample is selected and copies of the Individual Program Plan for each selected client have been obtained, the observations should begin. Do not delay beginning observations awaiting the IPPs. Begin general observations until the IPPs are provided by the facility.

Initially note and record the first general impressions of each area where the clients are observed (i.e., the milieu). Conduct these observations, without intruding (unless it is necessary to alert a staff member to a possible risk to a client) for at least an hour in each initial location. Note things on the general milieu such as:

a. Are all the clients in the area dressed appropriately but individually according to what appears to be their preferences?

b. What activities are taking place? Note the time of day. Are these activities appropriate for the time of day?

c. How many staff are present?

d. Does the environment appear calm and purposeful?

e. What is the staff doing? How is the staff interacting with the clients? How are clients interacting with each other?

f. Are clients being encouraged by the staff to participate in activities or are things done for them?

g. What types of adaptive equipment or assistive devices are used?

h. Do the staff use teachable moments with the clients?

i. How are behavioral episodes addressed?

j. Do clients appear well nourished? Do they appear sleepy (not early in the morning)?

k. Do any clients have signs of injury? (Note for subsequent staff interview and Task 2 review.)

The results of these initial observations are critical to the focused fundamental survey process on two levels. The surveyor(s) may observe specific issues which would indicate further investigation or additional clients may need to be added to the core sample. The SA may determine that, based upon the overall initial observation findings, the facility will require an extended or full survey rather than a focused fundamental.

Focused Observation Areas:

1. Active Treatment-
Each IPP must be appropriate for the client based upon a comprehensive assessment and revised with changes in client program needs. The IPP must correspond to what treatments, programs or services the client is actually receiving. Programs should be appropriate for the client (i.e., is the client able to accomplish/complete the program too easily; have they already accomplished the components of the program; or does the client have program needs that have not been addressed by the IPP (e.g., ADL, behavioral, socialization))? If there are discrepancies with the IPP programs after observing the client in several environments, the surveyor should speak with the client and/or appropriate staff (QIDP, direct care staff, psychology staff) for additional information on the identified concerns. Interviews with staff are not done routinely. If during observations the surveyor(s) determine that the current objectives of the IPP match the strengths and needs of the client, the staff is familiar with the methodology of accomplishing these programs, and they are being carried out as written in the IPP, there is no need to conduct formal staff interviews. The surveyor should ask the staff (direct care staff carrying out the program(s)) for records documenting program(s). Generally, the client should be making steady progress and this should be reflected in the program data. However, if there is no progress made or if there has been a regression, there should be evidence that the QIDP/ID team is aware of the issue and is addressing it. In this case or in the case where actual programs do not match IPP programs or do not seem appropriate for the client based upon the client's identified skills, it will be necessary for the surveyors to interview appropriate staff.

2. Staff

Generally, an inadequate number of staff will result in concerns with client programming and client protection. During observations, note how the on duty staffing ratios either promote or prevent a safe and productive active treatment environment. In some instances surveyors will see the effects of inadequate staffing early (during the first impression observation). These effects may include chaotic environment, client-to-client abuse, self-abuse by clients, clients sitting unengaged for long periods of time with little or no staff presence, clients not given the opportunity to assist in ADLs or participate in the rhythms of life due to the need to "get things done" (such as assisting with mal preparation), or programs not being carried out due to inadequate on-duty staffing.

3. Qualified Intellectual Disabilities Professional (QIDP)

The increased time devoted to observations during the survey provides more of an opportunity to also observe the QIDP in action. Observe interactions between the QIDP and the staff and the QIDP and the clients. Is the QIDP familiar with client programs and client progress? How much direct interaction is occurring among the QIDP, the staff and the clients? Is the QIDP intervening when necessary and facilitating revisions to IPP as indicated? If the surveyor has unresolved discrepancies, any concerns should be discussed with the QIDP.

4. Health Care Services

The surveyor should determine from observations whether or not the sampled clients are receiving medical care as indicated. NOTE:

- a. Do any of the clients have acute or chronic medical issues? How are these issues being addressed by the medical staff at the facility?
- b. Do the clients seem alert and energetic?
- c. Are clients at a healthy weight?
- d. Do the clients have good oral health? Have any dental problems been dealt with promptly and appropriately?
- e. Are the staff trained on first aid and reporting of medical issues?

If during observation there is concern about the health of a client, the nurse surveyor should talk with the client and/or the nurse about the issues observed. In the event that there is not a nurse surveyor, the non-clinical surveyor will need to consult with a clinician at the SA. Determine what interaction is occurring between the client and the medical staff and whether the situation is improving or deteriorating? Review the pertinent portions of the client record and discuss with the medical staff as necessary.

If there are clients on a self-administration of medications program, the evaluation of the program should be part of the active treatment observations.

5. Physical Environment
During observations, the surveyor should observe the facility for cleanliness, comfortable temperature and any safety hazards (i.e. obstructed walkways, resilient, nonabrasive, and slip-resistant floors).

Client Record Review:

Review of the client record during the focused fundamental survey is kept to a minimum. No routine record review is done. All record reviews are focused on obtaining additional information to clarify or completely document areas of question or concern identified during observation.

VII - Task Four - Required Interviews with Individuals and/or Family/Advocate Direct Care Staff

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

A – Purpose

Individuals living in the facility, their families/guardians and advocates, and direct care staff are important sources of information about the receipt of active treatment on a daily basis. Interviews are conducted for two purposes: to determine how the individual perceives the services delivered by the facility, and to clarify information gathered during observations.

B - Interview Procedure

Start with the individual in the sample and the people most closely associated with the individual's daily program implementation. Use the following hierarchy of sources, to the maximum extent possible, in the order shown:

- Individual;
- Families, legal guardian, or advocate;
- Direct care staff;

- Qualified intellectual disabilities professional (QIDP) and/or professional staff; and
- Managers, administrators, or department heads.

Determine from your observations and from the staff how the individual communicates with others. Also determine from the staff the extent of involvement of family members, guardians or advocates with the individuals in the sample. Based on this information, select the individuals from the sample with whom you will conduct more in-depth interviews. Select those individuals who will be able to communicate at least some basic information or those who have actively involved family members, guardians or advocates. Do not exclude from interviews individuals who use alternate means of communication, such as communication boards, sign language, and gestures. Most individuals are able to communicate in some manner.

Attempt to obtain the required number of interviews first from individuals and then from family members, guardians or advocates. In the absence of individuals who are able to communicate and active significant others, interview the direct care staff person who works most closely with the individual in order to obtain the required number of in-depth interviews.
The questions and communication method will vary from person to person. For individuals who use a specialized communication method, attempt to begin the interview on a one to one basis. If you find you are unable to communicate with the individual, ask someone familiar with the person to assist you (e.g., a family member or a staff person.) For this individual, pay close attention to how the staff communicates with him or her. If the person uses sign language or a communication board, does staff understand and interact with the individual using the same method? If the person uses gestures, does staff take time to determine his or her needs?
Family members, guardians or advocates may be interviewed at the facility, at a location convenient to both the surveyor and the interviewee, or by telephone. All interviews should be conducted in private locations and scheduled at mutually agreed upon times in order to minimize disruptions to individual, family, or staff activities.

C - Content of In-depth Interviews
Determine what the facility does to provide individualized services and supports; and how individuals and families participate in service planning and in making choices about matters important to them.

- Are individuals treated with respect and dignity?
- Does the facility attempt to help the person set and attain individual goals?
- Are there consistent opportunities for making choices?
- When a choice is not an option, how is the individual assisted to understand?
- For example, if a planned activity is to go to a restaurant for dinner, who chooses the restaurant?
- Is it staff or the individuals living in the facility?
- If one group of people does not want to go, how is this choice accommodated?

- Is the accommodation based on individual choice, staff convenience, or a reasonable justification if a choice is not an option?

See section D for suggested interview questions. Unless designated that certain questions be directed to a certain person, questions are relevant to whoever is being interviewed (individual, family member, advocate or staff person.) Modify the wording of the questions based on the person being interviewed (individual, family member, or staff) and on the communication skills of that individual. For example, you may discover that the person responds better to questions that can be answered "yes" or "no" than to open-ended questions. Be sensitive to signs that the individual is tiring or becoming uncomfortable and either end the interview or continue it at a later time if this occurs. It is not necessary to ask every question in the guide, but do try to ask at least one question from each topic area.

D - Suggested Interview Questions

If you have not met the person before, begin the interview by explaining who you are and what your role is. To put the person at ease you may want to begin with some general conversation, e.g., about the weather or a special event coming up. At the end of the interview, if you think you may need to discuss or confirm personal information with staff or family, ask the person if it is OK to share that information.

Questions Related to Choice and Community Participation (W136, W147, W247):

- What sorts of things do you like to do for fun?
- Do you go out to activities or events in the community (like shopping, movies or church)?
- How often do you do this?
- How do you get there?
- Who chooses where you go?
- Do you go to visit family members or take vacations?
- Is there something you would like to do more often?

Questions Related to Personal Finances and Possessions (W126, W137):

- Do you earn money on your job (at your day program)?

- Does your family write to you or telephone you?
- Does someone help you read their letters/ call them on the phone?
- If you feel like being alone or spending private time with a friend or family where do you go?

- Does your family/advocate come to these meetings?
- Were you asked if the date and time of the meeting were OK with you?
- What would you like to learn to do for yourself?
- Does the staff ask you what you want?
- Who chooses what you do?
- Does the staff listen to you and make changes based on what you want?

For staff:

- How do you communicate with this individual?
- What does (s) he like and dislike? How do you know that?

Questions Related to Service Delivery (W242, W249, W436):

- What help do you need from staff to dress, eat, bathe, etc?
- Do you get any special therapy (e.g., speech or physical therapy)?
- What new things are you learning to do?
- What chores do you help with around the house?
- Who helps you when you do not know how to do something?
- What special equipment do you use?

Questions Related to Individual's Rights and Protections: W124-W125, W127, W153 - W157, W127-W128, W263:

- Who do you tell if you do not like something, or something is wrong?
- Are there rules that everyone who lives here must follow?
- What sorts of things are you allowed to do or not do?
- How does the staff treat you?
- Are staff loud?
- Does staff yell, swear or hit?
- Do you ever do things you are not supposed to do? What happens then?
- Were you ever asked to give consent for any treatments or services?
- Were you told the benefits, risks and alternatives?

Questions Related to Health Status (W322, W356):

- How often do you see a doctor? A dentist?
- Do you have any health problems?
- Do you take any medicines? Do you know what they are for?

Wrap-up Questions:

- Is there anything you especially like about living here? Anything you especially dislike?
- Is there anything else you think I should know about what it is like to live here?

E - Interviews to Clarify Observations

In the absence of finding appropriate interaction between staff and individuals during observations, it may be necessary to judge whether or not staff is knowledgeable about individual objectives and techniques for implementation of programs. If possible, interview staff following the interval in which the individual was observed with the particular staff member. (For example, if you have just observed Individual A engaging in stereotypical behaviors, ask: "Can you tell me what, if anything, you do when he rocks back and forth?") Ask questions that elicit information about how staff learns what to do with individuals across the spectrum of support and programming activities they are expected to perform. Ask professional staff questions to see if they know how to implement programs for an individual other than their professional discipline (e.g., how to carry through with a behavior program in the midst of communications training).

Ascertain whether the staff is competent to carry out the individual's choices and skill development activity. Is there evidence that programs are in fact being carried out throughout the individual's waking hours? Are interventions revised based on changes in the individual's progress toward goals? If staff cannot demonstrate the skills necessary to implement the individual's programs and choices, if interventions are not being carried out consistently, or if revisions to interventions do not occur, you have findings that active treatment is not being delivered.

F - Documentation

Record each interview you conduct with individuals, staff, consultants, off-site day program staff, legal guardians, etc., in your personal notes or on the optional observation worksheet(Form CMS-3070I). Include the following information in your notes for eachinterview:

- Date and time of interview;
- Job title and assignment at the ICF/IID;
- Relationship to the individual or reason for the interview; and
- Summary of the information obtained.

VIII - Task Five - Drug Pass Observation

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

Observe the preparation and administration of medications to individuals. With this approach, there is no doubt that the errors detected, if any, are errors in drug administration, not documentation.

Follow the procedure in the interpretive guidelines at W369 for conducting the drug pass observation. Notes on observations of the drug pass may be recorded on Form CMS- 677 (LTC Medication Pass Worksheet) or in the surveyor's personal notes. The purpose of the review is to direct the facility's attention to assuring an error free drug distribution system and away from the paper processes that often do not represent actual errors in medication administration. For the purposes of this task, a "small" facility is one that houses 16 or fewer residents.

IX - Task Six - Visit to Each Area of Facility Serving Certified Individuals

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

A - Purpose

By the end of the survey, visit each area of the facility serving certified individuals in order to:

- Ensure that all areas of the facility (including those that are not represented by individuals in the sample) are providing services in the manner required by the regulations.
- Assess generally the physical safety of the environment.
- Assess that individual rights are proactively asserted and protected.

B – Protocol

After individuals in the sample have been assigned to team members, review the facility's map or building layout. Assign members to visit each remaining residential and on-campus day program site prior to completing the survey. Insure that each area of the facility that is utilized by individuals has been visited. This visit may be done with or without facility staff accompanying you, as you prefer, and subject to their availability. Record your observations in your notes.

Converse with individuals, family members/significant others (if present), and staff. Ask open-ended questions in order to confirm observations, obtain additional information, or corroborate information, e.g., accidents, odors, apparent inappropriate dress, adequacy and appropriateness of training activities. Observe staff interactions with other staff members as well as with individuals for insight into matters such as individual rights and staff responsibilities.

X - Task Seven - Record Review of Individuals in the Sample

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

A - Introduction

Do not spend an excessive amount of time looking at fine details in the record review of the selected sample. The purposes are to:

- Verify the applicable information obtained from your observations and interviews;
- Review revisions that have been made to the objectives; and
- Verify that needed health and safety supports are in place.

Do not review in detail the written training programs that are developed for each individual unless you discover serious differences between the record and your observations and interviews. Review those parts of the record most relevant to your purposes as described below.

B - The Individual Program Plan (IPP)

Identify the developmental, behavioral, and health objectives the facility has committed itself to accomplish during the current IPP period. Identify what, if any, behavioral strategies (e.g., behavior modification programs, use of psychotropics) are being used with individuals in your sample. Determine what, if any, health or other problems might interfere with participation in program services.

C - Program Monitoring and Change

Skim the most recent interdisciplinary team review notes to identify what revisions were made to the IPP. Determine whether revisions were based on objective measures of the individual's progress, regression, or lack of progress toward his/her objectives.

D - Health and Safety Supports

Verify, either through the interdisciplinary team review notes or through the most recent nursing notes, that the individual has received follow-up services for any health or dental needs identified in the IPP and check the person's current drug regimen. For individuals with whom restrictive or intrusive techniques are used, verify that the necessary consents and approvals have been obtained.

If this information is consistent with your observations and interviews, conclude the record review. If discrepancies are found, conduct further observations or interviews as needed to verify your findings.

XI - Exit Conference

(Rev. 178; Issued: 04-13-18; Effective: 04-13-18; Implementation: 04-13-18)

During the pre-exit conference, the survey team records on the Form CMS-3070H ("Intermediate Care Facilities for Individuals with Intellectual Disabilities Deficiencies Report") those requirements that are determined to be deficient and the findings that support that determination. Write the deficiency statement in terms specific enough to allow a reasonably knowledgeable person to understand the aspect(s) of the requirement(s) that is (are) not met. Indicate on the Form CMS-3070H the data prefix tag, followed by a summary of the deficient facility practice(s). Briefly identify the supporting findings for each deficiency (i.e., transfer to the Form CMS-3070H the identifier numbers of all clients to whom the deficient practice applies.) It is not necessary to write a full description of the findings on the Form CMS- 3070H since they will be described in more detail on the completed Statement of Deficiencies (Form CMS-2567). It is necessary to complete the Form CMS-3070H for each survey because the Form CMS-3070H is the only document in which the survey team's recommendations for deficiencies are recorded (which may be changed later on the final Form CMS-2567 as a result of supervisory review) and because not all client examples may be used on the Form CMS-2567. During the exit conference, provide the facility administrator with all regulations determined to not be met during the survey. Provide examples as necessary, allow the facility to provide additional information if it chooses, inform the facility that the findings are preliminary and final compliance determinations will be made by the survey office.

Part II- Interpretive Guidelines-Responsibilities of Intermediate Care Facilities for Individuals with Intellectual Disabilities

§440.150 Intermediate Care Facility Services, Other Than in Institutions for Mental Diseases

W101

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

W101 is reassigned to §483.410(e). Section 442.251, the standard which requires that facilities meet the requirement for a State license, is redesignated to §483.410(e) and W101 is reassigned as well to afford a sense of continuity.

W102

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410 Condition of participation: Governing body and management

(a) Standard: Governing body

W103

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(a) The facility must identify an individual or individuals to constitute the governing body of the facility.

Guidance §483.410(a)

If concerns are noted regarding the governing body, written documentation verifies that the facility has designated the individual or individuals to constitute the governing body and their titles.

W104

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(a)(1) The governing body must exercise general policy, budget, and operating direction over the facility.

Guidance §483.410(a)(1)

The governing body develops, monitors, and revises, as necessary, policies and operating directions which ensure the necessary staffing, training resources, equipment and environment to provide clients with active treatment and to provide for their health and safety.

Direction by the Governing Body includes areas such as health, safety, sanitation, maintenance and repair, and utilization and management of staff.

Condition level operational deficiencies may be associated with a failure by the Governing Body to exercise general direction of the facility.

W105

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(a)(2) The governing body must set the qualifications (in addition to those already set by State law, if any) for the administrator of the facility.

Guidance §483.410(a)(2)

The policies of the facility must include the qualifications of the administrator, and the qualifications are stated in the job description of the administrator.

W106

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(a)(3) The governing body must appoint the administrator of the facility.

Guidance §483.410(a)(3)

This appointment must be in writing.

(b) Standard: Compliance with Federal, State and local laws

§483.410(b) The facility must be in compliance with all applicable provisions of Federal, State and local laws, regulations and codes pertaining to:

Guidance §483.410(b)

The facility has no final adverse action by a Federal, State, or local authority. Such adverse actions include, but are not limited to fines, limitation on services that may be provided, or loss of licensure.

The facility must be able to provide for review, current licenses and permits as well as applicable reports of inspections by State or local health authorities.

If a situation is identified indicating the provider may not be in compliance with Federal, State, or local law, refer that information to the authority having jurisdiction (AHJ) for follow-up actions. See W107, W108, or W109.

(c) Standard: Client Records

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

W110

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(c)(1) The facility must develop and maintain a record keeping system that includes a separate record for each client and;

W111

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(c)(1) that documents the client's health care, active treatment, social information, and protection of the client's rights.

Guidance §483.410(c)(1)

The structure and content of a client's record must be an accurate, functional representation of the actual experience of the client in the facility.

The record should contain an accurate account of all information relevant to the client's health care, active treatment, social information and protection of the client's rights, such as communications, correspondence, program plans (to include both in-house and outside service programs), progress summaries, activity plans and activity participation, incidents, consent forms and all medical information.

If the records are maintained electronically, the facility staff should be able to access various parts of the record without difficulty. If they are unable to access components of the record upon request, then this may indicate a lack of training by the facility.

W112

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(c)(2) The facility must keep confidential all information contained in the clients' records, regardless of the form or storage method of the records.

Guidance §483.410(c)(2)

"Keep confidential" means safeguarding the content of information including video, audio, and/or computer stored information from unauthorized disclosure without the specific informed consent of the client, parent of a minor child, or legal guardian, and consistent with the advocate's right of access. Facility staff and consultants, hired to provide services to the client, sign confidentiality agreements before having access to client records and should have access to only that portion of information that is necessary to provide effective responsive services to the client.

These agreements should be renewed according to the policies of the facility. The agreement may stipulate that the agreements are in place until either the facility or member terminates the agreement.

The facility has in place safeguards to ensure that access to all information regarding clients is limited to those clients designated by Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) requirements, the Developmental Disabilities Act, State law and facility policy.

The facility should prevent any instances of unauthorized access or dissemination. For example, the staff is observed to leave the client record (hard copy or electronic version) in the living room of the house when visitors or persons not authorized to access client records are present. Client records must be secured when staff is not present.

The facility must develop and follow procedures for maintaining the confidentiality of client information during transport to medical appointments or to other locations outside the facility.

Confidentiality applies to both central records and information kept at dispersed locations. If there is information considered too confidential to place in the record used by all staff (e.g., identification of the family's financial assets, sensitive medical data), it may be retained in a companion record located in a secure location in the facility with a notation made in the primary record as to the location of confidential information. The facility must ensure that any client information provided to day services programs is maintained confidential.

The sharing of client specific information with members of the "specially constituted committee" required by §483.440(f)(3), who are not affiliated with the agency, does not violate a client's right to have information about him or her kept confidential. The committee must have relevant information to function properly.

Facility confidentiality safeguards include the development and implementation of written policies to assure that members of the specially constituted team maintain confidentiality. Such processes may include signed confidentiality agreements.

These agreements should be renewed according to the policies of the facility. The agreement may stipulate that the agreements are in place until either the facility or member terminates the agreement.

W113

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(c)(3) The facility must develop and implement policies and procedures governing the release of any client information, including consents necessary from the client, or parents (if the client is a minor) or legal guardian.

Guidance §483.410(c)(3)

The facility develops and follows written policies governing the release of client information.

Release of any personally identifiable information does not occur unless consent(s) is obtained prior to the release.

These policies must address at a minimum who must give consent for the release of information from records. The policy and procedures should account for other situations involving the release of client information, such as:

who should be notified when records have been released;

procedures to be followed with subpoenas; time frames for providing requested information; and information regarding a client's HIV status may not be released without specific consent and may not be in the record if that consent has not been given.

W114

§483.410(c)(4) Any individual who makes an entry in a client's record must make it legibly, date it, and sign it.

Guidance §483.410(c)(4)

Illegible writing in hard copy records can contribute to communication deficits among staff. Illegible writing which cannot be easily interpreted by facility staff upon surveyor request may constitute a safety issue.

Electronic signatures are acceptable in the electronic record system.

W115

§483.410(c)(5) The facility must provide a legend to explain any symbol or abbreviation used in a client's record.

W116

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(c)(6) The facility must provide each identified residential living unit with appropriate aspects of each client's record.

Guidance §483.410(c)(6)

"Appropriate" means those parts of each client's record are most likely (or known) to be needed by the residential staff to carry out the client's active treatment program in the unit; to alert staff to health risks and other aspects of medical treatment; to support the psychosocial needs of the client; to contact family or emergency contacts, and to provide anything else necessary to the staff's ability to work on behalf of the client.

The staff of the residential living unit has, and can access, all information which is relevant to implementing client program plans, appropriate care of, interaction with, and provision of services for the client.

(d) Standard: Services provided under agreements with outside sources

W117

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(d)(1) If a service required under this subpart is not provided directly, the facility must have a written agreement with an outside program, resource, or service to furnish the necessary service, including emergency and other health care.

Guidance §483.410(d)(1)

If a service is not provided directly, there must be a written agreement for such services.

Written agreements are required for emergency services such as dentists and pharmacies. For those services that require a visit to a hospital, the Intermediate Care Facilities for Individuals with Intellectual Disabilities (ICF/IID) typically utilizes services from an emergency department of the hospital, thus no written contract is required.

Federal statute (P.L. 94-142) requires all school-aged children to receive a free and appropriate school education. Therefore, a written agreement between ICF/IIDs and public schools is not necessary.

W118

(d)(2)(i) Contain the responsibilities, functions, objectives, and other terms agreed to by both parties; and

W119

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(d)(2)(ii) Provide that the facility is responsible for assuring that the outside services meet the standards for quality of services contained in this subpart.

W120

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(d)(3) The facility must assure that outside services meet the needs of each client.

Guidance §483.410(d)(3)

Outside services are any services needed by the clients and not provided directly by the facility (hospital visits, dental visits, day program services, etc.).

Programs and services must be coordinated between the facility and the outside service, and foster consistency of implementation across settings of teaching strategies and behavior management.

The facility monitors outside services on an ongoing basis to ensure that services provided are consistent with the needs of each client as identified in the Individual Program Plan (IPP). For example, if the facility is implementing a behavior management or a communication program for the client, it is shared with the outside program and implemented by the outside program (workshop, day program, etc.) and the outside program agrees to incorporate it into their day program. At periodic intervals, the facility staff visit or communicate with the outside program to verify consistency across the two settings.

With outside resources, it is the responsibility of the facility to assure that the services are provided in a safe clean environment, by appropriately qualified professions, and any untoward outcome of services are promptly addressed. If, in spite of attempts by the facility to assure compliance, the outside program does not implement the program for the client, then the facility remains responsible for the lack of active treatment.

W121

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.410(d)(4) If living quarters are not provided in a facility owned by the ICF/IID, the ICF/IID remains directly responsible for the standards relating to physical environment that are specified in §483.470(a) through (g), (j) and (k).

Guidance §483.410(d)(4)

Even though the facility's premises may be rented from a landlord, the facility must ensure that the requirements for physical environment are met, either through arrangement with the landlord or through the facility's own services.

(e) Standard: Licensure

§483.420(a) Standard: Protection of Clients' Rights

The facility must ensure the rights of all clients. Therefore, the facility must Guidelines §483.420(a)

"Ensure" means that the facility actively asserts the individual's rights and does not wait for him or her to claim a right. This obligation exists even when the individual is less than fully competent and requires that the facility is actively engaged in activities which result in the pro-active assertion of the individual's rights, e.g., guardianship, advocacy, training programs, use of specially constituted committee, etc.

Guidance §483.420(a)

The facility must ensure the client's rights and does not wait for him or her to claim a right. This obligation exists even when the client is less than fully competent and requires that the facility is actively engaged in activities which result in the protection of the client's rights, advocacy for individual clients who have no family or an inactive family, and training programs for clients and staff on the understanding and protection of client rights.

W123

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(1) Inform each client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian, of the client's rights and the rules of the facility;

Guidance §483.420(a)(1)

The obligation to inform requires that the facility presents information on rights to the client, his or her family or his or her legal guardian in a manner and form which they can understand. In most instances, family means parent. However, in those instances where parents are deceased or choose not to be active in the client's life and there is another family member who does wish to be active, but is not the legal guardian, this family member should be informed of the client's rights. Printed materials should be provided in understandable terms and provided in the language necessary to ensure understanding. Specialized methods, as indicated, should be provided for communication with clients, families or legal guardians with hearing or vision impairment.

Pro-active assertion of client rights includes, but is not limited to:

- Signed evidence that the client, his or her family and/or his or her legal guardian have been informed of the client's rights, and

- Evidence that the communication of these rights were provided at the client's level of comprehension, and in the language understandable to the client.

The obligation to inform also requires that the facility make some determination of whether the client and his or her family, or legal guardian understood the rights presented and made additional efforts to communicate the rights if the rights were not understood.

If the facility has written "rules of the facility", these rules must be communicated to the client, their family and or legal guardians at the time of admission and must not be in conflict with any of the rights listed in 42 CFR 483.420 (a) (1-13).

W124

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(2) Inform each client, parent (if the client is a minor), or legal guardian, of the client's medical condition, developmental and behavioral status, attendant risks of treatment, and of the right to refuse treatment;

Guidance §483.420(a)(2)

Clients, their families or legal guardians are promptly informed of any change in the client's medical or behavioral needs that requires immediate alteration to programmatic or medical intervention. Promptly is defined by the level of severity of the alteration. In each case, they must also be informed of the attendant risks of any recommended treatments or interventions and of their right to refuse treatment, training or services.

If parents or legal guardians wish for other members of the client's family to be informed of such changes, they must put this permission in writing.

The communication of this information must be provided in the manner and language understood by the client or their family or legal guardian (language boards, sign language, etc.).

The term "attendant risks of treatment" describes the risk vs. risk and risk vs. benefit associated with the treatment. These risks include possible side effects, other complications from treatments including medical and drug therapy, unintended consequences of treatment, other behavioral or psychological ramifications arising from treatment, etc.

The facility actively attempts to engage clients who refuse to participate in active treatment. While the regulation recognizes the client's right to refuse treatment, persistent refusal that impacts the health and safety of the client and/or others, or the ability to provide overall active treatment, may result in facility's consideration of alternative placements for the client. It is expected, however, that the facility has assessed the reason for refusal, and developed and implemented all possible interventions to engage the client in active treatment programs prior to referring the client to another therapeutic setting.

A client, his or her family member, or legal guardian who refuses a particular treatment (e.g., a behavior control, seizure control medication or a particular intervention strategy) must be offered information about acceptable alternatives to the treatment, if acceptable alternatives are available. The client's preference about alternatives should be elicited and considered in deciding on the course of treatment. If the client, family member, or legal guardian also refuses the alternative treatment, or if no alternative exists to the treatment refused, the facility must consider the effect this refusal may have on other clients, the client himself or herself, and if they can continue to provide services to the client consistent with these regulations.

If the facility is unable to provide services to a client due to consistent refusal to participate, they must weigh all options including an involuntary discharge. Involuntary discharge must be for good cause (see 483.440(b)(4)(i)).

When a client is considered for participation in experimental research the client, his/her family and/or legal guardian must be fully informed of the nature of the experiment (e.g., what medications or physical interventions will be utilized, the length of the research, any possible side effects and how the information from the research will be utilized). Information regarding the possible consequences of participating or not participating must be provided to the client, family member or legal guardian. The written consent of the client, his/her family or legal guardian must be received prior to participation. For a client who is a minor or who has been adjudicated as incompetent, the written informed consent of the parents of the minor or the legal guardian is required. The signed, informed consent documentation must be in compliance with HHS Guidelines for Research Involving Human Subjects. The signed consent must also include a clear discussion of what treatments will be included in the research, the time limits for the research and should clearly inform the client, family member or legal guardian that the client may end participation at any time without fear of recrimination. If the research protocol indicates that clients receive compensation, then clients are compensated per the protocol.

Any research must be reviewed and approved by the Specially Constituted Committee. See W263.

W125

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(3) Allow and encourage individual clients to exercise their rights as clients of the facility, and as citizens of the United States, including the right to file complaints, and the right to due process;

Guidance §483.420(a)(3)

To the extent that a client is able, choices are made on his/her own. Each client has autonomy of decision making and choice.

They are free to move about without limitations imposed due to staff preferences or staff convenience.

Clients are not restricted without due cause or due process.

To the extent that the client is able to make decisions for him or herself, it is inappropriate to delegate the person's right to others (e.g. parents, family members, etc.).

The facility has an obligation to assure client health and safety and must balance that obligation with the rights of clients.

If the facility has implemented a restriction, the following should be in place:

- An assessment supporting the need for the restriction;
- An individualized behavior plan to reduce the need for the restriction has been developed and implemented;
- A written informed consent for the behavior plan which includes the restriction;
- Approval of the Specially Constituted Committee; and
- Monitoring by the Committee of the progress of the training program, designed to reduce and eventually eliminate the restriction.

Clients, families, and legal guardians have the right to register a complaint with the facility and the State Survey Agency. If so, the facility must respond promptly and appropriately. The facility must ensure protection of the client from any form of reprisal or intimidation as a result of a complaint or grievance reported by the client, family, or legal guardian.

Issues involving the exercise of constitutional rights such as voting should be addressed as a component of the IPP when the Interdisciplinary Team (IDT) determines a need for training. Clients who have been adjudged to need guardianship or have been assessed as needing assistance to advocate for themselves should receive assistance or support so they may exercise their rights as citizens of the United States.

W126

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(4) Allow individual clients to manage their financial affairs and teach them to do so to the extent of their capabilities;

Guidance §483.420(a)(4)

The regulation is clear that in those cases where a client already possesses the skills necessary to independently manage their own financial affairs, the facility will allow the client to continue to do so. Formal training in financial management must be provided for all other clients in the facility to the extent of their capabilities. The regulation places the responsibility for determining the extent of the client's capabilities in this matter upon an assessment and interdisciplinary process within the facility.

To reach a determination as to whether a money management program is appropriate, the facility IDT uses the comprehensive functional assessment (CFA) to evaluate the ability of each client to participate in such a program. Under 42 C.F.R. 483.440(c)(3), the team evaluation must establish, through documentation, that the IDT considers all of the objective data within the assessment in reaching their determination, especially the identification of client skills which can be used across training programs. Examples of assessment findings that may be considered by the IDT include skills that can be cross-utilized in training programs such as:

1. Fine motor coordination;

2. The ability to make choices;
3. The ability to identify preferences; and
4. Cognitive abilities including tracking, attention span, communication, and the client's ability to understand the cause and effect. (The client understands of cause and effect is significant in the determination.)

Money management includes a broad spectrum of programs with varying levels of participation by the client ranging from the use of choice in money expenditures, to an understanding of the concept of money, and ultimately to actual money handling and budgeting. The IDT must not conclude that a money management program is inappropriate based solely upon the level of intellectual or physical disability of the client.

The CFA must be reviewed at least annually per 42 C.F.R.483.440(f)(2). As a part of this annual review, a client's ability to participate in money management will also be reviewed. The annual review should always include an update to the CFA and take into consideration any changes in the client's circumstances since the last IPP. The need for a formal money management program must be addressed in every client's IPP by the IDT on an annual basis.

The determination of the appropriateness of a formal money management program is made by the IDT and must be based upon a CFA. The IDT discussions resulting in that determination must be established through documentation in the client's IPP.

W127

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(5) Ensure that clients are not subjected to physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment;

Guidance §483.420(a)(5)

Identification of patterns or isolated instances of physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment without prompt identification and corrective action by the facility would result in a non-compliance determination for this Standard and Condition level non-compliance.

The facility must develop and implement systems that protect clients from all forms of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, including client to client abuse, neglect, or mistreatment.

a. The facility is expected to ensure that staff possess and demonstrate needed competencies to effectively and appropriately interact with clients.

b. The facility must monitor to assure that systems are effectively implemented and the facility takes immediate actions to address circumstances where abuse, neglect, or mistreatment have occurred and prevent reoccurrence.

c. The facility must be organized in such a manner as to proactively assure clients are free from any threat to their physical and psychological health and safety.

d. The facility must act to prevent physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse.

If the facility fails to implement appropriate corrective action, the potential of additional threats to the clients remain at the facility.

"Threat", for the purposes of this guideline, is considered any condition/situation which could cause or result in severe, temporary or permanent injury or harm to the mental or physical condition of clients, or in their death.

"Abuse", for the purposes of this guideline, is the willful infliction of injury, unreasonable confinement, intimidation or punishment with the resulting physical harm, pain or personal anguish.

Physical abuse refers to any action intended to cause physical harm or pain, trauma or bodily harm (e.g., hitting, slapping, punching, kicking, pinching, etc.). It includes the use of corporal punishment as well as the use of any restrictive, intrusive procedure to control inappropriate behavior for purposes of punishment.

Verbal abuse refers to any use of insulting, demeaning, disrespectful, oral, written or gestured language directed towards and in the presence of the client. Psychological abuse includes, but is not limited to, humiliation, harassment, and threats of punishment or deprivation, sexual coercion and intimidation (e.g. living in fear in one's own home). Since many clients residing in ICF/IIDs are unable to communicate feelings of fear, humiliation, etc. associated with abusive episodes, the assumption is made that any actions that would usually be viewed as psychologically or verbally abusive by a member of the general public, would also be viewed as abusive by the client residing in the ICF/IID, regardless of that client's perceived ability to comprehend the nature of the incident.

Sexual abuse includes any incident where a client is coerced or manipulated to participate in any form of sexual activity for which the client did not give affirmative permission (or gave affirmative permission without the attendant understanding required to give permission) or sexual assault against a client who is unable to defend him/herself.

The facility must implement, through policies, oversight and training, safeguards to ensure that clients are not subjected to abuse by anyone including, but not limited to, facility staff, consultants or volunteers, staff of other agencies serving the client, family members or legal guardians, friends, other clients, or the general public.

The facility must take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there. For example, if a facility is forced by court order or arbitration rulings to retain or reinstate an employee found to be abusive, the facility must take measures to protect the clients of the facility (such as assigning the employee to an area where there is no contact with clients).

W128

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(6) Ensure that clients are free from unnecessary drugs and physical restraints and are provided active treatment to reduce dependency on drugs and physical restraints;

Guidance §483.420(a)(6)

The facility must implement an aggressive active treatment program, which includes appropriate replacement behaviors, to address the reduction/elimination of physical restraints and drugs to manage behaviors.

For purposes of this Guideline drugs to manage behavior are "unnecessary" if there is evidence the drugs are being used:

- In excessive dose (duplicate therapy);
- For excessive duration;
- Not monitored adequately;
- Without adequate indications for its use;
- With adverse consequences which indicate the dose should be reduced or discontinued; or
- Any combination of the reasons listed above.

The long term use of a drug/physical restraint to manage behavior combined with one or more of the following may indicate unnecessary use:

- The client's developmental and/or behavioral needs are not being met and the appropriateness of less restrictive approaches to manage inappropriate behaviors should be questioned;
- Staff behavior may be prompting behaviors in clients which result in the chronic use of physical restraints and drugs to control behavior;
- Staff may have inadequate training and/or experience to provide active treatment and employ preventive measures;

Restraints applied for behaviors when less restrictive measures have not been tried or have been tried and found to be just as effective.

§483.420(a)(7) Provide each client with the opportunity for personal privacy and

Guidance §483.420(a)(7)

The facility must provide areas within the living area in which the client can have time to be alone, when appropriate, and to have privacy (their conversations cannot be overheard) for personal interactions/activities. There should be a location where the client can meet privately with family and/or friends and a telephone available where he/she can hold private telephone conversations.

Personal privacy for clients also includes the right to have certain personal information about them kept confidential. Staff should not discuss one client in front of others (clients, parents, legal guardians, visitors, etc.) and should not post personal information about clients in areas where other clients, families and the public can read the information.

Video/audio taping or live feed must not be used in place of or for the convenience of staff. The facility may install video/audio equipment for purposes of observing client/staff interactions. Video/audio equipment may only be installed in common areas (in no case may videotaping or live feed be done in bathrooms or areas where private visits are conducted). The clients, families and/or legal guardians of the clients residing in the areas where videotaping or live feed will occur must give informed consent for the installation and must be assured that no personal privacy will be jeopardized. The use of the equipment must be presented at and approved by the specially constituted committee for the facility prior to the installation of video or audio devices.

Motion sensors should not be considered cameras.

Guidance §483.420(a)(7)

Clients must be provided privacy during personal hygiene activities (e.g., toileting, bathing, dressing) and during medical/nursing treatments that require exposure of one's body.

People not involved in the care of the client should not be present without their consent while they are being examined or treated.

Whenever possible, the facility should be sensitive to clients' preferences for same sex care in private situations.

Guidance §483.420(a)(8)

W132

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(8) ensure that clients who do work for the facility are compensated for their efforts at prevailing wages and commensurate with their abilities;

Guidance §483.420(a)(8)

"Work", as used in the regulation, means any directed activity, or series of related activities which results in a benefit to the economy of the facility or in a contribution to its maintenance, or in the production of a salable product. In deciding whether a particular activity constitutes "work" as defined above, the key determinant is whether the facility would be required to hire additional full or part-time staff (or pay overtime to existing staff) to perform the service the client is asked to perform.

Clients volunteering to do real work that benefits the facility should give informed consent for such practices and understand that by providing employable services they are able to be compensated. This does not preclude a client from helping out a friend or being kind to others. Self-care activities related to the care of one's own person or property are not considered "work" for purposes of compensation.

In general, participation in any household task which promotes greater independent functioning and assists the client to prepare for less restrictive setting (and which the client has not yet learned) is permitted as long as tasks are included in the IPP in written behavioral and measurable terms. This participation must be supervised, and indices of performance should be available. No task may be performed for the convenience of staff (e.g., supervising clients, running personal errands).

"Compensated" means the client is provided with money or other forms of negotiable compensation for work (including work performed in an occupational training program) and such compensation is to be used at the client's discretion.

Prevailing wage refers to the wage paid to non-disabled workers in nearby industry or the surrounding community for essentially the same type, quality and quantity of work or work requiring comparable skills. A client who works in the facility must be paid at least the prevailing minimum wage, unless an appropriate certificate has been obtained by the facility in accordance with current regulations and guidelines issued under the Fair Labor Standards Act, as amended.

Any client performing "work", as defined above, must be compensated in direct proportion to his or her output. The facility should utilize Department of Labor and/or Department of Vocational Rehabilitation formulas and techniques for determining rate of pay. A client's pay is not dependent on the production of other clients when he or she works in a group.

When the client's active treatment program includes assignment to occupational or vocational training or work, specific work objectives of anticipated progress should be included in the IPP along with reasons for the assignments. If the training of clients on particular occupational activities or functions involves "real work" to be accomplished for the facility, the clients must be compensated based on ability. For example, if in the process of work training activities which involve learning to clean a floor, the floor for a particular building is cleaned and does not require further janitorial cleanup, then the client must be compensated for this activity at the prevailing wage.

Guidance §483.420(a)(9)

Privacy must be provided for both face-to-face interactions and electronic interactions.

The facility must provide opportunities for the client to communicate, through regular mail, telephone and/or electronic mail and meet in private with persons of their choice (e.g., friends from the community, family members, and advocates). There may be instances where legal guardians override the wishes of the client. In these instances, the facility should be actively working with the legal guardian and the client to reach the maximum agreeable level of interaction for the client.

Space must be provided for clients to receive visitors in reasonable comfort and privacy.

Clients must be provided the opportunity to send/receive all types of mail unopened and read the contents themselves if able. If the staff has to open and read mail to the client, this should be done in a private place allowing the client as much participation as possible.

Clients who have their own electronic equipment must be provided the opportunity to send, receive, and read electronic mail with privacy.

Any restriction of telephone access must be explained in the IPP with a plan to advance the client's access. For persons with hearing loss who could benefit, Text Telephone (TTY) services or other accommodations should be provided.

As with any other rights restriction, the restriction must be addressed in the IPP, written informed consent obtained, and the plan must be reviewed and approved by the specially constituted committee.

§483.420(a)(11) Ensure clients the opportunity to participate in social, religious, and community group activities;

Guidance §483.420(a)(11)

Clients should be offered the opportunity to participate in various types of activities in the community (e.g., going to grocery stores, hair salons, restaurants, places of worship, pharmacies, community meetings and events) based on their interests and choices. The facility must make accommodations for physical issues such as hearing impairment and mobility limitations. In addition, clients should be taught the applicable skills to participate in their choice of activities to the fullest extent of their abilities.

It is not acceptable for all client activities to be provided in the facility.

When a client is identified to be on restriction from community integration opportunities, interview clients, families, legal guardians and staff to determine if due process was afforded for this restriction and whether the restriction is included in the IPP.

In the event of a court placement that restricts community access, due process does not apply.

There should be evidence that the facility assists and encourages all clients, regardless of functioning levels, to have input into the decisions on community integration activities. It is not acceptable to require clients to attend unwanted activities due to staffing considerations.

§483.420(a)(12) Ensure that clients have the right to retain and use appropriate personal possessions and clothing, and

Guidance §483.420(a)(12)

Clients should have personal possessions and clothing which meet their needs, interests and choices.

Clients should have free access to their own possessions and clothing. When considering whether a client has free access to their personal possessions and clothing, ensure that physical limitations have been addressed.

Clients who are unable to access and use personal possessions and clothing appropriately are involved in programs to learn the necessary skills to do so.

In situations where the behavior of one or more clients in a living area prevents free access to personal possessions for each client, the facility must develop IPPs for the client with disruptive behavior. The facility must also ensure that during the implementation of this program plan that none of the other clients have their rights infringed upon. Clients should not be without personal possessions because of the behavior of others with whom they live.

All client possessions, regardless of their apparent value to others are treated with respect for what they may represent to the client. Where those choices include socially stigmatizing materials, the facility should provide learning opportunities to make more socially appropriate choices. The facility should encourage clients to use or display possessions of his or her choice in a culturally normative manner.

If a method for identifying personal effects is used, it should be inconspicuous and in a manner that will assist the client to identify them.

"Appropriate" clothing means a supply of clothing that is sufficient, in good repair, accounts for a variety of occasions and seasons, and appropriate to age, size, gender, and level of activity. Modification or adaptation of clothing fasteners should be considered based on the needs of a client with a physical disability to become more independent.

As appropriate, each client's active treatment program maximizes opportunities for choice and self-direction with regard to choosing and shopping for clothing which enhances his or her appearance, and selecting daily clothing in accordance with age, sex and cultural norms.

Clients are permitted to keep personal clothing and possessions for their use while in the facility. Determine how the facility both ensures the safety of personal possessions while at the same time providing client access to them when the client chooses.

Clients are provided the opportunity, encouraged, and trained to use age-appropriate materials. The term "age-appropriate" refers to anything that reinforces recognition of the client as a person of a certain chronological age. Clients who choose to keep items traditionally used by children such as dolls or model cars are not an automatic citation. There must be evidence the facility is encouraging the client to use these possessions in a socially appropriate, non-stigmatizing manner. The facility's environment must be furnished with materials and activities that will enhance opportunities for growth.

The staff of the facility should ensure that clients dress appropriately for the season and the occasion by implementing training programs or guidance for the client as indicated.

All purchases made using client personal funds must be itemized in the accounting record with the exception of pocket money. Pocket money given to the client does not need to be itemized. Pocket money should be considered a nominal amount of five dollars or less at a time. Funds provided by the facility and dispensed to a client as part of a program to train the client in money management, and funds that are not entrusted to the facility (e.g., funds paid directly to the client's representative payee) do not require accounting.

In those instances where a legal guardian or the individual client is in control of their personal funds, no accounting is necessary by the facility.

It is not necessary that a facility furnish an annual financial statement to the client, or the client's parent or legal guardian, since the facility is already required to make the financial record available at any time upon request. The client, parent, and/or legal guardian, in turn, is free to choose to make the financial record available to anyone else.

Guidance §483.420(c)(1)

The facility must maintain an on-going effort to communicate with parents, family members and/or legal guardians regarding the implementation of active treatment programs for the client. The facility encourages and engages parents, family members and legal guardians in the continued implementation of active treatment programs even while spending time outside of the facility setting.

"Unobtainable", for the purposes of this guideline, means that the facility has made a good faith effort to seek parental or legal guardian participation in the process, even though the effort may ultimately be unsuccessful (for example, the parent may be impossible to locate or may prove unwilling or unable to participate).

"Inappropriate", for the purposes of this guideline, means that behavior of the parent or legal guardian could be disruptive or detrimental to the client's program outcome. In this case, determine what the facility has done to bring effective resolution to the problem.

Guidance §483.420(c)(3)

Any limitations on visitors must be implemented as a result of IDT evaluation and discussion and be documented. This documentation should include evidence of approval from the specially constituted committee. Decisions to restrict a visitor for an individual client must be reviewed and re-evaluated each time the IPP is reviewed or at the client's request. When the client does schedule a trip or vacation, the facility must ensure that all necessary preparation is completed to facilitate the departure.

Guidance §483.420(c)(6)

"Significant" incidents or changes in the client's condition include serious injury, unusual seizure activity, hospitalization, serious illness, accident, death, allegations of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, unauthorized absence, or any notifications the parent or legal guardian's requests.

It is reasonable to expect the facility to contact the family or legal guardian of a client as soon as possible after an incident occurs, but no later than 24 hours after the incident. If notification is done via electronic mail, the facility must request a response from the e-mail recipient to confirm notification. Telephone notification must be accomplished by talking to the person directly. If a message is left, the facility must request a call back to confirm receipt of the notification.

Contact by letter may be utilized as follow up confirmation, but not be the initial, primary or sole mode of communication with the family or legal guardian.

If unable to contact the family or legal guardian, there should be evidence that the facility attempted to reach alternate emergency contacts.

Requests from clients who are their own guardian to limit notifications to their families must be honored.

§483.420(d)(1) The facility must develop and implement written policies and procedures that prohibit mistreatment, neglect or abuse of the client.

Guidance §483.420(d)(1)

The facility, through implementation of its policies, must set up a structure that screens and trains employees, protects clients and prevents, identifies, investigates and reports abuse, neglect and mistreatment of clients.

The policies must designate who (either by name or title) has the authority to act in the Administrator's absence and take any immediate corrective actions necessary to assure a client's safety such as removing a staff person from direct client contact.

"Mistreatment", for the purposes of this guideline, includes behavior or facility practices that result in any type of client exploitation such as financial, physical, sexual, or criminal. Mistreatment also refers to the use of behavioral management techniques outside of their use as approved by the specially constituted committee and facility policies and procedures.

"Neglect" means failure to provide goods and services necessary to avoid physical harm, mental anguish or mental illness. Staff failure to intervene appropriately to prevent self-injurious behavior may constitute neglect. Staff failure to implement facility safeguards, once client to client aggression is identified, may also constitute neglect.

Refer to W127 for definitions of abuse.

§483.420(d)(1)(iii) The facility must prohibit the employment of individuals with a conviction or prior employment history of child or client abuse, neglect or mistreatment.

Guidance §483.420(d)(1)(iii)

The facility is required to screen potential employees for a prior employment history of child or client abuse, neglect or mistreatment, as well as for any conviction based on those offenses. The abuse, neglect or mistreatment must have been directed toward a child or a client/resident/patient of a health care facility in order for the prohibition of employment to apply.

No one with a conviction or substantiated allegation of child or client abuse, neglect or mistreatment regardless of employment date, is employed by the facility. This requirement also applies to acts of abuse, neglect or mistreatment committed by a current ICF/IID employee outside the jurisdiction of the ICF/IID (e.g., in the community or in another health care facility). The facility must follow state guidelines or requirements for background checks to assure that they make every effort to check new employee's background.

Where the facility has terminated an employee based upon confirmation that abuse, neglect or mistreatment occurred during the employee's performance, and the termination decision was overturned by either arbitration finding or a court finding, the employee must be returned to a position which does not involve direct contact between that employee and clients of the facility.

A person who abused a resident in a nursing facility, and as a result, is barred from employment in the nursing home setting would also be prohibited from employment in the ICF/IID. While facilities are not required to periodically screen existing employees, if the facility becomes aware that such action has been taken against an employee, the facility is required to prohibit continued employment. This is also true of any conviction in a court of law for child, elder, or client (resident, patient) abuse, neglect or mistreatment. Therefore, conviction for abusing one's own child is also a reason employment would be prohibited.

§483.420(d)(2) The facility must ensure that all allegations of mistreatment, neglect or abuse, as well as injuries of unknown source, are reported immediately to the administrator or to other officials in accordance with State law through established procedures.

Guidance §483.420(d)(2)

Injuries of unknown source that give rise to a suspicion that they may be the result of abuse or neglect, should be reported immediately.

An injury should be reported as an "injury of unknown source" when:

- The source of the injury was not witnessed by any person and the source of the injury could not be explained by the client; and

- The injury raises suspicions of possible abuse or neglect because of the extent of the injury or the location of the injury (e.g., the injury is located in an area not generally vulnerable to trauma) or the number of injuries observed at one particular point in time or the incidence of injuries over time.

It is important to note that members of the ICF/IID population are a mobile population and lead active lives. Therefore, they experience normal day-to-day bumps and minor abrasions as they go about their lives. These minor occurrences which are not of serious consequence to the individual and do not present as a suspicious or repetitive injury (as discussed above) should be recorded by the facility staff once they are aware of them and follow-up should be conducted as indicated. For injuries that do not rise to the level of reportable "injuries of unknown source", the facility should follow its policies and procedures for incident recording, investigation, and tracking.

The facility must immediately report any suspicious injuries of unknown source and all allegations of mistreatment, neglect or abuse to a client residing in the facility regardless of who is the alleged perpetrator (e.g., facility staff, parents, legal guardians, volunteer staff from outside agencies serving the client, neighbors, or other clients, etc.).

If state law requires reporting to an agency or entity other than the administrator, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) expects the administrator to be notified as well, in order to ensure facility response to promptly safeguard the client(s).

For the purposes of this regulation "immediately" means there should be no delay between staff awareness of the occurrence and reporting to the administrator or other officials in accordance with State law unless the situation is unstable in which case reporting should occur as soon as the safety of all clients is assured.

Guidance §483.430(d)(3)

In the absence of any pre-survey information that would indicate the need for a more thorough review, the surveyors review 5 percent of the total client incidents and associated investigative reports of all alleged violations of abuse, neglect or mistreatment, as well as injuries of unknown source for the last three (3) months (but no less than 10).

Investigative reports are completed as indicated for all allegations.

A thorough investigation includes at a minimum:

- The collection of all interviews, statements, physical evidence and any pertinent maps, pictures or diagrams;
- Review of all information related to the allegation;
- Resolution of any discrepancies;
- Summary of conclusions; and
- Recommendations for action both to safeguard all the clients during the investigation and after the completion of the report.

If patterns of possible abuse, neglect, mistreatment or injuries of unknown source are identified during the review, or the facility incident report logs for the past three (3) months indicate an extremely high incident rate, then a full review of all alleged violations of abuse, neglect or mistreatment, as well as injuries of unknown source for the past three (3) months should be completed.

Their investigation does not change the requirement that the facility must complete an internal investigation report of findings within the five day timeframe. When outside authorities are involved, the facility will still be required to complete their investigation within five days to the extent authorized by such entities. "Working days" means Monday through Friday, excluding state and Federal holidays.

§483.420(d)(4) if the alleged violation is verified, appropriate corrective action must be taken.

Guidance §483.420(d)(4)

The facility is required to ensure that clients residing in the facility are not subjected to physical, verbal, sexual or psychological abuse or punishment.

Appropriate corrective action is required for findings of abuse, neglect or mistreatment by other clients residing in the facility, staff of outside agencies, parents or any other person, and for injuries to clients resulting from controllable environmental factors.

If the facility receives allegations of abuse, neglect, or mistreatment of a client during out of facility visits with their family, they must report these allegations to the appropriate state authority for investigation. The facility does not have to conduct an internal investigation regarding the alleged violation.

Appropriate corrective action is defined as that action which is reasonably likely to prevent the abuse, neglect, mistreatment or injury from recurring.

This regulation does not require staff termination as the only appropriate corrective action.

The corrective action imposed by the facility is commensurate with the violation.

When a facility is forced to re-hire a staff person, determined by the facility investigation to have been responsible for abuse, neglect, or mistreatment, the facility continues to be responsible for ensuring the health and safety of the clients, and ensures that those staff members do not work directly with clients.

§483.430(a) Each client's active treatment program must be integrated, coordinated and monitored by a qualified intellectual disability professional who –

Guidance §483.430(a)

The position of qualified intellectual disability professional (QIDP) is unique to the ICF/IID program. This position can be central to the overall responsiveness and effectiveness of an active treatment program. Whether a supervisory or non-supervisory position, the QIDP is responsible to:

- Orchestrate all facets of the active treatment effort, including the IDT creation of relevant IPPs tailored to meet individual client needs;
- Effectively coordinate internal and external program services and supports to facilitate the acquisition of client skills and adaptive behaviors; and
- Promote competent interactions of residential staff with clients in program implementation and behavior management.

Breakdowns in the provision of needed services does not automatically equate with deficient practice with QIDP regulations. Non-compliance with QIDP regulations exist where the facility has failed to provide a QIDP or sufficient numbers of QIDPs to effectively perform these required functions or the QIDP(s) has failed to assertively attempt to integrate, coordinate and/or monitor each client's active treatment program.

Elements of integrating, coordinating and monitoring active treatment programs include:

- Routinely observing clients across settings in program areas to assess effectiveness of program implementation and consistency of training effort to determine effectiveness of IPPs and making timely modifications to facilitate achieving desired skills or goals.

- Routinely interacting with program staff across settings to assist in determining the effectiveness and continued relevance of program plans in meeting identified client needs.

- Determining the need for program revision based on client performance.

- Identifying inconsistencies in training approaches or programs not being implemented as written and facilitating the resolution of these inconsistencies.

- Assures follow-up occurs for any recommendation for services, equipment or programs so that needed services and supplies are provided in a timely manner to meet the client's needs.

The number of QIDPs will vary depending on such factors as the number of clients the facility serves, the complexity of needs manifested by these clients, the number, qualifications and competencies of additional professional staff members, and whether or not other duties are assigned to the QIDP function.

The QIDP function may not be delegated to other employees even though the QIDP co-signs their work.

W164

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.430 (b)(1) Each client must receive the professional program services needed to implement the active treatment program defined by each client's individual program plan.

Guidance §483.430 (b)(1)

The effectiveness of the active treatment effort is dependent on a facility's assembly of a competent team of professional program staff, with knowledge of contemporary care practices in intellectual disabilities specific to their field of expertise, that work cooperatively as members of an IDT. The facility is responsible for the acquisition of professional staff necessary to provide direct and indirect professional services to meet client needs.

Professional program services are those services that meet the needs identified by a client's CFA that must be provided by a member of a vocation founded upon specialized education/training.

Professional staff services also include on-going monitoring of the effectiveness of programs and plans developed by professional staff but implemented by non -professional staff.

Indirect professional staff services also include on-going, technical support to staff implementing these programs as well as timely assessment of the need for modification of the program with appropriate communication to the QIDP and IDT.

The needs identified in the initial CFA, as required in §483.440(c)(3)(v), should guide the team in deciding if a particular professional's involvement is necessary and, if so, to what extent professional involvement must continue on a direct or indirect basis.

Since such needed professional expertise may fall within the purview of multiple professional disciplines, based on overlapping training and experience, determine if the facility's delivery of professional services is adequate by the extent to which clients' needs are aggressively and competently addressed. Some examples in which professional expertise may overlap include, but are not limited to:

- Physical development and health: nurse, dietitian, pharmacist.

- Nutritional status: nurse, nutritionist or dietitian.

- Sensorimotor development: educators, recreation therapists, and occupational therapist, physical therapist.

- Affective (emotional) development: special educators, social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists, mental health counselors, rehabilitation counselors, behavior therapists, behavior management specialists, behavior analyst, and medical staff.

- Speech and language (communication) development: speech-language pathologists, special educators for people who are deaf or hearing impaired, and medical staff.

- Auditory functioning: audiologists (basic or comprehensive audiologic assessment and use of amplification equipment); speech-language pathologists (like audiologists, may perform aural rehabilitation); special educators for clients who are hearing impaired and medical staff.

- Cognitive development: teachers (if required by law, e.g., school aged children, or if pursuit of GED is indicated), behavior analysts, psychologists, speech-language pathologists.

- Vocational development: occupational therapists, vocational rehabilitation counselors, or other work specialists (if development of specific vocational skills or work placement is indicated).

- Social Development: teachers, professional recreation staff, social workers, behavior analysts, psychologists (specialized training needs for social skill development).

Adaptive behaviors or independent living skills: special educators, occupational therapists, behavior analysts, and medical staff.

§483.430(b)(1) Professional program staff must work directly with clients

Guidance §483.430(b)(1)

Examples of professional staff working directly with clients include: performing professional assessments of clients, provision of direct support and services and periodic monitoring by the professional of the client working on the program. The amount and degree of direct care that professionals must provide will depend on the needs of the client and the ability of other staff to effectively work with clients on a day-to-day basis.

For those services that must be provided by a professional due to either law, licensure or registration, the client receives the services directly from the professional. Professionals may deliver services through the supervision and direction of subordinates where provided by law.

Guidance §483.430(b)(1)

Paraprofessionals are persons in various occupational fields who are trained to assist professionals but are themselves not licensed at the professional level.

Examples of "working with" these other staff may include, but not be limited to:

- Modeling the correct technique for interacting with clients or implementing a specific program objective.

- Designing residential activity programs and teaching staff how to implement them.
- Conducting classes on discipline specific topics.
- Answering questions of staff related to program implementation or specific behavioral management issues.
- Monitoring active treatment areas to identify program implementation or staff-client interaction issues.

Guidance §483.430(b)(2)

There should be sufficient professional staff in the facility to ensure that:

- needed assessments by professionals are completed timely;
- direct professional services are provided when indicated;

- client outcomes are being monitored by the professional;
- assessments and outcomes are being communicated to the IDT; and

Guidance §483.430(b)(3)

When a professional does an assessment and determines there are client needs which become incorporated into the IPP, with a current prioritized objective, the professional should actively participate on the IDT. This participation may be through written reports or verbally while attending the IPP meeting or participating via telephone or other electronic means, to provide team members with the opportunity to review and discuss information and recommendations relevant to the client's needs, and to reach decisions as a team, rather than individually, on how best to address those needs.

§483.430(b)(4) Professional program staff must participate in on-going staff development and training in both formal and informal settings with other professional, paraprofessional, and nonprofessional staff members.

Guidance §483.430(b)(4)

Professional program staff provides various types of training to staff as indicated by the IPP and IDT.

Formal training: a specific training done at the time a program is implemented or updated by the professional, with all staff who works with the client.

Informal training: when the professional observes the staff not correctly implementing a program, the professional provides informal guidance on correct implementation.

Training on programs that apply to multiple clients: when a particular program applies to several clients in a facility, a professional may provide training to several staff on a particular topic that applies to multiple clients (such as safe transfer techniques).

Professional staff of the facility should participate in ongoing training such as conferences and workshops to maintain current standards of practice in the field of intellectual and developmental disabilities as required by their professional licensure or certification.

The facility may not rely on volunteers in lieu of paid staff to fill required staff positions and perform direct care services. Volunteers are permissible, but must be in addition to the number of paid staff required to carry out a function. Volunteers should have an orientation to the policies and procedures of the facility and oversight is required by facility staff.

§483.430(c)(2) There must be responsible direct care staff on duty and awake on a 24-hour basis, when clients are present, to take prompt, appropriate action in case of injury, illness, fire or other emergency, in each defined residential living unit housing- -

(i) Clients for whom a physician has ordered a medical care plan;

(ii) Clients who are aggressive, assaultive or security risks;

(iii) More than 16 clients; or

(iv) Fewer than 16 clients within a multi-unit building.

Guidance §483.430(c)(2)

Indicators of staff not being awake in relation to the occurrence of incidents, accidents, and injuries may include, but are not limited to:

- incidents of unplanned client absences;
- untimely reaction to a medical emergency;
- injuries from client to client aggression; or
- a pattern of injuries of unknown origin.

If even one client meets 483.430(c)(2)(i-ii) then staff must be awake on a 24-hour basis.

A client has a medical care plan when an acute or chronic occurrence requires clinical assessment and monitoring on a scheduled basis.

§483.430(c)(3) There must be a responsible direct care staff person on duty on a 24 hour basis (when clients are present) to respond to injuries and symptoms of illness, and to handle emergencies, in each defined residential living unit housing- -

(i) Clients for whom a physician has not ordered a medical care plan;

(ii) Clients who are not aggressive, assaultive or security risks; and

(iii) Sixteen or fewer clients.

Guidance §483.430(c)(3)

At all times, there must be at least one staff person on-duty in the facility if even one client is present. For purposes of this provision, "on duty" staff need not be awake during normal sleeping hours, but do need to respond to injuries, illness, and emergencies promptly.

W185

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.430(c)(4) The facility must provide sufficient support staff so that direct care staff are not required to perform support services to the extent that these duties interfere with the exercise of their primary direct client care duties.

Guidance §483.430(c)(4)

Direct care staff should not be performing support services (e.g., making beds, cooking, cleaning, etc.) independently which takes them away from client interaction and teaching. If support services in the house cannot be done jointly as chores between clients, as part of their training program, and the support staff, additional staff should be added to perform the chores. This does not include any staff chores done during client's sleeping hours.

"Support staff" include all personnel hired by the facility that are not either direct care staff or professional staff. For example, support staff includes, but are not limited to, secretaries, clerks, housekeepers, maintenance and laundry personnel.

(d) Standard: Direct care residential living unit staff

W186

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.430(d)(1) The facility must provide sufficient direct care staff to manage and supervise clients in accordance with their individual program plans.

Guidance §483.430(d)(1)

"Sufficient" means enough direct care staff to effectively implement the active treatment programs as defined in the IPP, to meet client needs, and to respond to emergencies, illness, or injuries.

Even though minimum ratios are defined at §483.430(d)(3), active treatment may require more staff than the minimums required ratios, therefore compliance should not be based on staffing ratios alone.

§483.430(d)(2) Direct care staff are defined as the present on-duty staff calculated over all shifts in a 24-hour period for each defined residential living unit.

Guidance §483.430(d)(2)

"Direct care staff" are those personnel who are assigned to work directly with the clients providing support during activities of daily living and active treatment programs.

Professional staff who work with clients in a living unit on a periodic basis are not included in direct care staff ratios.

Supervisors of direct care staff can be counted only if they share in the actual work of the direct care of clients on a continuous basis (e.g. take client assignment).

Direct care supervisors whose principle assigned function is to supervise direct care staff may not be included in direct care staff ratios although they may occasionally provide direct services to clients.

Non-direct care staff supervisors whose principle assigned function is to supervise non-direct care staff may not be included in direct care staff ratios.

W187

(Rev. 144, Issued: 08-14-15, Effective: 08-14-15, Implementation: 08-14-15)

§483.430(d)(3) Direct care staff must be provided by the facility in the following minimum ratios of direct care staff to clients:

(i) For each defined residential living unit serving children under the age of 12, severely and profoundly retarded clients, clients with severe physical disabilities, or clients who are aggressive, assaultive, or security risks, or who manifest severely hyperactive or psychotic-like behavior, the staff to client ratio is 1 to 3.2.

(ii) For each defined residential living unit serving moderately retarded clients, the staff to client ratio is 1 to 4.

(iii) For each defined residential living unit serving clients who function within the range of mild retardation, the staff to client ratio is 1 to 6.4.

Guidance §483.430(d)(3)

The minimum ratios in this standard indicate the minimum number of direct-care staff that must be present and on duty, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, for each discrete living unit. For example, to calculate the minimum number of living unit staff that must be present and on duty in a discrete living unit serving 16 individuals with multiple disabilities: divide the number of individuals "16," by the number corresponding to the regulation "3.2," the result equals "5." Therefore, the facility must determine how many staff it must hire to ensure that at least 5 staff will be able to be present and on duty during the 24 hour period in which those individuals are present.

Using the living unit described above, "calculated over all shifts in a 24-hour period" means that there are present and on duty every day of the year: one direct care staff for each eight individuals on the first shift (1:8), one direct care staff for each eight individuals on the second shift (1:8), and one direct care staff for each 16 individuals on the third shift (1:16). Therefore, there are five (5) direct care staff present and on duty for each twenty-four hour day, for 16 individuals. The same calculations are made for the other ratios, whichever applies. Determine if absences of staff for breaks and meals results in a pattern of prolonged periods in which present and on-duty staff do not meet the ratios.

W188

§483.420(d)(4) When there are no clients present in the living unit, a responsible staff member must be available by telephone.

W196

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.440(a)(1) Each client must receive a continuous active treatment program, which includes aggressive, consistent implementation of a program of specialized and generic training, treatment, health services and related services described in this subpart, that is directed toward-

(i) The acquisition of the behaviors necessary for the client to function with as much self-determination and independence as possible; and

(ii) The prevention or deceleration of regression or loss of current optimal functional status.

Active treatment embodies an individually- tailored series of daily life and living experiences that serve as the primary opportunity for the acquisition, development and expression of functional skills and adaptive behaviors necessary for the client to experience optimal independence and promote purposeful "self-expression".

The uniqueness of each client is a core consideration in the design of active treatment programs. It is expected that individual clients are given the opportunity to provide input into the content of their day-to-day living experiences.

An active treatment program includes the following elements as substantiated through observation, interview and record review:

a) Each client's needs and strengths have been accurately assessed and relevant input has been obtained from team members; (Observations and interviews with the client by the surveyor should be consistent with the current assessment information. Interview the QIDP regarding any needs observed but not addressed through assessment/programming by the facility).

b) Each client's IPP is based on assessed needs and strengths, and addresses major life areas such as personal skills, home living skills, community living skills, employment skills, etc., essential to increasing independence and ensuring rights;

c) Needs identified as a priority are addressed formally and through activities which are relevant and responsive to client need, interest and choice;

d) Active treatment is consistently implemented in all relevant settings both formally and informally as the need arises or opportunities present themselves. It should not be limited to specific periods of time during the day or environments. Each client should receive aggressive and consistent training, treatments and supports in accordance with their needs and IPP. New skills and appropriate behaviors are encouraged and reinforced across environments and times of day. Each client has the adaptive equipment and environmental adaptations necessary for him/her to progress toward heightened independence as recommended and contained in their IPP. Active treatment means taking advantage of opportunities for the practice of new skills and the use of other skills during the normal rhythm of each client's day.

e) Each client's performance related to IPP objectives is accurately and consistently measured and documented and programs are modified on an ongoing basis based on data and major life changes; and

i. Clients with degenerative conditions receive training, treatment and services designed to retain skills and functioning and to prevent further regression to the extent possible.

ii. Clients may need adjustments to their active treatment programs as functional or endurance limitations are identified associated with the aging process. In such cases, there may be more of an emphasis on the retention of skills already attained and reducing the rate of loss of skills, than on the acquisition of new skills.

In large part, it is this pervasive and continuous reinforcement of "formal" training through "informal" routine daily living experiences and interactions with staff and others that makes active treatment programs effective. Formal settings are those that are planned and specifically structured for training on objectives and interventions. Informal settings are times that are not anticipated or planned but that offer the opportunity for training.

Active treatment programs mirror normal living experiences such as leisure activities and social conversation at the dinner table. It must be clear that active treatment programs are far more than implementation of discreet formal training sessions or programs that are conducted at prescribed times by defined personnel. Learning occurs in the process of the normal rhythm of life and life experiences.

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.440(a)(2) Active treatment does not include services to maintain generally independent clients who are able to function with little supervision or in the absence of a continuous active treatment program.

Guidance §483.440(a)(2)

All active treatment programs must be based upon assessed developmental needs which are prohibiting the client from living in a more independent setting.

Active treatment moves clients to a more independent setting.

- When a client is in the facility simply for protective oversight and is not in need of training for developmental deficits, this does not constitute active treatment (e.g. a court placement to protect the community or the client from the client's behavior).

- Programs that are simply being provided to maintain a client's independence would not be considered active treatment since the client is not actively being trained to live in a more independent setting. If a client already possesses the skills that enables them to live in a less restrictive environment, and does not require the structure, support and resources that services that only an ICF/IID can provide, they can be considered generally independent.

For example, a client is admitted to the ICF/IID for the primary purpose of competency determination for a court hearing. This client lived independently prior to admission. The active treatment programs they are receiving are focused on maintaining that independence and do not address specific developmental deficits that inhibit independent living. This would not be considered active treatment.

§483.440(b)(1) Clients who are admitted by the facility must be in need of and receiving active treatment services.

Guidance §483.440(b)(1)

All client admissions must be based upon assessed developmental deficits which are prohibiting the client from living in a more independent setting and which require those intensive specialized supports, services, and supervision that only an ICF/IID can provide.

The individual components of the provision of active treatment include CFA, IPP, program implementation, program documentation, and program monitoring and change. When any of these individual components of active treatment are not in place, resulting in the clients not receiving active treatment, this regulation this not met.

§483.440(b)(2) Admission decisions must be based on a preliminary evaluation of the client that is conducted or updated by the facility or by outside sources.

Guidance §483.440(b)(2)

Preliminary evaluations should support the need for an admission to an ICF/IID (e.g., deficits in functional skills or adaptive behaviors). The information from the preliminary evaluation must be used by the facility to make an admission decision.

Occasionally, emergency admissions of clients may occur without benefit of a preliminary evaluation having been conducted prior to admission. When situational emergencies necessitate admission before a preliminary evaluation can be conducted, or when pre-admission information is incomplete, the completion of the preliminary admission evaluation within seven (7) calendar days after admission will satisfy compliance with this requirement.

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.440(b)(3) A preliminary evaluation must contain background information as well as currently valid assessments of functional developmental, behavioral, social, health and nutritional status to determine if the facility can provide for the client's needs and if the client is likely to benefit from placement in the facility.

Guidance §483.440(b)(3)

The preliminary evaluation contains specific information useful to determine if the facility can meet the client's needs and if the client can benefit from placement.

The facility makes every reasonable effort to gather all available data to assist in their determination.

Background information would include information that gives insight into the clients' previous living environments and programming efforts.

The assessment must include a consideration as to whether reasonable accommodation as required by the Americans with Disabilities Act would enable the client to benefit from placement in facility.

§483.440(b)(4) If a client is to be either transferred or discharged, the facility must- -

§483.440(b)(4)(i) Have documentation in the client's record that the client was transferred or discharged for good cause; and

Guidance §483.440(b)(4)(i)

Transfer or discharge occurs only when the facility cannot meet the client's needs, the client no longer requires an active treatment program in an ICF/IID setting; the individual/guardian chooses to reside elsewhere, or when a determination is made that another level of service or living situation would be more beneficial to the client.

"Transfer" means the temporary movement of a client to another facility (e.g. another ICF/IID, psychiatric hospital, medical hospital) with the intention of return to the original site.

"Discharge" means the permanent movement of a client to another facility or setting which operates independently from the ICF/IID (e.g. the facility is not under the jurisdiction of the facility's governing body).

Documentation includes evidence of an assessment that evaluated the pros and cons of the transfer or discharge and the rationale for the final decision.

W202

§483.440(b)(4)(ii) Provide a reasonable time to prepare the client and his or her parents or guardian for the transfer or discharge (except in emergencies).

Guidance §483.440(b)(4)(ii)

The client and their family or the client and their legal guardian are involved in planning for any transfer or discharge and receive the services necessary to assist in preparing for movement, unless an emergency (medical) situation prevents that involvement. If the client has an advocate, the advocate should participate in the decision-making process.

Orderly, planned transfers and discharges usually take place over an extended period of time. The IPP should reflect objectives or interventions which prepare the client for transfer or discharge. Transfers or discharges executed on short timeframes (e.g. less than 30 days) without "good cause" would not comply with the "reasonable" intent of the regulations.

"Reasonable" time is the time required to provide clients and their families with planned steps and established timeframes to facilitate the successful transition. Time frames are modified based on client needs and emergent situations.

Preparation of the client for transfer may include orientation or trial visits to the new location. Staff should take steps to minimize potential anxiety or any behavioral reactions which could result from the client's transfer.

§483.440(b)(5)(i) Develop a final summary of the client's developmental, behavioral, social, health and nutritional status

Guidance §483.440(b)(5)(i)

The final summary should be useful for continued services in the client's new setting. The final discharge summary should be entered into the client's record, provide a summary of the client's course of stay in the ICF/IID, provide a final summary of the client's developmental, behavioral, social, health and nutritional status, and include the current status of the objectives listed in the client's IPP.

The status should address whether or not a clients' skills have been maintained, deteriorated, or improved during their stay.

When the client is discharged, the receiving entity (another ICF/IID, waiver home, family home, nursing home, etc.) is provided a copy of the discharge summary. The ICF/IID should obtain written consent to share this information with the persons who will be providing services to the client in the future and their parents/or legal guardians. Sharing the discharge summary with State Agencies as applicable is determined by state requirements.

§483.440(b)(5)(ii) Provide a post-discharge plan of care that will assist the client to adjust to the new living environment.

Guidance §483.440(b)(5)(ii)

The post discharge plan of care is a component of the discharge summary.

The facility utilizes the information from the discharge summary to prepare the discharge plan of care. The post-discharge plan of care identifies the essential supports and services necessary for the client to successfully adjust to the new living environment and describe necessary coordination of services. It should incorporate the client's preferences. It should identify specific client needs after discharge such as personal care, physical therapy, client/caregiver education needs, and the ability of the client or caregiver to meet those needs after discharge.

i) Identifying the client's needs, as described by the comprehensive functional assessments required in paragraph (c)(3) of this section; and

ii) Designing programs that meet the client's needs.

Guidance §483.440(c)(1)

If a need is identified in the CFA, the professional associated with that need will conduct an initial evaluation for the development of the IPP.

The needs identified in the CFA determine the professional, paraprofessional, direct support staff, disciplines or service areas that must participate in the development of the IPP.

§483.440(c)(2) Appropriate facility staff must participate in interdisciplinary team meetings.

Guidance §483.440(c)(2)

While there is no correct number of individuals that comprise the IDT, the team should include appropriate facility staff (professional and paraprofessional staff), that are responsible for designing, developing, and/or implementing the client's IPP and direct support staff who work closely with the clients.

For any prioritized objective, the paraprofessional or professional personnel responsible for the development and monitoring of that program should participate on the team, either through actual attendance or written or verbal input.

Members of the IDT may change as the assessed needs of the client change (e.g. medical issues, nutritional issues, communication needs, fine motor skill needs, gross motor skill needs, social issues or behavioral concerns).

§483.440(c)(2) Participation by other agencies serving the client is encouraged.

Guidance §483.440(c)(2)

The facility must make every effort to coordinate the Individual Education Plan (IEP) from the school or the client's program plan from outside program, work site or workshop with the IPP. This may result in a single document, but there is no requirement for a single combined document. There must be evidence that all applicable plans were coordinated (evidence of discussion across the plans and observation would confirm integration of the IPP across the various settings). The QIDP is responsible for the coordination of the plans.

The facility should communicate changes in the IPP or in the clients' life situation with teachers and workplace representatives either directly or through written communication.

§483.440(c)(2) Participation by the client, his or her parent (if the client is a minor), or the client's legal guardian is required unless the participation is unobtainable or inappropriate.

Guidance §483.440(c)(2)

The facility should make every effort to schedule team meetings at a time that enables the client parent or legal guardian, to attend without having to forfeit work time or pay.

The facility should make every effort to schedule team meetings at a time that enables the client parent or legal guardian, to attend without having to forfeit work time or pay.

It is expected that the client will routinely attend team meetings unless their participation is unobtainable. Examples of when client participation is not available include, but are not limited to: 1) the client is away from the facility for medical reasons or hospitalization; or 2) although the facility has documented repeated attempts to engage the client, the client refuses to participate.

If families/legal guardians are unable to attend a program planning meeting, the facility provides them information regarding the meeting outcome and gives them an opportunity to discuss the plan with the facility staff.

"Unobtainable", for the purposes of this guideline, means that the facility has made a good faith effort to seek parental or legal guardian participation in the process, even though the effort may ultimately be unsuccessful (for example, the parent may be impossible to locate or may prove unwilling or unable to participate).

"Inappropriate", for the purposes of this guideline, means that the parent or legal guardian's behavior is so disruptive or uncooperative that others cannot effectively participate; the client does not wish his or her parent to participate, and the client is competent to make this decision; or there is strong and documented evidence that the parent or legal guardian is not acting on the client's behalf or in the client's best interest. In the case of the latter, determine what the facility has done to bring effective resolution to the problem.

Instances when it is not appropriate for the client, parent or legal guardian, to attend the team discussion are rare. If the client does not attend the meeting, the facility must document the reason for his/her non-participation.

There may also be instances where a parent or legal guardian is considered unobtainable for a team meeting, such as being out of the country. In these instances, the parent or legal guardian should still be notified of the meeting, provided with information concerning the outcome of the meeting and documentation in the client record should describe why the parent or legal guardian could not attend and what information was provided to them.

If the client is an adult who is competent to make decisions and who is not adjudicated, parents may not participate in the process if their participation is opposed by the client.

In the event that a non-adjudicated adult chooses not to have their family involved in the active treatment process, the surveyor should see evidence in the record of efforts made by the facility to understand why the client has declined family participation. If the client continues to decline family involvement after the facility has held discussions with him/her about the importance of this issue, the facility should honor the wishes of the client.

In general, the more involvement and communication among the team members, the client and the parent or legal guardian the more likely the plan will be successful. The facility goal should be to routinely include these parties unless rare circumstances exist.

§483.440(c)(3) Within 30 days after admission, the interdisciplinary team must perform accurate assessments or reassessments as needed to supplement the preliminary evaluation conducted prior to admission.

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)

For new admissions, the CFA is completed within 30 days after admission and is utilized as the basis for the IPP.

New, revised or updated assessments completed within the first 30 days of admission, accurately identify the functional abilities of the client.

"Accurate" assessments refer to assessment data that are current, relevant and valid, and the skills, abilities, and training needs identified by the assessment correspond to the client's actual, observed status. Assessments must be administered with appropriate adaptations such as specialized equipment, use of an interpreter, use of manual communication and tests designed to measure performance in the presence of visual disability.

The content of or format of the assessments or the particular assessment tools which are to be used for the CFA are not specified. Assessments must include identification of those functional life skills in which the client needs to be more independent and those services needed for the client to become more community integrated.

§483.440(c)(3)(iii) Identify the client's specific developmental and behavioral management needs;

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(iii)

The CFA must address and identify those skill deficits/needed supports that may be amenable to training, those that must be treated by therapy and/or provision of assistive technology, and those that require adapting the environment and/or providing personal support. Assessment of needed supports should be done within the context of the client's age, gender, and culture.

"Behavioral management needs" include those behaviors that interfere with progress, prevent assimilation into the community, decrease freedom or increase the need for restriction of activities (e.g. spitting, pica, self-injurious behavior, aggressive behavior toward others or self-injurious behavior).

A functional behavioral assessment is a problem-solving process for evaluating client inappropriate behavior. It relies on a variety of techniques and strategies to identify the purpose of the specific behavior(s) and to help the IDT select interventions to directly address the behavior(s). A functional behavior assessment looks beyond the behavior itself. The focus when conducting a functional behavioral assessment is on identifying significant client-specific social, affective, cognitive, and/or environmental factors associated with the occurrence (and non-occurrence) of specific behaviors.

The CFA must identify the specific accommodations that address the client's needs to ensure better opportunity for the client's success. The identified accommodations may be assistive technology which can help a person learn, play, complete tasks, get around, communicate, hear or see better, control their own environment and take care of their personal needs (e.g. door levers instead of knobs, plate switches, audio books, etc.).

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(iv)

Identification of needed services is based on the CFA.

In the presence of significant developmental deficits, it is not acceptable for the facility to say that a particular professional therapy or treatment is not needed or not available if the CFA identifies a deficit. The assessment must identify the course of specific interventions recommended to meet the client's needs, both through direct professional services and non-professional services. For example, a client's communication skill development may not require the intensive services of a speech-language pathologist however, the direct care staff will need to work with the client and use a pre-determined communication system.

§483.440(c)(3)(v) Include

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(v)

The CFA should include an assessment of each of the areas listed below. Assessments should include specific information about the person's ability to function in different environments, specific skills or lack of skills, and how function can be improved, either through training, environmental adaptations, or provision of adaptive, assistive, supportive, orthotic, or prosthetic equipment.

If assessments are done separately by professional disciplines, there should be evidence that the assessments are brought together in an interdisciplinary approach to address the client's various developmental areas.

The CFA must be completed upon admission and annually as indicated. While the assessment may not have the specific titles of the areas listed below, the surveyor must be able to identify information within assessments from each of the areas below.

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(v)

Sensorimotor development: Sensorimotor development includes the development of perceptual skills that are involved in observing the environment and making sense of it. Identified sensory deficits should be evaluated in conjunction with the impact they will have on the client's life. A sensory deficit in eye contact may not have a detrimental effect on the client's life if it will not hold the client back from further accomplishments or skill acquisitions. Motor development includes those behaviors that primarily involve: muscular, neuromuscular, or physical skills and varying degrees of physical dexterity. Because sensory and motor development are intimately related and because activities in these areas are functionally inseparable, attention to these two aspects of bodily activity is often combined in the concept of sensorimotor development. For those motor areas that are identified by the assessment as limited, the assessment should specify the extent to which corrective, orthotic, prosthetic, or support devices would impact on functional status and the extent of time the device is to be used throughout the day.

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(v)

Speech and language (communication) development: One of the most contributable causes of behaviors, frustration by the clients, etc. is lack of effective communication. It is imperative that the CFA identifies how the client communicates, what barriers are present, what services are available and what programs and services will be provided to assist the client to go out into and participate fully in the world. Observed client communication skills match the evaluation results and that training programs are in place to address needs.

Communication development refers to the development of both verbal and nonverbal and receptive and expressive communication skills. Assessment data identify the appropriate intervention strategy to be applied, and which, if any, augmentative or assistive devices will improve communication and functional status. These intervention strategies should provide the client with a viable means of communication which is appropriate to their sensory, cognitive and physical abilities.

Adaptive behaviors are those behaviors that are developed to cope with deficits in order to be able to perform every day skills as independently as possible. Independent living skills include, but are not limited to, such things as food shopping, meal preparation, housekeeping and kitchen chores, laundry, bed making, and budgeting. Assessment may be performed by anyone trained to do so. Standardized tests are not required. Standardized adaptive behavior scales which identify all or predominantly all "developmental needs" are not sufficient to meet this requirement, but can serve as a basis for screening.

§483.440(c)(3)(v) and as applicable, vocational skills.

Guidance §483.440(c)(3)(v)

Vocational development, "as applicable": Vocational development refers to work interests, work skills, work attitudes, work-related behaviors, and present and future employment options. The determination of whether or not a vocational assessment is "applicable" is typically based on age (adolescents or adults more than likely require this type of assessment). The vocational assessment for each client may address job sampling, job development, on-site job training and long term follow-up, as appropriate to the client and determined by the IDT.

Vocational assessments should describe, for all domains, what clients can and cannot do in terms of skills needed within the context of their daily lives and jobs.

Assessments should be individualized and based on:

- Actual performance of the client against objective criteria;
- Reports by staff/parents/legal guardians; and Observed performance in a variety of settings.

W227

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.440(c)(4) that states the specific objectives necessary to meet the client's needs, as identified by the comprehensive assessment required by paragraph (c)(3) of this section,

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)

Objectives are developed for those needs that are identified by the CFA and which are considered to be most likely to improve the client's ability to independently function in his/her daily life, as determined by the IDT.

There is a clear link between the specific objectives and the functional assessment data and recommendations.

Objectives are developed for those needs that are observed to most likely impact the client's ability to function in daily life. Training objectives should be developed to address client needs rather than staff oriented objectives.

Clients are expected to have training objectives in the areas of activities of daily living, based on the client's assessed needs and as prioritized by the IDT. If clients have eyeglasses, dentures and/or other assistive devices it is expected that the team considers objectives, based upon the assessment of client needs, addressing the care and use of such devices. However, in the area of programs to teach the clients' money management it is not expected that every client will automatically have a formal training objective to participate in such a program. The decision to prioritize such a program and to what level the program is developed is decided by the IDT based upon the results of the CFA and in consideration of such factors as, transferable skills, the ability to make choices, the ability to identify preferences and cognitive abilities such as attention span and an understanding of the principle of cause and effect.

Similarly, the decision to prioritize and develop a training objective for a client to participate in a self-administration program for medications must be made by the IDT and be based upon information from the CFA. Formal self administration programs should not be confused with informal efforts to include the client in the administration process such as allowing them to hold a glass of water, identify the box where his/her medications are stored or put a pill into their own mouth themselves under the supervision of a person who is qualified to administer medications.

§483.440(c)(4) and the planned sequence for dealing with those objectives.

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)

The objectives identified in W227 are organized in a logical sequence, determined by the team that will assist the client toward the attainment of skills resulting in greater self-choice, independence, and community integration. The logical sequencing of objectives means there is a completion of one objective that serves as the building block for the next with relevance to the client's functional status. Where objectives are logically ordered but do not have relevance to the client's functional status, refer to 483.440(c)(4).

If the IPP is organized in a logical sequence, this requirement is met. For example, if the long term goal is to travel independently in the community, the objective sequencing may involve training the client to recognize traffic signs, cross the street safely, and to obtain help when needed if lost or an emergency arises.

These objectives must –

§483.440(c)(4)(i) Be stated separately, in terms of a single behavioral outcome;

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)(i)

Each objective clearly states one expected learning result.

"Single" behavioral outcome means that there is a separate objective assigned for each discrete behavior that the team intends the client to learn. For example, "Mary will bake a cake and clean the oven" are two separate behaviors and, therefore, should be stated in two separate objectives. Completion of the morning hygiene routine includes programs for performance of face washing, tooth brushing and hair combing which are three separate objectives; however, the behavioral outcome for each would be the same (e.g. completion of the morning hygiene routine).

§483.440(c)(4)(ii) Be assigned projected completion dates;

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)(ii)

Completion dates are based on the client's rate of learning.

Completion dates are assigned to each objective on which the client is currently working.

Completion dates are individualized (e.g. not all the same for all clients and all objectives).

The "projected date of completion" for an IPP objective is not the same as a "review" date. For each objective assigned a priority, the team should assign a projected date (month and year) by which it believes the client will have learned the new skill, based on all of the assessment data. This date triggers the team to evaluate continuously whether or not the client's progress or learning curve is sufficient to warrant a revision to the training program.

§483.440(c)(4)(iii) Be expressed in behavioral terms that provide measurable indices of performance;

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)(iii)

The desired learning outcome is stated in a manner which enables all staff working with the client to consistently identify the target behavior and to clearly identify when it is being displayed.

The objective is stated in a manner which permits it to be measured with quantifiable data.

"Behavioral" terms include only those behaviors which are "client" rather than staff oriented and those that any person would agree can be seen or heard. Determine if all staff who work with the client can define the exact same outcome on which to measure the client's performance.

"Measurable indices of performance" are the quantifiable criteria to use in determining successful achievement of the objective. Quantifiable criteria include various measurements of intensity and duration. For example, "Client X will walk ten feet, with the use of her tripod walker, on each of five (5) consecutive days."

§483.440(c)(4)(v) Be assigned priorities.

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)(v)

Priorities are established based on the needs and in consideration of the desires of the client and emphasize the development of greater independence, self-choice, and community integration.

The team determines which objectives are the highest priority to be addressed, either because the client has an immediate need or the priority objectives must be accomplished before other priorities are addressed.

§483.440(c)(5) Each written training program designed to implement the objectives in the individual program plan must specify:

§483.440(c)(5)(i) The methods to be used;

Guidance §483.440(c)(5)(i)

The training program provides clear directions to any staff person working with the client on how to implement the teaching strategies. To comply with this requirement the methodologies must be written in a clear enough manner that a substitute staff person will be able to read the methodologies and implement them without substantial differences from a regularly assigned staff person. Methodologies should be consistent across settings, such as when the client is in the day program.

§483.440(c)(5)(ii) The schedule for use of the method;

Guidance §483.440(c)(5)(ii)

Active treatment (the implementation of training programs pursuant to objectives) should be provided in formal and informal settings throughout the rhythm of the client's day. While there may be structured episodes when the client works intensively and singularly on one or more objectives (schedule), the provision of active treatment is not adequate when confined solely to these types of formal settings but should be incorporated into all activities when appropriate (client's routine). For example, objectives on grasping may be as effectively carried out during the client's use of a toothbrush and a spoon as in an isolated session.

Guidance §483.440(c)(4)(v)

The IPP should include the actual name of the staff person who is responsible for the ongoing monitoring of the client's program to ensure it is being implemented appropriately, as well as the designated position which will implement the program.

The QIDP should be familiar with the assessment and recording requirements for each client for each formal objective, including who is responsible for making these observations and completing the recording, and demonstrate a familiarity with the current data recorded for each client.

§483.440(c)(5)(iv) The type of data and frequency of data collection necessary to be able to assess progress toward the desired objectives;

Guidance §483.440(c)(5)(iv)

The IDT must determine the type of data necessary to judge a client's progress on an objective, and describe the data collection method in the written training program. The facility determines what data to collect, but whatever system is chosen for collection must yield accurate measurement of the criteria stated in the client's IPP objectives. For example, if the criteria in the client's IPP objective specified a behavior to be measured by "accuracy," or "successes out of opportunities," then it would not be acceptable for the prescribed data collection method to record "level of prompt".

Examples of a few data collection systems include, but are not limited to:

- level of prompt;
- successful trials completed out of opportunities given;
- frequency counts; and
- frequency sampling.

The IDT must consider and select the type and frequency of data collection for each objective based upon the need to measure appropriately the client's performance toward the targeted IPP skill development. The facility should collect data with enough frequency and content to be able to appropriately measure the client's performance toward the targeted IPP skill development. The frequency of data collection may vary with the objective but must be made at sufficient intervals to allow analysis of the progress of the client.

§483.440(c)(5)(vi) Provision for the appropriate expression of behavior and the replacement of inappropriate behavior, if applicable, with behavior that is adaptive or appropriate.

Guidance §483.440(c)(5)(vi)

The training program provides specific information as to how to elicit or strengthen appropriate behavior and what behaviors to teach reinforce or encourage which would reduce or replace the inappropriate behavior.

If a client is exhibiting an inappropriate behavior, the CFA should discover why the behavior is occurring and the team should develop associated training objectives to help the client develop more appropriate behaviors. The objective for decelerating targeted inappropriate behaviors is not solely the reduction of these behaviors. The objective should also include the positive functional replacement behavior (adaptive behavior).

A replacement behavior allows a client to substitute an unconstructive or disruptive behavior with something more constructive and functionally equivalent. For example, instead of throwing work materials as a way to get a break from vocational task demands, teach the client to say or sign for 'break'.

Guidance §483.440(c)(6)(i)

Appropriate materials, adaptations and modifications to equipment and the environment are available in order to promote and support individual training programs. Examples may include, but are not limited, to built-up toilet seats, adaptive eating utensils, extended reach devices, and modification to the facility van to accommodate a wheelchair.

The IPP describes supports and services, in addition to the individual goals and objectives that will be provided by the facility to assist the client to function with greater independence.

§483.440(c)(6)(iii) Include, for those clients who lack them, training in personal skills essential for privacy and independence (including, but not limited to, toilet training, personal hygiene, dental hygiene, self-feeding, bathing, dressing, grooming, and communication of basic needs), until it has been demonstrated that the client is developmentally incapable of acquiring them.

Guidance §483.440(c)(6)(iii)

All clients who lack the skills listed within this standard have associated training programs developed to meet their needs according to prioritization. These programs are consistently implemented in both formal and informal settings.

"Developmentally incapable" is a decision made by the IDT that means a client does not have the capacity to acquire certain skill sets. The decision must be based on an assessment of the client's strengths, needs, and functional limitations.

The determination of developmental incapability must be accompanied by written evidence supporting this determination.

Such evidence may include training programs which failed after many different strategies were tried, or physical limitations that preclude the acquisition of the skill. Examples are:

1) Eye contact program was attempted using seven different methods over a two year period;

2) An client has two frozen elbow joints which do not allow her to get her hands to her mouth and consequently she will not be trained on any hand to mouth skills; and

3) Some clients may have insufficient neuromuscular and sensory control to ever be totally independent in toileting skills.

Toilet scheduling alone without any plan to progress would not be considered a toilet training program.

The components of functional skills "training" as used in this regulation means aggressive implementation of a systematic program of formal and informal techniques, which are:

- targeted toward assisting the client achieving the measurable behavioral level of skill competency specified in IPP objectives;

- implemented at natural occurrences of activity and training programs; (e.g.: an objective for a client to increase grasping may be implemented as easily in the workshop with a built up tool as in the bathroom with a toothbrush);

- conducted by all personnel involved with the client including those outside the home such as in day programs; and

- carried out in conversation and interaction with the client appropriate to the situation.

§483.440(c)(6)(iv) Identify mechanical supports, if needed, to achieve proper body position, balance, or alignment. The plan must specify

Guidance §483.440(c)(6)(iv)

The use of mechanical supports are based upon an individual assessment and fitting. Mechanical devices are used to support a client's proper body position or alignment and may be essential to prevent contractures or deformities. However, mechanical supports restrict movement and the client should be released from the support periodically for exercise and free movement. Mechanical supports may not be used as a substitute for programs or therapy. For example, the use of a bolster to position a client upright in a sitting position without any indication there has been an assessment for the need for muscle re-training may be an indication of a mechanical device in lieu of programming. Some supports allow movement and provide opportunity for more increased functioning. Some examples of devices used as mechanical supports include splints, wedges, bolsters, lap trays, etc.

Wheelchairs are not generally used to position or align the body and would not alone constitute a mechanical support. However, adaptations to a wheelchair which facilitate correct body alignment by inhibiting reflexive, involuntary motor activity are mechanical supports and should be included in the plan for the client.

§483.440(c)(6)(v) Provide that clients who have multiple disabling conditions spend a major portion of each waking day out of bed and outside the bedroom area, moving about by various methods and devices whenever possible.

Guidance §483.440(c)(6)(v)

Clients with sensory or physical difficulties should be given the same opportunities to move around in their environments as clients who do not have those difficulties. Even clients who use specialized wheelchairs should be given the opportunity to utilize other devices such as walkers, wagons and scooters to move about and/or change their positions.

With the exception of those clients who are acutely ill (such as those who are hospitalized or incapacitated by a "short term" illness), all clients should be out of bed and outside their bedroom area as long as possible each day, and in proper body alignment at all times. This is a necessity in order to prevent regression, contractures, and deformities and to provide sensory stimulation.

Bed rest is a temporary situation associated most usually with a medical condition and must be ordered by the medical staff of the facility. The term implies that the client will remain in his/her bed for most of any 24-hour period. Although active treatment programs may be carried out to some extent while the client is on bed rest, the client's program cannot be completed in its entirety. While there may be situations where continuous bed rest may be necessary, these situations are rare.

For those rare instances where out-of-bed activity is a threat to a client's health and safety (e.g., blood clot in the leg), active treatment adapted to the medical capacity of the client must be continued.

§483.440(c)(6)(vi) Include opportunities for client choice and self-management.

Guidance §483.440(c)(6)(vi)

Choice and self-management are integral components of becoming independent. Clients should be given opportunities for choice and self-management in both formal and informal settings through the IPP process, leisure activities, and other life choices.

The ICF/IID must incorporate opportunities into daily life experiences that promote choice making and decision making by clients. Examples of some activities leading toward responsibility for one's own self-management include, but are not limited to:

1) choosing housing or roommates;
2) choosing clothing to purchase or wear;
3) choosing what, where, and how to eat (e.g., the use of family style dining, access to condiments and second helpings).

Choices can be made by all clients. The type of choices the person makes may vary from simple to complex, dependent upon client abilities.

Clients are provided opportunities for choice and self-management and the facility does not limit choices by making decisions for the people being served without their input. Clients are provided the opportunity to demonstrate skills to the degree they are capable and only assisted by staff as indicated in their IPP. A lack of facility staffing or staff convenience must not result in a limitation of choices of self-management for the clients.

The client or legal representative, as well as the facility staff, and staff from outside agencies, with appropriate consent, have, or can access, a copy of the IPP.

§483.440(d)(1) As soon as the interdisciplinary team has formulated a client's individual program plan, each client must receive a continuous active treatment program consisting of needed interventions and services in sufficient number and frequency to support the achievement of the objectives identified in the individual program plan.

Guidance §483.440(d)(1)

There should be no delay in the development and implementation of the IPP. To promote a team process and meaningful discussion, IPP development should take place during IDT meetings. Any IPP objective or modification that is critical to the health and safety of any client should be implemented immediately following IDT discussion."

Each individual receives training and services consistent with the current IPP.

The time period between admission and the 30 day IDT meeting is primarily to assist the client to become adjusted and acclimated to his or her new living environment and to enable the facility to complete the CFA. During this time period the facility should also be providing those services and activities determined during the pre-admission assessment as essential to the client's daily functioning.

The active treatment program for the client is consistently implemented in all relevant settings both formally and informally as opportunities present themselves. It should not be limited to specific periods of time during the day or specific environments.

Each client should receive aggressive and continuous training, treatments and supports in accordance with their needs and IPP. New skills and appropriate behaviors are encouraged and reinforced across environments and times of day.

- During observations confirm that the client activities relate directly to the strengths, needs and objectives in the IPP for each client and are not "busy work," generalized or non-developmental time fillers. For example, screwing nuts on bolts and then unscrewing them repeatedly with no goal or transferable skills is "busy work." Screwing nuts on bolts that will be part of a product is functional reinforcement of skill acquisition.

- Clients use adaptive equipment, assistive devices, environmental supports, materials, supplies, etc., as specified in each client's IPP to assist the client to accomplish stated objectives.

There is no specific number or frequency of interventions that meets this requirement. The surveyors should see that the facility capitalizes on all opportunities throughout the course of the day that promote progress toward the achievement of goals and objectives.

Informal opportunities ("teachable moments") should be utilized to reinforce learning or appropriate skill development and needs are addressed as they present.

Although a client may not be able to reach complete independence in a functional skill, it is crucial that retention of their current skills be supported.

Clients may have defined periods of time where they may engage in leisure activities of their choice which are not necessarily directly associated with their IPP goals and objectives.

§483.440(d)(2) The facility must develop an active treatment schedule that outlines the current active treatment program and that is readily available for review by relevant staff.

Guidance §483.440(d)(2)

The schedule is individualized, consistent with the client's objectives, and reflects normal daily routines.

The staff working with individual clients are familiar with their daily schedules and can produce the schedule upon request.

The active treatment schedule allows flexibility and is adjusted to the needs and preferences of the client, as necessary. It's a schedule of the client's general daily plans, but can be changed.

The active treatment schedule is a functional schedule which enables client and staff to be in the right location in order to participate in the training as scheduled by the IPP.

Guidance §483.440(f)(2)

The CFA is reviewed at least annually.

The review of the CFA occurs sooner than annually if:

- indicated by the needs of the client;
- reflects any changes in the client since their last evaluation; and
- incorporates information about the client's progress or regression with objectives.

The review of the CFA applies to all evaluations conducted for a client. It is not required that each assessment be completely redone each year, except the physical examination. It is required that at least annually the assessment(s) be updated when changes occur so as to accurately reflect the client's current status.

Guidance §483.440(f)(2)

The IPP reflects the functional changes for the client which occurred since the last IPP. §483.440(f)(3) The facility must designate and use a specially constituted committee or committees consisting of members of facility staff, parents, legal guardians, clients (as appropriate), qualified persons who have either experience or training in contemporary practices to change inappropriate client behavior, and persons with no ownership or controlling interest in the facility to- -

Guidance §483.440(f)(3)

The facility must have a specially constituted committee whose primary function is to proactively protect client rights by monitoring facility practices and programs. The purpose of the committee is to assure that each client's rights are protected utilizing a group of both internal staff and external participants who have no vested interest in the facility as well as clients as appropriate. There should be evidence that the committee members have been trained annually on the rights of the clients, what constitutes a restriction of a right and the difference between punishment and training.

Depending on size, complexity and available resources, the ICF/IID may establish more than one specially constituted committee. However, each committee must contain the required membership and participate regularly and perform the functions of the committee according to the requirements. Participation on the specially constituted committee(s) must be in real time allowing all membership to speak and discuss in an interactive mode.

The regulation does not specify the professional credentials of the "qualified persons" (who have either experience or training in contemporary practices to change inappropriate client behavior). There is no requirement that any specific discipline, such as nurse, physician or pharmacist be a member of the committee.

The intent of including "persons with no ownership or controlling interest" on the committee is to assure that, in addition to having no financial interest in the facility, at least one member of each constituted committee is an impartial outsider in that he/she would not have an "interest" represented by any other of the required members or the facility itself. Staff and consultants employed by the facility or at another facility under the same governing body, cannot fulfill the role of person with no ownership or controlling interest.

Although occasional absences from committee meetings are understandable, patterns of absence by the required membership of the committee is not acceptable. At least a quorum of committee members (as defined by the facility) must review, approve and monitor the programs which involve risk to client rights and protections and that quorum must include one person from each of the required categories.

§483.440(f)(3)(i) Review, approve, and monitor individual programs designed to manage inappropriate behavior and other programs that, in the opinion of the committee, involve risks to client protection and rights;

Guidance §483.440(f)(3)(i)

Any program that utilizes restrictive or intrusive techniques must be reviewed and approved by the specially constituted committee prior to implementation. This includes, but is not limited to:

- restraints;
- drugs to manage behavior;
- restrictions on community access;
- contingent denial of any right; or
- restrictions of materials or locations in the home.

The committee should ensure that consequences within a written behavior management program do not violate the client's rights.

There is no requirement for the committee to evaluate whether the proposed program is consistent with current practices in the field. Documentation should verify that the specially constituted committee considered factors, such as whether less intrusive methods have been attempted, whether the severity of behavior outweighs the risks of the proposed program and whether replacement behaviors are included within the plan.

Any revision to a behavior plan that increases the level of intrusiveness must be re-reviewed by the specially constituted committee. The committee need not reapprove a program when revisions are made in accordance with the approved plan. For example, if the physician changes the dosage of a medication in accordance with the drug treatment component of the active treatment plan to which the legally authorized person has given consent and which has already been approved by the committee, then there is no need for the committee or the legally authorized person to reapprove the plan. Generally, this would also apply if the medication was changed to another within the same therapeutic class or family.

§483.440(f)(3)(ii) Insure that these programs are conducted only with the written informed consent of the client, parents (if the client is a minor) or legal guardian; and Guidance §483.440(f)(3)(ii)

The committee must ensure that written informed consent must be obtained prior to implementation of any restrictive or intrusive program. In the event of an emergency, the facility may obtain a verbal consent, which must be authenticated in writing as soon as possible and subsequently submitted to the committee as verification.

The consent is required for the entire behavior management program not just the specific restrictive technique.

Consent is informed when the person giving consent is fully aware of the:

- specific treatment;
- reason for treatment or procedure;;
- the attendant risks vs. benefits;
- alternatives;
- right to refuse; and
- the consequences associated with consent or refusal of the program.

Informed consent must be in writing and must be specific to the program and restrictive practice and reflect a specific time frame. Blanket consents are not allowed. In the case of unplanned events such as assault and property destruction requiring immediate action, verbal consent may be obtained. However, it should be authenticated in writing as soon as reasonably possible (within 30 days).

For clients up to the age of 18, their parent or legally appointed guardian must give consent for him or her. At the age of 18, however, clients become adults and are assumed to be competent unless otherwise determined by a court.

For clients who are adults and have not been adjudicated incompetent and have not been assigned a legal guardian who may not fully understand the consequences of the program, informed consent for use of restrictive programs, practices or procedures should be obtained from a person or an entity in accordance with state law, to act as the representative or advocate of the client's interests.

The specially constituted committee must ensure that the informed and voluntary consent of the client, parent of a minor, legal guardian, or the person or organization designated by the state is obtained prior to each of the following circumstances:

- The involvement of the client in research activities; or
- Implementation of programs or practices that could abridge or involve risks to client protections or rights.

Guidance §483.440(f)(3)(iii)

The committee has been made aware of and reviewed:

- facility policies and procedures;
- facility services;
- programs; and

- practices which may restrict or violate the rights of client.

The committee has established and uses a mechanism for monitoring clients' rights issues and informs the governing body of any issues of concern in a timely manner. This process is at the discretion of the committee. There is no requirement for periodic review of the policies by the committee.

The function of the committee is not limited to the review, approval and monitoring of restrictive behavior management practices. Examples of issues involving client rights that might be reviewed by the committee, in addition to behavior management, include, but are not limited to:

1) Research proposals involving clients;
2) Abuse, neglect and mistreatment of clients;
3) Allegations dealing with theft of a client's personal property or funds;
4) Damage to a client's goods or denial of other client rights;
5) Client grievances;

1) IPPs and data support the fact that from the time of admission, clients are learning new adaptive and functional skills while becoming more independent.

2) Interactions between clients and staff are consistent and positive.

3) Staff teach and encourage clients to interact with each other in a manner that promotes social integration both in the facility and out in the community.

4) All opportunities to teach and reinforce skill acquisition are utilized.

5) Staff identify and remove impediments in the learning environment (e.g. client is unable to concentrate in a room with a television because when they see the television, they want to watch their favorite show. Staff must identify this learning impediment and train in an environment without a television).

Written policies describe how self-determination, as defined by free choice of one's own acts and decisions without external coercion or direction, to the extent possible and self-management, as defined by control of one's own routine and daily responsibilities, to the extent possible, are incorporated into the development of program plans and daily routines.

Guidance §483.450(a)(2)

"To the extent possible" does not mean that the clients are excluded due to the clients' schedule or intellectual or developmental level. Facilities should be able to provide documentation that substantiates that clients were offered the opportunity and participated in the development of the policies. This could be accomplished through client committees or in house meetings. There should be documentation of these discussions between the client representatives and the facility.

At a minimum, the facility must have written policies and procedures regarding the management of maladaptive behaviors addressing the following:

483.450(b)(1) (W 275 – W284).

- the use of a functional behavior assessment in the development of behavior management programs;
- a hierarchy of least to most intrusive measures; and

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(i)

All interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. Examples of positive interventions include, but are not limited to, verbal praise reward systems, and prompting. Examples of negative interventions include, but are not limited to, removal of a privilege, implementation of restraint, and/or the use of exclusionary time out.

§483.450(b)(1)(ii) Designate these interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented, ranging from most positive or least intrusive, to least positive or most intrusive;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(ii)

Policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior.

Facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment. The plan must still begin at the least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client.

The facility policy for unexpected behavioral incidents must provide direction for the staff in the utilization of the hierarchy. For clients not on a behavior plan, staff must apply the appropriate level of intervention per the established hierarchy, including emergency measures to prevent harm to self or others.

§483.450(b)(1)(iii) Insure prior to the use of more restrictive techniques, that the client's record documents that programs incorporating the use of less intrusive or more positive techniques have been tried systematically and demonstrated to be ineffective; and

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iii)

Policies must be implemented to ensure that all restrictive procedures begin at the lowest level of the hierarchy unless there is documented evidence that less intrusive interventions have been tried and have been found to be ineffective.

The facility is not required to justify discontinuing the use of a more restrictive technique before initiating a less restrictive technique, since the intent of the regulation is to use the most positive, least intrusive technique possible.

In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A) The use of time-out rooms;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A)

"Time-out room" is defined as a separate room that is used to remove a client from stimulation that may be triggering and reinforcing maladaptive behavior. The facility must have written policies and procedures for the use of time out rooms which address all the requirements of 483.450 (c) (1-4) standard: time out room.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B) The use of physical restraints;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B)

"Physical restraint" is defined as any manual hold or mechanical device that the client cannot remove easily, and which restricts the free movement of, normal functioning of, or normal access to a portion or portions of a client's body. Examples of mechanical devices may include arm splints and mittens.

Policies and Procedures must address:

- the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility;
- the persons who apply such restraints;
- the parameters for duration of application;
- the methods that assure the health and safety of clients while in restraints; and
- the specific training required for staff allowed to apply such restraints.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(C) The use of drugs to manage inappropriate behavior;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(C)

Applicable policies may include a discussion of:

When a drug can be used to manage inappropriate behavior;

Consistency with diagnosis;

Alternatives tried before a drug is used;

Precautions that must be followed prior to and during the use (lab values, monitoring of side effects);

Implementation of a plan to address the behaviors for which the drug was prescribed; and

Plan to reduce the medication as appropriate.

Drugs to manage inappropriate behavior are defined as any medication prescribed and administered for purposes of modifying the maladaptive behavior of a client.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(D) The application of painful or noxious stimuli;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(D)

"Application of painful or noxious stimuli" is defined as any procedure by which staff apply, contingent upon the exhibition of maladaptive behavior, startling, unpleasant, or painful stimuli, or stimuli that have a potentially noxious effect.

While the regulation permits the use of painful or noxious stimuli these techniques are the last resort and can only be utilized for behaviors that are causing significant harm and have not responded to competently administered interventions of less intrusive nature.

Facility policies must state that:

- The use of noxious stimuli is only permitted when the client exhibits behaviors so severe that they present a potential risk for significant or even life-threatening circumstances;

- the IDT and facility must weigh the potential risk of the behavior against the risk involved in the use of the painful or noxious techniques to manage behavior;
- that safeguards and strict oversight must be in place for consideration to use techniques that may be painful or even unpleasant;

- techniques that may be painful or noxious must be time limited;

- the proposed use of these techniques requires scrutiny of clinical effectiveness and specially constituted committee review; and on-going monitoring and safeguards must be in place during implementation of the technique.

The implementation of all interventions, except in emergency situations, must be administered consistent with the IPP and the specific behaviors identified in the IPP requiring the intervention. Instances where an intervention is done as a punishment because the client did not comply with staff instructions and not associated with the IPP include:

- Personal property confiscated for behavior at staff discretion;
- Rights restricted without approved plans; and
- Punitive house rules, such as prohibiting reentry into the kitchen for snacks if a meal is not eaten completely.

§483.450(b)(3) for the convenience of staff

Guidance §483.450(b)(3)

Inadequate numbers of staff, inefficient deployment of staff, and insufficient training of staff can lead to restrictive practices used for staff convenience.

Examples of techniques used to manage client behavior for staff convenience including, but are not limited to:

- Clients allowed to discipline other clients;
- Clients restricted to one area of the home; and
- Unauthorized use of restraints (e.g., lap trays, bean bags, gait belt, and merry walkers for the purpose of restricting movement)

Guidance §483.450(b)(3)

Substitutions for active treatment programming occur when the staff utilizes interventions and restrictive techniques on their own, either because there is not a formal behavioral program to address the client's behaviors or because the staff do not follow the plan as written.

§483.450(b)(4) The use of systematic interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior must be incorporated into the client's individual program plan, in accordance with §483.440(c)(4) and (5) of this subpart.

Guidance §483.450(b)(4)

The use of behavior interventions are expected to be incorporated into the IPP and be based upon the results of the functional behavioral assessment.

However, there may be isolated and rare instances when a client exhibits unexpected behavior that requires immediate intervention on the part of the staff. In these instances, the least restrictive intervention must be employed and removed as soon as the client is no longer an immediate threat to self or others. The IPP team must then discuss the need for adding a behavioral plan into the clients program.

With the exception of isolated and rare emergency situations, all restrictive behavior interventions must be incorporated into the formal IPP and individualized for the client.

W291

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(c)(1) A client may be placed in a room from which egress is prevented only if the following conditions are met:

(i) The placement is a part of an approved systematic time-out program as required by paragraph (b) of this section. (Thus, emergency placement of a client into a time-out room is not allowed.)

(ii) The client is under the direct constant visual supervision of designated staff.

(iii) The door to the room is held shut by staff or by a mechanism requiring constant physical pressure from a staff member to keep the mechanism engaged.

Guidance §483.450(c)(1)

Seclusion, defined as the placement of a client alone in a locked room, is never allowed.

Time out procedures allows a client to be alone in a room, but do not allow that room to be locked. During a time out procedure, egress can only be prevented by a person standing in the door way, or holding the door closed, but as soon as the staff move from the door way or let go of the door the client can come out.

Use of the timeout room or procedure must be part of an approved behavioral plan and may involve the separation of a client from a group or a particular situation, in a non-locked setting for the purpose of calming or removing the client from the reinforcing stimuli that are sustaining an identified maladaptive behavior.

Designated time out rooms must be set up so that the staff has continuous, direct observation of the client at all times. Because of the danger that staff can get distracted by other events or duties, this cannot be accomplished by a camera in lieu of the staff having direct visual of the client.

Key locks, latch locks, and doors that open inward without an inside doorknob are not permitted by the regulations for use in time out rooms as they do not require constant physical pressure from a staff member to keep the door shut. In each instance where a time out room is used, the client's IPP must include:

- The functional behavioral assessment which resulted in a recommendation for the use of time out procedures; and

- Instructions on how often data is to be collected during the time out period and the criteria for release from time out.

The use of a time out room must be approved by the Specially constituted committee as part of an approved program.

§483.450(c)(3) Clients placed in time-out rooms must be protected from hazardous conditions including, but not limited to, presence of sharp corners and objects, uncovered light fixtures, unprotected electrical outlets.

Guidance §483.450(c)(3)

Because placement in the time out room is typically secondary to extreme behaviors, it is acceptable that there be no furniture in this room.

A door that opens inward can potentially be held closed, either intentionally or inadvertently, by the client in the room, thereby denying staff immediate access to the room.

§483.450(c)(4) A record of time-out activities must be kept.

Guidance §483.450(c)(4)

The documentation in the client's record accurately reflects planned (e.g. part of the IPP) usage and presents a picture of events prior to, during, and following the use of time-out. The IPP should include direction as to how often data must be collected during each use of time out for each individual client.

(d) Standard: Physical restraints

§483.450(d)(1)(i) As an integral part of an individual program plan that is intended to lead to less restrictive means of managing and eliminating the behavior for which the restraint is applied;

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(i)

The use of physical restraint is specified within the IPP. The plan must address:

1) The specific type of client behavior to be managed by this plan;
2) The less restrictive behavioral approaches which were previously used, but were unsuccessful;
3) The hierarchy of measures that must be utilized prior to the application of physical restraint;
4) The type of physical restraint;
5) The type of client behavior that would indicate that the patient is calm and can be released from the restraint; and
6) The replacement behavior being taught to the client to reduce the need for future restraints.

§483.450(d)(1)(ii) As an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury; or

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(ii)

Physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which:

1) the client has not exhibited before;
2) were not identified in the functional analysis of behavior; or
3) are harming other people or themselves.

When there are repeated episodes of the use of physical restraint as an emergency safety measure, these episodes should be assessed for their predictability by the IDT, and revisions to the IPP considered addressing the behaviors through a formal behavior plan in order to reduce/eliminate the use of physical restraint.

W297

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(1)(iii) As a health-related protection prescribed by a physician, but only if absolutely necessary during the conduct of a specific medical or surgical procedure, or only if absolutely necessary for client protection during the time that a medical condition exists.

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(iii)

Physical restraint during medical procedures must be utilized only when absolutely necessary and be used as a last resort in order for the facility or practitioners to deliver needed medical care to the client. The restraint must be released as soon as the medical procedure is completed unless it is necessary to continue restraint for a longer period of time to continue to deliver care or to prevent the client from displacing tubes or dressings. These restraints may only be used as long as the physician indicates them to be necessary.

For instances where physical restraint are used by the facility or a practitioner during a medical procedure, the client record and interviews should verify that less restrictive measures were attempted before using physical restraint and verify whether any injuries occurred during the use of the physical restraint. Written orders by medical personnel for the application of a physical restraint should include the reason that the restraint is necessary, the type of restraint to be used and the length of time the restraint will be applied.

A restraint device used to prevent a client engaging in self-injurious behavior is not considered a restraint for medical condition.

§483.450(d)(2) Authorizations to use or extend restraints as an emergency measure must be:

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)

Facility policies should list who in the facility is allowed to authorize the emergency use of restraints or to extend the use of an emergency restraint, and the training that is required for those persons who may authorize. Documentation in the client record in those instances should confirm that the facility follows that policy.

§483.450(d)(2)(i) In effect no longer than 12 consecutive hours; and

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(i)

This regulation does not mean that restraints may be authorized to be applied for up to a 12 hour period. The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. Once the behavior has ceased, the emergency has ended, and the client has been released, another authorization would be required for any new emergency situation.

The 12 consecutive hour period is the absolute maximum period of time that emergency physical restraint may be utilized for a client during an individual behavioral incident. It is reasonable to expect that the facility will reassess the emergency situation for any client who remains in physical restraint for longer than one hour and reassess the situation at least every 30 minutes thereafter up to 12 hours when the physical restraint must be removed.

§483.450(d)(2)(ii) Obtained as soon as the client is restrained or stable.

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(ii)

There may be instances where the maladaptive behaviors of a client or clients escalate into a serious and immediate event that must be de-escalated quickly in order to prevent harm to clients, staff, other clients, or by standers when incidents occur in the community. In these instances, the staff should contact the appropriate person to obtain authorization for the use of physical restraint as soon as the situation is stable. Retrospective documentation of the incident should confirm the need for authorization after application.

Guidance §483.450(d)(3)

§483.450(d)(4) A client placed in restraint must be checked at least every 30 minutes by staff trained in the use of restraints,

Guidance §483.450(d)(4)

The frequency of monitoring will vary according to the type and design of the device and the psychological and physical well-being of the client. The facility should be checking the client often enough to adequately assess the physical status of the client (e.g., circulation, respiration and vital signs) of the client and the need to continued restraint. The more restrictive the intervention, the greater the risk to the client and the more often the client must be assessed. Frequent assessment will assure that the client will be released as soon as possible, however, in no instance may the staff go longer than 30 minutes without checking the client.

§483.450(d)(6) for a period of not less than 10 minutes during each two hour period in which restraint is employed,

Guidance §483.450(d)(6)

This requirement does not apply to cases of medical restraints that are specifically ordered for the immobilization of bones and joints during the physical healing process involved with fractures, sprains, etc. (e.g. a broken bone immobilized by a cast or splint). See 331 483.460(c) regarding surveillance of skin integrity during the use of medical restraints.

However, if a mechanical physical restraint is applied to an extremity to prevent a client from removing post-operative sutures, the restraint must be released every two (2) hours for a period of not less than ten (10) minutes in order to maintain adequate circulation.

Mechanical restraints placed on the client during sleeping hours must be medically based and specifically ordered by a physician. There should be evidence in the client's record why the mechanical physical restraint is necessary during sleeping hours. While it is not necessary to wake the client every two (2) hours to release the restraint and provide opportunity for exercise, the staff must check the restraint frequently during the night to ensure that the restraint is still properly applied and the client appears comfortable.

§483.450(d)(7) Barred enclosures

Guidance §483.450(d)(7)

A bed or play equipment with bars that prevent the client from leaving the bed or voluntarily climbing out of the bed are barred enclosures. The use of such enclosures must be a part of the written IPP and behavioral assessments must clearly state why such an enclosure is necessary, the risks of using the enclosure versus not using it and what less restrictive measures have been tried prior to the implementation of the barred enclosures.

Such devices may not be used in lieu of adequate staffing.

§483.450(e)(1) The facility must not use drugs in doses that interfere with the individual client's daily living activities.

Guidance §483.450(e)(1)

Clients are alert and available for participation in daily living activities.

Some medications administered for medical reasons or to manage behavior may cause drowsiness as a side effect or due to an accumulation of the drug in the client's system. For clients who are observed to be sleeping in chairs during their work day, their programs or recreational times, there should be evidence that the facility staff notified the medical staff and an assessment was performed of the client including their medication regimen. Medical staff should make adjustments to address the issue if indicated.

§483.450(e)(2) Drugs used for control of inappropriate behavior must

Guidance §483.450(e)(2)

The physician and other team members discuss the risks and benefits of the medication to address the target behavior/symptoms, and approve the use of the drug as being consistent with the active treatment program. Decisions about the necessity of the use of drugs to manage inappropriate behavior should be made by the IDT. It is the responsibility of the IDT members to provide the physician with sufficient information regarding the need for a client to receive a drug for inappropriate behavior. The physician will make the ultimate decision to order the use of the drug. The IDT should document any disagreement with the physician's order.

In those instances where a client returns from a physician's visit with an order for an unsolicited drug to manage client's inappropriate behaviors, there must be evidence (e.g. IDT meeting notes or clients record) that the team concurred with the necessity for the order without trying less restrictive measures first and discussed any concerns with the physician.

§483.450(e)(2) be used only as an integral part of the client's individual program plan that is directed specifically towards the reduction of and eventual elimination of the behaviors for which the drugs are employed.

Guidance §483.450(e)(2)

All medications to manage behavior must be integrated into the IPP and the IPP must specify how the specific target behavior for which the medication is prescribed will be reduced or eliminated. This includes medications which are typically used for medical conditions that may be used to manage behavior (e.g. 1. propranolol (Inderal), an antihypertensive used for self-injurious behavior, and 2. carbamazepine (Tegretol), an anticonvulsant, used for aggression).

Drugs for behavior management must not be ordered on a PRN basis for a client. The facility staff must contact the physician to obtain a one-time order if the situation necessities the use of medication. The facility policy must address the maximum number of times a medication can be used as an emergency prior to being incorporated in the IPP, side effects of such medications, and the frequency of re-evaluation of ongoing behavior and its treatment.

Clients or their legal guardian have the right to choose sedation for medical and dental procedures. However, the facility cannot do routine administration of medication for sedation for medical and dental procedures without the agreement/consent of the client or their parent/legal guardian and they must follow the specific orders of the healthcare practitioner who will be providing services to the client. Decisions to order medications prior to medical and dental procedures must be made on an individual basis. Clients who demonstrate severe anxiety around these procedures should be considered for desensitization programs.

§483.450(e)(3) Drugs used for control of inappropriate behavior must not be used until it can be justified that the harmful effects of the behavior clearly outweigh the potentially harmful effects of the drugs.

Guidance §483.450(e)(3)

The risk(s) associated with the drug being used is consistent with the type and severity of the behavior/symptoms it is intended to affect.

At the time the drug was started and incorporated into the IPP, the behaviors were discussed and presented to team members. It was the documented decision of the team that the behaviors were of such a severity that pharmacological intervention was required and the physician was provided with the team information to assist him in his decision to prescribe the medication.

Guidance §483.450(e)(4)

There should be evidence that the direct support staff receive information via the IPP as to the behaviors to be observed, the side effects associated with the medication, the amount and types of documentation required and the communication with clinical staff which is indicated. See 483.430 (e)(1) for training on observations, documentation and communication related to behavior management.

Guidance §483.450(e)(4)

Clients receiving medications to control behavior must be evaluated at least annually for a possible reduction of the medication progressing the client toward final elimination of the drug or lowest possible therapeutic level of the drug. However, evaluation should be done earlier than annually if observations indicate that the client's behavior has improved to the point that reduction may be considered as determined by the IPP, unless otherwise ordered by the client's physician.

§483.450(e)(4) in a carefully monitored program conducted in conjunction with the interdisciplinary team, unless clinical evidence justifies that this is contraindicated.

Guidance §483.450(e)(4)

The IDT is aware of and involved in planning the drug reduction program and participates in its implementation and monitoring.

Progress or regression of the client is monitored and taken into consideration in determining the rate of withdrawal and whether to continue withdrawal.

In determining whether there is clinical contraindication to the annual drug withdrawal, the physician and IDT should consider the client's clinical history, diagnostic/behavioral status, previous reduction/discontinuation attempts, and current regimen effectiveness.

If a client also has a diagnosis of a psychiatric condition that requires a stable level of a psychiatric medication in order to control the symptoms associated with the psychiatric diagnosis, the annual evaluation for reduction of that particular medication for the symptoms of the psychiatric diagnosis would not apply. Documentation in the client's record from their psychiatrist or physician that medication reduction would be contraindicated or that the current level of medications is therapeutic meets the intent of this regulation.

§483.460(a)(1) The facility must ensure the availability of physician services 24 hours a day.

Guidance §483.460(a)(1)

A designated physician must be available via telephone, pager, e-mail or on-site in the facility on a 24 hour per day basis for consultation regarding both emergency and non-emergency medical issues. If the facility employs a fulltime physician, there must be procedures in place for coverage in the absence of the physician from the facility.

If the facility contracts with a community-based physician for 24 hour per day coverage, there must be written arrangements in place to detail the responsibilities of the contract physician regarding direct services to the clients, interactions with the direct support staff and the interactions between the nursing staff of the facility and the contract physician. The contract with the contract physician must delineate the process for coverage when he/she is not available.

Upon interview, the staff should be aware of the procedures they are to follow to contact a physician in the event of an illness or injury. Routinely sending clients to emergent care or the emergency room of a hospital because there are no facility physicians available for consultation is not consistent with the regulations.

Interview and record review verify that the physician is available and responsive 24 hours a day.

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.460(a)(2) The physician must develop, in coordination with licensed nursing personnel, a medical care plan of treatment for a client if the physician determines that an individual client requires 24-hour licensed nursing care.

Guidance §483.460(a)(2)

A medical care plan of treatment is developed for those clients who are either acutely ill and require licensed nursing care and monitoring temporarily on a 24 hour basis or clients whose chronic medical conditions require or indicate 24 hour licensed nursing care and monitoring. The physician determines when 24 hour nursing care is required.

The medical care plan is based upon the orders from the physician for treatments and care and nursing standards of practice. There is evidence in the client's record that the physician and the nursing staff at the facility work together to ensure that the medical care plan is current and appropriate (e.g. changes in physician written orders for care pursuant to observations from the nursing staff and/or direct observations and interactions with the client, and nursing documentation of care).

The fact that a client has a medical care plan in place should not preclude him/her from an active treatment program, except in instances of acute illness where the active treatment program is temporarily suspended. For clients with chronic medical conditions, it may be necessary for their active treatment program to be modified due to the tolerance level of the client or adapted to accommodate medical limitations. However, active treatment must be provided on a continuous basis.

Guidance §483.460(a)(2)

interdisciplinary discussions and the information from the medical care plan is utilized in the development of the IPP objectives.

§483.460(a)(3) The facility must provide or obtain preventive and general care

Guidance §483.460(a)(3)

The facility has procedures in place to ensure that the clients receive general health care services to assure optimal levels of wellness. General health care services include assessment and treatment of acute and chronic complaints or situations; teaching relevant heath care principles to staff and clients; and periodic surveillance of the health status of the clients.

As a result of clinical assessment, referrals are made for specialized assessment and tests. Facility health care staff follow-up to ensure the assessments are done and the findings incorporated into the medical care plan and/or the IPP.

The facility must have arrangements in place to provide routine or episodic laboratory, and radiology services for the clients if not provided in-house or through the clients physician. There must be a written agreement that specifies the responsibilities of the facility and outside provider. (See §483.410(a)).

Preventive health care services include screening procedures designed to identify health concerns and initiate treatment as early as possible. The facility should have a health prevention program in place and follow the plan to address those screenings that the facility will perform periodically that are relevant to all clients, and those screenings associated with a particular gender or age or vulnerability.

Physician refusal to perform a test, such as a pap smear, must be consistent with guidelines for clients, per the local standard in the community.

If the facility has a physician that refuses to provide preventative healthcare based on the client's level of functioning, medical staff at the facility should meet with and consult with this physician in order to ensure that clients receive the same health services as persons living in the local community.

Current recommended screenings for men and women can be accessed at the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC).

§483.460(a)(3) as well as annual physical examinations of each client that at a minimum include the following:

§483.460(a)(3)(i) Evaluation of vision and hearing;

Guidance §483.460(a)(3)(i)

Information relevant to the client's ability to see and hear is a critical component in the development of appropriate active treatment strategies.

All clients, including clients who are non-verbal, should have evidence in his/her record that they receive an annual evaluation of their vision and hearing which includes a screening as a minimum, follow-up examination as indicated by the screen and timely referrals as indicated by the examination. Screening is a gross assessment of the client's vision and hearing and usually does not include a measurement of acuity. Examinations are conducted to follow-up on issues noted in the screening and are conducted by qualified professionals.

Clients who appear to have vision or hearing problems or the staff indicate that they have vision or hearing problems and no accommodations have been made. The annual vision and hearing evaluation verifies that clients appearing to have vision/hearing issues or if staff indicate that a client has vision/hearing issues that these issues have been/are being addressed.

If a client's vision or hearing can only be assessed through examinations conducted by specialists

(e.g., comprehensive ophthalmological examinations and evoked response audiometry (ERA)), these tests need not be conducted yearly, but rather upon the specialist's expressed recommendations. During discussions at the annual IPP review the team reviews information from the health professional, speech and hearing professional, and direct support staff and makes referrals back to the specialist if indicated.

The facility should have in place a system for the identification, reporting, investigation, and control of Tuberculosis (TB) in order to prevent its transmission within the facility. This system should include:

1) Policies and procedures for screening new employees, new clients, and other people who interact on a consistent basis with clients residing in the facility when those persons are volunteers or professional staff hired or utilized directly by the facility (such as volunteers and contract professional staff);

2) Policies and procedures for subsequent screening for clients and for employees, and other people (such as volunteers and contract professional staff) who interact on a consistent basis with clients residing in the facility when those persons are volunteers or professional staff hired or utilized directly by the facility per State Health Department requirements;

3) Policies and procedures for reporting positive TB test results to the appropriate State authorities;

4) Policies for the investigative procedures, per the local health department, that would be put in place should a client or staff person test positive for TB;

5) Policies and procedures for treatment and precautions to be used with clients who display TB symptoms, as substantiated by positive skin testing or x-ray results; and

6) Policies and procedures for the evaluation of the effectiveness of the surveillance system.

When one or more clients or staff display TB symptoms, as substantiated by positive skin testing or x-ray results, they do not return to work until a physician has cleared them to return to work.

Refer to the applicable State Nurse Practice Act or applicable Board of Medicine Practice Act to determine the extent that the nurse practitioner or physician assistant may provide physician services.

§483.460(b)(1) The establishment of each newly admitted client's initial individual program plan as required by §456.380 of this chapter that specifies plan of care requirements for ICFs; and

Guidance §483.460(b)(1)

During the admission process, which takes place from the time the client is admitted to the facility to the time the initial IPP is completed, a physician is required to ensure that an assessment of the client's medical status is thoroughly considered and incorporated into the IPP planning process by the team as it develops the IPP. The physician's input may be by means of written reports, evaluations, and recommendations.

The physician (consistent with Medicaid Utilization Control regulations at §456.380) must evaluate the client at the time of admission to identify all diagnoses and complaints, provide orders for all medications and treatments and provide recommendations for restorative and rehabilitative services.

§456.380 requires that a physician conduct this initial assessment therefore, it may not be done by a physician extender (e.g., Physician assistant or Advanced Practice Registered Nurse).

§483.460(b)(2) If appropriate, physicians must participate in the review and update of an individual program plan as part of the interdisciplinary team process either in person or through written report to the interdisciplinary team.

Guidance §483.460(b)(2)

The need for physician participation on an individual client's IPP team is determined by the medical needs of the client. How the physician participates (whether through written report, telephone consultation, attendance at the meeting, etc.) is to be left to the discretion of the facility. In instances where a client has no overriding medical issues, the nurse of the facility can represent the medical component on the IDT process or consult with the appropriate physician and share the information with the team. However, in situations where a client's medical condition is unstable/fragile to the extent that it impacts the training/work that may be planned, the physician must participate in providing guidance on the types and extent of programs that would be appropriate considering the client's physical/medical limitations.

If a client is noted to be having difficulty participating in the objectives set forth in his/her IPP due to serious medical concerns, review the input that was provided by the physician into the development of the plan and whether the IPP team requested such input.

§483.460(c) The facility must provide clients with nursing services in accordance with their needs.

Guidance §483.460(c)

The nurse responds in a timely manner to all medical concerns reported, conducts assessments as indicated, effects timely and appropriate interventions, communicates with the client's physicians and other health care professionals as indicated, provides treatments as ordered, monitors client progress following illness or injury and provides training to clients and/or staff as indicated.

§483.460(c)(1) Participation as appropriate in the development, review, and update of an individual program plan as part of the interdisciplinary team process;

Guidance §483.460(c)(1)

For those clients who have had an uneventful year medically and have no medical/health concerns at the time of the IPP meeting the facility nurse may submit a summary report to the IDT unless the IDT determines that his/her attendance is necessary. An eventful year medically would include a year which required unplanned hospital admissions or in which medical issues necessitated treatment for a prolonged or continuing period. However when a client has had an eventful year medically or current medical/health concerns, this could have an impact on their objectives and accordingly the nurse should participate in the IDT discussion directly.

A direct physical examination means a visual review of the body as well as examination/assessment of body systems. This includes observations made through non-verbal communication (including visual, tactile, nonverbal gestures, grimaces, etc.) which may be an indication that there is a potential for further assessment and/or monitoring. A paper review of the client's medical record and health statistics does not meet the intent of the regulation for a direct physical examination.

Guidance §483.460(c)(3)(ii)

The term "licensed nurse", for purposes of these guidelines, means a registered nurse, a licensed practical nurse or a licensed vocational nurse currently licensed by the State in which the facility is located. The nurse must operate consistent with the requirements of the applicable Nurse Practice Act. If this direct physical examination is done by a physician, it is not necessary for the nurse to repeat the exam.

If during the course of a calendar year, there were three quarterly examinations conducted by a licensed nurse and in the fourth quarter the annual physical examination was performed by a physician, the intent of this requirement is met without the nurse performing an additional examination.

Health and wellness are actively promoted, problems are attended to before they negatively impact the client's health and wellness, and steps are taken to prevent the recurrence of such problems while responding promptly to client's needs.

Client health care complaints that are reported either directly by the client or by the direct care staff are addressed promptly by the nursing staff. Client health care complaints and response by nursing staff are documented in the client's record.

Nursing staff actively participates in periodic discussions with client and staff to promote health habits in the areas of diet, exercise and non-smoking.

Based upon individual training needs, the nursing staff provides training to individuals in areas such as medications, family planning, prevention of sexually transmitted diseases, control of other infectious diseases, self-monitoring of health status and self-prevention of health problems, etc. The nurses may train clients directly on their objectives or train other staff to do this training as appropriate.

Nursing staff should actively participate in surveillance and reporting of communicable diseases per the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) guidelines and applicable state laws. They should teach and promote infection control techniques such as hand washing by clients and staff and should be making periodic observations to ensure that such good infection control techniques are consistently utilized.

Guidance §483.460(c)(5)(iii)

Nursing staff must train and ensure direct support staff demonstrate competency in detecting signs and symptoms of illness, injury, or change in the client's health baseline (e.g. responsiveness, fatigue, irritability, constipation, diarrhea, dehydration, confusion, unexplained weight loss, changes in endurance and changes in respiratory function).

Staff is responsive to health care needs or injuries of clients and receives instruction and support during temporary illness of clients.

If not, review staff training records to determine whether training was provided periodically to the involved employee. Interview direct care staff to determine their level of understanding regarding the signs and symptoms of illness that are to be reported to the medical staff. The records of clients with recent hospitalizations verify that staff detected and reported relevant symptoms promptly.

§483.460(d)(2) The facility must employ or arrange for licensed nursing services sufficient to care for clients' health needs including those clients with medical care plans.

Guidance §483.460(d)(2)

The facility provides for nursing services based on the health needs and conditions of clients residing there. Examples include:

1) physician ordered treatments that require the skills of a licensed nurse;
2) preventive screenings ;
3) assessment and intervention;
4) direct physical examination and examination of body systems;
5) teaching; and
6) advocacy for the medical services needed by the client.

Client health care needs are met in a timely manner (within 24 hours) by the available nursing staff.

If nurses who do not have experience in the care of persons with intellectual disabilities are employed by the facility, they should be provided with a formal orientation period and on-going educational opportunities to increase their understanding of the client population.

When one or more clients in the facility has an active medical care plan, there must be 24 hour nursing services available to come to the facility as needed to make skilled assessments and interventions.

§483.460(d)(4) If the facility utilizes only licensed practical or vocational nurses to provide health services, it must have a formal arrangement with a registered nurse to be available for verbal or onsite consultation to the licensed practical or vocational nurse.

Guidance §483.460(d)(4)

The facility must have written arrangements with a registered nurse (RN) to provide consultation in those instances where LPNs/LVNs provide all the direct nursing care for the clients. Verify that the agreement requires the RN to respond promptly to all calls from the LPN/LVN and to come on-site to the facility if necessary. The facility must also ensure registered nurse back-up when the primary registered nurse consultant is unavailable (vacations, etc.). Review documentation in the client records to confirm that the LPNs/LVNs of the facility are consulting the registered nurse consultant when indicated and that she/he responds promptly to such calls.

§483.460(d)(5) Non- licensed nursing personnel who work with clients under a medical care plan must do so under the supervision of licensed persons.

The work of any direct support staff (caring for clients with a medical care plan) is directed by an onsite licensed nurse). The nurse evaluates the care provided by the staff as needed, but at least each shift. If observations of care indicate that direct care staff are not providing care as directed by the medical care plan, then review the supervision provided by the nursing staff.

Guidance §483.460(e)(1)

It is expected that the clients will obtain dental services (both diagnostic and treatment) from community dentists whenever possible. In some instances, there may be clients residing in the facility who are physically unable to travel to the community for services. The facility must secure dental services (both diagnostic and treatment) for these clients either through an in-house program, which is part of the organizational and administrative structure of the facility, or through a written agreement with an outside dental service to come into the facility to provide such services.

Guidance §483.460(e)(2)

Reports of dental care may be submitted to the IDT for inclusion in their discussions surrounding either development of the plan or update to the plan. This includes procedures a client may have had or be having during the plan development period, such as root canal or singular extractions. Guidance §483.460(i)

The facility either has an onsite pharmacy or has formal arrangements in place for the provision of routine, unanticipated, or emergency drugs. There are no instances where a client does not receive needed medications due to the unavailability of drugs.

§483.460(j)(1) A pharmacist with input from the interdisciplinary team must review the drug regimen of each client at least quarterly.

Guidance §483.460(j)(1)

The primary function of the pharmacist during the quarterly drug review is to identify possible drug interactions, check for evidence of any side effects associated with the drug usage, determine if laboratory results associated with the drug are within normal limits and verify that the facility is administering the medication appropriately and to comment upon the efficacy of the drug use (e.g. blood sugar controlled, blood pressure within normal limits). In the case of drugs used to manage behavior, the pharmacist may need information from the IDT to determine efficacy. See Appendix PP, Indicators for Surveyor Assessment of the Performance of Drug Regimen Reviews, to the State Operations Manual (Pharmaceutical Service Requirements in Long Term Care Facilities).

W364

§483.460(j)(3) The pharmacist must prepare a record of each client's drug regimen reviews and the facility must maintain that record.

§483.460(j)(5) As appropriate the pharmacist must participate in the development, implementation, and review of each client's individual program plan either in person or through written report to the interdisciplinary team.

Guidance §483.460(j)(5)

Pharmacist participation on the IDT is at the request of the team. It would not be necessary for the pharmacist to routinely attend all team meetings when the client is on a stable drug regimen that does not appear to be influencing his/her active treatment programs. Pharmacist participation may be appropriate, in situations such as assisting the IDT develop the most effective training programs for when the client is in an evolving situation with their medication.

For example:

- A client begins a new or more complex drug regimen;
- The physician orders off-label use of a medication;
- Frequent changes in the drug regimen are affecting IPP implementation.

§483.460(k)(2) All drugs, including those that are self-administered, are administered without error;

Guidance §483.460(k)(2)

A medication error is an observed discrepancy during the medication pass between what is ordered and what is administered.

This also applies to self-administered medications.

For small facilities (16 beds or less), the medication administration pass will encompass a total of eight (8) drug doses. The observations should be split between two separate drug passes 4/4 (one in the morning and one in the late afternoon or early evening). The medications observed during the observations may or may not be for clients in the survey sample. Any concerns regarding a medication that is about to be administered should be brought to the attention of the person administering the medication. The record of observation should be reconciled with the most current signed physician's orders.

For large facilities (17 or more beds) with either single or multiple buildings, the medication administration pass will encompass a total of 12 doses. The observations should be split between two separate passes 6/6 (one in the morning and one in late afternoon or early evening). Any concerns regarding a medication that is about to be administered should be brought to the attention of the person administering the medication. The record of observation should be reconciled with the most current signed physician's orders.

§483.460(k)(4) Clients are taught to administer their own medications if the interdisciplinary team determines that self-administration of medications is an appropriate objective, and if the physician does not specify otherwise;

Guidance §483.460(k)(4)

The IDT decision that a self-administration program is appropriate, as is the case for all formal training objectives, must be based upon accurate, current, valid assessment of the client's skills and potential. The determination as to the appropriateness of a self-administration program must never be made singularly on the client's diagnosis or current functional abilities.

For clients assessed to be inappropriate for a self-administration program, but determined by the IDT to possess the capacity to functionally, cognitively, emotionally or developmentally benefit from participation in the drug administration process, it is expected that the facility will provide opportunities for the client to participate in the medication administration process under direct supervision. This participation can include but is not limited to, identifying the medication taken, reaching/grasping a cup of water during the process and placing oral medications in the mouth, etc.

Guidance §483.460(l)(2)

Drugs that are self-administered do not have to be double locked. The purpose for the double locking is to limit access to scheduled drugs. Since the client is generally the only one who has access to his/her drug supply (with perhaps the exception of a licensed nurse or whoever has overall responsibility for medication administration at the facility and a facility's Director of Nursing Services, who may have access to all of the facility's drug supplies), there is no need to further limit access.

Guidance §483.460(n)(1)

If the facility performs laboratory services, it must have a current, valid Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendment (CLIA) certificate for the types of tests it is performing.

For the purposes of this regulation, a "laboratory service or test" is defined as any examination or analysis of materials derived from the human body for purposes of providing information for the diagnosis, prevention, or treatment of any disease or impairment of, or the assessment of the health of human beings.

W394

(Rev. 158, Issued: 09-09-16, Effective: 09-09-16, Implementation: 09-09-16)

§483.460(n)(2) If the laboratory chooses to refer specimens for testing to another laboratory, the referral laboratory must be certified in the appropriate specialties and subspecialties of service in accordance with the requirements of part 493 of this chapter.

Guidance §483.460(n)(2)

A facility performing any laboratory service or test must have applied to CMS, and received a Certificate of Waiver, Certificate of Compliance, or Certificate of Accreditation. An application for a Certificate of Waiver may be made if the facility performs only those tests on the waived list. A complete list of waived tests can be accessed at the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

If the facility performs any test, not appearing on the waived list, a Certificate of Compliance or Certificate of Accreditation is required. An appropriate CLIA certificate is required regardless of the frequency with which the laboratory services or tests are conducted. When no tests are performed, a CLIA certificate is not needed. Facilities only collecting specimens and not performing testing do not need a certificate.

A not-for-profit, a state, or local government organization may have one certificate covering all the facilities it operates (e.g., all the separately certified residences which fall under its governing body), if no more than a total of 15 types of waived or moderately complex laboratory tests are used. This exception applies only to laboratories performing limited public health testing. See State Operations Manual (SOM) 6008. Each location where a laboratory tests are performed must file a separate application to be separately certified unless the laboratory meets one if the exceptions outlined at 42CFR493.35(b), 493.443(b), or 493.55(b).

Any laboratory located in a state that has a CMS-approved laboratory program is exempt from CLIA certification. Currently there are two states with approved programs: Washington and New York. New York has a partial exemption; therefore, if the laboratory is located in New York, contact the New York State Agency to determine if the exemption applies.

Guidance §§483.470(a)(1)

Clients of grossly different ages, functional levels, and/or social needs should not be housed together unless all of the following documentation supports the placement:

- Assessment;
- Client program plan;
- Staff documentation of client response to training programs; and
- QIDP notes.

W408

(v) In all facilities initially certified, or in buildings constructed or with major renovations or conversions on or after October 3, 1988, have walls that extend from floor to ceiling.

Guidance §483.470(b)(l)(v)

If a facility was initially certified on or after October 3, 1988 and/or is under renovations or conversions, they must have walls that extend floor to ceiling.

(2) If a bedroom is below grade level, it must have a window that--

(i) Is usable as a second means of escape by client(s) occupying the room; and

(ii) Is no more than 44 inches (measured to the window sill) above the floor unless the facility is surveyed under the Health Care Occupancy Chapter of the Life Safety Code, in which case the window must be no more than 36 inches (measured to the window sill) above the floor.

Guidance §483.470(b)(2)

The intent of the regulation is to prohibit the housing of clients in basements that are entirely below grade. Clients may be housed on the lower level of housing (e.g. a bi-level house), provided the window height requirements are met and the window is of sufficient size to be used as a means of escape.

W416

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(3) The survey agency may grant a variance from the limit of four clients per room only if a physician who is a member of the interdisciplinary team and who is a qualified intellectual disabilities professional--

(i) Certifies that each client to be placed in a bedroom housing more than four persons is so severely medically impaired as to require direct and continuous monitoring during sleeping hours; and

(ii) Documents the reason why housing in a room of only four or fewer persons would not be medically feasible.

Guidance §483.470(b)(3)

The medical care plan for each client housed in a room with more than four clients should indicate the need for continuous monitoring. The medical care plan will include:

- the physician certification that the client is severely medically impaired and requires direct and continuous monitoring during sleeping hours; and the reason why this housing arrangement for fewer than four people would not be medically feasible.

(4) The facility must provide each client with—

(i) A separate bed of proper size and height for the convenience of the client;

Guidance §483.470(b)(4)(i)

The client's preference, chronological age, and physical and medical needs are the determining factors in bed size and height.

W418

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(iv) Functional furniture, appropriate to the client's needs,

Guidance §483.470(b)(4)(iv)

Client preferences and program needs should be considered in furniture selection. For clients with physical disabilities, furniture is adapted to accommodate the client's physical challenges and enable the client to use the furniture with minimal support.

W421

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

and individual closet space in the client's bedroom with clothes racks and shelves accessible to the client.

Guidance §483.470(b)(4)(iv)

Closets should have enough space for a reasonable amount of the current season's clothing.

Clients who use wheelchairs or have other physical challenges can reach the racks and shelves in their closets.

The facility is permitted either to provide the client with an individualized closet or with a designated area in a shared closet. The use of central clothing bins in a facility clothing room, in the absence of required client closet space in the bedroom, is not an acceptable practice.

(c) Standard: Storage space in bedrooms.

The facility must provide—

W422

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(1) Space for equipment for daily out-of-bed activity for all clients who are not yet mobile, except those who have a short-term illness or those few clients for whom out-of-bed activity is a threat to health and safety; and

Guidance §483.470(c)(1)

Sufficient space that permits the use of wheelchairs, walkers and other adaptive equipment should be provided within the bedroom.

W423

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(2) Suitable storage space, accessible to clients, for personal possessions, such as TVs, radios, prosthetic equipment and clothing.

Guidance §483.470(c)(2)

Each client should have storage in their bedroom for their personal belongings. Clients should have free access to this storage without the assistance of staff. If it is necessary for clients' personal belongings to be locked due to the behavior of other clients, the client must still be provided free access to his own possessions (See W137 for requirements for locked areas).

(d) Standard: Client bathrooms

The facility must—

W424

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(1) Provide toilet and bathing facilities appropriate in number, size, and design to meet the needs of the clients;

Guidance §483.470(d)(1)

In a home setting, the toilet facilities need to be of sufficient number to meet the needs of the client without prolonged delay. There must be enough toilets in the living units to meet the program needs of the clients at any given time, as well as provide for intermediate toileting needs of the clients living in the unit.

In a home setting, it may be unrealistic to say a client would never have to wait for a shower or bath or to brush his/her teeth.

Bathrooms and fixtures must be adapted to accommodate clients with physical disabilities.

W425

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(2) Provide for individual privacy in toilets, bathtubs, and showers; and

Guidance §483.470(d)(2)

A bathroom containing multiple toilets, showers or bathtubs, must have doors, curtains, or some other means of protecting the client from view when fully or partially unclothed.

Clients should not be able to be seen through the door or window by passersby when they are using the bathrooms.

Client privacy does not preclude the assistance provided by facility staff when necessitated by the client's condition.

W426

(3) In areas of the facility where clients who have not been trained to regulate water temperature are exposed to hot water, ensure that the temperature of the water does not exceed 110□Fahrenheit.

(e) Standard: Heating and ventilation.

(1) Each client bedroom in the facility must have--

W427

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(See also W415)

W428

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(ii) Direct outside ventilation by means of windows, air conditioning, or mechanical ventilation.

(2) The facility must—

W429

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(i) Maintain the temperature and humidity within a normal comfort range by heating, air conditioning or other means; and

Guidance §483.470(e)(2)(i)

A "normal comfort range" in most instances is defined as not going below a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit or exceeding a temperature of 80 degrees Fahrenheit in facilities in most geographic areas of the country.

In extremely hot or extremely cold weather, precautions are taken by the facility to protect the clients, particularly those who are medically compromised, from ill effects of the temperature.

W430

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

The facility must have—

W431

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(1) Floors that have a resilient, nonabrasive, and slip-resistant surface.

W432

§483.470(f)(2) Nonabrasive carpeting, if the area used by clients is carpeted and serves clients who lie on the floor or ambulate with parts of their bodies, other than feet, touching the floor; and

§483.470(f)(3) Exposed floor surfaces and floor coverings that promote mobility in areas used by clients,

W433

W434

and promote maintenance of sanitary conditions.

§483.470(g) Standard: Space and Equipment

The facility must--

W435

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(1) Provide sufficient space and equipment in dining, living, health services, recreation, and program areas (including adequately equipped and sound treated areas for hearing and other evaluations if they are conducted in the facility) to enable staff to provide clients with needed services, as required by this subpart and as identified in each client's individual program plan.

Guidance§483.470(g)(1)

Staff and clients must have the space, materials and equipment needed to implement formal and informal active treatment programs.

There must be sufficient space to accommodate group activities, including groups with clients who use wheelchairs.

Recreational supplies, equipment, and materials are available and reflect the interests, physical abilities and chronological age of the clients.

W436

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(2) Furnish, maintain in good repair, and teach clients to use and to make informed choices about the use of dentures, eyeglasses, hearing and other communications aids, braces, and other devices identified by the interdisciplinary team as needed by the client.

Guidance §483.470(g)(2)

The term "furnish" means that the facility is responsible for obtaining or purchasing these items once an assessment has identified the need and is responsible for making any necessary arrangements for the client to receive them. Clients' personal funds should not be used for these items since this is a covered service under the ICF/IID benefit.

The term "maintain in good repair" means that the facility is responsible for ensuring that these items are kept in good working order, and is responsible for any resulting expense that may be incurred.

Programs must be in place, when identified by assessment and determined by the ID team, to teach clients about the use and care for their equipment to the extent of their capabilities.

W437

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(3) Provide adequate clean linen and dirty linen storage areas.

Guidance §483.470(g)(3)

Clean linen must be is separated from dirty linen and stored in a manner which prevents contamination.

Linen soiled with bodily fluids must be stored separately and in a manner which protects clients from exposure to possible infectious sources.

A bedroom hamper can be an acceptable dirty linen storage "area" if kept odor free and consistent with the infection control requirements at §483.470(1).

W438

(Rev., 175, Issued: 12-22-17, Effective: 12-22-17, Implementation: 12-22-17)

Life Safety Code NFPA 101, 2000 Edition (LSC):

Chapter 32/33: Expects that all clients living in that unit are capable of self-evacuation during an emergency. This self evacuation should be practiced under varying conditions including various times of the day or night and in various weather conditions.

Chapter 18/19: Requires drills which simulate emergency situations which familiarize facility staff with emergency actions they may be required to perform. The general emphasis of these sections of the code is upon training of the staff and not upon providing practice for the client. Drills should be practiced under varying conditions including various times of the day or night and in various weather conditions.

Guidance §483.470(i)(1)(i)

For facilities under Chapter 18/19 of the LSC

Staff should be able to verbalize the proper procedures to be followed during emergency drills. Staff training records should document that all staff have received training on emergency drills and evacuations.

W443

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

Guidance §483.470(i)(1)(ii)

Staff on all shifts are able to express familiarity with the use of fire extinguisher, alarms, and any other safety features in the facility.

Guidance §483.470(i)(1)(iii)

See also W448. The plan(s) must be revised as needed and must be based upon analysis completed under W448.

(2) The facility must--

W445

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(i) Actually evacuate clients during at least one drill each year on each shift;

Guidance §483.470(i)(2)(i)

All clients totally evacuate the building at least once per year per shift, regardless of the occupancy chapter under which the building falls.

All facilities, regardless of their size require actual evacuation. "Actually evacuate", as used in this standard, applies to all clients. The drills are conducted not only to rehearse the clients and staff for a fire emergency (see §483.470(i)(2)(v)), but for other disasters such as hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, etc. Such disasters would require the entire occupancy to be evacuated, and, therefore, the actual evacuation must be practiced, as required.

Clients with physical or medical disabilities may require special procedures for evacuation, taking into account equipment or staff that must be maintained for the client's care at all times. The facility's evacuation plan should:

- identify such clients;
- clearly delineate any special evacuation procedures for those clients.

Staff should be familiar with the facility's special evacuation procedures when working with clients who are in need of unique provisions.

The documentation for each evacuation drill includes an analysis of:

- The timeliness of the evacuation;
- Any difficulties observed during the drill;
- Investigates the cause of the difficulties; and
- Develops a plan to ensure the difficulties will not reoccur.

(v) During fire drills, clients may be evacuated to a safe area in facilities certified under the Health Care Occupancies Chapter of the Life Safety Code.

Guidance §483.470(i)(2)(v)

The Life Safety Code NFPA 101, 2000 Edition at 3.3.167 defines safe location as "a location remote or separated from the effects of a fire so that such effects no longer pose a threat."

W451

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(3) Facilities must meet the requirements of paragraph (i)(1) and (2) of this section for any live-in and relief staff they utilize.

Guidance §483.470(i)(3)

In the case of live-in staff, drills must occur quarterly. Typically, live-in staff can be found in facilities that fall under Chapter 32/33 of the LSC code. Drills should be held at varying times of the day and night for clients to practice evacuation including morning, afternoon, evening and the middle of the night.

(j) Standard: Fire protection.

Guidance §483.470(j)

These standards are covered by the Life Safety Code (LSC) survey. The facility must meet the appropriate chapter of the Life Safety Code, 2000 edition.

When surveying an ICF/IID for compliance with the LSC, it is first necessary to determine whether the facility will be surveyed under Health Care (HC) or Board and Care (BC) occupancy.

- If clients receive nursing services, or if the provider elects to use Health Care, the facility should be surveyed as a Health Care Facility under Chapter 18 or 19 of the LSC, as appropriate.

- If clients receive personal care and protective oversight but not continuing nursing services, the facility is to be surveyed under Board and Care and the following three steps should be followed:

  1) Determine the size (16 or less = small; 17 or more = large);

2) Determine the Evacuation Difficulty (PROMPT, SLOW, or IMPRACTICAL) using Appendix F of the fire safety evaluation system for board and care facilities (FSES/BC); and

3) Survey the building using one of two methods:

a. The prescriptive requirements of Chapters 32 or 33; or

b. The FSES/BC, Appendix G.

(1) General. Except as otherwise provided in this section—

(i) The facility must meet the applicable provisions of either the Health Care Occupancies Chapters or the Residential Board and Care Occupancies Chapter of the 2000 edition of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association. The Director of the Office of the Federal Register has approved the NFPA 101®2000 edition of the Life Safety Code, issued January 14, 2000, for incorporation by reference in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552(a) and 1 CFR part 51. A copy of the Code is available for inspection at the CMS Information Resource Center, 7500 Security Boulevard, Baltimore, MD or at the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). For information on the availability of this material at NARA, call 202–741–6030, or go to: http://www.archives.gov/federal_register/code_of_federal_regulations/ibr_locations.html. Copies may be obtained from the National Fire Protection Association, 1 Batterymarch Park, Quincy, MA 02269. If any changes in this edition of the Code are incorporated by reference, CMS will publish notice in the Federal Register to announce the changes.

(ii) Chapter 19.3.6.3.2, exception number 2 of the adopted LSC does not apply to a facility.

Guidance §483.470(j)(1)(ii)

Roller latches are prohibited on corridor doors as a latching device.

(2) The State survey agency may apply a single chapter of the LSC to the entire facility or may apply different chapters to different buildings or parts of buildings as permitted by the LSC.

(3) A facility that meets the LSC definition of a residential board and care occupancy must have its evacuation capability evaluated in accordance with the Evacuation Difficulty Index of the Fire Safety Evaluation System for Board and Care facilities (FSES/BC).

Guidance §483.470(j)(3)

The evacuation capability of residents is determined using Chapter 6 of NFPA 101A, 2001 edition.

4) If CMS finds that the State has a fire and safety code imposed by State law that adequately protects a facility's clients, CMS may allow the State survey agency to apply the State's fire and safety code instead of the LSC.

5) Beginning March 13, 2006, a facility must be in compliance with Chapter 19.2.9, Emergency Lighting.

Guidance §483.470(j)(5)

Battery powered emergency lighting must last at least 90 minutes.

6) Beginning March 13, 2006, Chapter 19.3.6.3.2, exception number 2 does not apply to a facility.

Guidance §483.470(j)(6)

Roller latches are prohibited on corridor doors as a latching device.

(7) Facilities that meet the LSC definition of a health care occupancy.

(i) After consideration of State survey agency recommendations, CMS may waive, for appropriate periods, specific provisions of the Life Safety Code if the following requirements are met:

Guidance §483.470(j)(7)(i)

Waivers may be granted only to facilities that meet the Life Safety Code definition of a Health Care Occupancy. Waivers are not granted to facilities that met the requirements of a Residential Board and Care Occupancy.

Waivers are recommended by the State Survey Agency and approved by the Regional Office.

(A) The waiver would not adversely affect the health and safety of the clients.

B) Rigid application of specific provisions would result in an unreasonable hardship for the facility.

ii) Notwithstanding any provisions of the 2000 edition of the Life Safety Code to the contrary, a facility may install alcohol-based hand rub dispensers if—

(A) Use of alcohol-based hand rub dispensers does not conflict with any State or local codes that prohibit or otherwise restrict the placement of alcohol-based hand rub dispensers in health care facilities;

(B) The dispensers are installed in a manner that minimizes leaks and spills that could lead to falls;

(C) The dispensers are installed in a manner that adequately protects against inappropriate access;

D) The dispensers are installed in accordance with chapter 18.3.2.7 or chapter 19.3.2.7 of the 2000 edition of the Life Safety Code, as amended by NFPA Temporary Interim Amendment 00–1(101), issued by the Standards Council of the National Fire Protection Association on April 15, 2004. The Director of the Office of the Federal Register has approved NFPA Temporary Interim Amendment 00–1(101) for incorporation by reference in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552(a) and 1 CFR part 51. A copy of the amendment is available for inspection at the CMS Information Resource Center, 7500 Security Boulevard, Baltimore, MD and at the Office of the Federal Register, 800 North Capitol Street NW., Suite 700, Washington, DC. Copies may be obtained from the National Fire Protection Association, 1 Batterymarch Park, Quincy, MA 02269; and

(E) The dispensers are maintained in accordance with dispenser manufacturer guidelines

The facility must—

W452

§483.470(k)(1) Use lead-free paint inside the facility; and

W453

§483.470(k)(2) Remove or cover interior paint or plaster containing lead so that it is not accessible to clients.

§483.470(l) Standard: Infection Control

W454

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(1) The facility must provide a sanitary environment to avoid sources and transmission of infections.

Guidance §483.470(l)(1)

The facility is clean and staff have eliminated opportunities for cross-contamination of infections. Food is stored, prepared, distributed, and served in a sanitary manner to prevent food borne illness.

W455

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

There must be an active program for the prevention, control, and investigation of infection and communicable diseases.

Guidance §483.470(l)(1)

Facilities maintain an ongoing surveillance program of communicable disease control and investigation of infections and an active training program that ensures the clients served receive adequate prevention of transmission information and skills, according to needs.

The facility's infection control program should include procedures for:

- identification of the extent of infestation or infection;
- protection of clients;
- treatment of clients;
- notification of family or legal guardian;
- reporting to the health department as indicated; and
- continued follow-up to resolution.

Both the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and the CDC have specific requirements regarding human immuno-deficiency virus (HIV), TB, and hepatitis precautions. These requirements should be incorporated into the facility's practices when relevant to the clients residing in the facility. Concerns about OSHA violations should be referred to OSHA.

W456

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(2) The facility must implement successful corrective action in affected problem areas.

W457

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(3) The facility must maintain a record of incidents and corrective actions related to infections.

W458

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

(4) The facility must prohibit employees with symptoms or signs of a communicable disease from direct contact with clients and their food.

Guidance §483.470(l)(4)

The facility should have and implement a policy that clearly delineates those signs and symptoms for which they will restrict staff access to clients or to clients' food.

§483.480 Condition of participation: Dietetic services

(a) Standard: Food and nutrition services

W460

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.480(a)(1) Each client must receive a nourishing, well balanced, diet including modified and specially prescribed diets.

Guidance §483.480(a)(1)

"Well balanced diets" are defined as diets that contain a variety of foods from the food groups currently recommended by the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics (AND).

"Modified and specially-prescribed" diets are defined as diets that are altered in any way to enable the client to eat (e.g. food that is chopped, pureed) or diets that are intended to correct or prevent a nutritional deficiency or health problem.

Refer to W463 and W474 regarding modified and specially prescribed diets.

The following may be indicators of or may lead to compromised nutritional status:

- Unplanned significant weight gain or loss;
- Fever/infection;
- Diarrhea;
- Chronic disease;
- Chewing and Swallowing problems;
- Teeth and gum diseases;
- Excessive use of laxatives;
- Abnormal laboratory values;
- Brittle, dry hair;
- Ridged or spoon shaped nails;
- Dry flaky skin; and

- Unexplained changed in mood such as general fatigue, apathy, irritability, lack of concentration.

If one or more of these indicators are present, determine the facility's response through observation, interview, and record review.

Surveyors should assure the facility is responsive to client food allergies and the potential for adverse food/drug interactions. If surveyors suspects these may exist, investigate further.

Examples of facility responsiveness to allergies and food/drug interactions include, but are not limited to:

- Clients on long term anticonvulsant drug regimens (e.g., phenobarbital, phenytoin, primidone) are periodically monitored per facility policy for decreased serum levels of folic acid and vitamin D;

- Therapeutic doses of nutrients are provided to decrease the likelihood of anemia and prevent decreased bone density, etc.; and

- Fiber and fluids are increased in the diet of clients to decrease the likelihood of constipation.

Guidance §483.470(a)(1)

Clients of grossly different ages, functional levels, and/or social needs should not be housed together unless all of the following documentation support the placement:

- Assessment;
- Client program plan;
- Staff documentation of client response to training programs; and
- QIDP notes.

§483.480(a)(2) A qualified dietitian must be employed either full-time, part-time, or on a consultant basis at the facility's discretion.

Guidance §483.480(a)(2)

The facility employs a registered dietitian either on a part-time, full-time or on a consultant basis.

W462

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.480(a)(3) If a qualified dietitian is not employed full-time, the facility must designate a person to serve as the director of food services.

Guidance §483.480(a)(3)

Where the facility does not have a full-time qualified dietitian, verify that the director of food services coordinates with a dietitian to assure the nutritional adequacy of meals and snacks.

The food service director coordinates with the part-time or consultant dietitian to develop client meal plans and monitor client nutritional status.

The qualifications of the food service director may be dictated by facility policy or by state law, if applicable.

In small group home settings where the staff and clients plan and prepare meals cooperatively, there may not be a designated food services director. In these cases, the consultant or part-time dietitian would meet with the available home staff to ensure adequacy of menus and diets.

§483.480(a)(5) Foods proposed for use as a primary reinforcement of adaptive behavior are evaluated in light of the client's nutritional status and needs.

Guidance §483.480(a)(5)

This regulation addresses the use of food in shaping positive adaptive behavior. Where clients have specialized nutritional needs, these needs must be taken into consideration.

When food is used as a primary reinforcement of behavior for a client who has a dietary restriction, these foods should be consistent with the foods allowed by the prescribed diet.

Food used as a reinforcement must be part of a behavior plan approved by the IDT and consistent with nutritional parameters for that client. For example, a client with diabetes does not receive concentrated sweets as a reinforcement.

Meal times may be flexible and accommodate a variety of activities (e.g. holiday and weekend activities). Clients should be offered the opportunity of three meals every day, but may be given the choice of not participating in a meal due to their schedule or preference.

For example, a client wakes up late on a Saturday morning and decides to have brunch.

Guidance §483.480(b)(2)(iii)

The term "form", as used in this requirement, refers to food consistency (e.g., pureed, chopped, ground, etc.). Food that is ground, chopped or pureed is based on assessed client need, and only to the extent required.

Food consistency modifications due to an acute medical or dental condition are temporary and; client's food consistency is upgraded at the soonest possible time. Clients with chronic medical or dental conditions are periodically reviewed and at least annually for the possibility of an upgrade in food consistency.

Client assessments must document the justification for modified texture of the client's diet.

Guidance §483.480(b)(2)(iv)

"Appropriate utensils" refers to eating utensils and adaptive eating equipment that enable clients to eat as independently as possible in accordance with their highest functional level.

Commonly used utensils (fork, knife, and spoon) appropriate to the food being consumed are provided to all clients except those using adaptive equipment instead. Clients should be afforded the opportunity to use forks, spoons, and knives as indicated by the food served.

Utensils must be in good condition, clean, allow portion sizes appropriate to the client's prescribed diet and meet the client's needs.

Guidance §483.480(b)(3)

For purposes of this standard, "dining areas" mean discrete eating areas located outside of bedrooms, established, furnished, and equipped for the purpose of eating meals.

When a client is not eating in a designated dining area, there must be either a medical rationale or this must be an isolated instance when the client has a personal reason to eat in another area, such as a television area to watch his or her favorite program.

Interview with the client should confirm that this is not routine, but is for a particular isolated reason.

- Double suction cups or other devices to anchor dishes on a table or tray for clients with major coordination problems;
- Rocking one-handed knife-fork or knife-spoon for a client with the use of only one hand;
- Built-up or extended handles or silverware for those with problems of grasp or range of motion;
- Plate guards or plates with raised rims to provide a surface against which the client with a physical disability can push food onto a fork or a spoon;
- Flexible drinking straws;
- Spoon bent to a 90 degree angle at the bowl or a swivel spoon to assist a client without normal wrist motions; and
- Any other adaptive device deemed by the team as needed by the client to eat more independently.

§483.480(d)(4) to assure that each client eats in a manner consistent with his or her developmental level; and

Guidance §483.480(d)(4)

The intent of this regulation is to promote the acquisition of skills that lead to greater independence in eating.

Clients should be actively encouraged to eat independently to the extent possible and in accordance with their assessed abilities.

Clients should receive training to develop independent eating skills consistent with their developmental potential as identified through the CFA.

Clients learn skills in accordance with their functional levels. Skills may include:

- Use of utensils;
- Meal preparation;
- Socialization during meals;
- Family style dining; and
- Ordering food in restaurants.

Clients' eating programs are implemented in accordance with their training objectives.

To the maximum extent possible, staff model appropriate mealtime behavior and conversation by sitting at the table with clients, and when possible, eating meals with clients.

§483.480(d)(5) Ensure that each client eats in an upright position, unless otherwise specified by the interdisciplinary team or a physician.

Guidance §483.480(d)(5)

If a client eats in any position other than an upright position, the physician should document the medical necessity for the position, and/or the IPP should include the program plan to teach the client the physical skill necessary for eating upright.

This applies to all clients, including those fed by nasogastric tube or gastrostomy tube. The IPP should identify the most appropriate position for the client to be positioned during mealtime, in relation to the placement of the food contents.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Hi, Ms. Evans. Thanks for being here today. You doing all right today?

A I'm good. How are you?

Q Good.

Could you state your full name for us, for the record.

A Sandra Beth Evans.

Q Okay.

And, as I understand it, you no longer work for the facility?

A That's correct. I retired in May of 2021.

Q I'm sorry, ma'am. Let me turn my volume up.

You retired when?

A May of 2021.

Q Okay. And retired after how many years there?

A Thirty-six years.

Q Okay. All at the BHDC?

A Yes. That's right.

Q All right. And, over the years, what positions did you hold at BHDC?
A When I started, in 1995, I was an instructor. I trained clients.
Then I became a -- they call it a QMRP, so you led team meetings for your clients. Then I became a team leader. And then my final job was residential services director.
Q Okay. And from what years did you serve as residential services director?
A I can't be exactly sure on the years. I would say I was in that possibly three years. I'm unclear on it.
Q Three or more years prior to your retirement?
A Yes.
Q And that was the position that you held at the time of David's Cains' death?
A Yes. That's correct.
Q Which was June 13th of 2020?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
Did you hold any other -- did you perform any other functions at the facility other than as residential services director at that time?
A Yes. I was a maltreatment investigator.
Q Okay. And how long had you been a maltreatment investigator?

A I don't remember the exact date from when I took the course and qualified. Perhaps ten years, but I can't say for certainty.
Q Perhaps ten year prior to David's death?
A Yes.
Q Were you the only licensed maltreatment investigator at the BHDC?
A No.
Q Okay. How many others were there?
A I'm not a hundred percent certain. Possibly six or seven. But I don't -- I'm not a hundred percent sure.
Q And, in your time as a licensed maltreatment investigator, approximately how many investigations did you conduct?
A Investigations, again, because I've been retired for a year, I'm a little sketchy on some of these details.
Ten, possibly 15; and that's strictly a guess.
Q Okay. Would all of those have been investigations whereby you're investigating whether a fellow employee of the BHDC committed maltreatment?
A Yes.
Q Okay. None of them would have been investigations into maltreatment, client-on-client maltreatment, for instance?

A No. No, I did do -- I apologize. I did do one investigation that involved client-on-client.
Q Okay. But the rest of them were staff-on-client investigations?
A Yes.
Q And you estimate between ten to 14 of those?
A That's an approximate guess, yes.
Q Okay. Over a period of approximately ten years?
A Approximately. Approximately, yes.
Q Sure.
A I'm sorry, I -- I haven't had access to my files in the last year. So I can't give you very specific information.
Q I understand that.
Were you able to review anything prior to -- in preparation for this deposition?
A I came in early this morning to read through my report and the report that was sent to Little Rock at that time.
Q Okay. And what reports are those? When you say your report, what is that report called, officially?
A It's called an adult maltreatment investigation report.
Q Okay.
A And then that includes statements from the staff.

And then I also reviewed the report that our superintendent sends to Little Rock summarizing the incident.

Q And what is --

A An IRIS report.

Q I'm sorry?

A It's called an IRIS report.

Q Irish?

A IRIS, I-R-I-S. Uh-huh.

Q Okay. So your report is called -- I'm sorry. Say that one more time.

A Adult maltreatment investigation report.

Q Okay. And then the report that Mr. Gonyea sends to Little Rock -- and by Little Rock, you mean the director of DDS?

A Yes.

Q And that report is called an IRIS report?

A I believe they -- his report may be -- we report it as an IRIS, an incident reporting system that all incidents have to be reported on.

I'm looking for the copy of his report to give you an exact title. I can't find it in here. But he does send -- he reviews my report and then sends another report to DHS. It's called a DHS incident report.

Q DHS incident report?

A Yes.
Q So it's not called an IRIS report?
A No. I'm sorry.
Q What would an IRIS report be?
A An IRIS report is any incident on campus of any type of serious nature, is a report that one of the admin assistants completes and sends to central office, DDS.
Q Would there have been an IRIS report for this incident with Mr. Cains?
A Yes.
Q Who would have done the IRIS report?
A Lynn Spain. She is an administrative assistant at BHDC. She completes those and then sends it while we're working on the investigation.
Q Okay. And, again, she sends that to Little Rock?
A Yes. I believe that's correct.
Q And do you have all three of those reports in front of you right now?
A I'm looking through here. I -- yes. She has BHDC IRIS alert and report.
Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, do you have these documents?

MR. COLLINS: Not in front of me right now, no.

MR. GILLISPIE: Do you know if these, all three of these, were produced, Eric?

MR. COLLINS: I'm not sure about the IRIS report. I thought I had seen it in the production. The maltreatment wouldn't be produced. What was the third one?

MR. GILLISPIE: So there's the adult maltreatment report, that's Ms. Evans's report.

There's the DHS incident report, that's Mr. Gonyea's report. And the IRIS report which was done by Ms. Lynn Spain.

MR. COLLINS: I'll check into the DHS incident report. I'm pretty sure I've seen the IRIS report and the incident report in there. I'll double check it.

The maltreatment report is protected by statute, so there's, you know, manners for you to request that. But we can't give that without you (inaudible).

MR. GILLISPIE: So she has that in front of her right now. She's using it for this deposition. I really would need to be able to see what she's looking at to question her about it.

Is there a way I can get a copy of it for today's purposes under an agreed, you know -- we can -- I'll agree on the record to some sort of basic protective order preventing it from being used outside of this litigation or made public.

MR. COLLINS: One second. Let me read the statute.

I don't think we can. But, if you want to seek a leave from the Claims Commission, which I'm not going to oppose, but I'm not going to put (inaudible) --

MR. GILLISPIE: I know that, for child maltreatment reports, the victim, even in cases where it's unsubstantiated, I believe the victim can get a copy of -- in fact, I know they can. I've gotten them.

You can request a copy of child maltreatment investigative reports. Even when they're unsubstantiated.

MR. COLLINS: You're client's not the victim; nor is your client victim's guardian, since the victim has died.

MR. GILLISPIE: But, since she has the -- you think that since she has letters of guardianship, she stands in the shoes and could request that on his behalf.

It's kind of like it's always the parents that request it anyways. The child can't request anything.

MR. COLLINS: In that instance, the parents are the guardian. She's not the guardian of anybody at the moment.

Again, if you request it from the Claims Commission, request that authority, I'm not going to object to it. I'm not going to fight it.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay.

MR. COLLINS: I'm not going to put myself out there and say, hey, it's fine.

MR. GILLISPIE: Well, can we just agree that, if I get that document and that document leads to additional questions for Ms. Evans, that we can reopen her deposition?

It may not. But --

MR. COLLINS: I'm completely fine with that.

I'll just reiterate I'm not Mrs. Evans' attorney.

MR. GILLISPIE: Sure.

But you won't object to --

MR. COLLINS: No, I will not.

MR. GILLISPIE: And you won't object to me subpoena -- and, Ms. Evans, I probably won't have to do that. I probably won't have to do that; but, just in case. Okay.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Tell me about the training that you had to go through to become a licensed maltreatment investigator, Ms. Evans.

A I attended a -- I believe it was a five-day training program at the Conway HDC.

They had contracted out with trainers. It was five days of lecture and reading; and then you were tested at the end. And you had to pass the test in order to get licensed.

Q Okay.

A And you received a certificate, yes.

Q All right.

As soon as you got that certificate, approximately ten years ago, you started serving in that role in addition to whatever your full-time job title was?

A Yes.

Q And, again, at the time of Mr. Cains' death, that was residential services director?

A Yes.

Q And of those approximately ten to 15 -- or ten to 14, I think you said one was client-on-client.

On those approximately ten to 14 maltreatment investigations that you conducted involving allegations of the staff-on-client maltreatment, have you ever substantiated maltreatment in any of those?

A Yes.

Q Yes?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Approximately how many of them? Do you know?

A I can't say with any accuracy.

Q Well, how many can you specifically remember substantiating?

A I remember probably five. And that -- again, that's a guess. Because I don't have access to my files.

Q Okay. But five is, you think it's around that number?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And I'm not going to get into confidential information about who was involved.

Well, I will ask this. Other than this, the investigation that you did in this case for this incident, did you ever conduct a maltreatment investigation involving Tyler Mattson other than this?

A I do not recall. I'm sorry.

Q Okay.
How about Ms. Jones, Mandy Amy Jones?
A I don't recall whether I did or not. It -- it doesn't spring to mind.
Q Okay. How would you, if you wanted to determine how many of your investigations led to substantiated maltreatment, how would you determine that?
A I would have to -- I kept files in office, as the services director, with all of my investigations.
I would have to go through all of those to look and see how many.
Q Okay. So there exists a file that --
A Yes.
Q -- is still there at the facility that would answer that question?
A It should still be there.
Q Okay.
A They may have moved it to a different location. I don't know.
MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, would it be possible for me to get a redacted copy of that just so I can -- redacted copy of those that provides specific information to me, mainly substantiated or unsubstantiated, and whether Ms. Campos, Ms. Jones, or Mr. Mattson were involved?

MR. COLLINS: I'll have to confer with my supervisors on that one. I don't see an issue with giving you information pertaining to that. I'm not sure if I can give the documents up.

MR. GILLISPIE: So that would maybe need to be something that the claims -- I would need to ask the Claims Commission for?

MR. COLLINS: For the actual documents, even if redacted, yes.

MR. GILLISPIE: Even if redacted?

MR. COLLINS: Yeah. I don't necessarily see an issue with saying, hey, we had x amount of investigations.

MR. GILLISPIE: Uh-huh.

MR. COLLINS: This --

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah.

MR. COLLINS: -- (inaudible) ten of them, five of --

MR. GILLISPIE: Right.

So all I want to know is how many investigations Ms. Evans conducted involving staff-on-client, how many of those were substantiated, and finally how many of those involved one of these three staff members.

MR. COLLINS: Okay.
Can you send it to me as an interrogatory?
MR. GILLISPIE: Yes, I can.
MR. COLLINS: Okay.
THE WITNESS: I will say, Mr. Collins, the superintendent's office would also have those records.
MR. COLLINS: Yeah. I imagine we can find them.
THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.
MR. GILLISPIE: Okay.
If we can go off the record just a moment, please. I'm going to write that down real quick, Eric.
Go off the record for just a moment, please.
(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Ms. Evans, tell me about your job as residential services director.
A That job involved overseeing all client living areas and all client training areas.
Q Did it not also involve overseeing all direct care

staff?
A Yes. Yes.
Q So you would have been the immediate supervisor for Ms. Amy Jones at the time of this incident?
A No. Under my position, there would have been team leaders and then direct care supervisors.
And they would directly supervise the direct care staff.
Q Okay. But, basically, the residential services director oversees the direct care of the clients that is administered by these shift leaders, team leaders, and RTCs, direct care staff, such as Mr. Mattson, Ms. Jones, and Ms. Campos?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
And then who would you have reported to directly in that position?
A The superintendent.
Q Mr. Gonyea?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
In serving in that role, you would have been very familiar with the policies and procedures that the facility and the staff at the facility were required to follow regarding physical restraints of the clients;

correct?
A Yes.
Q And is it fair to say that these policies and procedures, these rules regarding physical restraints of the clients, are things that the director of residential services would have been responsible for imparting to the people under you, the direct care staff, making sure they know what the rules are?
A It would actually come from our staff development people and from those direct line supervisors in the areas and the program supervisors who are the highest level of direct care supervisors.
Q Okay. Hypothetically, take a situation where you learn that a direct care staff member is reasonably restraining a client. What would your role be as the director of residential services?
Would you have any obligation to do anything in that event?
A Yes. I would look into the incidents, gather data on it, analyze it. Talk to the supervisors, perhaps talk to that staff person, and possibly (inaudible) a recommendation for that person.
Q Okay. And did you have the authority to control how direct care staff interact with the clients?
A Yes; although, understanding that I would not be in every living area all the time.

Q Right.
A A lot of the information went from me to their supervisors to impart down to the actual direct care staff.
Q All right.
Are you familiar with the, what's been produced to us, the state operations manual? Bates Stamp 1607.
This is a guidance or these are the regulations that have to be met in order to be compliant with Medicaid.
A Yes.
Q Are you familiar with those?
A Yes. It's been awhile since I've seen them; but, yes.
Q Sure. I'm not going to quiz you on --
A Yeah.
Q I'm not going to make you, you know, quote anything.
But I just want to go though a few of these that are relevant to what happened to Mr. Cains and secure your agreement that these are, in fact, policies and regulations that the facility has to abide by.
You are familiar with what these are? You would agree with me, just in general, that these regulations are applicable to BHDC and that these are policies and procedures that the facility is required to comply with?

A Yes. I assume those are like Office of Long-Term Care and federal regulations.
Q I believe they are federal regulations.
For the format they were produced to me in, it's called a State Operations Manual; but, yes.
MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, this is Bates Stamp 1658.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q And I'm going to show it to you as best I can, Ms. Evans.
Regulation Section 483.420(A)(6) states that a facility must ensure that clients are free from unnecessary physical restraints.
Do you see that? I highlighted that. There's other parts of the sentence, but that's -- for our purposes, that's what's relevant. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Okay. You would agree that that's a regulation that BHDC must comply with; right?
A Yes.
Q Next page, Bates Stamp 1698, and this is Regulation Section 483.430(E)(2).
States that staff is to receive training in the following areas. And those areas include use of accurate procedures regarding restraints and use of least restrictive interventions.

Use of least restrictive interventions. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And you would agree that those, that is also a regulation that BHDC must comply with?

A Yes.

Q All right. Same exhibit. This page is Bates Stamped 1753. This is Regulation Section 483.450(b)(1)(l). And this states that all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. You see that?

MR. COLLINS: I'm going to object to the form of that question. I think it's misstating the document as presented.

MR. GILLISPIE: What part of this am I misstating? I'll try to --

MR. COLLINS: I believe, the way you worded the question, you're stating that that is what the regulation, using your terminology, says. That's what the guidance says below the regulation. The regulation is above it.

So, if you look up and down, Guidance Section 483.450(e)(l) --

MR. GILLISPIE: Right.

MR. COLLINS: -- I just want to specify that what you're reading is, in fact, the guidance. It's not the regulation itself.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay. I see what you mean.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q The regulation says specify all facility-approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior.

Do you see that one in bold, ma'am?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And we're all in agreement that is the regulation; correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And what I take that to mean is that any type of intervention that is to be used to manage client behavior must be clearly explained and stated in the facility's policy.

Would you agree with my interpretation?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And the part that I highlighted that Mr. Collins correctly pointed out is the guidance paragraph.

It says that all interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in facility are clearly stated and described in its policy.

You agree that I'm reading that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Move to page Bates Stamp 1754, this is Regulation Section 483.450(b)(1), Roman numeral -- well, three I's. So 483.450(b)(1)(III).

This regulation states that a facility must ensure, prior to the use of more restrictive techniques, that the clients' record documents that programs incorporating the use of less intrusive or more positive techniques have been tried systematically and demonstrated to be ineffective.

And that's the part in bold. Can you -- and I'm sorry, ma'am, if you --

A You can go up just a little bit. Oh, in bold. Okay. Yes, I see what you're saying.

Q Okay. And you'd agree that that's a regulation that BHDS must follow?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

COURT REPORTER: Josh, feel free to share your screen, if you need to, if you have these documents in PDF form.

MR. GILLISPIE: Well, I do have these documents in PDF form.

(Brief discussion off the record.)

MR. GILLISPIE: Why don't we go off the record for just a second.

MR. COLLINS: Okay.

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Ms. Evans, you should be able to see the document I'm referring to now on the screen. Can you?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

So we already went over this regulation here, 483.450(b)(1)(III). But, under guidance, do you see this part that I've highlighted that says, in emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible? Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And would you agree with that, with that guidance? That, in those situations, BHDC and staff are required to choose the least restrictive technique possible?

A Yes.

Q All right.

Bates Stamp 1755, this is Regulation 483.450(b)(1)(IV)(b). The use of physical restraints.

The guidance here states that physical restraint is defined as any manual hold or mechanical device that the client can not remove easily and which restricts the free movement of normal functioning of or normal access to a portion or portions of the clients' body.

Examples of mechanical devices may include arm splints and mittens. Policies and procedures of a facility must address the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility.

Would you agree with that?

A Yes.

Q Policies and procedures must address the persons who apply such restraints. Would you agree with that?

A Yes.

Q They must address the parameters for duration of application. Would you agree with that?

A Yes.

Q And they must address the methods that ensure the health and safety of clients while in restraints. Would you agree with that?

A I can't quite see that bottom line.

Q I'm sorry.

A That's okay. Yes.

Q Okay.

And then, finally, the specific training required for staff allowed to apply such restraints.

Would you agree that, that this guidance, is a regulation that the facility must comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Moving on to Bates Stamp 1763, this is Regulation 483.450(d)(1).

The facility may employ physical restraint only as an integral part of an individual program plan that is intended to lead to less restrictive means of managing and eliminating the behavior for which the restraint is applied.

Do you agree that I'm reading that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And the guidance here, same regulation, states that the use of physical restraint is specified within the IPP.

So would you agree with me that BHDC is required to Arkansas

State Claims Commission
FEB 16 2023
RECEIVED

specify the use of physical restraint within a client's IPP?

A Yes. That would likely also be included as part of a behavior treatment program which is part of the IPP.

Q But you would agree that any physical restraint that is potentially to be used upon a client should be clearly stated in policies and in the client's IPP?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

The guidance on this regulation also says that the plan must address the specific type of behavior to be managed by this plan. Do you see that?

And then, under four, the plan; and, again, this is referring to IPPs. But it's saying that the plan, and for our purposes, the IPP must address the type of physical restraint. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree that is a regulation that the BHDC must comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Same regulation down at the bottom here. This is a continuation of the same regulation.

The beginning of the regulation says the facility may employ physical restraint only; and so this is the continuation of that.

Only as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury.

So I'll repeat that. Only as an emergency measure but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury.

Would you agree I'm reading that accurately?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree that is a regulation BHDC must comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And the guidance there goes on to say that physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which the client has not exhibiting before or not identified in the functional analysis of that client's behavior or are harming other people or themselves.

A Yes.

Q Would you agree that is a rule that BHDC must abide by?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Moving on to page, in this same exhibit, Bates Stamp 1766, this is Regulation Section 483.450(d)(2)(I). And this has to do with how long a physical restraint can be used.

The guidance here, moving down, that I'm concerned with is this part. The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others.

Would you agree with that?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Moving on to Regulation 483.450(d)(3), the facility must not issue orders for restraint on a stating or as-needed basis.

A Correct.

Q You see that?

A Yes.

Q And do you understand that is a rule that BHDC was required to comply with?

A Right. All restraint is considered an emergency use. We don't have standing order for mechanical restraint.

Q And I'm just asking if you agree that this is the rule.

A Yes.

Q Okay. You agree that standing orders or -- I'm sorry.

You agree that restraint on a standing or as-needed basis is forbidden?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Moving on to 483.450(d)(4), would you agree that this regulation states that a client must be released from a physical restraint as quickly as possible?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And you'd agree that is a regulation BHDC must comply with?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

This is the last one for this exhibit. 483.450(d)(5), restraints must be designed and used so as not to cause physical injury to the client.

A Yes.

Q And you would agree that is a regulation that BHDC and its staff are required to follow?

A Yes.

Q That is a rule, that any restraint used must be designed not to cause -- specifically designed not to cause physical injury; correct?

A Correct.

MR. GILLISPIE: This is Exhibit 1. And we'll e-mail that to you, Cris.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 1 and is attached hereto.)

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm going to pull up Exhibit 2 now that we have this nifty share screen option.

Is everybody seeing DHS policy 3011-D?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay.

Eric, you can see it? Y'all can't see all my files, can you?

MR. COLLINS: No.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay. All right.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Are you familiar with this policy, Ms. Evans?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And you'd agree with me that this is the DHS Division of Developmental Disability Services Policy No. 3011-D Behavior Management; correct?

A Yes.

Q And you would agree that this policy is also something that BHDC is required to comply with; correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay. Behavior management, this section states that behavior management -- this is Paragraph Three.

Behavior management, as covered by this policy, behavior management, as covered by this policy, serves as a guide to ensure that an individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive, and/or present a danger to the individual or others, are managed with the least restrictive method. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And, again, you would agree that, at BHDC, only the least restrictive method can be used on a client?

A Yes.

Q Least restrictive for the situation; correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

Moving to Page Five of this document, this is D, Restraint, you see where it says that IDT consideration will be given to parent/guardian, notification of use of restraint, and address it in the behavior program?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And then, under that, in Section One where I've highlighted here, it says approved methods of intervention must be in the individual's behavior program.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree with that?

A I don't know that -- it could have been. I can't -- I can't recall.
Q Well, I'm just asking do you --
A Yeah.
Q -- agree that approved methods of physical restraint or personal restraint to be used on a client must be in the individual's program, in their IPP?
I think we've already gone over that.
A Yeah. Yeah. Yes.
Q Okay. So you would agree with that?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
Page Seven, conditions for use of behavior programs. So this regulation requires that, for a behavior program or an intervention can be used, a former behavior program will be developed by the IDT written by a licensed psychological professor and approved by a phycologist.
It will include the following elements; number three being a thorough description of each step of the program to include duration and intensity of specific procedures, the methods of monitoring and analyzing the process, and special precautions that will be taken.
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q You would say that that is a policy that BHDC must follow?

A Yes.
Q And then, in B, the IPP or behavior program will include a description of all procedures already attempted. And then the side effects and risks, if any, of the intervention in comparison with those of allowing the maladaptive behavior to continue.
A Yes.
Q Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And you agree that, according to this policy, an IPP is required to include that information?
A Yes. They would do a risk-versus-risk analysis.
Q Okay.
That's all the questions I have for this exhibit.
MR. GILLISPIE: It will be Exhibit 2.
(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 2 and is attached hereto.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Moving on to Exhibit 3, Ms. Evans, do you recognize this? This is a Booneville policy, Policy I-D-4 Documentation and Response to Maladaptive Behaviors.
A Yes.
Q Do you recognize this?

A Yes.
Q In this first paragraph, you see it says personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure.
Maladaptive behaviors include but are not limited to behaviors that result in or have the potential to result in injury to self or others or the destruction of property.
Am I reading that correctly?
A Yes.
Q Okay.

MR. COLLINS: Josh, what is the Bates stamp on that document?

MR. GILLISPIE: 4348.

MR. COLLINS: Was that produced in the procedures that were in place at the time of the incident?

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah. This one, the version is from 2018.

MR. COLLINS: Okay. I was just looking at the wrong version. I wanted to make sure on that one. Thank you.

MR. GILLISPIE: Yeah. The other one was after the incident, so I'm only using this one.

MR. COLLINS: Gotcha. Thank you.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Emergency use of restraint. Emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors.
The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations.
Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q And you'd agree that is a policy, a BHDC policy?
A Yes.
Q That the least restrictive procedure, that only the least restrictive procedure for the least amount of time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behavior can be used; correct?
A Correct.
Q Page Four of this document, Section Six, you would agree -- will you take a look at Section Six just for a second? Let me know when you've had a chance to look at it.
A Yes.
Q Okay. Would you agree that this is a list of approved restraint procedures for emergencies, for emergency situations?

A Yes. But I don't believe wrist restraints have been used up here in years.
Q Okay. And I'm actually not even going to ask you about that.
A Okay.
Q I'm concerned with a --
A Uh-huh.
Q -- personal restraint; which is defined as an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb.
A Yes.
Q Did I read that correctly?
A Yes.
Q Yes?
A Yes.
Q I'm sorry. It's --
A That's okay.
Q No, no.
Okay. So this is the list of approved procedures to be utilized for emergency restraint; correct?
A Yes. With the approval or notification of a (inaudible) RP.
Q So this defines a personal restraint as an emergency procedure limiting the movement by the holding of a hand or limb.

You would agree that's how the BHDC policy defines personal restraint; correct?

A Yes.

Q Okay.

And are you aware of any other BHDC written policy where personal restraint is defined in a different way?

A I don't member. I couldn't say with certainty.

Q Well, as you sit here today, can you point to any other policy or any other approved list of personal or any other approved list of restraints that can be used in emergency situations or -- well, let me break that down into two questions.

Ms. Evans, as you sit here today --

A Yes.

Q -- can you point to any other policy, whether it be a BHDC policy or a DDS policy or whatever, any other policy or document that lists the types of restraints that can be used in an emergency situation?

A No.

Q Okay.

The second part of the question is, as you sit here today, can you tell me about or point to or identify any other definition of personal restraint other than what you see here?

A No.

Q Okay. And nowhere in any of the policies or documents, that you know of, is personal restraint defined in any other way but by limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm done with this document. That will be Exhibit 3.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 3 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Okay.

Ms. Evans, can you point to any policy or any document that allows for clients to be held down on the ground during an emergency incident?
A I don't believe anything specifically says that. But, often times, the client will go down to the ground on their own during restraint.
Q Uh-huh. And, in this case, the case of Mr. Cains, Tyler Mattson, who we deposed a couple of weeks ago, he testified under oath that, during this restraint, he by himself, held Mr. Cains on the ground by force with both hands for two minutes.

Then Mandy Jones joined in the restraint and that it lasted another two or three minutes where the two of them held him down on the ground, holding different parts of his body against his will, for two or three more minutes.

And, finally, Mr. Mattson testified that Ms. Ryann Campos then joined in causing all three of them to be holding him on the ground against his -- holding him, pinned to the ground, for another one to two minutes.

And that's prior to him -- according to Mr. Mattson, that's up to seven minutes where they were holding him down on the ground prior to him going into cardiac arrest and choking or aspirating.

Please tell me where, BHDC policy, would it describe that type of a personal restraint as an allowed use of restraint.

Where would that be authorized?

A I don't know that it would be in a policy; because every personal restraint can be different, depending on what the client is doing.

Q Well, Mr. Mattson also said that that was a type of -- in fact, everybody I've talked to, just about, has said that's a type of restraint that was common.

That holding clients on the ground, while they're on the ground, holding them down there on the ground until they calm down, was a common thing.

Do you disagree with that?

MR. COLLINS: I'm going to object to this line of questioning.

I don't remember everything Mr. Mattson said. I doubt you remember. You're obviously paraphrasing.

We have his deposition. I feel, if you're going to ask her a question about his testimony, you can show her his testimony so she has verbatim what he said, and then ask her a question about what he said.

MR. GILLISPIE: Well, I, you know, appreciate the speaking objection, Eric.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q But I want to know if -- assuming that I'm -- Ms. Evans, assuming that I'm accurately stating Mr. Mattson's testimony, is it your position that what he described, which is approximately seven minutes of holding Mr. Cains down on the ground, is it your position that is an appropriate personal restraint? A personal restraint that is allowed under the rules?

A It is. But I would disagree with the time, based on my investigation report.

My investigation said that Tyler held him for approximately one minute. Mandy Jones came in and helped for another one minute. So, according to my report, the time was much less than seven minutes.

Q Okay. Even if it was less than seven minutes, where is that allowed in the policies?
We've already established and you've already agreed with me that the types of physical restraints to be used are to be clearly indicated, clearly stated.
And we talked about the definition of personal restraints, can be used in emergency situations as holding a hand or limb.

MR. COLLINS: I'm going to object to the form of the question.

I feel you're misstating earlier testimony. It was clear from the procedure, she said those were treatment plan policies; and that's differentiated from emergency policies.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Go ahead and answer the question, Ms. Evans.
A Okay. Could you repeat it, please?
Q Yes.
Now, I can show you the pages from Mr. Mattson's deposition where he gives me these times. And, you know two minutes for him, two to three minutes for him and Mandy, one to two minutes for all three of them.
And those are his words. I didn't -- I'm not making that up. But I can show you those pages. But -- A I (inaudible) --

Q -- even if --
A I'm basing my information on the information they gave me directly after the incident.
Q Okay.
A I have statements from them directly after the incident.
Q And so, based on the form you were given directly after the incident, how long did the three of them have him pinned to the ground prior to him going into cardiac arrest?
A I don't know that he did actually go into cardiac arrest. I was not made aware of that fact. However --
Q Prior to him vomiting and choking.
A Tyler said he held him in restraint for one minute. Amy, when Amy cane in, she assisted for about one minute. Ryann Campos, she did not give a timeframe.

But Tyler had also stated in his statement directly after the incident that David fell over onto the floor.
Q Uh-huh.
A That's why they were on the floor.
Q Okay. And it's your position that -- even though he said something completely different to me, let's go with the numbers you're saying he gave you.

A Uh-huh.
Q It's your position that, again, the amount of time you're saying was reported to you after the incident, it's your position that doing that, what they did, holding him there on the ground --
A Uh-huh.
Q -- one with his hands on him, the other holding his legs, somebody holding either his arm or his head, depending on who you ask, your position is that is allowed? That's an allowed restraint? That's an appropriate restraint?
A Yes. If the client is fighting him.
Q And where can I find that? Where does it say that that is allowed if the client is fighting?
A Well, that's the only reason you would be using restraint, is if the client is aggressive. You wouldn't use it if the client was not aggressive.
Q I'm asking, have you been given any document, any training, do you know of any document, any training manual or anything provided by the state or by BHDC itself that specifically says, yeah, you can hold a client to the ground if they're having a behavior incident?
A Yes. We receive nonviolent crisis intervention training when you first begin work. And then you get periodic retrainings on that process.

Q Okay.
A And both -- all three of those people were up to date on their retraining.
Q And you're saying that the NCI training teaches what they did here in this case with Mr. Cains?
A If that's what the situation calls for.
If the client falls to the ground fighting you, then you would go to the ground with them.
Q You would go to the ground with him? Why would you not back up and give the client some space to try to calm down?
A You can do that.
Q If the client's on the ground --
A Yes, you can do that.
Q I'm sorry?
A You can do that if you need -- if you feel it's necessary.
Q Well, wouldn't you say that would be a less restrictive option?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And they didn't do that here though. Tyler went to the ground with him immediately and held him there and then two others joined in; correct?
A Yes.

Q And at no point did anybody, you know, get up and kind of leave him there on the ground to collect himself and calm down, did they?
A Did not appear to.
Q And wouldn't you agree with me then that that would have been a less restrictive option that could have been attempted here; correct?
A Possibly.
Q Okay.
So why, specifically, did you find no fault on the part of any of these folks?
A I felt that their handling of the situation did not rise to the level of maltreatment or abuse.
Q Just in a vacuum, hypothetically, would an unreasonable personal restraint used on a client at BHDC rise to the level of maltreatment?
A I don't understand the term unreasonable.
Q Well, let me ask it this way.
When I say unreasonable, I mean a restraint that was not the least restrictive option available.
A I would say, if a client is being aggressive and attempting to hit the staff, then the use of personal restraint would be appropriate.
Q That's not what I asked. That's not what I asked.
A Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: Cris, could you repeat my question to her, please? My last question?

COURT REPORTER: I believe you said, when I say unreasonable, is it the least restrictive option available.

MR. GILLISPIE: Okay. I needed a reminder.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q So I'll ask the question again, ma'am.

A Okay.

Q If a staff member uses as physical personal restraint such as holding the client on the ground when there was a less restrictive option, does that rise to the level of maltreatment, in your opinion?

A I would not qualify it as maltreatment. I would qualify it as inappropriate use.

Q Because we've, ad nauseam, established that only the least restrictive option possible is allowed to be used; right?

A Yes.

Q So you'd agree that, if a restraint is used that is more than the least restrictive possible in the situation is used, that would, at the very least, be a violation of policy, if not maltreatment; right?

A It could be considered a violation of policy requiring retraining, yes.

Q Okay. And, you know, I think that you'd agree with me, well, you already have agreed with me, that what happened here with these three folks was not the least restrictive thing that could have been done, given the circumstances; correct?
A Correct.
Q Okay.
MR. GILLISPIE: Let me go off the record for just a moment, please. Take five.
(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Ms. Evans, the 9-1-1 policy, at the time, as I understand it, was that there was a 9-1-1 policy at BHDC that dictated that nonmedical staff in emergency medical situations were to first contact medical staff.
And then, if 9-1-1 needed to be called, that had to be done by medical staff; is that correct?
A I don't recall that policy exactly, so I couldn't say with certainty.
Q Okay. Let me grab it.
MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, let me try to find it in the produced discovery. I have a physical copy of it here but I think I know where it is.

MR. COLLINS: Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: All right. Y'all see that?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. GILLISPIE: This is First Aid Guidelines. So this is BHDC Policy IV-B-10, First Aid Guidelines. I'm sorry. I apologize. Just a second. This is the current policy.

I'm just going to hold it up here. This is First Aid Guidelines, Version 12-29-19, Bates Stamped 4423.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q I'm going to read from it to you, Ms. Evans.

A Okay.

Q Paragraph Two. In all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected either to clients or staff, a call to the medical department should be made.

This should be the first call so medical staff can respond immediately to the situation. A call to medical at 1422 should be made and the following information should be given; callers name and title, victim information.

And then it says medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate.

Are you saying you're not familiar, you don't recall that policy?

A I do -- I do now that you're reading it to me, yes. Yes.

Q And I know that you don't make these policies. I get that. It's not your fault.

But do you happen to know, do you have any information as to why this policy was in place? This policy that only medical staff can call 9-1-1?

A I do not.

Q Do you know who came up with the policy? Was it Mr. Gonyea? Was it someone else?

A I would assume, possibly, the medical department. But I don't know for sure.

Q Have you ever had a discussion with anybody about this policy other than Mr. Collins?

Have you ever had a discussion with anybody about this policy before?

A No. Not that I recall.

Q You don't recall ever having staff come and complain to you about not being able to call 9-1-1 in emergency situations?

A I can't say with certainty.

Q Okay.
A They may have. I can't say for sure.
Q All right. That's fine. That's kind of all I wanted to know about this. You know, it's not your policy. I get it. I just wanted to -- if you happen to have some additional information about it, I just wanted to know.
A No.
Q So moving on to the investigation itself -- I'm sorry.
Do you see the document here that I'm showing you that says physicians orders?
A Yes.
MR. GILLISPIE: This is going to be our next exhibit.
Will this be six, Cris?
MR. GRELLNER: Five.
MR. GILLISPIE: Five? It's either five or six.
COURT REPORTER: I would say five; but I'm honestly not clear on what four is.
MR. GILLISPIE: I think four is going to be the First Aid Guidelines.
And then this will be five. These are the physicians orders.

COURT REPORTER: Okay.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 4 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Ms. Evans, were you aware yourself that Mr. Cains was on [redacted]

A Yes.

Q And, at the time of his death, there was a [redacted]

A Yes.

Q Okay. And would you agree with me that this is something that the staff who restrained him needed to know about and were required to take into consideration?

A Yes.

Q And would you agree with me that -- well, you investigated it, so you know that this whole thing happened right after lunch; right?

A Yes.

Q Yes?

A Yes. Yes.

Q And so you'd agree with me then that the fact that they used this restraint which we've already established was not the least restrictive available, you would agree with me that the fact that he was on these [redacted] makes that even a greater violation of policy; correct?

A My understanding is, when they held him in restraint, they held him on his side rather than putting pressure on his stomach area.

It's also why they followed him into the bathroom after he finished lunch, to make sure he did not vomit up his food.

Q I appreciate that, ma'am. But, you know, this -- that's not what I'm asking.

And, also, this physician's order, if you see right here --

A Yes.

[redacted]

[redacted]

Q Well, we've already established that they used means that were more restrictive than they needed to.

So I'm just asking, would you not agree that the fact that the [redacted] was also not taken into account, wouldn't you agree that makes it even more of a policy violation, even more of a mistake?

A No, I'm not sure I would agree with that.

Q Okay.

[redacted]

Q Okay. And you would agree that a physicians order regarding a client's health trumps any sort of behavioral intervention, wouldn't you?

A No. This is -- this order is intended for when the client is behaving appropriately.

If he becomes aggressive and staff have to intervene, I'm not sure they would be able to strictly follow that order.

Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: So we'll make that physicians order Exhibit 5.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 5 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q And you see what I'm showing you here, Exhibit 6, Behavior Treatment Program?

A Yes.

[redacted]

A Right.

Q I'm reading that correctly; right?

A Yes.

Q So wouldn't you agree with me that what this is saying is that medical orders are to take precedence over behavioral interventions? Isn't that literally what that's saying?

A It is what it's saying. But I'm not sure personal restraint is listed as a therapeutic intervention in the behavioral treatment program, as personal restraint as an emergency procedure, it's not a PPP procedure.

Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: We'll make this Exhibit 6.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 6 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q All right.

I'm going to show you portions of Mr. Mattson's deposition rather than make the whole thing an exhibit.

When did you get assigned to conduct the maltreatment investigation of -- well, first of all, which staff members were you technically investigating?

A Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, and Ryann Campos.
Q Okay.
And when were you assigned to that investigation?
A I received a call from Jeff Gonyea on 6/13 at 12:13 p.m. And then I headed straight up to BHDC from my home.
Q Okay. And, when you got to the scene, who all did you speak with at the scene?
A Well, at that point, the ambulance had already taken David to the hospital.
Q Uh-huh.
A Those three staff had been taken to the Kelly building, which is where the program supervisor is, to hold them so that I could interview them separately.
Q Okay. So those three staff members were immediately sequestered over in the Kelly building for you to come and speak with; is that right?
A Yes. That's correct.
Q Did you personally speak with the paramedics or EMTs?
A No. They were already gone by the time I arrived.
Q Okay. They were already gone?
A Yes.
Q Okay.

Who did you see at the scene and speak with at the scene before you went over to the Kelly building?
A There was no one up at the scene, by the time I arrived.
Medical staff had left, David had left in the ambulance, and the three staff members had been sent to Kelly building by the time I got there.
Q Okay. So you just went straight to the Kelly --
A Yes. There was really nothing at the scene at Commons.
Q Okay. So you went straight to the Kelly building?
A Yes.
Q Is that right?
A Yes. That's correct.
Q Okay. And who called you and had you come up there to do the investigation?
A The superintendent, Jeff Gonyea.
Q And what all do you recall Mr. Gonyea saying to you, telling you, about the matter?
A I don't recall his specific words. Just that -- I believe he told me that David had passed away and there was an incident at Commons and for me to start the maltreatment investigation immediately.
Q Okay. And is a maltreatment investigation automatically began in the case of a client death or was there an allegation of maltreatment?

A No, it was automatic because a client had passed away.
Q Okay.
And what all did Mr. Gonyea tell you about the incident at that time?
A I don't recall specifics. Just that the incident had occurred and that I needed to get up there.
He may have said more. I just don't recall.
Q Okay. I assume you've spoken with him since then about the Cains incident, the Cains death; correct?
A You mean recently?
Q I mean any time.
A Okay.
I spoke to him after I completed the investigation. I gave it to him to look over and review.
Q Uh-huh.
A And then, you know, we have a five-day window to get them done, and I spoke to him about that.
Q Uh-huh.
A I don't recall further conversations. There may have been some though.
Q Did he or anybody else question your findings or ask for edits or changes?
A Not that I recall.

Q Is that something that occasionally happens in these investigations?
A You know, if I, you know, typed it quickly and made misspellings or things like that, he may point that out. Or he may ask, you know, why didn't I interview a certain person. Something along those lines.
But, generally, we just do it and he reviews it.
Q Okay. And you don't recall any specifics of criticisms or suggestions from Mr. Gonyea on this particular investigation?
A No.
Q Okay.
So you began your investigation on his death, of David Cains' death, June 13th, 2020; right?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And when did you finish the investigation? When was it completed?
A I completed it on June the 17th.
Q Okay. And, on that date, you completed the document I don't have, the adult maltreatment investigation, which is a written document; correct?
A Yes.
Q And so, by June 17th, that document was complete and had been submitted?
A Yes.

Q And you submitted it directly to Mr. Gonyea?
A Yes. And then he uses some of that information to complete a report of his own.
And then my investigation and all the witness statements are sent to Little Rock.
Q Okay.
And who are all the witnesses that you spoke to, that you've interviewed or spoke to, for this investigation?
A I interviewed Tyler Mattson, Amy Jones, Ryann Campos, Danniel Jones. I'm not sure if I directly interviewed the -- yes. I think I did interview the medical staff. Deborah Noah, LPN; Amanda Schmitt, LPN; Kelly King, LPN; Joann Miller, LPN; and, Lacey Fleming, LPN.
Q Okay. Anyone else?
A No, not that I have listed.
Q And were all of those interviews done on the 20th?
A I believe -- let me look at the date. They were all done on the 13th --
Q I'm sorry, the 13th? They were all done on the 13th?
A Yes. They were done on the 13th.
Q Okay. And so all the interviews were done on the 13th, and then does that just leave drafting the report then?

A I also secured pertinent written documents regarding David. I got a copy of the EMS patient record, nurses notes regarding David, that were dated the 14th.
I had looked at a choking risk assessment completed by an RN. These are done annually for clients.
And the (inaudible) risk assessment by an RN and a dysphagia disorder survey completed by the speech pathologist.
Q What you just said -- well, you started by saying you looked at various documents relating to David.
A Yes.
Q Did you just name all of those documents?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And so everything you just named there, those are all the documents that you reviewed for the investigation?
A Yes.
Q Okay.
A Now, I did not list it, but I felt quite certain I reviewed his individual program plan, IPP.
Q Okay.
Did you take written statements or did you -- did you obtain written statements from everybody you interviewed?

A Let me look through here to make sure I've got them. Yes. Yes. From the direct care staff and the nursing staff.
Q Would those statements be the same statements -- for instance, I have statements, written statements, from the three direct care staff that were provided to Office of Long-Term Care. Do you know if those are the same written statements?
A I'm not sure what statements OLTC had. I would assume they're the same, but I couldn't say for sure.
Q Who would provide OLTC with whatever it is they needed as a result of his death?
A I believe it would be Lynn Spain, the administrative assistant, who also does the IRIS reports.
Q Uh-huh.
A She generally takes care of getting the paperwork together and sending it to the appropriate people.
Q Okay.
Do you deal directly with OLTC?
A Just when they come for our annual surveys or if they --
Q No, no. I mean in maltreatment investigations. Or, specifically, in this maltreatment investigation, did you deal directly with OLTC?
A I don't recall. Sometimes, if there is a client death, they will come to do their own investigation.

I may have spoken with them.
Q Okay. So do you happen to recall if OLTC did its own investigation for this case?
A I do not.
Q Okay.
I'm going to show you here, so this is Tyler Mattson's deposition, Page 84. And I'm asking him kind of about the -- well, your investigation.
First of all, that reminded me of something.
Had Tyler Mattson ever had any disciplinary issues that you know of as an employee there prior to David's death?
A I don't recall. I don't know.
Q At least you never -- you were one of his bosses. And you don't recall ever reprimanding him or substantiating any maltreatment against him; correct?
A Right.
Q Do you recall ever having investigated him for maltreatment for a prior incident?
A As I said, I don't recall. It may be in my files on investigations.
Q Do you recall a former employee named Jonathan McCutchen?
A Yes.

[redacted]

Q Are you saying that you sort of recall that Tyler might have been investigated for that or something like that?

A No. I'm saying, if he was, I don't remember doing that investigation. Someone perhaps looked into it.

Q But you don't remember that incident or those allegations at all?

A It's not ringing any bells. I can't say that I do and be confident in that answer.

Q Okay. I appreciate you being thoughtful about it. And I'm certainly not trying to get you to guess.

I'm just reading between the lines of what you're saying, it kind of sounds like there's something you're remembering but you're just not certain it's an accurate memory. Is that right?

Or are you saying you have no memory?

A I'm saying I dealt with a lot of staff issues over those years.
Q Right.
A And I could be recalling something that had nothing to do with the incident you're mentioning.
Q Okay.
A But, you know, I worked with Jonathan, I worked with Tyler.
Q What you are recalling about -- what is it that you are recalling that may involve Tyler?
And, if you're wrong, we can go back in the records and no harm done. But I just need to know what you think you might be recalling about Tyler.
A I really have no specifics to give you. I don't.
Q Okay.
A I mean, I've spoken to Tyler over the years but --
Q You what?
A Spoken with him. Just, you know, in the dorms and in passing, like I do with all the staff.
Q And you've never had any issues with him?
A Not that I can recall.
Q Do you have a favorable opinion of him as a staff member?
A I have a neutral opinion.
Q Okay.

What about Ryann Campos? What's your opinion of her as one of your former employees?

A I didn't know her that well. Again, probably a neutral opinion. Neither a good nor bad.

[redacted]

Q And what is the incident that you are referring to? What do you recall about it?

A I don't recall specifics. And you know it -- I could have her mixed up with someone else. I'm sorry.

I wish my memory were a little better on all these things.

Q So I take it you never investigated Ms. Campos for a maltreatment investigation prior to David Cains' death?

A Not that I recall. No.

Q And you have no knowledge of anybody else investigating her for maltreatment prior to David Cains' death?

A I may not know if Jeff assigned an investigation to someone else.

Q I'm just asking what you know and what you recall.
A No, I don't.
Q Okay.
Same line of questioning except with -- well, you know her as Mandy Jones. But Amy Jones, same line of questioning.
Anything you can tell me about her along these lines of whether, you know, you've had issues with her, whether she's been reprimanded, whether you've heard of allegations made against her, if she's been investigated prior to David's death?
A I do not recall any investigations.
My impression of Amy, who I knew a little bit better, was positive.
Q Okay.
A She was willing to take responsibility and step up and do what was needed, so I had a good favorable impression of her.
Q Okay. I guess would you have been the one that -- I understand she had been promoted prior to David's death. Was that you that would have promoted her?
A I believe it would have been her team leader.
Q Okay.
A But I worked with her more regularly than the other two.

Q Okay. Fair enough.

So this document in front of you, this is Page 84 of Tyler Mattson's deposition transcript. And I'm going to Line 12.

A Uh-huh.

Q And I'm just going to take you through some of these portions, let you take a look at it, and then I'll have some questions.

Line 12, I ask Tyler, did Sandy Evans -- were you questioned by Sandy Evans after David's death; Tyler, yes.

He says that he was empathetic towards me and she gave me the sheet and that was pretty much it. I said -- well, how about this.

Why don't you read this starting at Line 12 all the way down to the bottom of this page and tell me when you're done reading it.

A Yeah, I've already read it.

Q You've already read it?

A Yeah.

Q Okay.

I ask, she didn't question you about how it happened or anything like that; he said it was all explained in the sheet. So I said what sheet; he said the witness report.

I said the witness report you wrote; he said, that I wrote, yes. I said, okay, so I understand she accepted your witness report; but, as far as you recall, she didn't do any further interrogation or questioning of you; no, not that I recall; she was just being empathetic and -- as she could professionally be in the situation.

I asked him, how shortly after the death was this meeting with her; he said, immediately afterward.

I said, and you never met with her again about it; he said no. And I asked, about how long do you think that meeting with her lasted; and he said it took me maybe 15, 20, he means minutes, 15, 20 minutes, to write the report and I left.

And I said, okay, but how long did it take her to talk with you. He said, about the duration, she didn't talk to me afterwards or before other than being empathetic; it was just I gave her the report and -- and I said, so she had you write a report, she didn't ask you any questions about the event, and the only words you recall her speaking to you were kind of -- and then he cuts me off and he says, she just kind of asked me what happened; but like as far as like did she interrogate me necessarily, not that I recall.

And I ask, so you do recall specifically, ask -- her specifically asking questions about the event. He says, just what happened, she didn't ask too many details, that I remember.

And I said, okay, how about -- about how long do you think the conversation part with her lasted; he says barely a minute; it was what happened and her being empathetic. She handed me a sheet and she explained it to me.

And I said, and when you say explained it to you, meaning she explained how to fill out the form; he said, basically, I mean, like she didn't tell me what to write down, necessarily, but she was like, how do I word this, she basically gave me basic instructions. And I said okay.

And said of what to write down and how to, all that stuff, but nothing beneficial towards me, necessarily.

Is that how you remember --

A No.

Q -- this?

A No. That's not how I remember it at all.

Q Okay.

A When I -- go ahead.

Q Are you surprised by Tyler's version of events here?

A Yes. But I've done this long enough to know everybody sees everything completely differently.

Q All right.

A When I interview someone, we start at the beginning and I ask them a question, they write down their response.

I look at the response, I ask them another question. It's a very detailed, step-by-step, process.

Q Okay. Well, what parts of his version of events do you take issue with?

A That I didn't ask him any questions.

Q Okay.

A That's all the -- that's what the interview entails.

Q So did you give him instructions on how to write the report? Well, did you give him a sheet or a form and tell him to write a statement?

A What I did is I gave him a sheet, the witness report sheet.

And then -- first, we talked about it before he wrote anything down. We went through the incident with me asking him questions about what happened then and what happened then.

Then you have the witness write it down. And I will stop them every sentence or two to look at what they've written.

Because, sometimes, what they told you initially, they will write down something different. So then I would ask him, okay, but earlier you said this. And so we went through it step by step.

I didn't instruct him on what to say. I looked at what he was saying to make sure he got all the information in there that I was going to need, that he didn't leaving anything out.

So, yes, I'm a little surprised by his take on it. Yes.

Q Okay. Do you agree that the whole thing took 15 to 20 minutes?

A No. I would say probably an hour.

Q Okay. And this sheet you gave him, it's called a witness report sheet?

A Yes.

Q And you would have given one of these to all of the witnesses?

A Yes. It's called an OLTC Witness Statement Form.

Q I'm sorry. Say that again.

A OLTC, Witness Statement Form.

Q All right. Well, that is the -- okay.

And, when you said you got a written statement from these witnesses, that's what you're referring to?

A Yes. Yes.

Q Actually, I think I have some of those. Okay. OLTC Witness Statements.

And are those part of one of the documents you have in front of you?

A Yes.
Q Which document are they made apart of?
A They're included in the maltreatment report.
Q Okay. Got it. I just want to make sure I get those. That's part of the maltreatment report.
A Right.
Q All right.
Did you have any other interaction with Tyler during this investigation other than this interaction that he describes as 15 to 20 minutes and you described as more like an hour? Was there any other interaction that you had with him during the investigation?
A I don't believe so. I'm trying to -- sometimes, if I have extra questions, I will call a witness back in.
Q Yeah.
A I'm looking to see and I don't believe I did that with him after the interview was completed.
He was sent home on administrative leave.
Q Okay. And was that automatic policy or did somebody make a specific decision to send him home on administrative leave?
A No, that's our policy. If you're, you know, named in maltreatment, after we get your statement, you're sent home on administrative leave until the -- it's completed.

Q So he says that you didn't ask too many details. You're saying that's not true? You feel like you did ask detailed questions?
A I did a lot of detailed questions.
Q Okay.
A Where were you at, where was he lying down, what side was he on, what side were you on. Those are all details you have to have.
Q Did you get answers, did you obtain any answers from him that are not in his written report?
A Not that I recall. No.
Q Please take some time to look through that and then -- before you answer that question, please take some time to look through his witness report sheet.
A I'm finding page three of three but not the other pages.
His report was a three-page report, obviously.
Q Yeah, I think you're right.
A But I don't see the other pages in here.
Q I can try to find it.
A Here we go. Found it.
Q Yeah, just take a second and read through that. My only question is, did you ask him any questions or, rather, did you obtain any other information from him in questioning him that is not contained in that written statement? Does that make sense?

A Yeah.
Q Okay.
A I will notice, in this report, his hand-written report, he also said David was held in personal for one minute, in response to the previous question.
Q Okay.
A I'm not recalling asking him any other questions. I know he was very upset at the time of the interview and I was being empathetic because it is difficult to lose a client. But, also, it helps put the interviewee at ease when you're questioning them.

I don't recall asking anything else, but that's all I -- I don't recall.
Q And was it this -- so is it fair to say that you made your -- your determination that Mr. Mattson had not committed maltreatment was based on this interview with him and this witness statement, this interview that he says talked -- well, he said the talking part lasted one minute and the part of him writing it down lasted 15, 20 minutes.

And, of course, I understand you say it lasted more like an hour.

But is it fair to say that this interaction, whether it was 15 minutes or an hour, that is everything you used to base your determination, your maltreatment determination with regard to Mr. Mattson?

A No. I interviewed the other three staff involved and all the other witnesses to reach my conclusion.
Q Fair enough. Okay.
But, as far as the direct questioning statement taken of Mr. Mattson, that was everything; right?
A Yes. As I recall, yes.
Q All right.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'm going to make, as the next exhibit, Pages 84 through 87 of Mr. Mattson's deposition which we will e-mail to you, Cris.

(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 7 and is attached hereto.)

MR. GILLISPIE: Almost done, Ms. Evans. I appreciate your patience with me.

THE WITNESS: No problem.

BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Okay. There's two pages. This is the transcript from Ms. Amy Jones's deposition. This part, I've already asked you about, Page 105 of her deposition. Let me grab my physical copy.
So I questioned her a little bit about how you investigated her. And you'll see, Line 10 there, she says Sandy came and took my statement after it happened very shortly after the incident.

And then she says that she instructed -- I guess she means you instructed her to go back to the Kelly building and start your statement. And then she says you came in while she was doing her statement along with Jennifer Bancroft.

A Uh-huh.

Q Does that sound right?

A I think she was filling out the top portion of the statement where you have to put your name, address, phone number, all of that good stuff. And then we get into the details.

Q So you were physically in the room with both Ms. Jones and Mr. Mattson while they're completing these witness report sheets? These statements that --

A They were in the Kelly building.

Q Yes, I understand that separately. But for each of them. I understand they're in different rooms and this didn't happen at the same time.

A Right.

Q I'm with you there.

But I'm just asking, you were physically in the room with them while they're writing their statements;

correct?
A Yes. That's correct.
Q And, at this point, these are statements that you're going to use to help determine whether or not there was maltreatment; correct?
A Yes.
Q And you're in the room with them while they're writing them?
A Yes.
Q And Jennifer Bancroft is also in the room during Ms. Jones's?
A No. Jennifer Bancroft, she was a team leader. We had -- Amy Jones was serving as acting program supervisor that day because the original program supervisor had to leave. So (inaudible) to Amy.

Then this incident occurred and Amy was going to be sent home, so I called in Jennifer Bancroft to come in and take over as program supervisor.

So she came in the Kelly building which is where the program supervisor is.
Q All right. That's fine. Thank you.
A Yeah.

MR. GILLISPIE: Just a moment. I'm going through my notes here. We may be done. Just a second.

THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q Is there anything else that you think I need to know about regarding your investigation that I have not asked about?
A I cannot think of anything.
Q Substantiated maltreatment, would they have been placed on just the general adult maltreatment registry or would it have been a different registry specifically for Long-Term care facilities?
A I believe it's just the regular --
Q Okay.
A Just regular registry.
Q Okay. And I'm not going to be able to pull it up on my computer, but I'm looking at Policy I-A-5. This is the Prohibition of Harmful Acts to Clients Served.
MR. GILLISPIE: Eric, Bates Stamp 4274.
BY MR. GILLISPIE:
Q And this first page, it says that all allegations of harmful acts to clients served at the facility must be reported immediately as possible maltreatment and reviewed as such. Y'all did that.
Upon completion of the review, investigative findings will be forwarded to the Office of Long-Term Care for a determination regarding whether employee actions rise to the level of violating the Arkansas Adult Long-Term Care Facility Resident Maltreatment Act and Child Maltreatment Act. Boy, that's a mouthful.

I guess my only question is, can you help me understand the reporting requirements here?

So is this -- when you say Mr. Gonyea had to send your findings or he took your findings and then, apparently, did his own report, and sent that to Little Rock, is that the same thing as forwarding it to the office of Long-Term Care?

A I don't know. I don't know.

Q You don't know? Okay.

A Pretty much, once I've completed my report and given it to the appropriate people, my part is done.

Q Okay.

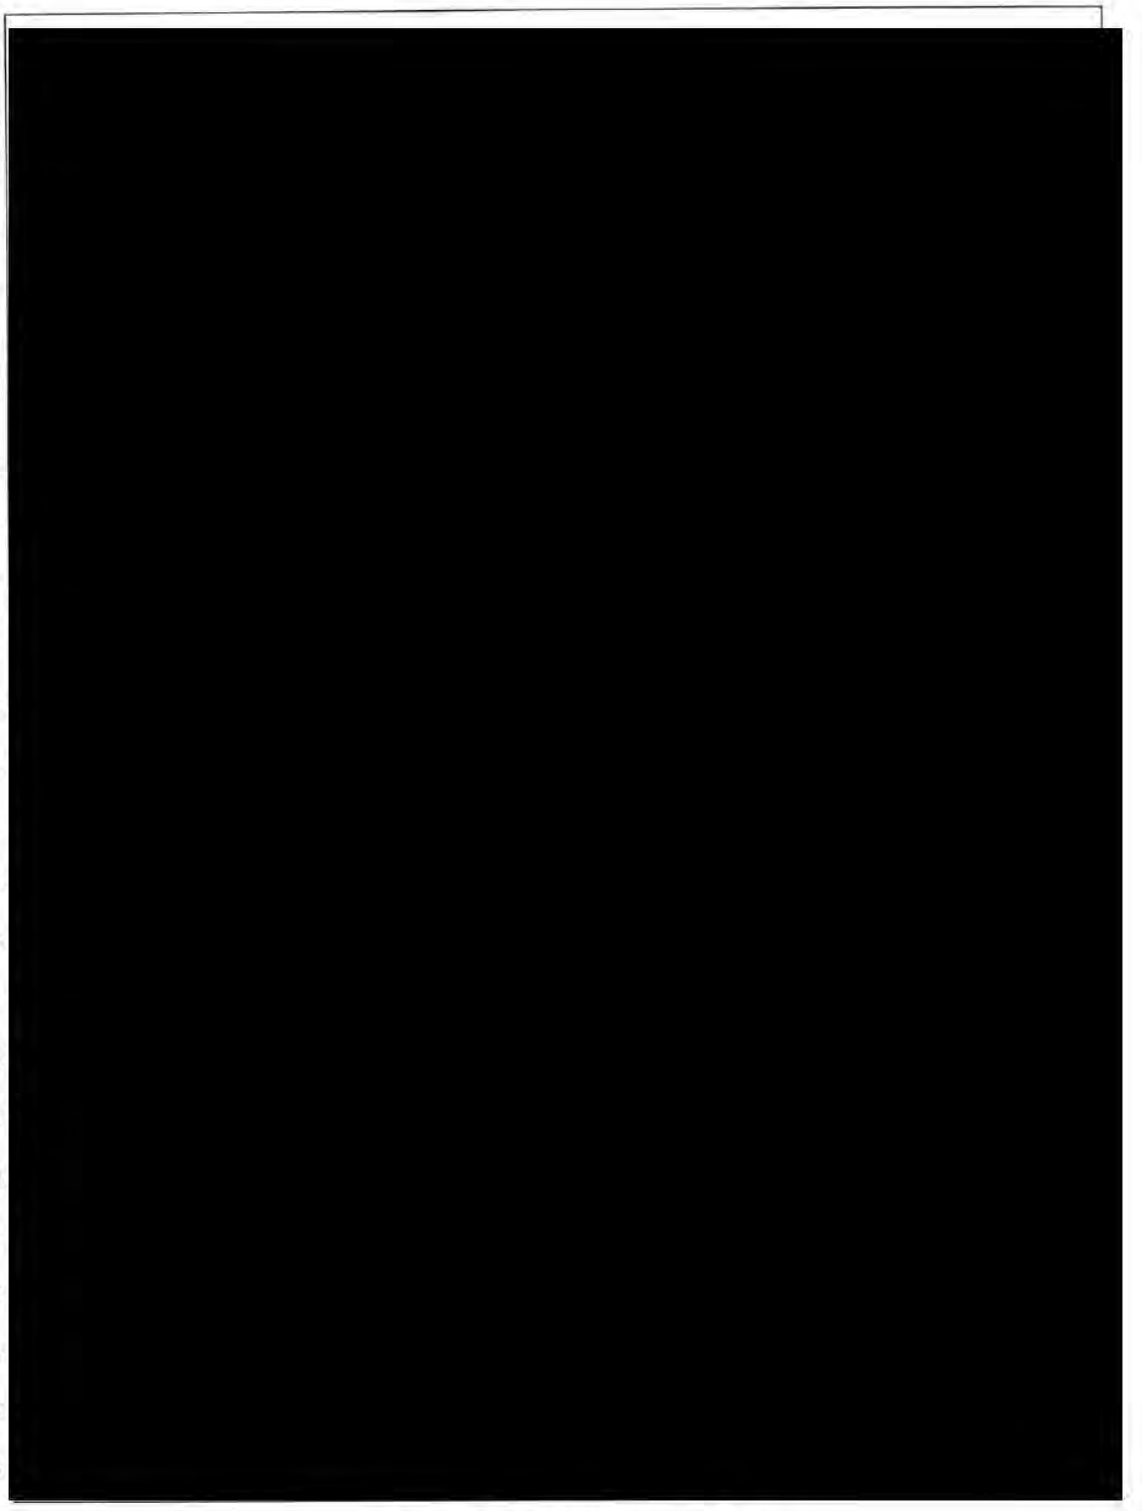
A And then Mr. Gonyea and the administrative assistant, they take care of the rest.

Q This goes on to say that an OLTC finding is in addition to the facility determination regarding a violation of DHS Policy 1084, which are the employee conduct standards, so a maltreatment violation.

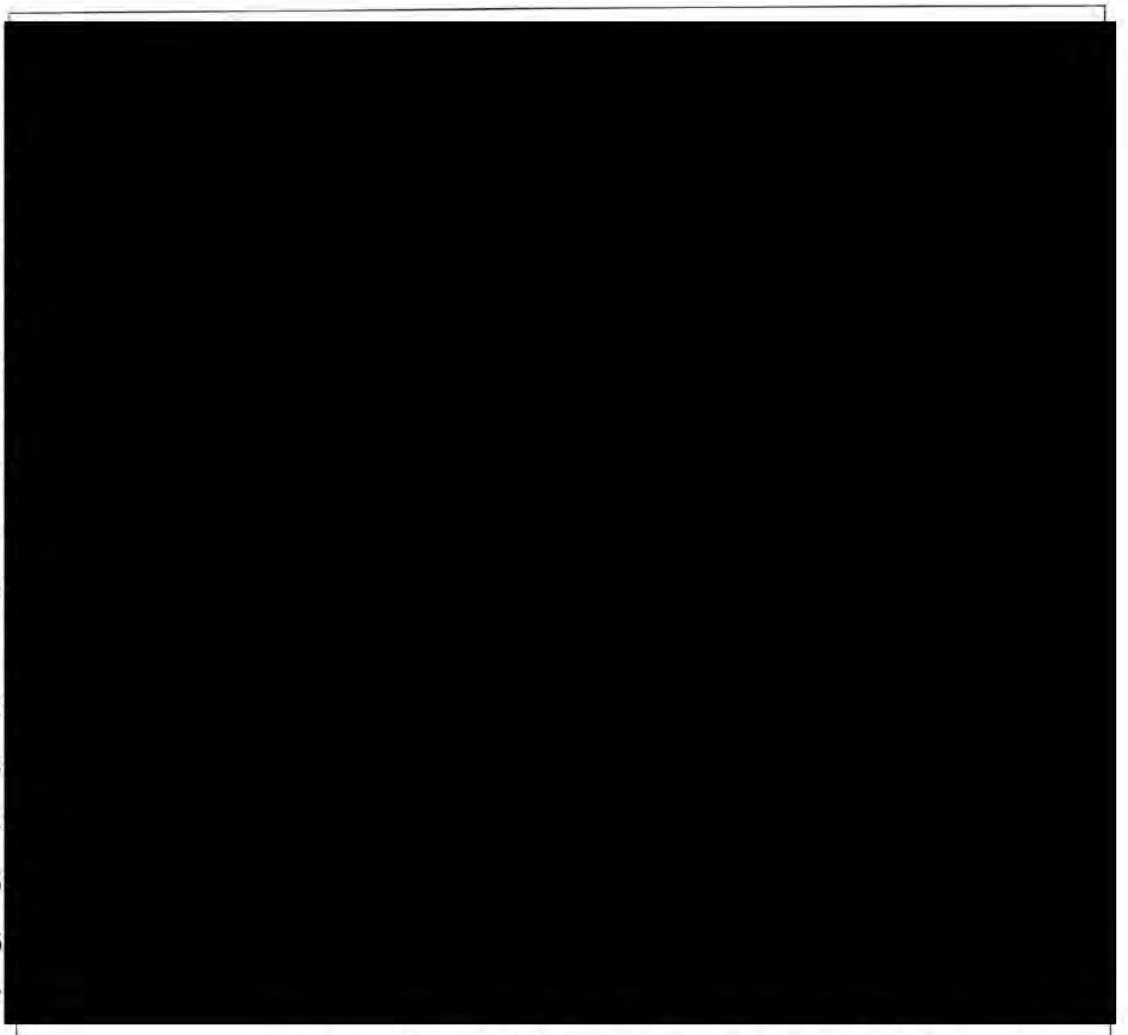
So an OLTC finding is in addition to, I suppose, your determination; and then the OLTC determination is apart and separate from the facility findings.

Is that your understanding as well?

A Yes. Yes.
Q Do you have any knowledge as to whether there was a separate report done by OLTC?
A I may have seen it at that time, but I don't recall. My understanding is that they upheld our determination.
Q Uh-huh. Okay. But you've not seen any written document to that effect?
A Not that I recall. No.
Q Who would be the best person to ask about that?
A I would say, probably, Jennifer Barry, our assistant superintendent. She keeps up with a lot of the OLTC things.
Also, Nakita Martin is our quality assurance person and she is in charge of OLTC issues.
Q Okay.



MR. GILLISPIE: Just to be thorough, I'm going to make this policy an exhibit here as well.



(WHEREUPON, the document was marked for identification as Exhibit No. 8 and is attached hereto.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

[redacted]

[redacted]

MR. GILLISPIE: Can we go off the record for just two minutes here?

(WHEREUPON, the record was suspended momentarily and the proceedings resumed as follows, to wit.)

BY MR. GILLISPIE:

Q Ms. Evans, am I correct that, if you had substantiated maltreatment against Mr. Mattson, Ms.

Jones, or Ms. Campos, they would have been immediately terminated and designated not eligible for rehire by DHS?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q Okay.

MR. GILLISPIE: I'll pass the witness.

MR. COLLINS: I have no questions.

(WHEREUPON, the proceedings were concluded in the matter at 1:54 p.m.)

coercion and intimidation (e.g. living in fear in one's own home). Since many clients residing in ICF/IIDs are unable to communicate feelings of fear, humiliation, etc. associated with abusive episodes, the assumption is made that any actions that would usually be viewed as psychologically or verbally abusive by a member of the general public, would also be viewed as abusive by the client residing in the ICF/IID, regardless of that client's perceived ability to comprehend the nature of the incident.

Sexual abuse includes any incident where a client is coerced or manipulated to participate in any form of sexual activity for which the client did not give affirmative permission (or gave affirmative permission without the attendant understanding required to give permission) or sexual assault against a client who is unable to defend him/herself.

The facility must implement, through policies, oversight and training, safeguards to ensure that clients are not subjected to abuse by anyone including, but not limited to, facility staff, consultants or volunteers, staff of other agencies serving the client, family members or legal guardians, friends, other clients, or the general public.

The facility must take whatever action is necessary to protect the clients residing there. For example, if a facility is forced by court order or arbitration rulings to retain or reinstate an employee found to be abusive, the facility must take measures to protect the clients of the facility (such as assigning the employee to an area where there is no contact with clients).

W128

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.420(a)(6) Ensure that clients are free from unnecessary drugs and physical restraints and are provided active treatment to reduce dependency on drugs and physical restraints;

Guidance §483.420(a)(6)

The facility must implement an aggressive active treatment program, which includes appropriate replacement behaviors, to address the reduction/elimination of physical restraints and drugs to manage behaviors.

For purposes of this Guideline drugs to manage behavior are "unnecessary" if there is evidence the drugs are being used:

- In excessive dose (duplicate therapy);
- For excessive duration;
- Not monitored adequately;
- Without adequate indications for its use;
- With adverse consequences which indicate the dose should be reduced or discontinued; or
- Any combination of the reasons listed above.

The long term use of a drug/physical restraint to manage behavior combined with one or more of the following may indicate unnecessary use:

- The client's developmental and/or behavioral needs are not being met and the appropriateness of less restrictive approaches to manage inappropriate behaviors should be questioned;
- Staff behavior may be prompting behaviors in clients which result in the chronic use of physical restraints and drugs to control behavior;
- Staff may have inadequate training and/or experience to provide active treatment and employ preventive measures;

Restraints applied for behaviors when less restrictive measures have not been tried or have been tried and found to be just as effective.

- developmental programming principles and techniques (e.g. techniques to involve clients in their programs to their highest capability, use of positive reinforcement, use of assistive technology, use of appropriate materials and providing informal opportunities to practice skills);
- use of adaptive equipment and augmentative communication devices and systems; and
- effective recordkeeping procedures.

Staff receive training in the following areas:

- use of behavioral principles during interactions between staff and clients;
- use of accurate procedures regarding abuse detection and prevention, restraints, drugs to manage behaviors, client safety, emergencies, etc.;
- use of least restrictive interventions;

- use of positive behavior intervention programming; and
- training clients in appropriate replacement behaviors.

Guidance §483.430(e)(2)

Staff receive training in the following areas:

- signs and symptoms of the client's changing health (e.g. constipation, urinary tract infections, adverse drug reactions, as indicated);
- exercise and diet;
- first aid;
- infection control;
- reporting to appropriate healthcare professionals; and
- for those staff who can administer medications, how to include clients in their medication administration by recognizing and encouraging the use of applicable skills.

W193

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.430(e)(3) Staff must be able to demonstrate the skills and techniques necessary to administer interventions to manage the inappropriate behavior of clients.

Guidance §483.430(e)(3)

Staff correctly and consistently implement the interventions specified in the behavior plans of clients with whom they are working.

§483.440(f)(3)(i) Review, approve, and monitor individual programs designed to manage inappropriate behavior and other programs that, in the opinion of the committee, involve risks to client protection and rights;

Guidance §483.440(f)(3)(i)

Any program that utilizes restrictive or intrusive techniques must be reviewed and approved by the specially constituted committee prior to implementation. This includes, but is not limited to:

- restraints;
- drugs to manage behavior;
- restrictions on community access;
- contingent denial of any right; or
- restrictions of materials or locations in the home.

The committee should ensure that consequences within a written behavior management program do not violate the client's rights.

There is no requirement for the committee to evaluate whether the proposed program is consistent with current practices in the field. Documentation should verify that the specially constituted committee considered factors, such as whether less intrusive methods have been attempted, whether the severity of behavior outweighs the risks of the proposed program and whether replacement behaviors are included within the plan.

Any revision to a behavior plan that increases the level of intrusiveness must be re-reviewed by the specially constituted committee. The committee need not reapprove a program when revisions are made in accordance with the approved plan. For example, if the physician changes the dosage of a medication in accordance with the drug treatment component of the active treatment plan to which the legally authorized person has given consent and which has already been approved by the committee, then there is no need for the committee or the legally authorized person to reapprove the plan. Generally, this would also apply if the medication was changed to another within the same therapeutic class or family.

W276

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(i) Specify all facility approved interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(i)

All interventions for the management of inappropriate client behaviors which are approved for use in the facility are clearly stated and described in its policy. Examples of positive interventions include, but are not limited to, verbal praise reward systems, and prompting. Examples of negative interventions include, but are not limited to, removal of a privilege, implementation of restraint, and/or the use of exclusionary time out.

W277

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(ii) Designate these interventions on a hierarchy to be implemented, ranging from most positive or least intrusive, to least positive or most intrusive;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(ii)

Policies and procedures must include a clear progression as to how staff implement interventions to manage inappropriate client behavior.

Facility policy and procedures must define the entire hierarchy of possible interventions from the most positive, functionally appropriate approaches to most intrusive approaches authorized. The facility determines at what level in the hierarchy the IPP will begin for each client based on their individual assessment. The plan must still begin at the least intrusive technique shown effective for that client. Individual plans should specify the specific techniques that have been determined through assessment to be least restrictive for each client.

The facility policy for unexpected behavioral incidents must provide direction for the staff in the utilization of the hierarchy. For clients not on a behavior plan, staff must apply the appropriate level of intervention per the established hierarchy, including emergency measures to prevent harm to self or others.

W278

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iii) Insure prior to the use of more restrictive techniques, that the client's record documents that programs incorporating the use of less intrusive or more positive techniques have been tried systematically and demonstrated to be ineffective; and

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iii)

Policies must be implemented to ensure that all restrictive procedures begin at the lowest level of the hierarchy unless there is documented evidence that less intrusive interventions have been tried and have been found to be ineffective.

The facility is not required to justify discontinuing the use of a more restrictive technique before initiating a less restrictive technique, since the intent of the regulation is to use the most positive, least intrusive technique possible.

In emergency situations where an unanticipated behavior requires immediate protection of the client or others, the technique chosen is the least restrictive appropriate technique possible.

§483.450(b)(1)(iv) Address the following:

W279

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A) The use of time-out rooms;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(A)

"Time-out room" is defined as a separate room that is used to remove a client from stimulation that may be triggering and reinforcing maladaptive behavior. The facility must have written policies and procedures for the use of time out rooms which address all the requirements of 483.450 (c) (1-4) standard: time out room.

W280

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B) The use of physical restraints;

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(B)

"Physical restraint" is defined as any manual hold or mechanical device that the client cannot remove easily, and which restricts the free movement of, normal functioning of, or normal access to a portion or portions of a client's body. Examples of mechanical devices may include arm splints and mittens.

Policies and Procedures must address:

- the types of physical restraint that are allowed in the facility;
- the persons who apply such restraints;
- the parameters for duration of application;
- the methods that assure the health and safety of clients while in restraints; and
- the specific training required for staff allowed to apply such restraints.

Guidance §483.450(b)(1)(iv)(C)

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(c)(3) Clients placed in time-out rooms must be protected from hazardous conditions including, but not limited to, presence of sharp corners and objects, uncovered light fixtures, unprotected electrical outlets.

Guidance §483.450(c)(3)

Because placement in the time out room is typically secondary to extreme behaviors, it is acceptable that there be no furniture in this room.

A door that opens inward can potentially be held closed, either intentionally or inadvertently, by the client in the room, thereby denying staff immediate access to the room.

W294

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(c)(4) A record of time-out activities must be kept.

Guidance §483.450(c)(4)

The documentation in the client's record accurately reflects planned (e.g. part of the IPP) usage and presents a picture of events prior to, during, and following the use of time-out. The IPP should include direction as to how often data must be collected during each use of time out for each individual client.

(d) Standard: Physical restraints

§483.450(d)(1) The facility may employ physical restraint only- -

W295

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(1)(i) As an integral part of an individual program plan that is intended to lead to less restrictive means of managing and eliminating the behavior for which the restraint is applied;

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(i)

The use of physical restraint is specified within the IPP. The plan must address:

1) The specific type of client behavior to be managed by this plan;
2) The less restrictive behavioral approaches which were previously used, but were unsuccessful;
3) The hierarchy of measures that must be utilized prior to the application of physical restraint;
4) The type of physical restraint;
5) The type of client behavior that would indicate that the patient is calm and can be released from the restraint; and
6) The replacement behavior being taught to the client to reduce the need for future restraints.

W296

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(1)(ii) As an emergency measure, but only if absolutely necessary to protect client or others from injury; or

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(ii)

Physical restraint may be used as an emergency intervention only in situations where the client is exhibiting behaviors which:

1) the client has not exhibited before;
2) were not identified in the functional analysis of behavior; or
3) are harming other people or themselves.

When there are repeated episodes of the use of physical restraint as an emergency safety measure, these episodes should be assessed for their predictability by the IDT, and revisions to the IPP considered addressing the behaviors through a formal behavior plan in order to reduce/eliminate the use of physical restraint.

W297

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(1)(iii) As a health-related protection prescribed by a physician, but only if absolutely necessary during the conduct of a specific medical or surgical procedure, or only if absolutely necessary for client protection during the time that a medical condition exists.

Guidance §483.450(d)(1)(iii)

Physical restraint during medical procedures must be utilized only when absolutely necessary and be used as a last resort in order for the facility or practitioners to deliver needed medical care to the client. The restraint must be released as soon as the medical procedure is completed unless it is necessary to continue restraint for a longer period of time to continue to deliver care or to prevent the client from displacing tubes or dressings. These restraints may only be used as long as the physician indicates them to be necessary.

For instances where physical restraint are used by the facility or a practitioner during a medical procedure, the client record and interviews should verify that less restrictive measures were attempted before using physical restraint and verify whether any injuries occurred during the use of the physical restraint. Written orders by medical personnel for the application of a physical restraint should include the reason that the restraint is necessary, the type of restraint to be used and the length of time the restraint will be applied.

A restraint device used to prevent a client engaging in self-injurious behavior is not considered a restraint for medical condition.

§483.450(d)(2) Authorizations to use or extend restraints as an emergency measure must be:

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)

Facility policies should list who in the facility is allowed to authorize the emergency use of restraints or to extend the use of an emergency restraint, and the training that is required for those persons who may authorize. Documentation in the client record in those instances should confirm that the facility follows that policy.

W298

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(2)(i) In effect no longer than 12 consecutive hours; and

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(i)

This regulation does not mean that restraints may be authorized to be applied for up to a 12 hour period. The client must be released from the physical restraint as soon as the client is no longer a risk to self or others. Once the behavior has ceased, the emergency has ended, and the client has been released, another authorization would be required for any new emergency situation.

The 12 consecutive hour period is the absolute maximum period of time that emergency physical restraint may be utilized for a client during an individual behavioral incident. It is reasonable to expect that the facility will reassess the emergency situation for any client who remains in physical restraint for longer than one hour and reassess the situation at least every 30 minutes thereafter up to 12 hours when the physical restraint must be removed.

W299

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(2)(ii) Obtained as soon as the client is restrained or stable.

Guidance §483.450(d)(2)(ii)

There may be instances where the maladaptive behaviors of a client or clients escalate into a serious and immediate event that must be de-escalated quickly in order to prevent harm to clients, staff, other clients, or by standers when incidents occur in the community. In these instances, the staff should contact the appropriate person to obtain authorization for the use of physical restraint as soon as the situation is stable. Retrospective documentation of the incident should confirm the need for authorization after application.

§483.450(d)(3) The facility must not issue orders for restraint on a standing or as needed basis.

Guidance §483.450(d)(3)

All instances of physical restraint must be ordered on a case by case basis with individual assessment of the situation and authorization based upon the individual client. Authorizations should include the rationale for the use of the physical restraint versus other less restrictive measures.

W301

(Rev. 135, Issued: 02-27-15, Effective: 04-27-15, Implementation: 04-27-15)

§483.450(d)(4) A client placed in restraint must be checked at least every 30 minutes by staff trained in the use of restraints,

Guidance §483.450(d)(4)

The frequency of monitoring will vary according to the type and design of the device and the psychological and physical well-being of the client. The facility should be checking the client often enough to adequately assess the physical status of the client (e.g., circulation, respiration and vital signs) of the client and the need to continued restraint. The more restrictive the intervention, the greater the risk to the client and the more often the client must be assessed. Frequent assessment will assure that the client will be released as soon as possible, however, in no instance may the staff go longer than 30 minutes without checking the client.

§483.450(d)(4) released from the restraint as quickly as possible, and

Guidance §483.450(d)(4)

"As quickly as possible" means as soon as the client is no longer a danger to self or others. Documentation should support that the client was released from restraint as soon as they became calm.

§483.450(d)(5) so as not to cause physical injury to the client

Guidance §483.450(d)(5)

Physical restraints to include mechanical devices must be the correct size for the client and be applied with the correct amount of pressure according to manufacturer's directions. In addition to observation of any physical mechanical restraint in use at the time of the survey, review incident reports for any injuries as a result of restraint use.

§483.450(d)(6) for a period of not less than 10 minutes during each two hour period in which restraint is employed,

Guidance §483.450(d)(6)

This requirement does not apply to cases of medical restraints that are specifically ordered for the immobilization of bones and joints during the physical healing process involved with fractures, sprains, etc. (e.g. a broken bone immobilized by a cast or splint). See 331 483.460(c) regarding surveillance of skin integrity during the use of medical restraints.

However, if a mechanical physical restraint is applied to an extremity to prevent a client from removing post-operative sutures, the restraint must be released every two (2) hours for a period of not less than ten (10) minutes in order to maintain adequate circulation.

Mechanical restraints placed on the client during sleeping hours must be medically based and specifically ordered by a physician. There should be evidence in the client's record why the mechanical physical restraint is necessary during sleeping hours. While it is not necessary to wake the client every two (2) hours to release the restraint and provide opportunity for exercise, the staff must check the restraint frequently during the night to ensure that the restraint is still properly applied and the client appears comfortable.

§483.450(d)(7) Barred enclosures

Guidance §483.450(d)(7)

A bed or play equipment with bars that prevent the client from leaving the bed or voluntarily climbing out of the bed are barred enclosures. The use of such enclosures must be a part of the written IPP and behavioral assessments must clearly state why such an enclosure is necessary, the risks of using the enclosure versus not using it and what less restrictive measures have been tried prior to the implementation of the barred enclosures.

Such devices may not be used in lieu of adequate staffing.

ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES
DIVISION OF DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES SERVICES
DDS DIRECTOR'S OFFICE POLICY MANUAL

Policy Type	Subject of Policy	Policy No.
Service	Behavior Management	3011-D

1. Purpose. This policy is intended to provide guidelines for managing challenging behaviors of individuals residing in DDS operated programs (Human Development Centers).

2. Scope. This policy applies to all DDS operated programs (Human Development Centers) and their employees/volunteers. All such programs will include a review of this policy as part of the employee orientation process.

3. Definition of Terms

Behavior management, as covered by this policy, serves as a guide to ensure that an individual's actions that are aggressive, disruptive and/or present a danger to the individual or to others are managed with the least restrictive method. Behavior management is not a substitute for other forms of active treatment and is incorporated into program plans, based on individual needs.

Qualified Mental Retardation Professional (QMRP) or QMRP designee is used in this policy as a person designated to monitor, supervise, and make decisions regarding specific behavioral situations. QMRP/designee will be assigned by the administrator of the DDS program in which he/she works. Criteria for selection will involve prior training, experience, and demonstrated ability in the area of behavioral management. The QMRP/designee must be in a position that is on a level involving supervisory or decision-making responsibilities. The QMRP designee is authorized to perform any of the duties of the QMRP as outlined by regulations or policy.

Interdisciplinary Team (IDT) is defined as a group of persons (professionals, paraprofessionals and non-professionals) who develop an individual's program plan and whose participation is required in order to identify the needs of the individual and to devise ways to meet those needs. The IDT includes the individual and may also include those persons who have worked or will work most closely with the individual, those persons who provide needed assessments or services, and the individual's family, guardian, or advocate. In general, the IDT includes persons professionally qualified in such fields as health care, education, psychology, and social work.

Licensed nurse is defined as a registered nurse or licensed practical nurse. The agency may use a physician, in lieu of a licensed nurse, but this is not required.

Replacement: This policy replaces DDS Commissioner's Policy 3011-D, dated January 28, 1981, March 13, 1981, and DDS Director's Policy dated October 1, 1991; December 1, 1993; and January 30, 1998.

Reviewed: Arkansas Legislative Council Rules and Regulations Subcommittee _____, 2003

Policy Type	Subject of Policy	Policy No.
Service	Behavior Management	3011-D

4. Policy

NOTE: It is the philosophy of the agency to utilize all positive approaches to behavior management prior to and in conjunction with more restrictive programmatic techniques. Positive approaches may include, but are not limited to: positive reinforcement, gentle teaching, redirection, graduated guidance, and modeling of appropriate behaviors. Measures to address positive behavior should be incorporated into formal program efforts to the extent feasible.

Efforts at positive programming prove to be successful with the majority of maladaptive behaviors. All Human Development Centers will maintain policies and procedures for positive programming. The use of behavioral programming other than positive is designed for the individuals who repetitively engage in dangerously aggressive behavior and for whom other interventions have not been effective. All behavior programs developed in accordance with this policy will be designed to reduce or eliminate the target behavior(s) within a specified time frame, will be supported by documentation that positive, less restrictive methods have been systematically attempted and failed, will be monitored regularly by the individual's QMRP and Interdisciplinary Team (IDT), and will be revised if proved to be ineffective. The potential harmful effects of each procedure will be weighed carefully against the harmful effects of the targeted behavior and the IDT will determine if the harmful effects of the behavior outweigh the potentially harmful effects of the procedure.

Category I:

Category I procedures are those which may be used without prior approval of the Human Rights Committee or psychology staff. To ensure consistency, they should be addressed by the IDT. Frequent use (as determined by IDT) of these procedures with an individual indicates the need for consideration of the development of a behavior plan by the individual's IDT.

The individual must be supervised during these procedures. With the exception of verbal intervention, any use of Category I procedures, whether part of a formal behavior program or not, requires documentation on a Behavior Incident Report, Data Sheet, or other locally used behavior documentation system.

A. Verbal Intervention: Verbal intervention is utilized to stop an inappropriate behavior in progress and involves telling the individual "no" or "stop", identifying the behavior, and redirecting to an appropriate activity. The command is given in a firm but normal tone of voice. Threats, screaming, yelling or issuing repetitive or multiple sets of commands are not considered verbal correction and are inappropriate.

B. Separation From Activity Up to 30 Minutes: The individual is prevented from engaging in a reinforcing activity in which he/she has displayed inappropriate behavior. Separation is maintained within the same room or outdoor area where the activity is conducted. This is considered a Category I procedure if compliance by the individual can be accomplished through verbal prompting/physical prompting without requiring personal restraint (holding).

C. Separation From Setting Up to 30 Minutes: The individual is removed from the area where the reinforcing activity is taking place. Separation must occur under observation either outdoors or in a living or training area (bathrooms, storage rooms and closets do not constitute living/training area). This is considered a Category I procedure if compliance by the individual can be accomplished through verbal prompting/physical prompting without requiring personal restraint (holding).

Note: Separation to Allow Calming (STAC) – Also available is the positive procedure of STAC whereby the person is encouraged to move to an area away from the person or situation that upset them. At the same time, they are assisted in directing their attention to talking about the problem, listening to music, talking about family, relaxing quietly, going for a walk, etc. The activity should be chosen by the person in need of calming. When sufficiently calm, staff will assist the person in resuming normal activities.

D. Assignment of Additional Chores: The individual is assigned additional chores as a consequence for inappropriate behavior. Additional chores may be assigned only if such chores are already a part of the Individual Program Plan (IPP) and are not designed to replace work assignments of housekeeping personnel.

E. Restitution: The individual is cued to restore any property damaged, stolen or defaced. If appropriate to the individual's level of functioning, he/she may be cued to offer a verbal apology to the offended person. If appropriate to the individual's ability to comprehend, monetary reimbursement for the value of the damaged or stolen property may be required if this is a part of the IPP. In lieu of full value, a symbolic portion of the value may be required. Monetary reimbursement requires Human Rights Committee approval and Guardian consent.

Note: The individual is not degraded nor put on display while restoring damage. The individual is given the same equipment and protection to complete the restitution as would normally be given to a person not responsible for the damage.

F. Withholding Privileges: The individual loses a particular privilege following the occurrence of an inappropriate behavior. Privileges include such things as special planned community activities. However, trips off grounds are special and should only be curtailed if problem behavior is anticipated during that trip. Examples of situations where problem behaviors may be anticipated include a problem behavior having already occurred and the person is not fully calm, or, a problem behavior has not yet occurred, but there are indications that a problem behavior is likely. The curtailing of trips off grounds should be done after consultation with psychology staff, or with supervisory staff if psychology staff is not available. Privileges do not include basic living activities, such as meals, habilitation activities, or basic rights afforded all individuals.

G. Personal Property Removal (less than one hour): Removal of an individual's personal item that is being used in an inappropriate or unsafe manner or location. For example, if an individual disturbs others in a common TV room by playing his radio too loudly and will not reduce the volume when instructed, the radio may be removed from that individual for a time not to exceed one hour. The item will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or to the individual directly, as appropriate (See Section 6, Page 8 of 9).

Category II:

Category II procedures may only be used as part of a formal behavior program designed by the individual's IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a licensed psychologist, physician, Human Rights Committee, and the facility administrator. Behavior program approval will include receipt of a signed consent from the individual and/or guardian.

A. Response Cost: The individual loses reinforcers previously earned in a behavior management system, (i.e., Token Economy Program)

B. Overcorrection - includes the following procedures:
   1) Restitutional Overcorrection: Requires the individual to restore the environment to a state that is better than it was before the occurrence of the inappropriate behavior.

   2) Positive Practice Overcorrection: Requires the individual to engage in an intensive practice period in which the alternative appropriate behavior is practiced.

C. Contingent Personal Property Removal (up to 24 hours maximum): Immediate removal of an individual's personal belongings contingent on the occurrence of a targeted behavior. Confiscated property will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or individual directly, as appropriate. This procedure is considered Category II if the individual voluntarily (without duress or coercion) surrenders the property upon request.

Category III:

Category III procedures may only be used as part of a formal behavior program designed by the individual's IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a licensed psychologist, physician, other professionals, as indicated by the nature of the program, Human Rights Committee, and the facility administrator. Behavior program approval will include receipt of a signed consent from the individual and/or guardian. The individual's record documents the IDT's conclusion that the potential harmful effects of each restrictive procedure (restraint, etc.) are clearly outweighed by the harmful effects of the targeted behavior.

A. Separation Time Out (Activity or Setting): Placement of an individual in a quiet area away from reinforcing activities or persons as a result of an inappropriate behavior occurring. The individual will be visually monitored during the time out. Further conditions include either:

1) Separation lasting for over 30 minutes to one (1) hour maximum.

2) Separation (any length of time) requiring physical intervention/personal restraint to ensure compliance.

B. Contingent Personal Property Removal (up to 24 hours maximum): Immediate removal of an individual's personal belongings contingent on the occurrence of a targeted behavior. Confiscated property will be held in a secure area and will be returned to the individual's room or to the individual directly, as appropriate. This procedure is considered Category III if the individual does not voluntarily surrender the property upon request, and it must be physically removed.

C. Sensory Deprivation: Involves the temporary impeding of one of the individual's senses for a period of time, contingent upon the occurrence of the target behavior. Most often, this procedure includes only the use of a blindfold or cloth placed over the individual's eyes when it has been shown to facilitate calming. The individual must be visually supervised during the use of this procedure, which may be used in combination with other Category III procedures, as designated in the individual program. It could also include lessening auditory input by covering the individual's ears, or covering a body part (usually the hands) to limit tactile stimulation, hand in mouth, or biting.

D. Restraint: When utilizing restraint as a programmatic option, a hierarchy of lesser restrictive procedures will be attempted prior to restraint, except in limited cases where this is clearly clinically contraindicated. IDT consideration will be given to parent/guardian notification of the use of restraint and address it in the behavior program.

1) Personal Restraint: In order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage, the individual or a portion of an individual's body is immobilized by another person or persons in order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage. Approved methods of intervention must be in the individual's behavior program. This is planned personal restraint, contingent upon occurrence of a target behavior. When available, a licensed nurse should monitor the personal restraint and/or check the individual's physical condition as soon as possible following restraint.

Excluded as personal restraint are: physical assistance, prompting of graduated physical guidance to assist individuals during such procedures as toothbrushing and feeding, or to control random head or arm movements during such procedures as haircutting, or the use of physical assistance in escorting, redirecting, or in manual guidance techniques are not considered personal restraint and do not require documentation as personal restraint. Also excluded as programmed personal restraint is the use of personal restraint in an emergency situation (Section 6, Page 8 of 9*) or during a necessary medical or dental procedure.

In the event of personal restraint, the QMRP/designee of the area must be notified as soon as possible. Programmed personal restraint will occur until the individual is calm and will not exceed fifteen (15) minutes. The IDT will define what constitutes calm behavior for this individual when used in a behavior program.

2) Mechanical Restraint: In order to prevent personal injury or serious property damage, the individual or a portion of the individual's body is immobilized until calm by an approved device or devices which may also prevent normal functioning, as described in section C, above. Restraints must be checked for safety and integrity prior to use. The device's use will not exceed 15 minutes without an extension of time approved and documented by the QMRP/designee, preferably, after face-to-face attention. Unless otherwise determined by the IDT, QMRP/designee extensions will be obtained every 15 minutes until the individual is calm. The IDT should define what constitutes calm behavior for this individual when used in a behavior program. Unless determined clinically contraindicated by the QMRP/designee, should the time in restraint reach 55 minutes, the individual must be released for five minutes for motion, liquid intake, or toileting.

Should time in restraint reach 1 hour and 50 minutes, the individual must be released for at least 10 minutes–for motion, liquid intake, or toileting. If this 10-minute release is judged to be a danger to the individual and/others, additional staff should be called to ensure safety for all concerned. In addition, the individual will be checked, face to face, at least every 15 minutes for safety, well being, and integrity of the restraint. Constant observation is required.

Note: On-site monitoring by the QMRP/designee is recommended. When available, a licensed nurse should monitor the mechanical restraint. If unavailable to monitor, a licensed nurse shall check the individual's physical condition as soon as possible following restraint, but in no case later than thirty minutes after the initiation of the restraint.

Excluded as programmed mechanical restraint is the use of restraints in an emergency situation (Section 6, Page 8 of 9), during a necessary medical or dental procedure, or to promote healing following a medical procedure or injury. Devices such as a helmet which are not prescribed for the purpose of restricting an individual's movement and/or normal functioning, but rather for their safety and protection are not considered a mechanical restraint.

5. Conditions for Use of Behavior Programs.

A. A formal behavior program will be developed by the IDT, written by a licensed psychological professional, and approved by a psychologist. It will include the following elements:

1) Description of the behavior to be modified;
2) Functional Analysis;
3) Thorough description of each step of the program to include duration and intensity of specific procedures, the methods of monitoring and analyzing the process, and special precautions that will be taken;
4) Description of any alternatives to the specific procedures;

B. The Individual Program Plan or behavior program will include:
1) Description of all procedures already attempted;
2) Side effects and risks, if any, of the intervention, in comparison with those of allowing the maladaptive behavior to continue; and
3) Behavioral objectives.

C. Behavior Management Procedures should be used in order of least restrictive, unless clinically contraindicated. Exceptions to this order must be fully documented and substantiated as to why more restrictive procedures are advisable before less restrictive ones.

D. All persons administering Category II and III procedures must have been trained in the administration of those specific procedures and have personally experienced those particular procedures, unless medically contraindicated for that person.

E. The Human Rights Committee will review all Category II and III programs at least every 6 months.

F. IDT consideration will be given to seeking consultation from outside expertise when IDT staff resources have been exhausted, as evidenced by the use of Category III procedures for over one (1) year without significant progress. If an outside consultant has been used without success, the agency should continue to access this or other outside expertise until an effective strategy is realized.

An outside consultant is defined as a professional of any discipline and who is not a member of the IDT. For instance, the outside consultant may be a member of the HDC staff not on the identified IDT, the agency staff, or a professional not affiliated with the agency.

6. Emergency Procedures. Nothing in this policy prohibits the use of emergency restraint (mechanical or personal), confiscation of any item used in a threatening manner, or removal from the environment for the purpose of protecting the individual and others around him/her. This includes the use of restraint procedures in the course of an established program, when the individual becomes a danger to him/herself or others, prior to staff being able to implement a lesser restrictive hierarchy. However, it is emphasized that emergency procedures may not be used at frequent intervals, becoming a routine method of intervention. If emergency procedures are utilized three times in a six-month period, the IDT will meet to conduct a functional analysis and develop an appropriate plan of action. The emergency use of restraint must conform to ICF/MR regulations and must be reported immediately to the facility administrator or designee.

7. Prohibitions: These activities are expressly prohibited.

   A. Corporal punishment - refers to the application of painful stimuli to the body as a penalty for certain behavior, and includes, but is not limited to, hitting, pinching, the use of electrical shock or other infliction of pain, whether or not applied as part of a systematic behavior intervention program.

   B. Individuals who receive services from the agency disciplining other individuals unless involved in an organized and approved self-governing program. Individuals will not participate in the actual administration of discipline.

   C. Seclusion of an individual alone in a room or other area from which entry/exit is prevented. This does not include placement in a time-out area for brief, programmed time segments, as part of a behavior program that meets all applicable standards.

   D. Unless specifically requested by family/guardian, any procedure that denies visitation or communication with family members.

   E. Any procedure that denies sleep, shelter, bedding, food, drink, or use of bathroom facilities.

   F. Inappropriate vocalizations, maltreatment, neglect, or forced exercise.

8. Informed Consent. The individual served and/or guardian, as appropriate, will be provided a copy of the behavior program which utilizes Category II and III procedures. Informed consent will be obtained PRIOR to the implementation of the program, with the following procedures:

A. Persons 18 years of age or older who have no legally appointed guardian may give informed consent for their behavior program. If there is a question about the individual's ability to give informed consent and no guardian can be located, appropriate legal action must be pursued to have someone appointed who can give consent.

B. Consent by the legal guardian(s) is required if guardianship has been established.

C. The legally adequate consent will:
1) Specify, in terms that are easily understood, the restrictive or intrusive procedure(s) involved;
2) Inform the person(s) giving consent of any potentially harmful effects of the procedure(s);
3) Be time-limited, not to exceed one year; and
4) State that consent may be withdrawn at any time.

9. Uncategorized Procedures. In the event a proposed procedure does not readily fit in one of the prescribed categories, it may be utilized on an emergency basis, if necessary, at the discretion of the administrator or designee until the appropriate category is determined.

NOTE: Behavior Management Policy 3011-D does not preclude the use of other restrictive/intrusive procedures that would prevent serious bodily harm and/or destruction of property or death. These procedures can only be considered when lesser restrictive procedures have been proven ineffective or their implementation are determined to be clinically contraindicated. Approvals required are the same as those for Category III procedures. Additional approvals may be required as deemed necessary by the facility administrator.

DOCUMENTATION OF AND RESPONSE TO MALADAPTIVE BEHAVIORS

POLICY STATEMENT: Maladaptive behaviors must be documented on a Behavior Report (BR), a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint (also called the Restraint Log), or other authorized data keeping device. Personal or mechanical restraint for maladaptive behaviors is to be used only as an emergency measure. Maladaptive behaviors include, but are not limited to, behaviors that result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property. Nothing in this policy removes or alters requirements as stated in other policies of verbal notification of incidents to the Superintendent and/or other staff.

PROCEDURES:

1. REQUIRED DOCUMENTATION

   a. When indicated, a BR must be completed following the maladaptive behavior. Incidents that are to be documented on the BR are the following:

      i. Behaviors that pose a threat to the physical or mental well being of the client or others.
      ii. Behaviors that have a direct negative impact on the client's programming.
      iii. Behaviors that directly contribute to the client remaining in a setting requiring a greater degree of supervision rather than a less restrictive one.
      iv. Target Behaviors identified by the Psychology Department and the Interdisciplinary Team.
      v. An incident requiring personal restraint (also requires notification of a QIDP). See Attachment #1.

   b. If the incident requires emergency mechanical restraint, a Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must be completed. Such behaviors are defined as those emergency situations in which behaviors may result in, or have the potential to result in, injury to self or others, or the destruction of property and cannot be controlled through the use of less restrictive measures.

   c. The rules of confidentiality will be followed when documenting these incidents. Any reference to a client other than the identified client in an incident report must be by initial only. Reference to other staff members involved will include their full name and title. All corrections must be made by a single line through the incorrect entry and the writer's initials. The Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint must include the signature of the QIDP or other staff member authorizing the restraint.

2. EMERGENCY USE OF RESTRAINT

   a. Emergency restraint is defined as the use of the least restrictive procedure and for the least time necessary to control severely aggressive or destructive behaviors. The use of emergency restraint will comply with all relevant standards and regulations. Restraint will not be used as punishment or for the convenience of staff in lieu of adequate programming.

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 3

b. Seclusion will not be used as either an emergency or programmatic procedure.

c. A QIDP must be notified when personal restraint is used and it must be documented on a Behavior Report.

d. Personal restraint of a client is used when the behavior is such that verbal control has been lost and other less restrictive measures have failed to control the behavior.

e. Personal restraint will be implemented by staff who have been trained in the use of approved methods. Personal restraint must not exceed 10 minutes. During the period of personal restraint if the client becomes calm no further restraint procedures are to be implemented. If the client shows no indication of calming and becomes violent, staff will proceed as indicated in Paragraph f. below.

f. The request for the emergency use of mechanical restraint will be based on need as exhibited by the client who is so aggressive that restraint is necessary to prevent imminent physical harm to themselves, others, or property. Mechanical restraint may be used only when all other means of controlling the behavior have been exhausted. Staff will proceed in the following manner:

   i. A Restraint Incident Leader will be identified. The attending staff will immediately implement emergency mechanical restraint. As soon as possible staff will notify the on duty Program Supervisor who will contact a QIDP or other authorized staff for authorization for the use of emergency mechanical restraint.
   ii. The authorization for the mechanical restraints must not exceed 15 minutes. Continued use of mechanical restraint must be re-authorized every 15 minutes.
   iii. Immediately after emergency mechanical restraint has been applied, staff must contact the nurse on duty. The nurse will examine the client to ensure the restraint is applied in a pain free and harmless manner and present no physical danger to the client. The nurse will make a notation of the examination on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint.
   iv. A client in emergency mechanical restraint must be:

      1. Kept under constant visual observation. This observation will be for the client's physical condition (e.g., distressed breathing, bleeding, adequate blood flow to the head and extremities) as well as for signs of calming.
      2. Checked for security of restraint, current behavior and general status. A synopsis will be documented every 15 minutes.
      3. Released for 5 minutes every hour for motion and exercise.
      4. Given the opportunity for fluid intake, meals, baths and toileting. These needs will be addressed and documented as the need arises.

5. Released from emergency mechanical restraint as soon as possible. This is defined to mean as soon as the client is calm and no longer a danger to self or others. Verbal outbursts do not necessarily mean a person is still out of control or that restraint should continue.

v. After release from emergency mechanical restraint, using the Restraint Incident Debriefing Form, the Restraint Incident Leader will conduct and document a debriefing discussion with the other staff members involved in the restraint and the client that must include the following:

1. The behavior which resulted in the use of the personal or emergency mechanical restraint.
2. Any environmental factors involved in the incident.
3. The antecedents to the behavior including interactions with peers or staff
4. Any action by staff that might have kept the incident from escalating to restraint.
5. The client's reaction to the use of restraint.
6. Any changes to the client's programming which might have prevented the incident.
7. Options that the client could have used to avoid the use of restraint.

3. COMPLETION OF DOCUMENTATION

a. The person authorizing the use of emergency mechanical restraint must sign the authorization. During deviant hours authorization may be obtained by telephone. Attending staff will note on the Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint that such authorization was obtained by telephone.

b. The on duty Program Supervisor will be responsible for ensuring that the appropriate reports are completed in a timely and accurate manner.

c. Completed Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form will be filed in the client's Master File "Behavior Incident File".

4. REVIEW AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE COMPLETED DOCUMENTS

a. Upon completion of the report it will be sent to the appropriate Team Office.

b. The Team Leader will review all reports for content, accuracy and appropriateness and sign in the appropriate place. If corrections are required the Team Leader will contact the writer of the report and ensure corrections are made. As soon as possible the report will be given to Quality Assurance to be scanned, copied, and distributed to appropriate staff. The original report will be sent to the Record Center Operator and filed in each client's file within five days.

c. The Record Center Operator will review Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form for completeness and errors. The originator will be notified to correct errors found by the Record Center Operator.

d. The QIDP and Psychology staff member will review copies of all reports for programmatic issues, patterns of use, and the appropriate follow-up.

e. The authorized data keeping device (i.e., Behavior Report, Behavior Report Documenting Emergency Restraint, and Restraint Incident Debriefing Form) will be forwarded to the Psychology Department depending on the program requirement.

5. FUNCTIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL ANALYSES OF BEHAVIORS

a. The purposes of conducting functional and environmental analyses are to determine:

1. The pragmatic utility of a behavior for a client, i.e., what the behavior "does" for the client.
2. What role the environment may have played in the causation of the behavior.

These analyses assume aberrant behavior does serve a functional purpose, but that a functionally equivalent (appropriate) communicative response can be taught, and will serve to substitute for the aberrant behavior. Further, the aberrant behavior will reduce in frequency as the more appropriate response becomes systematically reinforced.

b. These analyses will provide the data needed to formulate programmatic responses to teach and reinforce appropriate behaviors to replace aberrant behaviors and inappropriate behaviors.

6. APPROVED RESTRAINT PROCEDURES, TECHNIQUES, AND DEVICES

a. Personal Restraint, an emergency procedure limiting movement by the holding of a hand or limb.

b. Chemical Intervention ordered by the Physician.

c. Protective Helmet.

d. Papoose Board, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

f. Wrist Restraint, a Mechanical Restraint device limiting movement and range of motion.

7. AT BHDC ONLY ICF/IID QUALIFIED QIDP's SHALL BE APPROVED TO AUTHORIZE THE USE OF RESTRAINT

The Program Coordinator/QIDP is the first choice person to authorize restraint for clients on their caseload. After hours and on weekends the Team Leaders or other qualified QIDPs may be notified.

The following positions are recognized as being qualified QIDPs:

Program Coordinators/QIDPS, Team Leaders, Director of Residential Services, Superintendent, Assistant Superintendent, Director of Quality Assurance; Chief Psychologist, Psychological Examiners, Registered Nurses, and Staff Physician.

Current work telephone numbers for these persons can be obtained from DHS/BHDC Share.

THE STAFF PHYSICIAN MUST REVIEW, BY SIGNATURE, THE USE OF ALL EMERGENCY MECHANICAL RESTRAINT.

FIRST AID GUIDELINES

POLICY STATEMENT: First Aid Guidelines are available for use in each of the Aide Stations in each living area. This will permit appropriate and immediate attention to medical conditions of sudden onset, including injuries and choking.

PROCEDURES:

1. The First Aid Guidelines have been approved by the staff physician for the Booneville HDC.

2. In all cases in which a serious medical injury or illness is suspected, either to clients or staff, a call to the Medical Department should be made. This should be the first call so Medical staff can respond immediately to the situation.

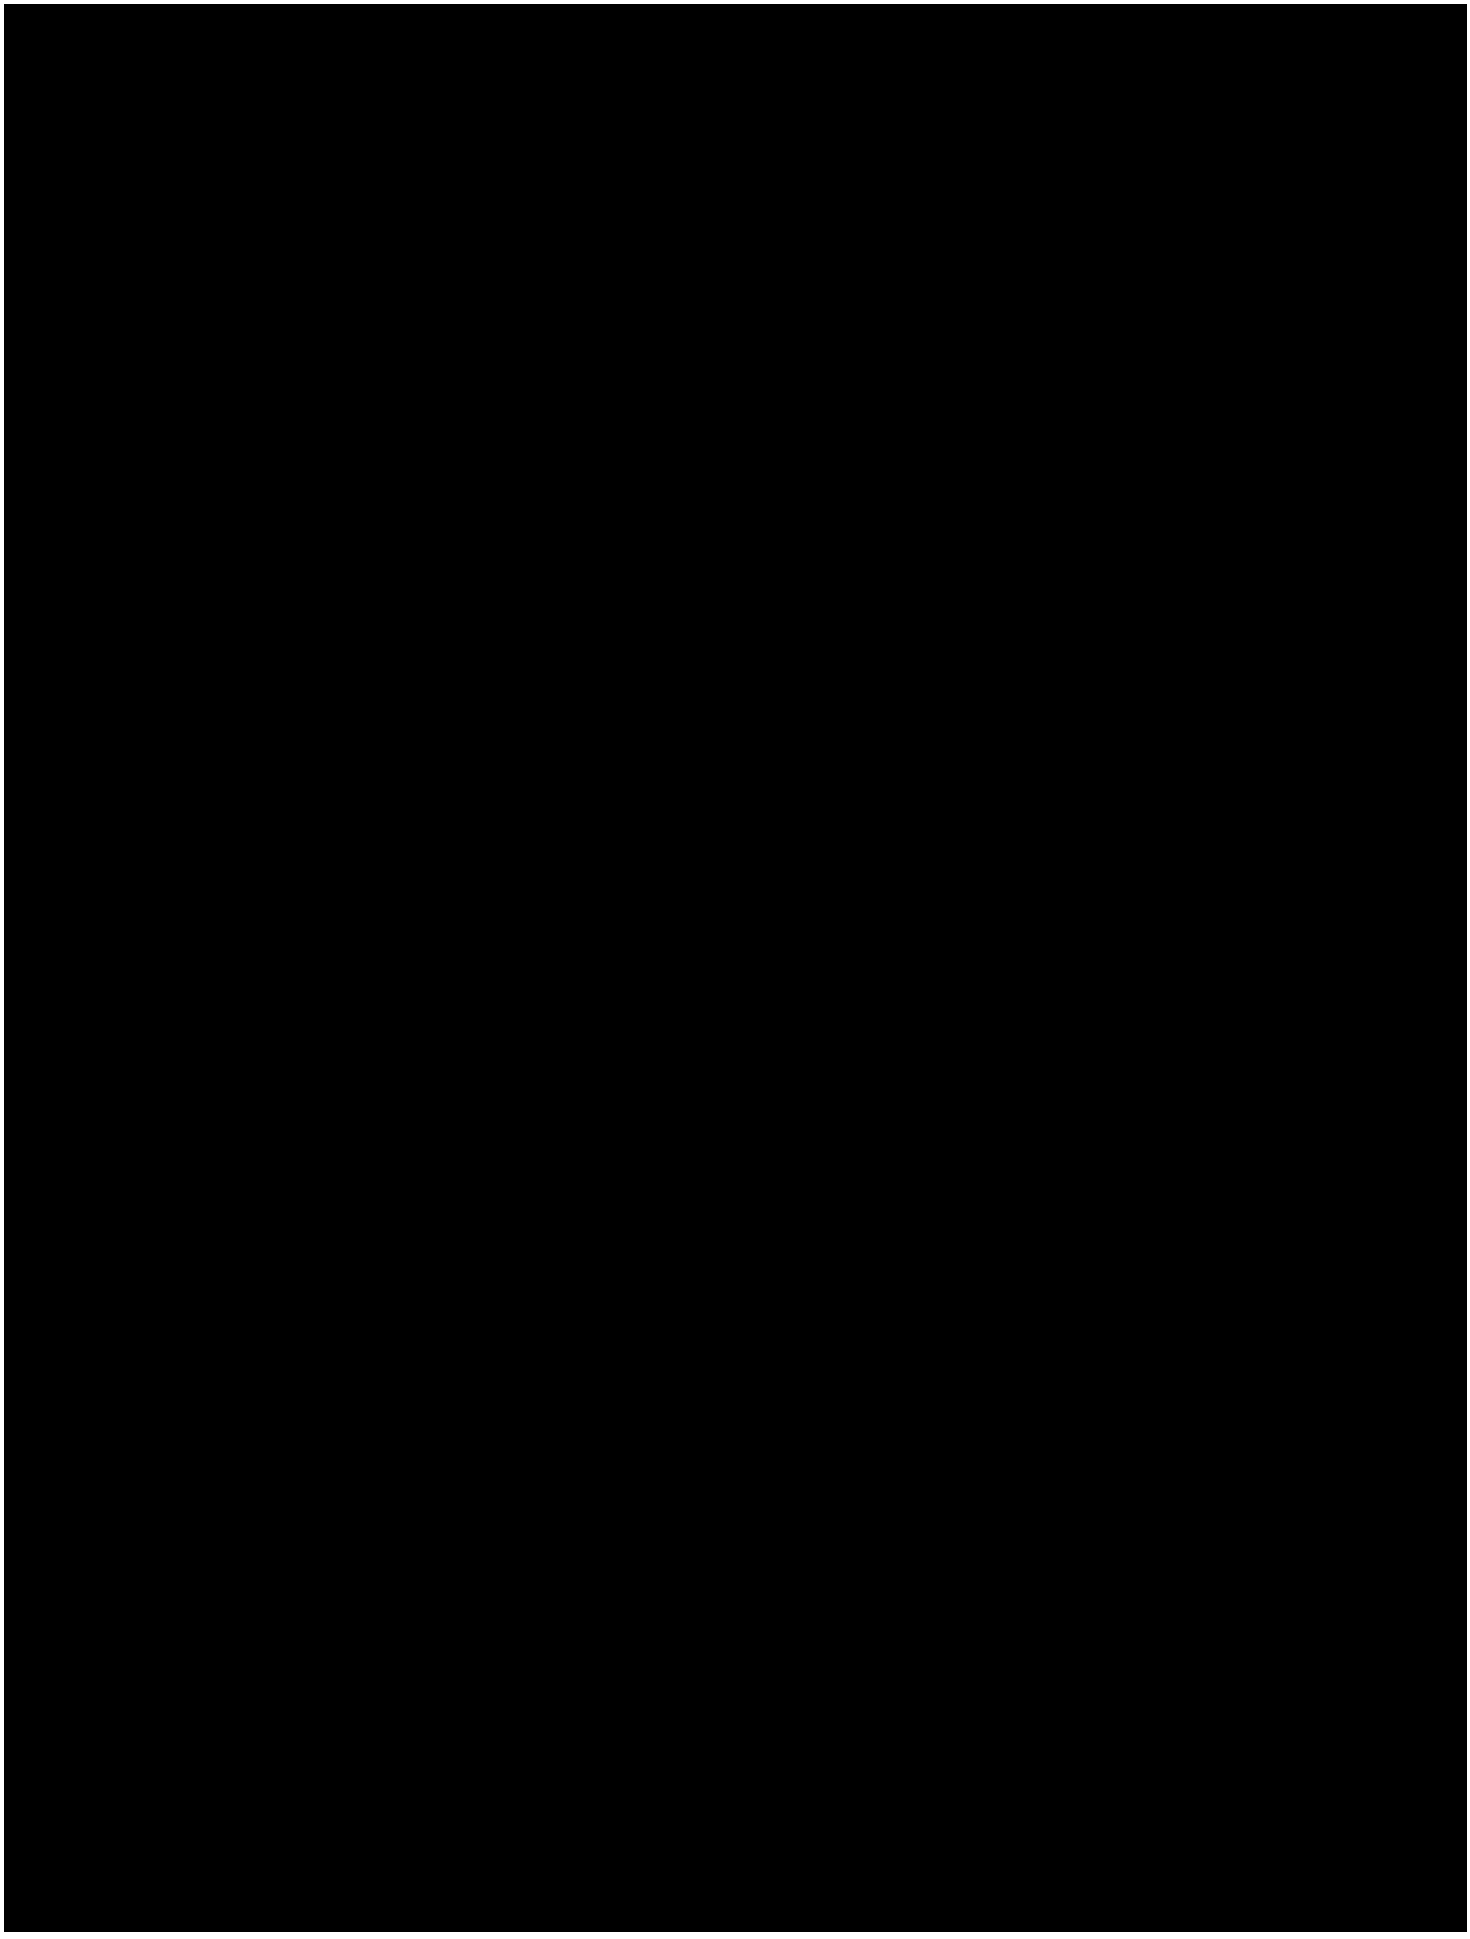
   A call to Medical at 1422 should be made and the following information should be given:

   1. Caller's name and title
   2. Victim's name, location, situation and condition of the victim (alert, unconscious, etc.)
   3. Medical will assess the situation and call an ambulance if appropriate.

3. All staff members are trained in first aid, CPR, and abdominal thrust for choking so, that if necessary, emergency rescue measures can be initiated before Medical staff arrives.

4. Choking is a serious and potentially life-threatening situation and the following guidelines should be followed:

   a. Staff will supervise clients during meal times and nursing staff will be available by phone at all times;
   b. emergency equipment including oxygen and suction machine will be kept in the dining room for use as needed;
   c. All staff will receive annual training in abdominal thrust and choking precautions.



5. First Aid kits, disaster kits, and first aid guidelines will be kept in all areas. Medical will do monthly inspections on first aid kits, and every 6 month inspections on disaster kits, and refill appropriately. If living area staff notice supplies are low, Medical is to be notified and supplies will be replenished.

PROHIBITION OF HARMFUL ACTS TO CLIENTS SERVED

POLICY STATEMENT (Philosophy): Each person served by the Booneville Human Development Center (BHDC) has the right to be free from treatment or conduct that is harmful to them physically or psychologically. BHDC strictly prohibits inappropriate treatment in any form or of any nature to individuals receiving services.

REFERENCES: DDS Policy #3004-1
Maltreatment Prohibition, Prevention, Reporting and Investigation
DHS Policy #1090 Incident Reporting

1. Purpose: BHDC will do everything in its control to prevent inappropriate treatment of those served at the facility and to report, investigate, and address instances of such activity. This policy establishes a protocol and defines responsibilities for reporting and investigating instances where a person served by BHDC is potentially subjected to improper treatment.

   This policy does not replace or remove the legal responsibility of any person or organization to report maltreatment or of any external organization to conduct investigations as required by law. Because of the nature of acts which constitute a violation of this policy, all allegations of harmful acts to clients served at a facility must be reported immediately as possible maltreatment and reviewed as such. Upon completion of the review, investigative findings will be forwarded to the Office of Long Term Care (OLTC) for a determination regarding whether employee actions rise to the level of violating the Arkansas Adult Long Term Care Facility Resident Maltreatment Act and Child Maltreatment Act. A facility review may determine inappropriate conduct or acts that do not rise to the level of maltreatment. Such conduct or acts shall be addressed through a personnel action up to and including termination.

   An OLTC finding is in addition to the facility determination regarding a violation of Department of Human Services (DHS) Policy 1084, Employee Conduct Standards. The OLTC determination is apart and separate from the facility findings, and relates to the question of whether the infraction of policy also constituted a violation of state law. The OLTC finding is not indicative of employee innocence regarding DHS policy and does not impact the facility determination that an action violated policies of the Department of Human Services.

2. Scope: Compliance with this policy is the responsibility of all staff, consultants and volunteers at the facility or any other person as determined by the facility administrator. It is the responsibility of the facility administrator to ensure overall compliance with this policy and to take all necessary precautions to prevent the occurrence of harmful acts against residents of a facility. (Persons outside the scope of this policy suspected of harmful acts against a person served at the facility will be reported to the appropriate state protective agencies according to OLTC guidelines.)

WED: 12/04/19
ION: 12/29/17

3. Definitions:

Harmful Acts - Actions which include, but are not limited to, inappropriate/harmful physical, verbal, psychological, sexual, or neglectful acts, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of the rights or dignity of individuals receiving services.

Founded charge – A preponderance of credible evidence exists that supports the allegation that a harmful act to an individual by a BHDC employee has occurred.

Facility administrator – The licensed administrator or designee.

A. Prohibition of harmful acts to clients served

The facility administrator is responsible for implementing this policy in a manner to lessen the potential that harmful acts to clients served by the BHDC occur. Implementation measures will include, but are not be limited to, the areas of employee screening/training/prevention.

1. Screening:
Pre-employment screening of potential employees for a history of committing harmful acts to others. Screening includes:
   - Attempting to obtain information from previous employers and/or current employers,
   - Checking with the appropriate licensing boards, registries, and DHS personnel offices, and
   - Performing criminal record background checks.

2. Training:
Training employees, through orientation and on-going educational sessions, on issues related to the prohibition of harmful acts against people served at the facility. Areas of training may include:
   - Rights of clients
   - Recognition of events that may precede or trigger certain behaviors
   - Early intervention techniques for positive behavioral support
   - Approved interventions to deal with aggressive and/or catastrophic reactions
   - Recognizing signs of staff burnout, frustration and stress that may lead to maltreatment
   - Definition of harmful acts and maltreatment, and
   - Reporting suspected harmful acts.

3. Prevention:
Providing the people served at the facility, their families, and staff information on how and to whom they must report concerns, incidents and grievances; and how they may receive feedback regarding the concerns expressed.

Staff should immediately intervene when suspected maltreatment is witnessed to ensure client protection.

Identify, correct and intervene in situations in which harmful acts are more likely to occur. This includes an ongoing analysis of:

- Physical environments
- Supports in place to encourage recognizing and respecting client dignity and rights
- Deployment of staff
- Reports of inappropriate staff behaviors related to harmful acts
- Care planning and monitoring of people served at the facility who have challenges that might lead to conflict or neglect.

4. Identification:
Identify and respond to events, occurrences, patterns, and trends that may suggest harmful acts are being committed against a person or persons served at the facility.

B. Reporting

1. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed harmful or inappropriate acts will be immediately reported by all persons having knowledge of the alleged incident to the facility administrator.

2. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed harmful acts will be reported as required by policy to the appropriate abuse reporting hotlines by the facility administrator.

   NOTE: Nothing in this policy removes the right and obligation of a person reporting a harmful act to immediately report an incident directly to the appropriate abuse reporting hotline, as well as to the facility administrator.

3. Reporting shall not be delayed for any type of investigation.

4. Incidents shall be reported in accordance with DHS Policy 1090, Incident Reporting.

5. Reports of allegations shall also be made by the facility administrator/designee to local law enforcement and to the individual's parent/guardian/advocate. Documentation of these notifications should be maintained as part of the IRIS/investigative report.

C. Protection of Individuals During Investigations

The facility administrator will ensure staff accused or suspected of committing harmful acts as defined in this policy leave the center campus and have no contact with any persons served at the facility until an investigation has been completed. Under no circumstances will the subject(s) of an investigation resume regular duties or assume new duties at the facility until investigative results are final. The facility administrator or designee may allow employees who are alleged to have committed harmful acts to be on the facility campus under the supervision of management staff when being interviewed as part of an investigation.

D. Investigations

1. Investigations will begin promptly after an incident is reported and be conducted by a person trained in the area of performing investigations and reviews.

2. The facility administrator shall notify the facility Human Rights Committee of all founded cases of harmful acts and may also request the committee to make recommendations on current investigations.

3. As mandated by statute, the facility administrator will defer investigations to the proper entity (law enforcement, protective service agencies, Office of Attorney General, etc.) when requested. In such cases, however, a completed review of the matter by the facility is still required.

4. Officials outside BHDC who are authorized to conduct/review investigations may request and obtain a copy of relevant documents from the facility administrator.

E. Investigation Reports

1. The facility administrator must submit a report of findings to the Office of Long Term Care (OLTC) within five (5) working days of the facility's knowledge of the incident to comply with OLTC regulations. The submitted report should contain all information collected (photos, witness statements, medical documentation, etc.) during the investigation.

2. If circumstances prevent a findings report from being completed within five (5) working days, a status report must be submitted to OLTC at the conclusion of that five-day period.

F. Discipline

1. Founded charge of harmful acts
The employee is immediately terminated as outlined in DHS Policy 1084, Employee Discipline, and is designated as "not eligible for rehire" by DHS.

2. Failure to report or delay in reporting alleged, suspected, or witnessed harmful acts
The facility administrator will utilize discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084, Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances call for a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

The facility administrator will utilize discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084, Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances call for a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

3. Other Involvement
An employee alleged to have committed a harmful act and who is not terminated will be required to attend training that at a minimum covers prevention of harmful acts and reporting requirements. The facility administrator will identify, based on factors identified in a harmful act investigation, other staff required to attend retraining. The facility administrator shall specify the training course(s) and ensure that documentation of training is maintained.

G. Record Keeping

BHDC shall maintain in a secure location a copy of all files related to cases of alleged, suspected, or witnessed harmful acts. The following items will be maintained in this file:

- The original incident report and all follow-up reports
- The facility investigation report and findings
- Any correspondence regarding the allegation
- Any documentation of supporting evidence (photos, etc.)
- Documentation of corrective actions taken by the facility administrator

A summary report of investigations of all alleged, suspected, and witnessed harmful acts conducted at the HDCs and subsequent outcomes shall be submitted to the DDS Director by January 15 of each year for the previous calendar year. Individual identifier information shall not be used. Victims shall be identified by case number and staff shall be identified by job title. ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES
DIVISION OF DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES SERVICES
DDS DIRECTOR'S OFFICE POLICY MANUAL

Policy Type	Subject of Policy	Policy No.
Service	Maltreatment Prohibition, Prevention, Reporting, and Investigation	3004-I

1. Philosophy Every individual served by the Division of Developmental Disabilities Services (DDS) has the right to be free from maltreatment. DDS strictly prohibits maltreatment (which includes but is not limited to physical, verbal, psychological, or sexual abuse, neglect, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of rights) of individuals receiving services.

2. Purpose Each facility shall do all that is within its control to prevent occurrences of maltreatment and to report and investigate maltreatment when it occurs. This policy establishes a maltreatment prohibition protocol and defines responsibilities for reporting and investigating alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment of individuals served by DDS.

   This Policy does not replace or remove the mandated legal responsibility of any entity to report maltreatment or of any external entity to conduct investigations as required by law.

3. Scope Compliance with this policy is the responsibility of all facility staff, clients, consultants, volunteers, staff of other agencies serving the client, family members, legal guardians, friends, or other individuals. It is the responsibility of the on-site administrator to ensure overall compliance with this policy and to take all necessary precautions to prevent maltreatment.

4. Definitions

1. Maltreatment – Actions which include, but are not limited to, physical, verbal, psychological, or sexual abuse, neglect, exploitation, misappropriation of property, and violation of rights of individuals receiving services

2. Founded charge of maltreatment - Credible evidence exists that supports the charge of maltreatment of an individual by a DDS employee.

3. On-site administrator – The administrator or his or her designee.

See other terms as defined by statutes in Appendix A and B.

Replacement: This Policy replaces: DDS Commissioner's Office Policy 3004-I (January 28, 1981, June 4, 1982, and May 25, 1983); DDS Deputy Director's Office Policy 3004-I (January 8, 1987); DDS Director's Office Policy 3004-I (May 1, 1993, December 1, 1993, and May 22, 1995).

5. Policy DDS Programs (hereafter referred to as facilities) will implement this policy and develop and implement consistent procedures for the prevention, identification, reporting, and investigation of maltreatment.

6. Procedures

A. Prohibition of Maltreatment

The on-site administrator is responsible for implementing this policy and consistent procedures that prohibit maltreatment through screening, training, prevention, and identification. Below are ways in which facilities should implement each component.

1. Screening:
   Screen potential employees for a history of maltreatment, as defined by applicable requirements. This includes:
   - attempting to obtain information from previous employers and/or current employers,
   - checking with the appropriate licensing boards, registries, and DHS personnel offices, and
   - performing criminal record checks.

2. Training:
   Train employees, through orientation and through on-going sessions, on issues related to maltreatment prohibition practices such as:
   - Rights of clients
   - Recognition of events that may precede or trigger certain behaviors
   - Early intervention techniques for positive behavioral support
   - Approved interventions to deal with aggressive and/or catastrophic reactions
   - Recognizing signs of staff burnout, frustration and stress that may lead to maltreatment;
   - Definition of maltreatment, and
   - Reporting suspected maltreatment.

3. Prevention:
Provide clients, families, and staff information on how and to whom they may report concerns, incidents and grievances; and how they may receive feedback regarding the concerns that have been expressed.
Identify, correct and intervene in situations in which maltreatment are more likely to occur. This includes an analysis of:
   - Features of the physical environment that may make maltreatment and/or neglect more likely to occur, such as secluded areas of the facility;
   - Failure to recognize and respect client rights.
   - The deployment of staff on each shift in sufficient numbers to meet the needs of the clients, and assure that the staff assigned have knowledge of the individual clients' care needs;
   - Inappropriate staff behaviors, such as:
     - derogatory language,
     - rough handling,
     - ignoring clients while giving care,
     - directing clients who need toileting assistance to urinate or defecate in their beds; and
     - use of items for staff convenience (i.e., disposable briefs, restraints)
   - The assessment, care planning, and monitoring of clients with needs and behaviors which might lead to conflict or neglect. This would include clients with a history of aggressive behaviors, clients who have behaviors such as entering other clients' rooms, clients with self-injurious behaviors, clients with communication disorders, and clients that require extensive care.

4. Identification:
Identify events, occurrences, patterns, and trends, such as bruising of clients, or a change in behavior that may suggest maltreatment.

B. Reporting.

1. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported by all individuals having knowledge of the alleged incident to the on-site administrator.

2. All alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment will be immediately reported to the appropriate abuse reporting hotlines by the on-site administrator.

NOTE: Nothing in this policy removes the right and obligation of a mandated reporter (see Appendix B) to immediately report an incident directly to the appropriate abuse reporting hotline, as well as to the on-site administrator.

3. Reporting shall not be delayed for any type of investigation.

4. Incidents shall be reported in accordance with DHS Policy 1090, Incident Reporting, and the DHS Incident Reporting and Information System (IRIS).

5. Reports of allegations shall also be made by telephone or fax by the on-site administrator/designee to local law enforcement where the facility is located and to the individual's parent/guardian/advocate.

6. Incidents which are not specifically defined in statute as abuse but which have or may have a negative impact on clients shall be reported as noted in item 4 above. An example would be one or more acts of discourteous treatment by an employee, as defined in DHS Policies 1084 and 1085, Minimum Conduct Standards.

C. Protection of Individuals During Investigations

The on-site administrator is responsible for ensuring that staff accused or suspected of maltreatment leave the facility grounds immediately and have no contact with clients until an investigation has been completed. Under no circumstances will the subject(s) of an investigation resume regular duties or assume new duties at the facility until an investigation is complete.

D. Investigations

1. Investigations will begin promptly after an incident is reported. When applicable, the on-site administrator may delegate this task to a trained investigator on staff.

2. Allegations of maltreatment will be investigated according to DDS Procedural Guidelines for Investigations. Physical evidence (i.e., bruises, marks, etc.) shall be photographed when an incident is reported and again no more than three days later.

3. The on-site administrator may request that the Human Rights Committee review and make recommendations on current investigations and shall notify the Committee of all founded cases of maltreatment.

4. As mandated by statute, the on-site administrator will defer investigations to the proper entity (law enforcement, protective service agencies, Office of Attorney General, etc.).

5. Officials outside DDS who are authorized to conduct investigations shall request and obtain a copy of relevant documents from the on-site administrator.

E. Investigation Reports

1. When a reported incident has been determined to warrant an investigation, the on-site administrator must submit a report of findings to the Office of Long Term Care (OLTC) within five (5) working days of the facility's knowledge of the incident, to comply with OLTC regulation LTC 300 et.seq.

2. If the administrator is unable to submit a final report to OLTC within five days, he or she must submit a status report to OLTC within the five-day timeframe. This status report must detail the findings that have been determined to that point and what areas need further investigation.

3. A full report, in the format of a DDS Investigative File, must be completed and submitted to the DDS Director and to OLTC within 14 calendar days of notification that an incident is being investigated.

4. An extension of the 14-day timeframe must be requested of and granted by the Director's Office. Documentation of the extension approval shall be part of the file.

5. The DDS Director's Office shall send a copy of all investigative files to the appropriate Protective Services Agency, the Office of Chief Counsel, and the Office of the Attorney General.

F. Discipline.

1. Founded charge of maltreatment
   The employee is immediately terminated and his/her personnel file is designated as "not eligible for rehire" by DHS.

2. Failure to report alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment
   The employee is subject to termination, as in item F-1. If not terminated, the on-site administrator will utilize progressive discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084 Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances clearly warrant a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

3. Delay in reporting alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment
   The employee is subject to termination, as in item F-1. If not terminated, the on-site administrator will utilize progressive discipline as noted in DHS Policy 1084 Employee Discipline, unless the documented circumstances clearly warrant a deviation from the guidelines, due to aggravating or mitigating facts.

4. Other Involvement
Any employee who is involved in any way with any aspect of a case of maltreatment and who is not terminated will be required to attend training relative to maltreatment prevention, reporting, and investigation. The on-site administrator shall specify the training course(s) and ensure that documentation of training is maintained.

G. Record Keeping.

1. Each facility shall maintain a copy of all files related to cases of alleged, suspected, or witnessed maltreatment in a secure location. This record will include the original incident report (IRIS) and all follow-up reports; the on-site administrator's investigation report; any correspondence; any documentation of supporting evidence (photos, etc.), and documentation of the actions taken by the on-site administrator. These internal records shall be maintained for no less than ten (10) years. Original investigative files will be maintained in the DDS Director's office and retained indefinitely, in either paper format or other medium.

2. A summary report of investigations of all alleged, suspected, and witnessed maltreatment conducted at the HDCs and subsequent outcomes shall be submitted to the DDS Director by January 15 of each year for the previous calendar year. Individual identifier information shall not be used. Victims shall be identified by case number and staff shall be identified by Job Title.

3. DDS Systems Development Section will also submit a summary report of the same information, as reported by DDS Community Programs, to the DDS Director by January 15 each year for the previous calendar year. Requests for the summary reports noted in G.2 and G.3 shall be made in writing to the DDS Director.

H. Release of Investigative Files.

It is the intent of this policy to protect the anonymity of all clients noted in investigative reports and the names of those who report abuse. For specific guidance for the release of information under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), see DHS Policy 1053. All client and reporter identifiers must be deleted (redacted) prior to release.

NOTE: When an investigation results in disciplinary action that is grieved, a copy of pertinent information from the investigation report will be provided to the grievant with client and reporter identifiers deleted. This may not apply to the grievance process at the state level.

I. Confidentiality.

All aspects of allegations, reports, and investigations of child and adult maltreatment are confidential. Verified violations will be subject to discipline under DHS Policy 1084, Employee Discipline and DHS Policy 1085, Minimum Conduct Standards.

J. Appeals.

Employees who have been disciplined based on provisions set forth in this policy retain the right of appeal according to established grievance procedures outlined in DHS Policy 1086, Employee Grievance Procedure.
