(a) At the time of the initial communication or within five (5) days after the initial communication with a consumer in connection with the collection of a debt, unless the consumer has paid the debt, a debt collector shall send the consumer a written notice containing:

(1) The amount of the debt;

(2) The name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed;

(B) In which the consumer resides at the commencement of the action.

(b) This subchapter does not create a cause of action by a debt collector.

17-24-511. Furnishing certain deceptive forms.

(a) It is unlawful to design, compile, and furnish a form knowing that the form would be used to create the false belief in a consumer that a person other than the creditor of the consumer is participating in the collection of or in an attempt to collect a debt the consumer allegedly owes the creditor, when in fact the person is not participating in collecting or attempting to collect the debt.

(b) A person who violates this section is liable to the same extent and in the same manner as a debt collector is liable under § 17-24-512 for failure to comply with this subchapter.

(3)(A) In the case of a successful action to enforce the foregoing liability, the costs of the action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee as determined by the court.

(B) If the court finds that an action under this section was brought in bad faith or for the purpose of harassment, the court may award to the defendant attorney's fees reasonable in relation to the work expended and costs.

(b) In determining the amount of liability in an action under subsection (a) of this section, the court shall consider among other relevant factors:

(1) In an individual action under subsection (a)(2)(A) of this section, the frequency and persistence of noncompliance by the debt collector, the nature of the noncompliance, and the extent to which the noncompliance was intentional; or

(2) In a class action under subsection (a)(2)(B) of this section, the frequency and persistence of noncompliance by the debt collector, the nature of the noncompliance, the resources of the debt collector, the number of persons adversely affected, and the extent to which the debt collector's noncompliance was intentional.

(c) A debt collector may not be held liable in an action brought under this subchapter if the debt collector shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adapted to avoid the error.

(d) An action to enforce a liability created by this subchapter may be brought in a court of competent jurisdiction within one (1) year from the date on which the violation occurs.

(e) A provision of this section imposing liability shall not apply to an act done or omitted in good faith in conformity with an advisory opinion of the Federal Trade Commission addressing appropriate conduct under the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692 et seq., notwithstanding that after the act or omission has occurred, the opinion is amended, rescinded, or determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for a reason.

"SECTION 1. DO NOT CODIFY. Legislative findings.

The General Assembly declares that as a result of the downturn in the economy and the resulting efforts by the federal government to stimulate the economy, the interest rates have been lowered to such an extent that governmental units at all levels in the state are unable to finance public works projects. Under § 4 of Amendment 65 of the Arkansas Constitution, the interest rate on revenue bonds cannot exceed five percent (5%) per annum above the Federal Reserve Discount Rate at the time of the contract. As a result of the lowered interest rates, the interest rate that the governmental units can establish on revenue bonds is insufficient to sell the bonds. Therefore, capital projects required to protect the public safety and provide for the general welfare of the residents of Arkansas cannot be pursued. These projects include the construction of new schools, the renovation of deteriorating schools, the construction of incarceration facilities, road improvement projects, health care facilities, and other projects directly related to improving the lives of Arkansans.

It is determined that the previous and current conditions of the economy require the General Assembly to take corrective action to address the severe situation governmental entities are finding themselves in. The General Assembly also declares that under § 1 of Article 5 of Amendment 7 to the Arkansas Constitution, a measure is defined to include any bill, law, resolution, ordinance, charter, constitutional amendment, or legislative proposal or enactment of any character. This section also provides in part that a measure approved by a vote of the people shall not be amended or repealed by the General Assembly except upon a yea and nay vote on roll call of two-thirds majority of all the members elected to each house of the General Assembly. It is further declared that Amendment 65 was enacted under the provisions of § 1 of Article 5 of Amendment 7 to the Arkansas Constitution and as such is a measure as defined under that constitutional provision. The initiative was adopted at the general election on November 4, 1986, by a vote of 318,894 for and 275,877 against. Therefore, it is determined that without immediate relief from the limits on the interest rates on revenue bonds, the governmental units of the state will be unable to obtain adequate funding to meet the needs of Arkansans.

SECTION 3. EMERGENCY CLAUSE. It is found and determined by the General Assembly that as a result of the economic downturn of the United States and Arkansas economies, governmental units in the state are unable to finance capital improvement projects necessary to meet the needs of the state and that without immediate relief from the interest rate limits to obtain funding for these projects, the citizens of this state will suffer irreparable harm to their health and well-being. This bill shall immediately provide governmental units with the ability to pursue projects necessary to ensure the public safety, health, and welfare of its citizens. Therefore, an emergency is declared to exist and this act being immediately necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health, and safety shall become effective on:

(1) The date of its approval by the Governor;

(2) If the bill is neither approved nor vetoed by the Governor, the expiration of the period of time during which the Governor may veto the bill; or

(i) Exceed fifty cents (50¢) on a customer's monthly bill for electric service or natural gas service; or

(ii) Be collected for more than two (2) years after its imposition unless, after notice and hearing, the commission continues the imposition of a fee in an amount that is less than fifty cents (50¢) per month for the purpose of:

HOUSE BILL NO. 1940

JOURNAL ENTRY

SECTION 1. FINDINGS

State statute 6-13-620, which outlines duties and responsibilities of school board members, is in substantially the same form as it was when enacted in 1931.

A that time, public education consisted primarily of segregated, one-room schoolhouses: 4,104 schools for white children and 1,256 for African-American children, all within 3,478 school districts. The law empowered locally elected school boards to hire and personally supervise the one or two teachers the district employed. School board members had to ensure that the wood was chopped for the stove and a leaky schoolhouse roof was mended.

The language of the 1931 law that relates to school finance was drafted in response to a series of extraordinary events. Arkansas had been devastated by a flood in 1927, killer tornadoes and the stock market crash followed in 1929, and deadly droughts in 1930 led to the dust bowl years. The state was financially devastated, local tax revenues suffered, and money for schools fell short. Desperate to fund their schools, some boards took drastic measures that ultimately led to many defaults on bonded indebtedness.

So, when the General Assembly passed 6-13-620, it included a provision that has applied to no other elected official in the state, before or since: Individual school board members could be held financially liable for their school district's deficit spending.

Public education in 2009 bears little resemblance to schooling in the 1930's. In the 78 years since 6-13-630 was enacted, the General Assembly and the courts have substantially reordered how the state provides public education. A new understanding of the roles and responsibilities of locally elected school boards has emerged. Standards for teacher credentials and course content are determined by state law, and school boards now hire professional school administrators to fill many of the roles previously carried out by the boards.

Today, the General Assembly expects the school board to provide governance, not a set of hands willing to build a one-room schoolhouse and keep it warm and dry. Accordingly, the law describing the powers and duties of the school boards requires revision to correlate it with the current body of education law and the legal job description the General Assembly has shaped for board members.
